Murray Street Circle Holds Supper

The fine summer weather which prevailed Wednesday fore-shadowed success for a delightful supper which was held last evening on the lawn of Murray Street Church by the Women's Mission Circle. A long table laid with white linen and centered with a graceful bouquet of summer flowers was convened by Mrs. Norman Barrie, and assistants were Mrs. C. Westbrook, Mrs. L. A. Campbell and Mrs. Walter Kidd.

After the supper the president, Mrs. H. H. Graham, called a special meeting to discuss allotments for this year. Miss J. Jackson made a strong appeal for help for missionaries, and ended her appeal by moving that the allotment, which was $270 for Home Missions and $405 for Foreign Missions, be adopted, which was seconded by Mrs. B. Jackson.

Reference was made of the very great loss to the circle of their past president, Miss M. P. Barnard. Her work in connection with the shipping of White Cross Boxes was finished by Miss Wilma Campbell.

The afternoon was spent in ball games, swimming and a fine program of races.

Presentation Made To Mrs. Wm. Zeihr

Mrs. Wm. Zeihr was honored guest at the home of Mrs. M. A. Edwards, 220 Dublin street, Tuesday evening, when friends of St. Andrew's Church and members of the Bowling Green gathered to present her with a very fine picture prior to her departure to Hamilton, where she and Mr. Zeihr will make their future home. The address was read by Mrs. R. Coleman, and Mrs. F. Board presented the picture.

Among friends present were: Mrs. (Rev.) E. W. Young, Mrs. Frank James, Mrs. Fred Board, Mrs. Wm. Davis, Mrs. M. Weir, Mrs. A. Bass, Mrs. J. Anderson, Mrs. Wm. Langford, Mrs. Glen Edwards, Miss Lillian Mills, Mrs. Wm. Pakenham, Mrs. G. A. Borland, Mrs. G. R. Coleman, Mrs. H. R. McIlmoyle and Mrs. M. Edwards.

At the close of the evening a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. F. James assisted by Mrs. Glen Edwards and Miss Lillian Mills.

It looks now as though the straight silhouette will replace the vogue for flares this fall. The narrow skirts have an even slimmer look when they are contrasted with softy-bloused bodices.

Sheer Embroidered Voile in Color

A lovely dress for warm days is the embroidered voile, above, in colors and cut to give you coolness and chic for summer days.

Simulated pearl balls down the front, self-colored binding, shiny patent leather belt, white pique poppies at neckline, it comes in navy, copen, brown, black or green with white embroidery.

The wide, cool looking hat is one of the delightful ones that are being worn right now during the hottest of the weather. It is an odd thing that very large and very small hats are equally smart for this season. Both are "pretty," whether flower trimmed or very simple.

Jean Middleton Writes of Life in England

An interesting sketch of her life as an exchange teacher in England has been written to the Board of Education by Miss Jean Middleton, a former Peterborough girl, and a niece of the Misses Davidson, Water Street.

Part of Miss Davidson's letter, which will undoubtedly be of interest to all lovers of travel, is given below: "I am enjoying my year here very much. The school work is quite different, with much more time devoted to music, art, physical culture and manual work, although I believe with the new curriculum you now have in Ontario it will be very similar.

"A real thrill has been seeing the many old historical places which one has read and studied about all one's life. Through the League of Empire, trips are planned for almost every Saturday. Last Saturday we were entertained all day by the Mayor and Council of Colchester; some weeks ago the same sort of day was spent at Greenwich, and in a few weeks we are to spend another Saturday at Canterbury. In London we have visited St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey, the Tower of London, the Law Courts, Lambert Place, the Parliament Buildings, the Public Record Office where the Doomsday Book is kept, and many other places of historical interest.

"Our mid-term holiday last October was spent visiting Stonehenge, Glastonbury, Bristol, Wells and Bath, and was much enjoyed. Visiting the old Abbey ruins in Glastonbury where Joseph of Aramathea was buried and seeing the spot where the Holy Grail is supposed to have been hidden were perhaps the highlights of the trip, but we enjoyed seeing the Druid stones at Stonehenge and the remains of the Roman baths at Bath.

"Of our Christmas trip I dare not write for it would take pages. We visited Paris, Milan, Florence, Venice, Naples, Rome, Pisa, Genoa and Monte Carlo, and each in turn provided its own interests and delights. It was most thrilling seeing all these old world cities and trying to realize that they were there much as they are today before Canada was even discovered.

"At Easter another delightful trip was planned for us to Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, and Paris again, so that we may visit Versailles and perhaps some of the battlefields. Needless to say we are looking forward to our holidays. With all these planned trips it is very difficult to find time to visit other cities in England. So they, and Scotland, Ireland and Wales which none of us wish to miss, of course, must be left for the summer holidays, and because here they do not begin until July 25, which leaves a very short time before we must sail, the Board of Education has granted the teachers another month."

W. and Mrs. Young of St. Andrew's United Church, whose engagement to Frederick Arthur Burr of the staff of the Walkerville Collegiate, Windsor, Ontario, is announced, the marriage to take place quietly in the middle of July. Mr. Burr is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burr of London, Ontario. Both bridegroom and his bride-elect are graduates of the University of Western Ontario.

Haliburton Ideal Vacation Country

The praises of Haliburton beauty spots have often been sung, and as a summer vacation spot this lake-studded country north of us can hold its own with any playground or park in Canada.

The Haliburton highlands south of Algonquin Park have some five hundred lakes and connecting streams which have been difficult to acces to the tourist and sportsman until recently. Now this territory has been opened up by good roads, and because of its natural rugged beauty and abundance of fish and game, its popularity is fast increasing.

The climate is exceptionally healthful at this high altitude, and Horseshoe Lake is 1050 feet above sea level. Good hotels and tourist homes are located at Minden, Haliburton, and at numerous beauty spots on the lakes. There are some excellent boys' camps in this vicinity.

Fishing in this country with its innumerable lakes and streams is excellent, and small-mouthed bass, speckled trout, salmon trout and pickerel are plentiful.

This is a splendid country, too, for those who love canoe trips, as there are many lakes and streams with miles of virgin territory to explore.

Minden and Haliburton may be reached by motor or by C.N.R., and buses operate between Lindsay and Haliburton resorts.

Strawberry and Pineapple Conserve.

Hull and slightly crush 4 quarts choice berries. Pare, cut up and put a large pineapple through the food chopper, using the coarsest knife. Mix the two and add ½ cup water and bring to boil, then add 3 lbs. sugar and cook slowly until very thick, stirring frequently to prevent scorching and standing pot on asbestos mat if gas is used. Blanched almonds may be added to make this very choice. Pour into sterile jam jars and seal with two coats of paraffin and cover well.

For those who find strawberry preserves overaweet—the pineapple adds just sufficient tartness to make the whole very pleasing. The nuts of course, add to the cost, but for special occasions you might add ¾ lb. blanched almonds to the mixture when half of it has been poured into the jars. Thus you will have a few jars with nuts to serve on those Sunday mornings when guests are present or a select meal is desired.

A Useful Coat

For the summer bride whose trousseau budget does not allow several coats, a good choice is this lightweight black wool in simple, dressmaker styling. It may be worn over a number of costumes. The lines are fitted and flared and may be adjusted by the tie belt that fastens the front closing whenever the wearer wishes. It fits trimly over either a sheer dress or a jacket suit. The built-up neckline may be worn with a tuck-in scarf as shown, with furs or with no trimming.

Cats and dogs are considered good table food in many parts of China.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Warm Days Are Heydays For Cold Fish Dishes

By MARY MOORE

Pete gets into the news two weeks in succession by calmly placing a baby mouse on my typewriter this morning, and me typing on it too—not the mouse, the typewriter. Last time I saw a mouse was up at "The Cabin" (the Moore summer retreat) and the children were asleep so I could be myself and mount a chair and work up a scream starting at low C and ending at high A, but this time I had to control the impulses and say in a calm voice "Isn't he darling!" Since he seemed to be incapacitated with a dragging hind foot my mercy was summoned and I bedded him down on a piece of bandaging cotton in a match box and now (this very instant) he is nestled down in it at the back corner of my desk fast asleep and Marianne and Pete come in periodically to say "How are you, little Mousie?"

Now that you are in the proper frame of mind for cooking I am going to proceed to lead you to the fastest way out of it.

I have just stocked our shelves with half dozen cans each of salmon, shrimps, lobster, sardines and clams, oh yes, tuna too—crab meat would be there too if my store stocked any that was packed in Canada.

To settle my quandry of how to serve as much "rabbit food' as I like and still satisfy my lordship with food that "gives a chap a comfortable feeling" I started off a dinner the other night with a shrimp cocktail—a big one—it is not a new story to you but it is a nice change and a variety in your method of serving a meal. The old monotony of meat potatoes and vegetables is not a myth you know. See a plate like that before you seven times a week and dinner becomes a bore not an interesting event of the day.

A "what's mother going to spring on us tonight?" That should be the spirit of a household where there is a cook who is worthy of the name.

Cocktail Sauce

In cocktail glasses arrange from one-third to ½ cup of canned or cooked cold shrimps, lobster, crabmeat, clams or oysters. Pour over at least 2 tablespoons of the following sauce:

One-half cup catsup, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon Tabasco, 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish, 1 tablespoon olive oil, 1 tablespoon onion juice or grated pulp, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce, 1 teaspoon celery salt, 1 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper (or mashed canned pimiento). Combine the ingredients in order given.

When poured over fish chill all at least 3 hours.

If a cocktail prepared as above is served in generous proportions, a salad plate containing either shredded cabbage and green pea salad or a potato salad containing a large proportion of celery, plus cucumber in some form, the good old summer long friend tomato, and as much lettuce in leaves or wedges as the plate will hold, all to be generously smothered by the interested party himself with his favorite mayonnaise. This makes a fine meal, be it called lunch or supper or dinner. See elsewhere on the page for Orange Tapioca and Banana Custard—nourishing summer time desserts.

To cheer the hearts of those whose purses are flat and whose flats are hot the following recipe was devised.

Glorified Pink Salmon Platter

Open a tall can of pink salmon, and carefully slide it out of the tin to retain its cylindrical shape, onto a shallow dish in which it may be broiled. Carefully separate it into quarters lengthwise, the way it tends to separate. Arrange these sections in a row and sprinkle with lemon juice, drops of melted butter, and plenty of paprika, to give a god deep tinge. Have broiler hot and pass salmon under it long enough to blend flavorings into surface of fish. Serve hot if you like, but this is intended to be served cold on a platter with wedges of lemon, and wedges of cabbage (yes cabbage, it makes excellent eating out of the hand when sprinkled with salt.) We suggest a mounded salad of cold boiled navy or lima beans with chopped outer celery stalks and boiled dressing.

Salmon prepared in the above manner is the same as the salmon we buy and pay three or four times as much for—the broiling and treating with flavorings gives it the same appearance and flavor as fresh salmon from the fish dealer.

Tuna Fish Salad

Equal parts of flaked canned tuna and celery, and fluffy boiled cold rice (to half cup raw rice use 3 quarts boiling water and it will never pack if kept boiling rapidly.) Moisten this with whatever salad dressing you favor and garnish with sliced hard cooked eggs. We think it is best on leaf lettuce.

Jellied Shrimp Mould

Drain a can of shrimps and save the liquor. To the liquor add 1 tablespoon gelatin and let soak 5 minutes, then stir by standing container in larger dish of boiling water, until gelatin dissolves. Then add ½ cup water, ¼ cup lemon juice and white pepper. Slice 2 hard cooked eggs. Arrange the slices of egg and shrimps in rows in bottom of loaf tin and pour over half of the gelatin liquid. Let chill. Arrange remaining shrimps and egg slices and pour over remaining gelatin liquor. Let chill. Turn out and cut into cubes. If moulded in individual moulds place the slices of egg around the sides and pile the shrimps in the centre. Serve on water cress or leaf lettuce with tart mayonnaise. This is fine when served with long strips of cucumber.

Let's hope we have a few days cool enough that we will be glad to cook the two following favorites.

Crab Rarebit

One tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups cream, ¼ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt, pepper, parsley, 1 cup canned crab meat, 2 tablespoons old cheese, toast. Melt butter, add flour, stir well then add soda, seasonings and cream and stir until thick. Then add crabmeat. Arrange triangles of buttered toast on a hot platter, pour the crab mixture over and garnish with grated cheese, serve very hot. This amount will serve four.

Lobster Newburg

In top of double boiler melt 3 tablespoons butter, add 2 teaspoons cornstarch, the juice from the lobster can, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup cream, shake of salt, grating of nutmeg, and stir until thick, then add 2 beaten egg yolks and cook 1 minute, then add pieces of lobster from canned lobster, retaining their size as well as possible. Let heat through and serve on toast points. This sauce may be extended by adding I more tablespoon of cornstarch and ½ cup milk.

Sardines dipped lightly in flour, sauteed in butter, and served on fingers of toast, sprinkled with lemon; shrimps served on head lettuce with equal amount of sections from fresh or canned grapefruit—these two are too good to leave out—too short to give much room.

Yours for shorter cooking hours.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

Question: The Cookery page is a very good help to me. You have recipes that are very unusual, and I would not miss buying it—it is the first page I turn to.

I would like to have the recipe for Emem's Strawberry Pie with syrup glaze, also one for a rich orange ice cream, and fresh strawberry ice cream. You also gave one very long ago for Burnt Almond Ice Cream. I had clipped it and mislaid it. I hope I am not asking too much, and wish you the best of luck.—A.R.

Answer: Your letters are always welcome—I recognize your handwriting every time before opening them.

Emems Strawberry Pie (with Syrup Glaze):

Prepare baked pie shell—the pastry to be perfect should be made from puff paste—but a grand pie can be had if plan paste is made well and baked in fast oven.

Using one quart whole berries and 1 cup crushed berries, put the whole berries which have been washed, hulled and well drained into the baked and cooled shell. Sprinkle over them 1/3 cup berry sugar and jar the pie so that some of the sugar sifts down between the berries. To the cup of crushed berries add 2/3 cup of sugar into which has been stirred 3 tablespoon arrowroot flour (to be bought at drug stores) —if no arrowroot is accessible used 4 tablespoons cornstarch—the syrup will not be so clear with cornstarch —and cook over top of double boiler, stirring constantly, and when it thickens cover, and let cook at least 30 minutes, stirring frequently.

After 30 minutes taste it to see if starch is cooked, and pour while boiling hot over the raw berries in the pie shell—pouring carefully so all berries on top are coated. When cold, pie is ready to serve. Do not make this pie any more than 4 hours before it is needed.

We think Orange Mousse is the most successful Oranze Frozen Dessert we make—it is suitable whether or not you have a mechanical refrigerator.

Orange Mousse.

One cup sugar, grated rind I orange, ¼ cup water, ¼ tablespoon gelatine, 2 tablespoons cold water, ¾ cup orange juice, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 cups heavy cream, ¼ cup candied cherries are optional. Put sugar, orange rind, and water into saucepan, and boil 1 minute. Add the gelatin which has been soaked in the cold water 5 minutes. When gelatin is dissolved, add the lemon and orange juice. Place on ice. When the gelatin begins to thicken the mix, beat it foamy with rotary beater then add the thick cream which has been beaten until stiff, and candied cherries (if used) cut in pieces. Turn into tray of mechanical refrigerator and let freeze until fairly firm without stirring, OR pour into mould and cover, and pick in ice and salt (using 2 parts ice and 1 part salt), and let stand from 3 to 6 hours to freeze.

Strawberry Ice Cream (No. 1):

We think Strawberry Mousse (which follows) is superior to this recipe.

Three pints thin cream, 2 quarts choice berries, 2 cups sugar, few grains salt. Wash and hull berries, sprinkle with sugar, cover and let stand two hours. Mash, and strain through coarse sieve. Add salt. Freeze cream to consistency of mush, then add fruit juice and pulp gradually and finish freezing. Rich Jersey Milk may be substituted for the thin cream if desirable.

Strawberry Mousse:

One pint heavy cream, 1 quart choice strawberries, 1 cup sugar, 1¼ tablespoons gelatine, 2 tablespoons cold water, 3 tablespoons hot water. Wash and hull berries, sprinkle with sugar, and let stand one hour, then mash and strain through sieve. Soak the gelatine in the cold water and dissolve it in the hot. Add to the berry mixture and stand bowl in larger bowl of ice water and stir until it begins to thicken; then fold in the cream which has been whipped until stiff, pour into tray of mechanical refrigerator, or pour into mould and cover and let freeze for at least three hours. If packed in mould use 2 parts ice to 1 part salt.

Raspberry Mousse may be made the same as Strawberry Mousse, using Raspberries in place of Strawberries in the above recipe.

Burnt Almond Frozen Cream:

Five-eights cup sugar, ½ cup boiling water, 1 cup evaporated milk, pinch of salt, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup cream, ½ cup shredded or chopped roasted almonds, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 tablespoon cold water. Put ½ cup of the sugar in heavy iron pan, and stir until melted and golden, then add the boiling water and stir until sugar dissolves in it, then add evaporated milk, salt, and egg beaten with the remaining 2 tablespoons sugar. Cook all until thickened over top of double boiler. Then add the gelatine which has been soaked in the cold water. Let chill then fold in the cream which has been whipped until stiff. Add nuts and vanilla. If frozen in trays of mechanical refrigerator it must be stirred frequently during first 2 hours to keep it from forming in flakes. If frozen in hand freezer it will have rich creamy appearance.

We hope these recipes suit you and that we can help you often.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"For words are wise men's counters—thy do but reckon by them—but they are the money of fools."
—Thomas Hobbs.

Dear Friends:

How important are words to you? Do you just open your mouth and let any sort come out, or do you think before you speak? While your thoughts are unspoken they belong to you, but when you put them into words, be sure they will not return to confound you.

There are so many beautiful words that it is a wonder more of them are not used. Kind ones, comforting ones, musical ones, no end to the beauty of them if we but look and learn, for, it is said and I knew it to be true, use a word three times and it is yours so be sure to learn the best ones.

And there are those who will twist the meaning of your words entirely, putting their own interpretation on them so that you can not recognize the thing you said, and how I detest that sort of person.

If all our words were taken at their face value, just as we speak them, more people would have to pull up their socks before they started to speak. For careless words left hanging in the air can rankle and burn, can recur again and again to hurt and sting.

Just the other day, a woman said to me, Roberta, do write about words that men speak to their wives before they leave for work, angry words, critical ones, spiteful ones, so that the day is spoiled for the one in the home.

And men are not the only sinners in this respect, for many wives give their husbands beastly words to take to work with them, many children leave nasty hateful ones with their mother when they go off to school.

You would resent it if someone swept their floors and put the sweepings in your bedroom, or even on your doorstep. Then why leave the sweepings of your mind in the mind of those you profess to love?

And there are the friends who love to use critical words, in season and out of season, so that in their opinion you are never right. Not in your clothes, nor your hat, nor your choice of furniture, so that they take the gimp right out of you and you wonder if your taste is as poor as this one would lead you to believe.

There are the lovely words of a baby when the we lips are trying so hard to articulate. There is the heartfelt "thank you" when you have helped another.

And the words we us to our Father in heaven. Not just "gimme gimme gimme" but words of appreciation for help received, of thankfulness for sorrow averted, of joy in the recovery of one who has been ill.

You know, many people stop their prayers from being granted for lack of words of thanks for those they did receive. They take it as just what God OUGHT to do, it's His duty. And so, although they are slow in uttering the words "Thank You, Lord."

Again, we have those who assume we should be able to read their thoughts. Many husbands get like that, and never tell their wives they love them year after year, so they are starved for a loving word to feed their heart on. Why wait until a person is dead, then speak of your love to others, the dead can't hear.

How much trouble also have people found themselvs into because of the careless word of scandal or gossip. I knew a man who lost twenty thousand dollars for some words he spoke. And although the spoken word is bad sometimes, the written words are worst of all. Who amongst us has not regretted something we wrote, maybe in the heat of anger, and wished with all our heart we never put pen to paper. So, watch your words carefully.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

NEW TYPE FENCE

CHARLOTTETOWN—(CP). — A new type of single-strand fencing for livestock pastures is being introduced in Prince Edward Island. The single strand is electrically charged, but not sufficiently so as to injure animals coming into contact with it. Animals would receive a shock if they attempted to climb over it.

IN MEMORIAM

HALL.—In ever-loving memory of a dear husband and father, J. Warren Hall, who passed away July 7, 1934.

The flowing stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of him who once sat there.
His life was one long sacrifice,
His heart was true and tender,
He toiled so hard for those he loved
Then left us to remember.

The local merchant is the connecting link between producer and consumer.

His contact with the buying public is direct, intimate and personal. He knows his customers, their likes and dislikes; why they buy one product and refuse another; why one brand sells more rapidly than others.

It may be assumed, therefore, the retail merchant knows the best way to produce immediate sales in his locality, and it is significant that his basic advertising medium is the local daily newspaper.

In the first four months of this year the Canadian daily newspapers carried more than 40,000,000 lines of retail advertising —striking evidence of nationwide confidence in the value of the daily newspapers in Canada, as productive advertising media.

War Secretary Balks At Questions

LONDON, July 7—(AP). — Leslie Hore-Belisha, secretary for war, today was called before the select committee which is considering the applicability of the official secrets act to members of parliament.

The inquiry was started after Duncan Sandy's, conservative, charged he was threatened with prosecution under the act unless he disclosed the source of secret anti-aircraft data in his possession.

Mr. Sandys testified for more than an hour yesterday when the committee met in camera. Mr. Hore-Belisha at the same time was questioned in the House of Commons but refused to supply details about the part the army council played in the now famous "Sandys case."

Further Charges.

New charges of inefficiency in air defence were made in a labor party statement which Clement Attlee, opposition leader, handed to Prime Minister Chamberlain last night. The memorandum was the result of a lengthy independent inquiry by a labor party committee, and demanded that the government urgently consider:—

1. The whole problem of aircraft production including armament and equipment.

2. Internal reorganization of the air ministry.

3. The state of ground defences, including anti-aircraft guns.

The War Secretary, asked for the names of those present and for details about what was said and done when the army council decided to establish a court of inquiry to investigate the alleged leakage of military secrets, appealed to the speaker to decide whether the question was permissible.

The speaker ruled the question in order, Mr. Hore-Belisha then refused to reply. Asserting: "I don't think it fair to members of the council that I should be asked which members were present or what they said."

Havelock Institute Improves Cemetery

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, July 7.—The Havelock branch Women's Institute met Monday afternoon in the council chamber with Mrs. John Armstrong, president in the chair. There were nineteen members and eight visitors present for this regular July meeting.

It was reported that the "Welcome" signs had been completed and placed at the three highway entrances to the village and the members decided to have an additional sign placed at the Cordova road.

A donation of $2 was granted to Miss Pollard, of Peterborough, for Junior Institute activities.

The cemetery committee reported that everything was progressing nicely, the grounds already showing a wonderful improvement. Mrs. Harry Pollock and Mrs. Charles Taylor were appointed as a committee to inspect the grounds during the month of July. The roll call for the afternoon "Hot weather dishes."

Program convenor for the afternoon was Mrs. Robert McCutcheon. A very interesting paper was presented by Mrs. J. R. Bedford on the subject "Home Economics" which she defined as "the science that deals with wealth." A very pretty piano duet was played by Misses Lois Wilson and Dora Ketchen.

Two members of the Junior Women's Institute, Misses Alma Hagerman and Helen Spencer gave a very expert demonstration on the preparation of an "Invalid's tray," using effectively the motto "pleasing to the eye as well as taste."

Fleetwood Social Successful Event

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FLEETWOOD, July 7.—The concluding garden party of the season for this vicinity was held on Saturday evening, being postponed from Friday evening owing to unfavorable weather conditions, at the Fleetwood United Church with a good crowd in attendance. Following supper, the crowd adjourned to a nearby athletic field, where the youths of Ebenezer played a friendly game of ball with the local team. The Fleetwood team won the game with a heavy score. The next attraction was in the church building where the Yelverton Young People's Union presented a humorous three-act play entitled "A Ready Made Family." Rev. Ferguson, pastor of the church, introduced this popular play in well chosen words.

The characters in the cast were well chosen and acted their parts to the delight of all. Shot In Chest Victim Stays Mum

Had It Coming To Me Says Booth Owner Found Home In Bed

TORONTO, July 8.—(CP).—York county police are investigating the shooting of Hubert Stade, owner of a refreshment booth two miles south of Aurora. Stade, 28, was found in bed with a .22 bullet in his chest early to-day.

"I had it coming to me," Stade said. "I won't rat on anybody." He was taken to hospital here where his condition was reported as fair.

Police said Stade told them he came home about midnight and somebody came in the back door and shot him.

The rifle used in the shooting was found 150 feet from Stades home in some long grass.

Stade went to the Aurora district three months ago from Toronto.

Michigan's Law Is Broken By Hanging

MILAN, Mich., July 8.—(AP). — Anthony Chebatoris was hanged by the Federal Government at 6:08 E. D.T. to-day and became the first victim of capital punishment to die in Michigan in 108 years.

Governor Frank Murphy, who had appealed to President Roosevelt to stop the Federal government from breaking a century-old Michigan tradition, said the execution was a "blot" on the State's "civilized record."

The hanging took place at the Federal detention farm here at sunrise.

Chebatoris, a Detroit gangster, was sentenced under the National Bank Robbery Act for an abortive holdup last Sept. 29 in Midland, Mich., in which Henry S. Porter, an innocent bystander, was slain. Michigan laws do not permit capital punishment except for high treason.

Alberta's Dry Spot Grows Wheat Again

CALGARY, July 8—(CP)—A cropless droughtland for nearly 10 years, Alberta's "dry corner"—the southeastern tip of the province centring on Medicine Hat—is coming back. Prospects are the best since 1928 for a good grain crop.

Fields which for years were baked under blistering suns and ravishing winds, give promise of yields ranging from 15, 30 to 40 bushels an acre, a rosy picture compared with a year ago when no crop was harvested.

"They had given us up around here," said Tom Jacobson, a wheat grower of the Walsh district. "For 10 years we got no crops at all and you couldn't give the farms away. But it's a different story now."

At Irvine, 14 miles from the Saskatchewan border, where little grain has been shipped in recent years, it is expected 400,000 to 500,000 bushels of wheat will go through the elevators at harvest time.

Trent River Lad Shatters His Arm Playing Game Of "Hospital"

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Trent River, July 8.

MASTER BILLIE WRIGHT youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wright of Cedar Isle, met with a painful accident Wednesday afternoon when he suffered a broken arm.

Billie fell from a cutter, on his right arm, breaking two bones below the elbow. The injured boy was rushed to his home, where medical aid was summoned to reduce the fracture. Billie was resting comfortably the same night with his only worry he will not be able to swim again this season. Billie says they were playing "hospital" and he was the first patient.

Good Crop In District Assured As Additional Moisture Falls

The last little cloud of doubt about the prospects of Peterborough district crops was washed away by the heavy rain of Thursday night and this morning, almost an inch according to the official register of precipitation reported by A. O. Phillips, local meteorological observer.

Farmers from Douro, Dummer, Otonabee and South Monaghan agreed to-day the weather has been exceptionally favorable in its consistent provision of moisture.

"That rain of three weeks ago was really the turning point,' one of them said. "Then we got another fall that did a lot of good a week ago, and after last night I don't think anything very serious can happen to the grain crops."

Jim Hawthorne of Dummer said some of the fall wheat was mussed up, and similar conditions are reported generally around the county, but the extent of the tangling is small. A South Monaghan farmer said he expected the cutting of fall wheat would be general in that township toward the end of next week, and he also said that Stewart Thompson near Bensfort might begin operations in his wheat fields Saturday if the weather is favorable.

Fred Atter, Water street, reported on his drive home from Toronto around midnight he saw no sign of rain until he reached Welcome. From there to Peterborough there was a heavy fall. All the townships adjoining the city shared in the succession of drenching showers, but to the south the first of them was nearly four hours later than the eleven o'clock downpour in the city.

Spring grains, pacturage, roots, the whole agricultural scene will be refreshed by the third timely night's rain at the critical peak of the growing season.

Farouk's Cousin Wants Zog's Sister

CAIRO, Egypt, July 8.—(AP).—Prince Adbul Moneim, 39-year-old second cousin of young King Farouk and heir to a $50,000,000 fortune, has asked the Egyptian monarch for permission to marry Princess Myzejen, 28-year-old sister of King Zog of Albania.

Abdul Moneim, at present motoring in Europe, sent the request by letter. King Farouk has not yet replied.

The Prince is the only son of the former Khedive Abbas Helmi Pasha II, whom the British authorities deposed as ruler Dec. 19, 1914.

Princess Myzejen, the fourth of King Zog's six sisters, was born at Mati, Albania, in 1909. With her sisters, Princesses Ruhije and Maxhide, she visited North America in March, 1938, "to learn somthing about the social work being done on behalf of the needy."

Duplessis Fires Road Head Hinting Abuse By Leduc

QUEBEC, July 8 (CP).—Quebec province's roads department, to which $50,000,000 recently was allotted for construction and re-building, has been taken under personal administration of Premier Maurice Duplessis following the ousting of Francois J. Leduc from the Union Nationale cabinet. It will be the third portfolio held by the premier who already is Attorney-General and Minister of Lands and Forests.

Announcement of Mr. Leduc's dismissal as roads minister was made last night by the premier in his typical brusque manner. He summoned newspapermen from the press gallery and met them in the office he occupies when acting lands and forests minister.

"Mr. Leduc no longer is minister of roads," he announced without preliminary. "I am the new roads minister."

And as the reporters scribbled down notes, there was a brief pause by the 49-year-old premier.

Asked to Quit Some Time Ago

"I asked Mr. Leduc some time ago to resign," he continued. "He requested to be allowed 48 hours to make a decision. At the end of a week that decision had not been taken. I saw it my duty to replace him immediately and that is what I did, with consent of the cabinet.

"In conformity with our election program and pledges made before and since the 1936 election, (when the Duplessis government succeeded the Liberals) we cannot and will not endure abuses by anyone, Liberals, Conservatives or Union Nationales."

And when reporters reached Mr. Leduc in Montreal last night he would only promise that he would have "plenty to say" when he received official notification of his expulsion.

The premier anounced also he had "expelled from his office, J. L. Dussault who was in charge of materials for garages for the department."

The children were crossing a side road not far from the Holy Martyrs' Chapel when the truck, filled with crushed stone, struck them. Both were dead when passers-by ran to pick them up.

The bodies were taken to the morgue, where an inquest will be held.

St. Thomas, July 8.

PREMIER HEPBURN picked Dr. the Hon. R. J. Manion to win the Dominion leadership of the Conservative Party more than two weeks ago when he was at his home here from Toronto. Premier Hepburn predicted that if Dr. Manion did not get the leadership Hon. J. Earl Lawson would probably be the choice. The Premier and the new Conservative Leader have been personal friends for several years.

J. W. Stevenson Lawyer Dies Suddenly

One of Peterborough's most prominent citizens, Major James Walton Stevenson, died suddenly in his law office on Thursday afternoon shortly after four o'clock.

A member of one of the oldest families in Peterborough, he had been prominent in his profession as barrister with the firm of Hall, Hall, and Stevenson, and in the social and military life of the city.

The eldest son of Colonel Arthur and Mrs. Stevenson of this city, he was born here forty-five years ago and received his primary education in Peterborough schools. Major Stevenson enlisted in 1915 and served in France with the 33rd and 52nd Artillery Batteries until the end of the war, returning to Canada in 1919.

At the time of his enlistment he was associated with the Bank of Toronto and on his return from France he commenced studies at Osgoode Hall. On his graduation he returned to Peterborough where he was for a time associated in law practice with Judge Joseph Wearing, a year later leaving to join the firm of Hall, Hall and Stevenson, with whom he has been identified eversince.

O. C. Battery 11 Years.

Military life still occupied a great deal of his time after his return from the war. He immediately joined the 4th Battery and was commanding officer of the unit from 1927 until the present time. U.S. Mills, Factories Are Getting Busy

NEW YORK, July 8—(AP)—Rehired workers answering calls to return to jobs in mills and factory crossed paths today with vacation bound employees along industrial highways and by-roads of the United States.

A Nation-wide sampling of trade and manufacturing centres indicated scattered employment gains since business barometers began to creep forward recently and a leaping bull market upset wall street traditions of summer quiet.

Attracting attention as counter-seasonal tendencies in certain industries rather than for the extent of the increase, the gains lifted factory job figures by thousands in some places and left observers wondering whether the employment tide had turned after ebbing since last summer.

Estimates of the National Industrial Conference Board, a private research organization, indicated more than 4,000,000 workers would have to be returned to jobs in industry to regain levels at which recovery stopped last year.

Its latest figures, for may, put unemployment at 10,310,000 compared with 6,192,000 a year before.

Social Study Ordered In Schools

Joins 7 Obligatory Subjects Listed For Grades 7 And 8

TORONTO, July 8. (CP)—Social studies are recommended for five hours, classroom work each week in Grades VII. and VIII. of Ontario's primary schools this year, under the new curriculum submitted to teachers by the provincial Department of Education.

Studies of social problems rank with English for the greatest time allotment under the new code.

The curriculum, completing reorganization of Ontario's educational system up to the end of the second year of secondary school sets out seven obligatory and three optional subjects. Grammar will be absorbed into the general study of English and no longer will be a separate subject, in line with changes in other parts of the English-speaking world.

The seven obligatory subjects in the last two grades in public and separate schools are health, English, social studies, science, mathematics, music and art. The optional subjects are crafts, home economics and agriculture.

The Department expresses opposition to rushing children into grade IX before they are approximately 14 years of age, and to trying to combine the work of the last two primary school grades.

The curriculum was drawn by a committee of teachers with the cooperation of school inspectors and Department of Education officials.

Slugged Woman Dies Of Injuries

BROCKVILLE, Ont., July 8 (CP). —Irene Mott, 32-year-old daughter of Frank Mott, Kitley township farmer, died in hospital here early today from injuries alleged to have been received at her home Tuesday.

The young woman was beaten over the head with a blunt instrument by an unknown attacker. Miss Mott's 69-year-old mother, Mrs. Frank Mott, was also seriously injured in the same assault. Her condition is described as critical.

Meanwhile, police intensified their search of the district for William Gunning, 21-year-old farm hand employed by the Motts, wanted for questioning in connection with the attacks.

The two women were found unconscious in their home by Frank Mott. Mrs. Mott was lying on the floor of her bedroom and the daughter on a bed in her room.

Many False Clues

More than adozen false reports of men resembling Gunning were run down yesterday and last night by provincial police, who suggested today the wanted farmhand is hiding in what is known as the "thousand Acres", the swampland in the townships of Kitley and Wolford.

All farmers in that swamp area north of Brockville have been asked to notify police immediately should they see anyone answering Gunning's general description. The young farmhand was wearing blue shirt and blue overalls, police said. He is five feet four inches tall and weighs 125 pounds.

A special search headquarters has been set up at Toledo village by provincial police. They expect the youth may be seen when forced out into the open for food.

Miss Mott died without regaining consciousness. She suffered a depressed fracture of the skull penetrating to the brain.

Besides her parents, Miss Mott is survived by one brother, Egbert Mott, Kingston.

An inquest into the young woman's death will be delayed pending her mother's recovery.

Inspector Lougheed of the criminal investigation department, Toronto, and provincial constable A. McLeod, of Prescott in charge of the investigation, conferred here today and it is believed that one of the subjects under discussion was the placing of additional officers on the case.

Iowans Organize 1,000 Sheriffs To Rule Strike

NEWTON, Ia., July 8 (AP)—While Governor Nelson G. Kraschel stood pat on his assertion he would declare martial law only for the "benefit of the public," a picked group of Jasper County business men and farmers sought today to organize 1,000 deputy sheriffs to "restore and maintain law and order" in connection with the two month old Maytag Company labor controversy here.

"If I take over law enforcement in Newton, I will, under no circumstances, do so to open the Maytag plant for the benefit of the company or the Committee of Industrial Organization Union," the governor announced in Des Moines just before midnight.

Three Maytag C.I.O. union officials, meanwhile, were cited for contempt of Jasper county district court. They were ordered to appear July 11, in district court to show why they should not be held in contempt for violation of the temporary injunction Judge Frank Bechly issued forbidding the union from interfering in the regular business routine of the company.

Nazis Would Shake 40,000 Austrians

EVIAN - LES - BAINS, France, July 8 — (CP). — Dr. Henrich Neumann, famed Vienna specialist, brought an informal message from German authorities to the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees to-day, asking the evacuation of 40,000 Austrian political victims by August 1.

Professor Neumann, who gained prominence through his treatments of the Duke of Windsor's ear ailment, said he had no "positive" instructions, but intended merely to follow suggestions of the German officials with whom he conferred recently in Vienna.

Reasons for Dr. Neumann's reluctance to discuss the refugee question—the problem before a conference here of representatives of 32 nations—became apparent when he said he had left his wife and children in Vienna and hoped to rejoin them there shortly.

Hail Like Walnuts Pounds England Killing Livestock

London, July 8.

ENGLAND TODAY was swept by gales, heavy rains, and hail, which killed livestock and destroyed garden and field crops over a wide area.

Hailstones as big as walnuts fell 15 minutes at Bishops Waltham, Hampshire, covering the ground to a depth of six inches. Wind blew in windows and tore roofs off sheds. Hundreds of ducks and chickens were killed.

A large area of Kent suffered severely as orchards were stripped and trees broken. Near Hemel Hempstead trees over 100 feet high were uprooted and hurled 20 feet.

British Open Won By Whitcombe

SANDWICH, England, July 8.—(CP).—Reginald Arthur Whitcombe, 40-year-old professional at the Parkstone club in Dorset, won the British open golf championship with a 72-hole total of 295 to-day as one of the worst gales in the tournament's history all but swept the players from the course.

So terrific was the wind and so bad were scoring conditions that only nine of the 37 survivors who set out this morning for the final 36 holes could greak 80 in the third round.

This morning Whitcombe, who had started with 71-71—142, posted a fine 75 and gained a one-stroke lead over Dick Burton, whose 78 gave him 218 for 54 holes. Another stroke back at 219 was Jim Adams, of Scotland.

With this advantage, Whitcombe added a fourth round 76 this afternoon for his winning total.

Henry Cotton, the defending champion, finished well with 77-74 for a total of 298.

Guerillas Delaying Japanese Advances

SHANGHAI, July 8 (AP)—Japan's big offensive to reach Hankow slowed today as the Japanese army confronted new danger from guerilla bands on widely separated fronts.

These bands of Chinese irregulars for the past year have been attacking from the rear and limiting Japanese control of occupied areas to the major railway lines, a few highways, and large cities like Nanking, Peiping and Tientsin.

Night attacks have increased sharply in the past week in Hopeh Province about Peiping, in East Honan about Kaifeng and Suchow, and in other regions.

During the past week, Chinese said, the irregulars in a series of night attacks prevented resumption of traffic on the eastern section of the Lunghai Railway in Honan Province.

Roads were torn up, bridges wrecked and garrisons along the railway destroyed. The Tientsin-Pukow Railway and the Shanghai-Hangchow Railways are being used only for military purposes.

Desultory fighting with guerillas in areas about Shanghai today followed yesterday's terrorist outbreaks against Japanese which resulted in four dead.

Manion New Tory Leader Grabs Victory Upon Second Ballot

MacPherson Proves Rally's Dark Horse, Massey, Harris, Lawson Trail, Herridge Booed, Brands Resolutions Junk

OTTAWA, July 8 (CP).—Grizzled veteran of the wars of both ballots and bullets, Hon. R. J. Manion at the age of 56 surveyed his new political empire today and prepared for new campaigns as leader of the National Conservative party.

Armed with a fresh mandate from his associates, a new platform and the plan for a new organization, with pledges of support from the youth and veterans of the party and from the French and English-speaking Conservatives, Dr. Manion donned the mantle of leadership shed by Rr. Hon. R. B. Bennett who has been leader since 1927.

Two ballots at the closing session yesterday of the three-day Conservative convention gave Dr. Manion, Irish-Canadian native of Ontario and and long-time Federal member for Fort William, the necessary clear majority over his opponents.

Thus was answered the question which has intrigued political minds for three years, ever since Mr. Bennett was stricken with a serious illness which was followed by advice from his physicians to give up the burdens of his high office.

"Who will succeed to the Conservative party leadership?" has been the query heard and speculated upon at frequent intervals during that period. Mr. Bennett himself forced the issue when, last March, he declared a convention would be necessary to select a new leader and that he could not continue longer than the session of parliament just ended.

Dr. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals in the last Conservative Government, and defeated in the 1935 campaign, won over four other candidates. They were Murdock MacPherson of Regina, Hon. J. Earl Lawson, Joseph Harris, and Denton Massey, all of Toronto.

Led by Mr. MacPherson, the defeated candidates all joined in urging the convention to make Dr. Manion's election unanimous, and all pledged their support to the new Leader. Mr. MacPherson was a runner-up with 648 votes on the second ballot.

Herridge Stirs Gloom.

Balloting for Leader ended the convention in a thunder of acclaim and high spirits, but not before W. D. Herridge, former Canadian Minister to Washington and Mr. Bennett's brother-in-law, struck a note of gloomy forboding.

Resolutions adopted at the convention were "little more than a lot of junk," Mr. Herridge exclaimed. "They are a treachery to the people of this country. They are the supreme accomplishment of reaction within the Conservative Party.

"You have lost your great Leader, God help you, because of reaction in this party, and you have stirred the passions of religious and racial strife."

His amendment to the finance resolution calling for a pledge to monetary reform was lost without debate.

Adoption of the proposed platform, Mr. Herridge warned, would mean the party "passes out of the realm of Conservatism and disappears as a contemptible and dishonorable element in the Fascist government that is to be."

Mr. Bennett was not present at

The other five passengers were released after treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

Hospital Takes Chorley Park

TORONTO, July 8 (CP) — The Board of Trustees of Toronto Hospital for Sick Children has accepted formally the offer of Chorley Park, former official residence of Ontario's lieutenant-governors, Hon. Colin A. Campbell, Minister of Public Works, announced to-day. The residence was offered to the hospital by Premier Mitchell Hepburn as a gift "without any strings attached" and the hospital may use, sell or demolish it.

"I have no idea to what use they intend to put the hospital," Mr. Campbell said today. Members of the board met last week with Premier Hepburn to discuss the gift and later decided privately to accept it.

2 Picton Motorists Injured In Smash

COBOURG, Ont., July 8 (C.P.).—Two Picton residents, Ren Thomas and Mrs. Lee Palmateer, were taken to Cobourg Hospital to-day with injuries received in a head-on collision with a transport. The crash occurred near the William Street bend. Driver of the truck was Jack Chambers of Trenton and Thomas was driving the car.

Constable Don Erskine investigated.

Skunks Move In With Quints Give Staff the Jitters

CALLANDER, July 8 (CP).—A mama skunk and two offspring have taken up mysterious residence at the Quints home but have not disturbed the daily visitors yet.

No inducements by guards can lure the skunks out from their hiding place. In the evenings, after the crowds have dispersed from the nursery grounds, the staff labors diligently to locate the animals, but have not yet succeeded.

Once before a skunk made a nuisance of itself at the hospital and was located under the nursery proper where the children live. It annoyed the staff and guards for a week, then disappeared. The staff hopes the present skunk visitors will voluntarily move very soon to new quarters.

Housing Loan Record

OTTAWA, July 8—(CP). — Loans made under the Dominion Housing Act reaching a new high in June, the Department of Finance announced to-day. Providing housing for 590 families, the loans amounted to $2,096,713, compared with $913,127 loaned to 227 families in June last year.

Since the fall of 1935 $19,400,000 had been loaned to 4,839 families under the Act, the Dominion government participating to the extent of 25 per cent. and the banks and lending organizations loaning the rest. The average loan was $4,019.

The number of loans made in Ontario were 1,308 with a value of $9,181,991.

Youths Counting Cash Stir Suspicion, Both Get Jailed

Toronto, July 8.

WHEN DETECTIVES Robert Vance and William Mace saw two youths counting money as they left a second-hand store on Queen Street West, Thursday afternoon, they became suspicious and made inquiries. As a result, they arrested Gordon Rose, 19, of Robinson Street, and William Knight, 18, of Brooklyn Avenue, and charged them with breaking into the Riverdale Collegiate and stealing micrometers, scale weights and other articles from the manual training room.

C.N.R. Depot Robbed

PORT HOPE, Ont., July 8 (CP).—Forcing a window of the men's waiting-room and jimmying a communicating door, thieves entered the Canadian National depot ticket office here today and stole a small quantity of money.

The robbery was discovered by Harold Hunter and Charles Francey, employees of the company, when they arrived for work.

The intruders were unsuccessful in their efforts to gain an entrance to the safe, although they sawed off the two hinges, but the locking bars on the back of the safe's door thwarted their efforts.

Jerusalem's Riots Rage Anew

4 Die In Bombed Bus, Giant Warship More Troops Called

JERUSALEM, July 8 (A.P.). — A bomb thrown near Jerusalem's busy Jaffa Gate to-day killed four Arabs and wounded 15 in a new outbreak of terror.

The bomb tore apart a bus in the crowded Arab bus station and a vegetable market in the shadow of David's Tower.

The vehicle was filled with Arab countryfolk about to leave for Hebron. Its blood-stained and twisted framework was scattered in a roadway filled with people.

Troops of the Black Watch Regiment with fixed bayonets cleared the square and started hunting the bomb thrower.

One Jew surrounded by an Arab mob was rescued by police and hustled to safety.

About the same time a general strike broke out in Amman, in neighboring Trans-Jordan.

To-day's violence raised the casualties in nine days to 37 killed and 126 injured.

The battle cruiser Repulse, one of the world's biggest warships, steamed into Haifa Harbor to take the place of the 7,500-ton cruiser Emerald.

More Troops Coming.

Two battalions—at least 1,600 men—of British troops rushed from Egypt to reinforce the 10,000 British soldiers, armed police, and aviators who had failed to halt the reign of terror which Jewish leaders feared might develop into civil war between Jews and Arabs.

Officers planned to put the area under naval control. Marines with bayonets and rifles were ready for emergency landings to occupy Kingsway and Centre Street, waterfront danger zones and battle grounds in Haifa, chief port of British-mandated Palestine.

Eleven squadrons of the British Air Force kept their machines tuned for quick flights and quick bombings of any town or village where any fresh disorder might burst out to add to the already great tenseness.

Hanging Starts Outbreaks

The trouble started nine days ago with the hanging of a 19-year-old Jew for ambushing an Arab bus and has become the most serious in recent Palestine history.

The government broadcast a warning that high commissioner Sir Harold Alfred MacMichael would delegate his powers to the military commander-in-chief if fresh rioting should break out. The commander would then have a free hand to clamp on martial law.

Authorities rounded up several revisionist leaders and interned them in the concentration camp at Acre, near Haifa.

Abd El Razzak, notorious brigand chieftain, wrote a grim paragraph on a tragic page of Holy Land history by sending a "proclamation" to the town of Tulkarem, occupied by British troops, demanding that inhabitants pay him $7,500 tribute as "commander-in-chief of the rebellion."

Arab tribes from trans-Jordania were reported massed on the Palestine frontier. In a four-hour pitched battle British soldiers fought 600 Arabs said to have come from that section east of Palestine which forms a part of Great Britain's Palestine mandate but is governed by Arabs. Arab casualties were put at 13.

Marines Ready at Haifa.

The British cruisers Emerald and Enterprise, each of more than 7,500 tons (the Repulse is of 32,000 tons), arrived off Haifa under emergency orders. Sailors and marines on the three vessels numbered about 1,700 men who could fight on land if needed.

Jewish leaders warned "civil war was imminent should Jews relinquish self-restraint for acts of revenge which dishonor the Jewish name and undermine progress toward a national home."

They said the riots killed Jews and Arabs innocent of creating disorder.

So far in 1938 nearly 300 have been killed and hundreds wounded in Holy Land violence, the worst since the 1936 Arab general strike. A British commission now has spent ten weeks studying plans to divide the Holy Land into a reduced British mandate and separate Arab and Jewish states.

Tory Convention Highlights

OTTAWA, July 8 (CP)—Ottawa settled down today into political doldrums after two hectic weeks which saw parliament rush through to prorogation and the national Conservative convention wind up in an outburst of oratory.

The capital's principal hotel was crowded last night as Conservatives from all over the Dominion informally reviewed and debated the convention and the choice of the new leader, Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion.

Wilfrid Heighington of Toronto astounded the convention with his sartorial combination. He wore a straw boater, grey coat, white flannel slacks, suede shoes and carried a cane.

Wives of four of the candidates for leadership were unanimous in their choice of color-scheme. Mrs. R. J. Manion chose a dusky blue and white ensemble; Mrs. Joseph Harris chose darker blue figured in white; Mrs. Denton Massey wore a navy street frock with navy hat patterned with white in front and Mrs. J. Earl Lawson a smart plain navy dress and navy hat trimmed with chin-length veil.

The task of translating the resolutions for the French section of the convention proved a problem on the last day as there were no copies ready. H. P. Arseneault of the Parliamentary Press gallery was called upon as the only man available who was sufficiently fluent in both languages to interpret into French over the loud speakers from an English copy. He did it with a facility that brought much favorable comment.

Stomach aches, dizziness, sprained limbs and irritated eyes were some of the casualties taken care of by the two St. John's Ambulance nurses in attendance at the convention.

Fired with enthusiasm gained at the convention, Ontario women will start immediate plans to reorganize Conservative women in the eastern and northern parts of the province.

Quints' Chief Guard J. E. Gagne Dies

NORTH BAY, Ont., July 8—(CP)—John E. Gagne, 57, chief of the police guard at the nursery of the Dionne quintuplets, died in hospital to-day as a result of an abdominal operation Tuesday.

When he awoke he told his nurse he felt particularly good, but almost immediately he began to breathe heavily and died before medical aid could be summoned.

Mr. Gagne spent most of his life in police work. He was first appointed to the Sudbury police force, which he left to become Ontario Temperance Act enforcement officer at North Bay. He became chief of police at Cochrane in 1935 and a year later took charge of the Dionne nursery guards.

His widow, three sons and two daughters survive.

Scientists Try To Make 28-Hour Day

In an attempt to learn how easy it would be for civilization to change from the 24-hour cycle to a "28-hour day," these two scientists of the University of Chicago, Dr. Nathaniel Kleitman, LEFT, and Bruce Richardson, lived for more than a month in the Mammoth Cave, in Kentucky. After a month in the chill, dark atmosphere, they found they still reacted to the normal 24-hour schedule, being awake in the day time, getting sleepy at night. They are shown at dinner in the cave.

Harlan Labor Trial Brings New Death

LONDON, Ky., July 8—(AP).—Two dead, one shot was the record to-day of violence during the Harlan labor conspiracy trial now in its eighth week.

Frank White, 36, deputy sheriff and a defendant in the anti-union indictment involving 39 persons and 17 corporations, was killed last night—shot through the head as he sat on the front porch of a tourist camp near Corbin, Ky., 14 miles south of London.

State police and Sheriff Fred Lucas took into custody Chris Patterson, who once was convicted of dynamiting the home of a United Mine Workers of America organizer at Pineville, Bell county.

A month ago a miner who had been subpoenaed by the government but who had not testified, was shot to death in a fight in front of a Harlan county saloon. Herbert Cawood, then sheriff, said the incident had no connection with the trial.

The same day the miner was killed another government witness, who had testified, reported he was kidnapped from a restaurant but broke away from his unnamed captors. Last Tuesday another deputy-defendant, Lee Fleenor, was arrested on a shooting charge after a man once convicted of killing Fleenor's father, was wounded in a gun fight near Harlan.

Farmer Stabs Girl Blames Root He Ate

CONCORD, N.C., July 8 (AP)—A defence of temporary insanity was planned today for William Baxter Parnell, 32-year-old tenant farmer, who was quoted by witnesses at an inquest as saying he stabbed his 19-year-old sister-in-law to death while under the influence of a root he chewed after obtaining it from a negro woman "witch doctor."

Furman James, attorney for Parnell, announced his client's intention to reply on the insanity plea after a coroner's jury yesterday ordered the accused held without bond for the grand jury on a murder charge in connection with the death of Martha Jane Fink last Sunday.

The Rev. John Ricks, rural Presbyterian preacher, and Deputy Sheriff Bert S. Ball testified at the inquest that Parnell told them he drove an ice pick into the body of Martha Jane as the two and Mrs. Parnell knelt in a hog lot to pray. He was quoted as saying his mind would "come and go" after chewing the root which, he said, a negro woman known as "Aunt Jenny" Morris gave him.

"Aunt Jenny" denied giving Parnell any roots. She testified, however, she gave him some dust to rub upon his hands as a good luck charm.

S.C. Dividends By Now If Law Not Blocked

BLACK DIAMOND, Alta., July 8 (C.P.). — If Social Credit legislation had not been disallowed the Alberta Government would probably be paying $25 a month dividends at the present time, Premier Aberhart told a questioner here last night at the fourth meeting of a tour by the Premier in his own riding of Okotoks-High River.

"When are we going to get that long-promised $25 a month dividend?" asked a questioner.

"Just as soon as we have control of our credit," replied the Premier.

"Do you mean that if your laws had not been disallowed you'd be paying dividends now?" the questioner continued.

"Well, that would be our aim," the Premier replied. "I believe I could answer 'Yes' to that."

Will Hake Challenge

WINDSOR, Ont., July 8—(CP)—O. Ketching, recording secretary of the Essex County Trades and Labor Council said today the council would accept the challenge by L. Meconi, Windsor, who announced recently he would give $100 to any charity if anyone could prove he had been teaching fascism.

Ketching said Fascism is the enemy of Unionism and the Labor Council would take all steps necessary to prevent its spread.

Herridge's Policy Assault Sets Tories In Uproar

OTTAWA, July 8.— Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Minister to Washington and the brother-in-law of Right Hon. R. B. Bennett, was booed and heckled on the platform of the National Conservative Convention yesterday.

His fiery speech, denouncing resolutions adopted by the convention as a "lot of junk," plunged the convention into an uproar.

"These resolutions are an insult to the intelligence of this convention," stated Mr. Herridge, once a power in the Conservative Party.

"So are you," shouted a voice.

"They are a treachery to the people of this country," continued Mr. Herridge.

"Go back to the United States," called another voice and the convention roared and booed.

"I ask for fair play," pleaded Mr. Herridge, and the Chairman, John R. MacNicol, shouted for order.

During the uproar, Mr. Herridge read a resolution embracing monetary reform which would stabilize production at a maximum and raise consumption.

"God help you because of the reaction in this party," shouted Mr. Herridge through the microphone. "You are stirring the passions of religious and racial strife."

If, he said, the Conservative Party did not reject reaction and adopt progressive reform it would "disappear and the pages of history will record this as the day of its funeral."

If the party were united and resolute and pledged to reform it would win the confidence of the people, but otherwise it would be lost, he declared.

The crowd booed and jeered him. "Are you for action or for reform?" shouted Mr. Herridge. He finaly left the platform. No one in the convention rose to second his resolution.

Donegal Cup Shoot Brings 3 Perfects

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 8 (CP Cable). — Despite dismal weather conditions three marksmen had perfect scores in the Donegal Challenge Cup, to-day's feature of the Empire meeting of the National Rifle Association which shortly swings into heavy competition.

Tied for the lead in the Donegal with possible scores of 50 were R. H. Lee of the Royal Marines, Squadron-Leader S. Wallingford of the New Zealand Air Force, and Major D. Fraser of the Army Rifle Club. Best Canadian score in the match, fired at 200 yards, was 48 out of 50 recorded by Sergt. M. F. Dillon of Ottawa and Sergt. N. L. Beckett of Hamilton.

The average scoring reached a high level nevertheless. Behind Beckett and Dillon in the Donegal the Canadian scoring was: T. W. Gregory, Ottawa; C.S.M. George Emslie, Toronto, and Lieut. William Ewing, Montreal, 47; Lieut. N. Colville, Vancouver, and C.Q.M.S. H. C. Hawes, Hamilton, 46; Sgt. L. S. Vaines, Montreal, Lieut. Steve Johnson, Calgary, and Sgt. J. Sangst[illegible], Winnipeg, 45; Lieut. G. A. Molecey, Vancouver, 44; Capt. T. E. Hayhurst, Windsor, 43; Sgt. P. M. Gibault, Vancouver, and Sgt.-Major R. Kiddie, Toronto, 40.

Squadded early in the day's other feature match this afternoon, the Conan Doyle Challenge Statuette at 500 yards, Lieut. Colville turned in a fine total of 48 out of a possible 50. Lieut. Johnson and Sgt. Sangster had 47, Lieut. C. F. Kennedy of Hilden, N.S., Sergt. M. B. McIntyre of Toronto, and Sgt. Dillon, 46; Sgt. Vaines, C.Q.M.S. Hawes, and Sgt. R. Ziola of Ottawa, 45.

STREET CHRISTENING

Of 3,300 London streets on the list for new names in 1935, only 1,000 remain. In July 400 streets will be given new names.

FATAL HEART ATTACK

Stricken with a heart attack while playing baseball at Aberdeen, Sask., Thomas Archibald MacIntosh, aged 21, died a few minutes later.

The Wrong Aid

KAPUSKASING, Ont., July 8. — (CP).—Arsene Brochu ditched his motor car just outside this Northern Ontario town then flagged a passing motorist to help him. He noticed too late that the passing car was a police patrol, so tried to get back into his own auto, but he "wabbled" the officers said. Today Broshu was sent to jail for 15 days as a drunk driver, his driver's licence was suspended for three months and his car was impounded for the same period.

Colorado Party Overdue Sighted Safe

LEE'S FERRY, Ariz., July 8 (AP).—Out of dangerous water, the overdue Nevills expedition was reported 20 miles up the Colorado river from here today ready to surge into Lee's Ferry and their first contact with civilization in 18 dramatic days.

Fears for the six-member scientific expedition ended last night when two coast guard fliers reported sighting the group apparently making camp along the flood-tide stream.

The fliers, R. W. Fendlay and J. J. Riggs, reporting to their commanding officer in El Paso, Tex., said they dropped notes to the party and that the six adventurers signaled that they needed no help.

The fliers said they dropped three notes.

The first read: "If you are the scientific expedition from the University of Michigan, all persons lie down."

The four men and two women lay prone.

The second: "If everybody okay, raise your arms to a horizintal position."

The six persons raised their arms.

The last: "If you need food, everybody sit down."

All members of the party remained standing.

The government employees who have kept 24-hour vigil for the party since Sunday, made preparations for the party's arrival expected during the day.

Behind the scientists, studying botanical specimens, lies the most dangerous stretch of the treacherous river—rapid-riffled cataract canyon, "graveyard of the Colorado."

U.S. Sells Japs, China 20 Million War Foods

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP)—United States firms sold Japan and China more than $20,500,000 worth of war supplies during their first year of conflict, State Department figures showed today that China bought $12,559,741 and Japan $7,664,413.

Japanese purchases, however, have increased at a much more rapid rate, with the result that in the last six months Japan has become a bigger buyer by several hundred thousand dollars.

War supplies sent to both belligerents were principally airplanes, motors and accessors. Most shipments to China were licensed for Hong Kong, British Port, through which they go into the interior.

Dog Nose Prints

TORONTO, July 8—(CP)— Dog nose prints, comparable to human finger prints, are advocated by the Canadian Kennel Club for identifying registered dogs, in preference to tattooing.

Tattooing is of no lasting value in dog identification, is painful and opens the way to abuses, in the club's view. That is why it decided last night to take action against a new insistence by the Dominion Department of Agriculture that members of the club comply with the tattooing regulation before the club's charter is renewed, involving loss of registration.

Two delegates, Mrs. McColl and F. W. Walkerdine, were named to present the organization's views to the Department at Ottawa.

Manion Will Unveil Campbell's Credential

TORONTO, July 8 — (CP). — Hon. Robert J. Manion, new Federal Leader of the National Conservative party, consented to-day to "unveil" formally the invitation sent in error to Hon. Colin Campbell, Minister of Works in Ontario's Liberal Government, appointing him a delegate to the Conservative convention. Mr. Campbell will have the invitation framed for the "unveiling."

"I 'phoned Bob, who is an old friend of mine—we sat together in the House of Commons—to congratulate him on his selection," Mr. Campbell said to-day. "I told him I am going to have my credential framed, and invited him formally to unveil it. He said he would be delighted to do so and will fix a date suitable to himself. I hope to have a distinguished gathering assembled, including the Premier."

Premier Mitchell Hepburn dispatched a telegram of congratulations yesterday to Dr. Manion and received to-day a cordial acknowledgment.

Locomotive Blows Up Killing 5 In Montana

MISSOULA, Mont., July 8 (A.P.). —The locomotive of a Northern Pacific freight train "blew up like a giant firecracker" near Willis, Mont., late last night, killing three crewmen and two transients.

Carl H. Syria, United States forest ranger, said H. P. Van Pelt, rear brakeman, told him five were known dead and "there might be more."

The locmtive "split in half and blew up like a giant firecracker," Van Pelt said. Half was in the turbulent Clark's Fork River, about 100 yards wide, and the other half alongside the tracks.

Nine cars were derailed.

Van Pelt said "there was a full load" of 50 transients in the fifth car back, but only three were slightly injured.

Terrorists Keep Shanghai Japs Uneasy

SHANGHAI, July 8—(AP).—Terrorist attacks against Japanese resumed in Shanghai today on the first anniversary of the conflict between China and Japan.

Four were killed and five wounded by bombs, grenades and bullets. Two of the dead were Japanese and two were Chinese. A British colonial soldier was injured.

There were flurries of machine-gun fire in outlying districts and reports of sporadic shooting in industrial Pootung, across the Whangpoo River from Shanghai proper, that may have meant a new series of attacks by Chinese guerilla units.

There had been similar outbreaks since the Japanese established control of Shanghai and drove the Chinese toward Nanking last November 9.

For the most part, however, outward order prevailed here while the battlefront was carried beyond Nanking, further into the interior to the present drive along the Yangtse River in the Japanese effort to reach Hankow, China's provisional capital.

The Chinese and Japanese armies now are in a near-deadlock along the Yangtse about Hukow and Kiukiang, 150 miles from Hankow and 450 miles from Shanghai.

How much longer the war may last still is a question that one cannot answer. There have been numerous peace feelers since efforts toward mediation were attributed last fall to the German Ambassador, Oskar Trautmann, since recalled.

Behind-the-scenes efforts still are being made, but so far all have failed because neither the Chinese nor Japanese have sustained overwhelming victory or disastrous defeat, and both still are determined to prolong the struggle rather than quit with a loss of face.

Peiping, with its government of elderly Chinese under Japanese protection, celebrated the anniversary with champagne, saki and beer—but with the entire available force of Chinese police, secret agents and Japanese gendarmes on guard against disorder.

General Chiang Kai-Shek, from Hankow, appealed to the Japanese people to "halt the madness of their militarists" in a statement referring to "barbarity" of the Japanese army.

Westerner Talks To Tories

Western Canada's nominee for the position of leader of the National Conservative party, Hon. Murdoch A. MacPherson, of Regina, turns his oratory upon the 1,500 odd delegates assembled in the coliseum at Ottawa, prepared to ballot upon the five candidates standing for the post. Mr. MacPherson, former Attorney-General for Saskatchewan, was not well known to eastern Canada delegates. His convention support therefore was considered impressive.

Third Tedford Reunion Jolly Affair

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, July 8.—The third annual reunion of the Tedford family was held in Warsaw on Friday. For weeks many old and young had looked forward to the day and when July 1st broke raining there were many disappointed people. However by noon a good number had gathered and over fifty sat down to dinner in the Warsaw Town Hall, and a jolly dinner it was.

Many more came in the afternoon when it began to clear a little. One hundred and twenty sat down to supper, and if one could judge from the laughter and noise, they were a merry crowd enjoying themselves to the full.

After the noon meal Mr. Robert Tedford gave a short but interesting sketch of the family history from the great-grandparents, Robert and Jane Woodhouse Tedford. Their family history is one to be proud of.

The guests of honor at this year's reunion were Mrs. Jane Nelson; her daughter, Miss Bertha Nelson; son, Clarence, and grandson, Ivan Nelson. They had motored from Carberry, Man., to be present at the gathering. Mrs. Nelson and her family plan to visit among relatives in Ontario for about a month. An hearty clapping of hands was given them after supper.

Another cheer was given Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Watts, as they waited a day to be present at the reunion.

In the afternoon there were some ball games in the school yard and also a tug-of-war. There was not time for many sports, but there were some races for the younger folk, who entered into them with spirit.

The race winners were.—Girls under 5, Ann Richardson, Autumn Dubay; boys under 5, Kenneth Fife, Ivan Nelson; girls, 5-8, Violet Darrett; boys 5-8, Elmer Tedford; balloon race for girls, Zelda Tedford; bursting balloon contest, Will Telford (Lakefield); ladies' nail-driving contest, Miss R. L. McAlvella (Peterborough).

A tug-of-war was pulled after supper, the married men pulled the single men, and the married ladies pulled the single ladies.

The largest family on the grounds was that of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Tedford; their 16 members all being present.

The oldest married couple on the grounds was Mr. and Mrs. William Frankish; the newest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Watts; and the oldest person, Mrs. William Comrie.

It was decided by show of hands to hold the reunion next year at Buckhorn.

Among those present. — From Buckhorn, Mrs. Frank Freeburn; from Carberry, Man., Mrs. Jane Nelson; from Indian River, Roland, Helen, and Walter Tedford; from Lakefield, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tedford, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Frankish, Percy Frankish, Mrs. Wilbert Frankish and Jean; Mrs. S. Richardson and Anne; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Harding; Mr. and Mrs. Steward Tedford, and Keith; Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Little and Nancy, Jean; Mr. Russel Mundel.

From Clear Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Tedford, Roger, Olive, Mary; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lloyd and Neil. From Norwood, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tedford, Jean Calvert. Mr. and Ms. Cliffod Fife, Kenneth, Ronald and Yvonne. Fom Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Duboy and Autumn, Mrs. E. Duboy and Bobbie, Mrs. Betty Bullock, Gertie and Gratton; Thelma, Zelda and Max Tedford, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Darling and Grace; Mr. Fred Bell and Donald; Mr. James Nelson and Mary; Miss McAvella; Mr. and Mrs. William Comrie; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ward and Ronald; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Petrie and Sheila. From Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sweeting, Ralph and Elva. From Toronto, Miss Margaret Flemming; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Duff, Bruce, Garth and Joy Anne.

From Warsaw, Mrs. Gordon Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Watts, Mary, Jean, Ivan and Joe; Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Watts; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clements, Violet and Vera Derrett; Mr. Lonsberry. From Young's Point, Mr. William Tedford, Quentin and Joan.

But for the rain the gathering would have been held at the Back Dam, as the former two had been.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parcels gave a reception for their daughter, Mrs. John Myles on Thursday, June 30. The bride of a week wore her wedding dress and was the recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts. A jolly evening was spent in dancing, which kept up until after three a.m. Supper was served about midnight.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. McIlvena and Lenore were July 1st guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooper.

Miss Verna Miller is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Maitland Gardner.

U.S. Rail Price Jump To Net 30 Millions

WASHINGTON, July 8 — (CP).—Official of Eastern United States Railroads estimated today that their half-cent increase in passenger fares would add nearly $30,000,000 a year to their revenues.

The Interstate Commerce Commission agreed late yesterday to let the Eastern Lines charge 2.5 cents a mile in coaches during an 18-month trial. It found that the roads' financial condition had become "progressively worse" since a similar plea was refused last spring.

One commissioner, Claude R. Porter, disagreed with the report of his 10 colleagues and called the increase a grave mistake.

"No other industry in the throes of a depression and in the face of vigorous competition," he said, "seeks to raise the price of what it sells to the public.

"It might be said that if the railroads are bent on committing suicide, why should we seek to prevent them. I still believe we owe a duty to the public."

Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, on the other hand, said he thought the increase would prove helpful.

Officials of the Association of American Railroads and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen said the fare increase probably would have no effect on coming wage conferences. The lines have asked employees to take a 15 per cent. cut, but the workers have refused.

Quebec's Voice

Here is George Heon, M.P., for Argentuil, Quebec, whose speech to the Conservative convention in Ottawa, was construed as a direct challenge from the Quebec delegates to the Imperialist policy advocated by Rt. Hon Arthur Meighen in the convention's opening session. Heon's comments forecast bitter Quebec opposition to any attempt to draft an Imperialist platform into the party policy at this time.

A Strange Claim

Dr. E. J. Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, was a speaker at the annual gathering of the American and Ontario Municipal Association at Bigwin. One rather brief report says he made a statement to the effect that the Hydro Commission would break up "sooner or later unless it had the necessary co-operation from the municipalities."

It may be Dr. Hogg said a number of things which would gve added explanation and a fuller understanding, but as that one remark stands it is strange.

In what way does he desire greater co-operation from the municipalities? The management of Hydro is not in their hands and it has never been so placed. The municipalities do not even have the satisfaction of naming a member of the Commission, and although they have their own municipal organization they have never been able to penetrate far in the affairs of management. They can and do pass resolutions but they have no power to see that they are given effect.

The municipalities would probably be glad enough to co-operate if they were ever given opportunity to do so.

57 Years In Ethiopia

Monsignor Jarousseau, the aged prelate who spent 57 years with the French mission in Ethiopia, has returned to France where he will live in retirement in a monastery. He said it had been difficult to carry on missionary work in Ethiopia since the conquest of the land by Italy. He had been deprived of the residence in which he had lived for many years, but in a statement which he made for a French newspaper there was no evidence of personal bitterness.

The prelate said it was not right to state there was any danger of an uprising in Ethiopia, as the country is under military rule and things in general are very quiet.

Both Ethiopians and Italians had been disappointed in the outcome. In the first place many of the people in Ethiopia saw the Italians arrive as liberators because they had been so heavily taxed. The Italians had been under the impression that they were entering a rich country whereas it was actually very poor. Hence both were mistaken.

A large number of people in Ethiopia are today living on the charity extended to them by Italy, and at the same time the Italians are going ahead with a view of making the land productive, and Mons. Jarousseau believes they will eventually succeed in doing so. The policy of the Italians appears to be to win the confidence of the Ethiopians and in that the French prelate believes they will succeed, adding that in a few years the Ethiopians will be completely won over to their new masters.

That seems to be a fair enough statement, and we have no reason whatever to believe it is not true. Mons. Jarousseau was in Ethiopia for 57 years and he was not favorably impressed by the conditions under which the people had to live under the rule of Haile Selassie.

We Get What He Means

Above all else we believe a man who goes about the country making addresses should be able to so express his thoughts that people will know what he means.

Rev. French E. Oliver, world traveller and lecturer, was addressing a youth gathering in Knox Church at Toronto, and he had occasion to make reference to modern dance music in this way:

"It is St. Vitus dance or epilepsy. It is a coarse vulgar call to the orgies of a moronic neroism, stark, maladorous paganism, full of filth, ribaldry, viciousness, maudlin staggering drunkenness, blasphemy, moral and social idiocy."

We do not claim to possess anything above an average understanding of the English language, but after reading that through a couple of times we have come to the conclusion that Rev. French E. Oliver doesn't think much of modern dance music.

When You Spend Money

It seems to take some people a long time to learn that it pays to do their purchasing at a reputable store, a store which will be open for business tomorrow and next week and so on.

Toronto has been having experience with salesmen who go from door to door selling rugs, and these rugs were represented as being exceptional bargains because they were the property of people who were "leaving the city," "selling out" or "moving into a much smaller house."

One victim purchased a so-called "genuine inland broadloom." It was first offered for $78 but not sold until the price had been beaten down to $20 at which point the purchaser was certain the bargain was real. Examination by experts revealed that the rug was made of inferior jute and was of little value at any price.

The stores in your own community are not going to fool you because they want you back again but the man who sells at the door is making just one call and he knows he will not be doing business with you again.

Quite a Contrast

The affairs of the heiress Barbara Hutton passed some days ago from the rumor and gossip stage to police court hearing in London, where her counsel charged cruelty and threats against her titled husband, Count Haugwitz-Reventlow. The count it appears was offered $250,000 to sign off, but he asks for $5,000,000. His view is that offering him the lesser amount is a form of insult. Apparently he would move aside if the price were high enough.

London reports say that when the case came to court there was a renewal of that old phrase "I told you so," and those who were making use of it are certain today they predicted the breaking up of this marriage.

Barbara Hutton was and is heiress of the many millions left to her by the founder of the Woolworth stores. It seems she was bent always on marrying a titled gentleman, her first husband having been Prince Alexis Mdivani, which ended in a Reno divorce in 1935. On the following day she was married to Count Haugwitz-Reventlow, and now that he appears to be on the way out London reports tell of an impending marriage with a titled gentleman in the British capital.

All of which provides something worth thinking about. The millions of dollars which Barbara Hutton inherited were from the profits on sales made in the Woolworth stores, and the purchases would be small ones as a rule. The fortune which this girl inherited would represent millions of people making these small purchases, securing some article they desired for themselves of which they may have needed for their homes. They would represent a plane of living far removed from that to which the heiress has been accustomed, but for the most part they would be normal, happy and contented people who would know the value of money and would have to measure their spendings accordingly. There would be none of them able to offer $250,000 to be rid of and freed from a husband.

Quite a contrast when one thinks of the way in which this fortune was accumulated and of the manner in which it is being spent today. The process and atmosphere surrounding its building was infinitely happier and more wholesome than the titled-husband-collecting use to which it is being put today.

The New Leader

Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion will take over in place of Hon. R. B. Bennett as leader of the National Conservative party. The fact that he was defeated in the 1935 contest did not militate against his chances for leadership; rather it seems to have been an advantage because in 1927 when a member of the House he was an unsuccessful candidate for leadership of the Conservative party at the Winnipeg convention.

Dr. Manion has had a political experience somewhat similar to that of the Hon. Hugh Guthrie, now chairman of the Railway Board, but for years member for South Wellington, in that each had been formerly in the Liberal party, but changed at the time of Union Government. Dr. Manion had been returned from the Fort William riding at every contest since 1917 until he met defeat in 1935.

He is regarded as a strong man in the party. In his address to the convention at Ottawa he spoke plainly so there was no chance of confusion regarding his attitude on public questions. He believes in a strong central government, in a united Canada, and he came out plainly on the railway problem as against unification of the C.N.R. with the C.P.R. In fact he spoke so pointedly that now as leader of the party he has definitely committed the Conservatives to that course.

The new leader is possessed of vigor and health; he is the robust type of public man, and in his earlier days was one of the most difficult men in the House of Commons from the standpoint of the reporter by reason of the rapidity with which words came from him. The subject which he was discussing seemed to become an obsession and he was at once deeply immersed in it.

It was stated many times that from the first Dr. Manion could have the leadership if he wanted it. The early hours of the national gathering seemed for the moment to swing favor toward Hon. Senator Meighen, but he was not looking for the office. Once he was out of the running and Mr. Bennett had made it plain he was through the trend was toward Manion. Political experience and vigor were probably the deciding factors.

We are certain the Canadian people will wish the new leader of the Conservative party well in the task to which he has laid his hand. A strong party with a strong leader will serve a national purpose in this country.

About Potato Bugs

There was a picture in one of the farm papers recently of a rig which one potato grower had rigged up for spraying his vines. He has acres of potatoes, so he made himself a box tank mounted on a light wagon, the wheels of which are so spaced that they go between the rows. There is a wide sprinkling apparatus in the rear, so away he goes and sprinkles five rows at once with his paris green mixture.

And that of course is quite an advance on the old method of dealing with potato bugs. We admit the custom used on Lot 4, Concession Ten, would not compare with such a rig. Any boy who grew up on a farm or in a village before the world started to go scientific can recall potato bugs.

The method of attack on the Tenth was direct and the equipment used was simple and inexpensive. It was necessary to have a small tin container and a stick, although a bit of flat shingle was better. The tins in which wagon grease used to come were rather preferred to other tins because there was always some of the grease sticking inside and that seemed to make it harder for the potato bugs to start crawling out.

By that method one started on the first row of potatoes and sighting the hard-shelled bug or the soft one, proceeded to hold the tin container in position and knocked the bugs therein. The operation at every hill of potatoes was exactly the same. The potato bugs were never content to stay in the bottom of the dish. Always did they desire to crawl toward the top and it was necessary to tap vigorously on the side of the dish now and then to make them settle down where they belonged.

The method of destruction was also primitive and perhaps it actually came under the general heading of cruelty to animals or bugs because a little coal oil was placed in the dish and an old sulphur match was carefully scratched and flames settled the potato bugs. No doubt it is more humane to allow the bugs to eat paris green when they are eating potato tops. One could claim that in this way the potato bugs had the option of either continuing in their evil ways or leaving the potato tops alone. By the old method there was no such second chance; the bugs had been caught in the act and right there and then they paid the price. But the idea of that farmer driving around his big potato patch sprinkling five rows at a time does look rather attractive and progressive. Never was there anything like that on the Tenth.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Saskatchewan has had a downpour of rain and that probably has interested more folk out there than the proceedings of the Conservative conclave.

Politicians are to be given equal rights over the American radio. However the time before the set-owner tunes them out cannot be regulated.

From the geographical viewpoint the Conservative delegates went about half way in choosing Hon. Dr. Manion as the new leader.

One Toronto man says he would not like to see police in shirt sleeves. We might as well warn him here and now to stay away from Peterborough.

Just to refute the impression that Saskatchewan has been turning into a desert comes the story from Moose Jaw of a man there having a peony bush with 325 blooms.

Bandits operating in New York state have a new plan. After robbing a man in a car they force him to take off all his clothing, believing he will remain in the car for some time. Proving perhaps the slogan is right enough which says that clothes make the man.

An Examiner reporter went to the part of the country where a boy had been lost for five days and found him. Perhaps this is a bit of office advertising but it seems the right time and place to remark that Examiner classified advertising will perform the same service at any time.

HUMBLE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The world calls for dictators now, with heavy jaw and massive brow, with iron within the spine; and yet it gives me peace of mind, each day I chore around and find, a job like that's not mine.

¶ Dictators must live in a stew, just thinking up new things to do, and bossing folks around; in telling farmers what to grow, and shouting at them when they're slow, at digging in the ground.

¶ Dictators too make lots of foes, fill folks right to the chin with woes, from turning on the law; and I suppose as like as not, they'd swing the first chance that they got, and smite them on the jaw.

¶ Dictators I should think at night, would be filled full of scare and fright, they'd fear to go to sleep; for enemies with stealthy tread, might seek to fill them full of lead, 'twould make them shake and creep.

¶ Were I dictating I should dread, to eat my daily hocks and break, that's how it seems to me; some enemy would surely come, and sprinkle dope upon my bun, dump poison in my tea.

¶ I'd rather worry with my rent, and try to stretch my last red cent, and quietly go my way; on speaking terms with those I know, and daily at my choring go—just like a humble jay.

Beggars Strong In Chinese City

BEHOLD THE GREAT Tattered Army! Dirty rags for uniform, and a straw wallet containing a cracked bowl and an over-used pair of bamboo chopsticks as the traditional barge of their honorable profession—and a walking-stick as protection from over-friendly dogs. . . .

In the streets, outside temples and other public places, this great army of Chinese beggars camps and coolly plies its trade unmolested.

In China begging is not an offence heavy enough to be punishable by law. In fact, mendicancy—begging for ones food—is considered a noble privilege of Buddhist monks.

This tolerant attitude is responsible for begging in China turning into a "racket" — for racket it is! Chinese shops in the cities are occasionally forced into paying a daily or weekly stipend for the beggars who come to their doors. Drive them away—and hell literally breaks loose!

Soon a little army of dirty, begrimed beggers assembles at the door of the house which has insulted and driven away one of their honorable brothers, quickly frightening customers from the premises. At times they are even wont to carry a sick brother of theirs and dump him down on the ground to die in front of the door! Instances are known where a Chinese native bank had to close up because of a "run"—coming from wild rumors deliberately broadcast by a beggar who had been kicked down the steps. It is so much cheaper to give them something than to send them away.

For theirs is a strong organization. In every city they have their own guild—with its professional feeling, rules and chiefs. In order to beg on the streets, each beggar has to obtain permission from the head beggar— the "beggar king"— who collects from each one a part of his daily earnings, and in turn gives him protection and apportions him his district; and at death gives him a decent beggar's burial.

The beggar king of a big Chinese city, believe it or not, is invariably a commanding person of great wealth. He need not "weave nor spin"—his army brings to his coffers the coins they squeeze out of the public. Several years ago the beggar king of Shanghai died, leaving several thousand pounds in addition to several concubines. The beggar king of Amoy, who passed away recently, possessed a mansion that is pointed out to visitors as a supreme example of Chinese architecture.

Probably the most famous Chinese beggar of modern times—and one of the most enigmatic—is Wu Hsun, a native of the little village in Shantung. It is said that this beggar was an illiterate, who vowed that the money he collected from his begging would be used in abolishing illiteracy in his village. He begged and saved for the schools he dreamed of. When he died in 1889, he was as poor as when he started on his begging career; but three schools stand in memory of him. He had given every penny he had begged back to the people.

CANADA AND BRITAIN.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

PREMIER KING has announced, following a Cabinet meeting, that his Government is willing to train pilots for the Royal Air Force in established schools. Sir Francis Floud, High Commissioner for Great Britain, who attended the Cabinet meeting, will convey such representations to the Home Government.

Mr. King's announcement follows the recent debate in the House on air training schools in Canada, and addresses delivered at the National Conservative Convention on Canada's co-operation in Empire defence. Combined with the attitude of Quebec delegates to the Conservative convention, this action will probably remove the question as a major issue in the next election.

The only condition stated is that such schools shall be of the Royal Canadian Air Force, responsible to the Canadian minister of national defence. In this connection The Whig-Standard is of the opinion that the principle that all military establishments in this country during peace time should be controlled by the Government of Canada is a sound one. Practical methods of co-operating with Great Britain in defence measures, within this framework, can be found.

TOO MANY TEACHERS.

(London Free Press)

LOCAL EDUCATION officials weren't particularly interested in the story that 20 tons of examination papers are being marked by teachers under the direction of the department of education, as reported from Toronto. But what did bother them was the part of the story that said 9,000 teachers are engaged in the work.

Doing a little mental arithmetic and assisted by departmental reports, educationists here discovered there are 42,782 secondary school students in the province. With 9,000 teachers the average is five pupils to one teacher.

Five pupils to one teacher is Utopia, and it was indicated today that Ontario is not Utopia, as far as teachers are concerned. Lower school students do not write examinations and substracting this group from the total of secondary school students in the province there remain 24,095. About 30 per cent. pass without trying examinations. So 9,000 teachers are marking papers from 16,895 students.

TRAFFIC JAM

A car puffed laboriously along the muddy country road. Finally the driver became discouraged when the boughs of overhanging trees threatened to stop his car even if he were able to pull through the slippery sea of mud. He saw a rustic and said to him. "You don't have many cars along this way, do you?"

The man took plenty of time before he replied. "Certainly we do. What about it?"

"How many have come past lately?" the driver asked.

"Well," replied the rustic, "there was one last year, and two the year before—and now you're here."

• A Village Which Has No Debt

(Letter in Globe and Mail)

TO THE EDITOR of The Globe and Mail: I have read your editorials criticizing most of President Roosevelts acts, Mr. Herridge's recent speech, and your front page tax expose today. A good many of your readers, like myself, must wonder what the answer is to this mess we are all in. Frankly, I don't know. However, I do wonder if public services and local governments out of debt are as progressive as those in debt.

It so happens that the Township of Clark (Durham County) has no debt; the Village of Orono has no debt; the Orono Park Board, with a fully equipped modern park, has no debt; the Orono Presbyterian Church has no debt; the Orono Agricultural Society has no debt; the Orono Telephone Co. has no debt.

About 60 per cent of the taxes paid in Clark Township and the Village of Orono go to the County of Durham, which owes about $1,000,000. In order to pay the county the lion's share of our taxes and keep our local taxes down, the Township of Clark has not built a mile of good road for years, but so far as taxes are concerned they are just as low as local government can make them, even though you would be just as comfortable riding horseback on our township and county roads as in a new automobile.

Nobody goes to the Township Council or Orono Police Trustee meetings unless they want something. We built a Town Hall for cash; we bought a modern fire engine for cash; we built a two-storey brick fire hall for cash; all of the cement walks in the village were paid for as built; the taxes on my seven-roomed modern frame house are $34.92 a year; 75 per cent. of the people in the village own their homes and live on less than $50 a month; a telephone with 24-hour service costs $10 a year; the Presbyterian Church pays $5 a sermon—no sermon, no $5—the caretaker is the only person on the regular payroll.

But the point is, are we missing something by not being in debt and having all of the modern improvements that they have in other places? —for it looks to me that when pay day comes we will have to help pay for something we didn't get, and if that's the case some of us here are going to be pretty sore if that day arrives. It would appear that a lot of people haven't found out that you get out of this world just what you put into it, and that you have to put it in first if you don't want the interest to cost more than the principal. However, it is very noticeable here that people show very little interest in Government or public service institutions out of debt. It is surprising how quickly they start to go back when they get a cash surplus. Perhaps you know the answer.

Orono. J. E. Armstrong.

• We Speak 2,792 Different Tongues

UNLESS MEN find some way of understanding each other, their boasted civilization is doomed, and war with all its modern refinements will settle that question decisively. So concludes Hubert Herring, executive director of the Committee on Cultural Relations with Latin America, in the current Rotarian Magazine.

"Here we are, two billion strong, increasing at the rate of 30 million each year," he observes, "and living on Iowa farms, in Tokyo tenements, on Russian steppes, on Argentine pampas, in African jungles, in Park Avenue apartments. We don't get along very well together."

While there is nothing new about misunderstandings between men, wars are no longer the cozy family affairs they once were, says the author. Today, he finds, they are rooted deep in the dogma of superiority, varying languages, differing customs, historic grievances, and economic conflicts. Improved transportation and communication, he adds, have huddled peoples together, thereby accentuating the possibilities of confusion and controversy.

"The wonder is not that the peoples of the earth get along so badly together, but, rather, that they manage at all," Author Herring declares. "History, biology, and evolution have heaped us up together on this relatively inconspicuous planet.

We speak 2,792 different languages.

We live in some 70 separate nations, each with its pride, its history, its flag.

We are cut off by lines of custom, habit, and religion.

We are divided by historic enmities, the issues of which are obscured by time. And we are snapping at each other.

"It would require a brain trust with Albert Einstein, Sigmund Freud, Charles A. Beard, William James, and H. G. Wells to hunt out all the reasons why we of this cantankerous human race do not get along more amicably," believes this educator. Yet, he concludes, men are confronted today with a choice between two possibilities—to understand or misunderstand, to cooperate or perish.

• Children Of Ministers Do Well

(Brantford Expositor)

RECENTLY A GREAT deal of publicity has been given to the fact that Franklin Pearce McCall condemned kidnapper and murderer who figured in the Cash case in Florida was a minister's son. Lately the death of Queen Elizabeth's mother, the Countess of Strathmore and Kinghorne, called attention to the fact that she was the daughter of the late Rev. William Cavendish-Bentinck, and the defenders of ministerial traditions were not slow to affirm that from the manse to the exalted position of Queen of the Realm in two generations was rapid promotion. Recent sketches of His Excellency Baron Tweedsmuir, Governor General of Canada, have pointed out also that he is a son of the manse. His father was the Rev. John Buchan of Scotland.

The old theory of the children of ministers not doing well has been effectually exploded in recent years. Bishop Weldon, one time Canon of Westminster Abbey, carried through the self-imposed task of examining this whole question in an article which he entitled, "The Children of the Clergy". He investigated the parentage of every name which occurs in the National Dictionary of Biography, confining himself to the centuries after the Reformation. The significance of his studies appears in the fact that of 2,130 names thus examined of men and women distinguished for marked service in the history of the nation, 1,270, or sixty per cent., were the children of ministers. In an extensive article the writer goes on to prove his assertion that "the superiority has been one not of numbers only, but also of degree. From clerical homes have sprung sons more distinguished, and a larger number of more distinguished sons, than from the homes of any secular profession."

That is the most conclusive answer ever offered to the charge that ministers' children do not do well. It proves that the entire atmosphere of the home from the point of view of both religious and literary culture contributes enormously to national service.

WE TRAVEL TOO FAST.

(St. Catharines Standard)

IT IS BEING said increasingly often of late that we have permitted the wonders of science to outstrip the impulses of our hearts. In other words, we have developed the mechanics of civilization faster than we have acquired real knowledge of how to use them properly.

"The modern tempo is too fast, and we should cultivate the art of being able to relax."

So advises Dr. A. C. Routley, General Secretary of the Canadian Medical Association. And it is a thought worthy of consideration.

It may be true that we need to give our souls a chance to catch up with our bodies. Perhaps we should pause and get a new sense of values.

We have travelled far in a material way in the last half-century. We have gone far mechanically. But what progress have we made spiritually?

The doctor is right—we travel too fast.

THEY VOTE EARLY

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

This idea of not making the result of elections known in the east until the polls close in the west is all right. But it's hard to believe any Westerner is going to sit down and wait until he hears from the East before he votes. Those fellows out there get going early.

IT COSTS MORE.

(N. E. A. Service)

IT COSTS MORE to live in Washington than in any other American city, according to government surveys. A study covering 59 cities, selected with geographical evenness, showed that it cost $1,414.54 to support a four-person manual worker's family at a maintenance level in 1935.

The lowest-cost city was Mobile, Ala., where the figure was found to be $1,013.98. Any one planning to move to a big city may be interested in figures for some of them: San Francisco, $1,389.87; New York, $1,375.13; Chicago, $1,356.11; Boston, $1,352.77; Cleveland, $1,348.33; St. Louis, $1,339.55; Detroit, $1,317.53; Los Angeles, $1,308.11.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND HE CAME out, and went, as he was wont, to the mount of Olives; and his disciples also followed him . . . And he was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed, saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done. . . .

And when he rose up from prayer, and was come to his disciples he found them sleeping for sorrow, and said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

And while he yet spake, behold a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near unto Jesus to kiss him. But Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?

When they which were about him saw what would follow, they said unto him, Lord, shall we smite with the sword? And one of them smote the servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear.

And Jesus answered and said, Suffer ye thus far. And he touched his ear, and healed him.—Luke xxii: 39, 41, 42, 45-51.

PEACE

O Freedom, Peace and Happiness,
Where art thou in this hour,
I fought, I bled, I sacrificed,
Gave all within my power.

They gave me decorations,
For heroic deeds I'd done.
For killing some boy's father,
For maiming some mother's son.

I ask myself what did I win
On that bloody Flanders field,
If to kill and maim is Victory,
Then — I yield.

I prey O Lord, please send us peace
In this hour of need,
And please God touch the hearts of those Whose God is Gain and Greed.

In Good Times

there is no decline in the interest every citizen takes in the essential service the daily newspapers perform.

The local daily newspapers are the daily bread in the mental diet of the people.

It is a significant fact that, during the period between 1929 and 1937, the total circulation of the Canadian daily newspapers increased by more than 270,000 copies daily.

This increase in circulation is but one of many reasons why successful companies spend a large portion of their advertising appropriation in the medium that has the greatest number of readers, the greatest sustained interest, and whose services are obviously an essential part in the daily life of every community — the Canadian daily newspapers.

Spite Is Suspected In Lindsay Fire

LINDSAY, June 8.—The Ontario Fire Marshal's Department will investigate a mysterious blaze which destroyed a frame residence owned by James Healey, on Hamilton street, early Thursday.

This is the third fire which has destroyed property owned by Mr. Healey in the past few years and Fire Chief Herb McCallum has called for an investigation.

In all three cases, the blaze is said to have started under a stairway on the ground floor. The Hamilton street house is almost completely encircled by trees and the fire was not noticed by neighbors until it had reached the upper floor.

When firemen arrived, they found a stone jammed into the fire hydrant. By the time they removed the stone and connected their hose, it was too late to endeavour to save the Healey residence and efforts were confined to preventing the blaze from spreading to adjoining buildings.

Mr. Healey says he had no insurance on the building and that the fire was the work of some person who has a spite against him.

GASOLINES ARE NOT ALL ALIKE

New formula for Esso and 3-Star PROTECTED BY CANADIAN PATENT No. 357976

DISSOLVES GUM, FIGHTS CARBON... GIVES EXTRA POWER AND MILEAGE...

To receive a patent from the Canadian Government, a gasoline formula must have new, useful and improved characteristics. The improved Esso and 3-Star do offer a decided advance in efficient motor operation. Both now contain a new solvent which promptly dissolves the gum and other similar materials formed when your engine consumes gasoline and oil. The formation of hard, sticky deposits on your valves and piston rings that rob your engine of power is definitely checked.

These two leading brands of gasoline are now more efficient than ever. No one can duplicate the formula of Esso or 3-Star. No other gasoline can duplicate the performance of these improved motor fuels.

You Have Two Choices of Performance...

Esso The highest quality gasoline Imperial Oil has ever made, containing a sufficient amount of tetraethyl lead to eliminate "knock" and "ping" and to give smooth power and cool running. Now Esso also contains the new Imperial solvent to keep your engine free of gum and carbon.

3-STAR This famous gasoline has long been recognized by motorists as a regular-priced gasoline of exceptional quality. Now it contains the patented, gum-absorbing solvent. It means more power, a cleaner engine than ever.

LINDSAY SUPREMES DROP OUT OF LOCAL GIRLS' SOFTBALL LOOP

Club Too Weak For This Loop Manager States

Lindsay Supremes have withdrawn from the Peterborough Girls' Softball League. Manager George Stephenson notified President Ev. Thomas of the local and district circuit by 'phone that his club would not operate any more this season, and he promised to send a letter to the president with full details.

Mr. Stephenson stated the reason for the withdrawal of the Supremes was strictly a club matter, there being no objection to the manner in which the league was run. "We have received very fair treatment," he said, "from your league and have had no trouble with officers, rival teams or umpires. But I am not satisfied with the way my players are going and their lack of improvement so far this schedule. Some of the girls are not co-operating as they should. I feel our team haven't a chance this year but I will be back with a stronger squad next season."

There is little likelihood of any other sponsor taking over the Supremes this season as the equipment has been collected and will be saved for next year. President Thomas informed The Examiner that the league would be rather crowded for time now, in any case, for scheduled games and playoff contests, so it would continue to operate with three clubs for the rest of the schedule, which ends August 2nd. The scheduled Lindsay-Keene game tonight (Friday) will not be played but Keene and C.G.E. girls will have an exhibition affair at the Bowl tonight.

The Lindsay team looked promising at the start of the schedule but failed to live up to expectations. The pitching was mostly good and a number of consistent hitters made the team dangerous to opponents at all times. However, weakness in fielding cost the club several games and drills failed to overcome this weakness during the past month or more. Players on the team were shifted from spot to spot in the Lindsay lineup but the result was only more dissatisfaction, and the management—apparently peeved at the attitude of some of the players—finally decided to drop out for this season and to rebuild for another year in the Peterborough League.

In the first half of the Girls' Softball League schedule, the Lindsay squad made a fair showing, owing to an early drive, and were in the running for a playoff berth till the last week. At that time, Keene made it with the undefeated Westclox crew, leaving C.G.E. and Lindsay out of the running. The second-half schedule has just begun and at present sees Westclox on top with one win and no losses, Keene and C.G.E. tied with one win each in two starts and Lindsay having no victories and one defeat. They had not won a game at the Bowl this year.

Nearco has yet to taste defeat and in the Grand Prix came down in front of Peter Beatty's Derby winner, Bois Roussel, who finished third. Jockey Gubelini is up in this picture. The victory was Nearco's 14th straight and a few days later he was sold to Martin Benson, of London, for a reported price of $300,000.

Quaker Oats Wins Over Nationals

Quakers beat Nationals, 17-10, last night in a heavy-hitting Southend Softball League game at the Brinton Field, it being the Nats' eighth straight loss. Stanley hurled steady ball for the winners although giving up a dozen hits. Collins started for the Nats but retired in the sixth after allowing 10 hits, poor outfield support causing his downfall. Wedlock fared better in a relief role. Dizon and Caccavelli hit homers and McDonald got four hits. Fisher and Hunter went good in the field. Teams:

Quakers: Delpellaro, c; Cournyea, 3b; Caccavelli, ss; McCulloch, 1b; Shine, 2b; Dixon, cf; Stanley, p; Fisher, rf; Townsend, lf.

Nats: McDonald, cf; Coursey, 1b; Cameron, 2b; Masters, c; Collins, p; Wedlock, ss, p; Hunter, rf, ss; Pilling, rf; Rennie, lf; Adamson, 3b.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

DOWN AT THE lacrosse arena on George St. where vagrant breezes blow there will be an O. L. A. senior "B" struggle tonight at nine o'clock. Orangeville tackles the Petes in what promises to be a rousing setto between clubs battling for the top of their respective groupings. The tussle ought to result in a big turnout, always provided the weather is propitious—or anyway, suitable. Lots of lively action in these lacrosse jousts and tonight will be no exception. Preceding the senior scrap, two midget squads of local lads, Y's Men's and Rotarians, will clash about 8.15 o'clock. Plenty of these youthful players will make names for themselves in higher company in a year or two, some of 'em showing real promise now. The twin bill rates a good crowd of customers.

* * * * * *

TWO JUNIOR Lakeshore Ball Loop games are billed for Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon, Oshawa boys playing the Young Petes in a double header. First fray is at two bells and the second at four o'clock, both seven-inning affairs. Herb Ralph's squad was to play in the Motor City tomorrow but the Petes have a C. O. B. L. tilt there, so the shift was made at the last moment. Fans should take in this twin bill as the Oshawa lads are smart and the locals are —we feel—a bit smarter; hence a dandy pair of games is indicated.

* * * * * *

SINCE WE ARE always sticking our neck out anyway for the axe, being naturally nosey—ya gotta be in newspaper work—we will up and run a letter given to us the other day. And hope the racqueteers lob over their reply instead of volleying it across! By a gent who calls himself by a nom de plumage (thought we have his car number) as follows: "Man Who Walks Like a Bear." Of all things! Well, the M. W. W. L. A. B. certainly bears down. Here is his missive:

* * * * * *

"DEAR MR. SPORTS EDITOR—Now that the tennis season is in full bloom the thought comes—has the local club the same 'bug' on it that crept around the past two years? Soon officials will be thinking of tournaments again, both 'open'and 'shut' with the usual attractive list of trophies and prizes. But will they recall the consolation winner in 1936 from Oshawa has not as yet received his prize and that the pair of invaders from Uxbridge who cleaned up last year have not as yet received their trophy? And no action apparently being taken about digging one up. The fees seem to be accepted with gratitude but when it comes time for the alleged prizes to be awarded the cup winners were nicely notified by mail, after due inquiry, that funds were insufficient to warrant a cup. Maybe Mr. Editor, you in the latitude of your English can express what the Oshawa and Uxbridge clubs think of the local club but I doubt it, not even in the sports column."

SOME BICKERING for a time down at the Hockey Club meeting last p.m. but it all got smoothed out shortly with no damage done. Quite a crew took in the session, including a flock of the local senior puckists. Prexy R. M. Glover explained the differences which cropped up, pointing out that the officers were working for the benefit of the players and wanted to see them satisfied. He declined re-nomination, feeling he mightn't have the time for it next winter, but promised on behalf of the old executive to assist the incoming officers in every way possible. After the 1937-38 officers retired, Bill Jackson — hockey and grid coach at P. C. I. — was appointed chairman and a general discussion followed. A nominating committee was named to draw up a slate of prospective officers, president, vice-prexy and executive, to present at the next meeting.

SOME OF THE officers were elected last night, Jim Dorris being returned as recording secretary, Cliff Cadd getting the nomination of active secretary and Alf Gratton being named treasurer. A financial committee will consist of the secretary, treasurer, manager and one player. This will give the players an active representation on the executive — a good idea. Coaches and managers will be named at the next meeting, which is slated for 8.15 next Thursday eve in the Chamber of Commerce, Wm. Jackson is chairman for the time being. A vote of thanks was expressed to the 1937-38 executive and it carried unanimously. While there was some dissension at times between the players and officers, the puck-chasers realize that the men behind the scenes do a lot of work and it is often a thankless task.

AND THE SOFTBALL setup. Over at the Bowl last gloaming the Southend League Cogs took a 17-12 exhibition win over Motoristsi n a game which saw more arguments than 14 years of married life. Cogs showed a lot of strength in a rather screwy struggle. The Lindsay-Keene gal's game at the Bowl tonight is off, Lindsay Supremes having folded their tents like the Arabs and solently dropped out of the circuit. Loop competition too tough and the team not clicking so well, we gather. So the gals' league will run with three clubs, and tonight an exhibition fray at the Bowl will see C. G. E. and Keene clashing. Too bad, but the season is well advanced toward the long playoff grind now — and Lindsay will rebuild and put in a stronger entry next year. "No complaints against the league, officers or umpires," stated Manager Stephenson of Lindsay. (Cobourg papers please copy). Next men's game is Monday here between Omemee and Motorists.

* * * * * *

OH, YES AND THE Who's Hooey in the baseball mess. Several local officers will attend the joint C. O. B. L. and O. B. A. executive meeting in Toronto tonight to see what can be done to keep the senior game going in Central Ontario. Ponies are apparently out but may be induced back, and meantime the intermediate Locos in Kingston (now re-instated) are after Yammy Jamieson and Vin-McQuaide, Sec. Snyder of the O. B. A. pans Central Loop officials, while the latter and the Bay of Quinte loop (and several papers rap the O. B. A. arbiters hard and often. A lovely tangle. The Petes are due to play a league fixture in Oshawa on the morrow, Russ Kitchen perhaps pitching 'gainst Jake Biddle. We'll try to get the dope on tonight's meeting for tomorrow, unless local and C. O. B. L. officers are thrown in the Don dungeon for bucking the powers that be in Toronto the Good!

* * * * * *

GRAB-BAG: Kinsmen and Lions have a midget lacrosse fray tomorrow. . . . There may be a July 12th ball game here . . . . Ted Naish, righthand softball twirler, has obtained his release from the Motorists to pitch in the Southend Loop. . . . Omemee men have an exhibition softball game tonight in Lindsay. . . . May we suggest that Orfuns' grid officers send a dozen or two "booster dinner" ducats to Lindsay to sell; they'd go fast, we think. . . . Belleville Kiwanis beat Cobourgs junior ball team, 14-2, recently in a tilt ala exhibish. . . . Admish to Riverside tomorrow is two bits for adults and a nickel for kids — or 12½ cents a man a game and 2½ cents a kid each tilt. . . . D. Clement of Peterborough had second highest aggregate score (practically tied for first) in a recent gun meet in Port Hope. . . . Yeah, bon ami, the only thing sacred to a sports scribe is a confidence. . . . Some local mitt dope in a day or two. . . . Can't locate any more notes around the desk this a.m. so better chop it off here.

Field Of 37 Left In Golf Contest

SANDWCH, Eng., July 8—(CP).—It still was almost anybody's crown to-day as a field of 37 hot shotmakers started off early to-day on the final 36-hole trail to the British open golf championship.

Three Ryder Cup players, Bill Cox, Dick Burton and Jack Busson, headed the parade with 140's, but they were only eight strokes ahead of the worst player who teed off for the final stretch.

Crowding the leaders closest were Bert Gadd and Jim Adams, whose second round cards were 70 and 71 respectively, giving them 36-hole totals of 141.

The bookmakers rated Burton and Adams as co-favorites at four to one.

Tow competition with Canadian affiliations faded out of the running yesterday. General A. C. Critchley, native of Calgary and well known as a sports promoter, rolled up a 36-hole score of 159. Wally Smithers, the Liverpool pro who once was assistant pro at Royal Ottawa, took a 78 for a total of 151.

Henry Cotton, the defending champion, who was constantly off line with his approaches, posted a 73 for a total of 147 and remained in the running. Jimmy Bruen, 18-year-old Irish Walker Cup player, turned in an 80 and failed to qualify, after his sub-par 70 of the day before.

Cricket Notes

To-morrow (Saturday) the Peterborough Club will play the Toronto C.C. at Armour Heights, Toronto.

The following players are asked to meet at the Paragon at 12 o'clock: E. Dyer, S. Lorne, Rev. G. F. Kelly, T. Williams, A. B. Burrows, V. Coleman, R. N. Stuart, J. Chambers, L. Gould, G. Caird, J. Barry, and F. Montgomery.

An Oriental Secret

NEW YORK, July 8 (A.P.). — Police learned to-day they could not raid the Chinese war chest. After officers arrested 29 Chinese in an alleged fan-tan parlor game in Long Island City, they found the quarters had been rented by the Chinese Relief Society of New York, which raises funds for the Oriental Board of Trade. As the raiders arrived, somebody grabbed all the money and locked it in a safe. Police demanded the combination to the safe, but it was an Oriental secret.

Jap Star Snapped Snapping

Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's foremost tennis player, and a member of his country's Davis Cup team, is shown as he arrived in San Francisco to join his teammates and practice for their matches against Canada's team later this year. Jiro is all set to picture his opponents and discover their flaws. Maybe he'll have as much success studying the pictures as Max Schmeling did looking over ones of a certain Mr. Louis.

Ruth Expected To Manage Brooklyn Team

NEW YORK, July 8 (C.P.). — This is the time of year when tomatoes get ripe enough for good throwing from the stands, and major league managers start wondering whether they'll be reading the "help wanted" columns by autumn.

As the two big leagues picked up their pennat races to-day, after their three-day all-star layoff, there were the usual few pilots about whom speculation already had arisen.

For the first time in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, however, there isn't the hue and cry that usually results in the roof falling in on the incumbent at Cleveland. Oscar Vitt has injected such huge gobs of fight into the once easy-going Indians that the folks along that particular section of Lake Erie actually are rooting for him this late in the season.

On the other hand, you have fellows like Boiling Bolly Grimes, Jolly Cholly Grimm, and Peaceful Pie Traynor, who annually, from about this time on, are reported on the skids.

Grimes, it is known, hasn't met with the absolute approval of the powers that be in Brooklyn—notably Boss Man Larry (The Houdini) Macphail. Up to a month or so ago about everyone from Judge Landis down to the Phillies' batboy was reported in line for the Dodger leadership.

Then, along came Ruth, and now, it's generally accepted that the Babe will be handling the reins by no later than start of next season. Remember that Ruth previously had insisted he'd never come back to baseball except as a major league manager. And remember, too, that the Dodgers are paying him $15,000 as a coach, and that much "tin" for a coach is like having your shoes shined by your $20,000-a-year bank president.

Talk in Chicago.

Whenever you think of managerial shifts, you somehow think of Grimm. For two seasons now, they have been saying that Jolly Cholly and his banjo are on the way out of the Chicago Cubs' dugout.

Last winter the Cubs acquired the astute Tony Lazzeri as utility infielder and assistant in brains to Grimm and Gabby Hartnett. Immediately the word went out that come another year and old "Poosh 'Em Opp" Tony would be the boss. And unless the Cubs show a lot more down this season's stretch than they have to date, the idea isn't as far-fetched as it sounds.

Another involved in talk of the old "Heav-o" is Traynor. With a club containing more individual class than any other outfit in the league, the Pirates have advanced exactly nowhere for years. This may be the season, for they're red hot right now, but if they do their regular falling asleep in the late weeks, there's the possibility that Pittsburg may put on a "new faces" act, come next April.

You hear regular rumors, too, about Jimmy Wilson in Philadelphia, but Jimmy is one of your smarter baseball pilots, gets as much out of his woeful Phillies as anyone could, and is "in god" with the front office.

They say, also, that Frankie Frisch won't be with the Cardinals much longer, but Frankie will never have to go around looking for a job. Several clubs would put him right to work. Gabby Street, too, hasn't been any howling success with St. Louis Browns—but who would be with that material?

WHEN BOOKIES WON

LIVERPOOL, England—(CP). — Anfield Greyhound and Sports Club was fined $100 for not providing proper accommdation for bookmakers. Space alloted them was not big enough and too far from the public, the magistrate decided.

Local Marksman Finishes In Second Place

G. Brasseur of Penetang obtained the highest aggregate score at the shoot conducted on the local ranges by the Port Hope Rifle Club for .22 calibre r.f. sporting rifles. It is believed that it was the first shoot of its kind in Canada. Plans are in progress to make it an international affair and United States clubs have assured their support of its international scope. A committee is to be appointed, with I. D. Willis, president of the Port Hope Rifle Club, as convenor to endeavor to organize a Canada-wide association. One of the features of the shoot was the rabbit target, an innovation in target shooting, in which a rabbit dummy was propelled on an 85-yard range, manoeuvring back and forth like a live quarry.

Following were the results of the shoot:

Match No. 1, fifty yards, possible 150, five shots sitting or kneeling and five shots standing—R. Bailey of Whitby, 141-4; D. Clement of Peterborugh, 141-2; J. Frasher of Whitby, 140.

Match No. 2, 100 yards, same conditions—M. H. Rutledge, Toronto, 146; G. Brasseur, Penetang, 145-2; D. Clement, Peterborough, 145-2. So close was the scoring in this match that only by comparison of targets in every detail was it possible to get the winner.

Match No. 3, 85 yards, cardboard moving rabbit, ten points for a body shot or kill and five points for a wound—R. Bailey, Whitby, two kills; L. Biggs, Cobourg, two kills; J. Wilde, Whitby, two kills; G. Hall, Brampton, one kill; and Hubert Cooey of Cobourg, one wound.

Match No. 4, 200 yards—G. Brasseur, Penetang, 124; D. Clement, Peterborough, 123; M. Rutledge, of Toronto, 122.

Highest aggregate score—G. Brasseur, 409-6; D. Clement, 409-4; M. Rutledge, 406; L. Biggs, 403; D. Willis, Port Hope, 399.

BRINTONS LAST-MINUTE GOALS DEFEAT C.G.E. TEAM 4 TO 2

Well-Balanced Teams In League Tilt

One of the finest exhibitions of soccer ever played in the city took place Thursday night, when the Brinton Athletic and the Canadian General trotted out two well conditioned elevens to thrill the fans to the limit with fine displays of combination and clever goal-tending. It would have been a fitting climax for the encounter to have ended in a draw but the Brintons made use of the breaks in the last minutes of the game to win by four goals to two. They meet again on Saturday in the final of the Charity cup.

Well Balanced Teams

The players set a fast pace right from the kick off. Earl, C.G.E., opened up the play by sending his left wing into the Brinton territory to test Crennell at close range. Jones transferred the ball to the other end where the full back held the attack. Play was of a ding dong character until Ross, C.G.E., broke away on the wing to kick the ball across the goal where a succession of headers held it away. Smart combination by the Electrics confined the activities to the Carpet boys goal where Crennell showed his ability as a goal tender. At last, McLeod broke up the pressure by sending his wing men down into the C.G.E. area where G. Downer missed with an oblique shot. Again the C.G.E. dominated the situation by keeping up a steady attack against an excellent display of defensive work by the Brinton full backs, in fact, Crennell in goal supporting them to perfection. The goalie sent Clark away to the other end. Murduff compelled him to shoot before he got set to register with a low grounder that Bolton gathered up nicely on his knees.

Earl, at center half was the main stay of the C.G.E. by his interception of combination play to reply with long kicks into goal where Buchan was in his element harrasing the fullbacks and about scored with clever efforts that Brinton goalie found difficult to handle. A three-way play by Mitchell, McPhate and Ross terminated in the latter placing McMaster in possession about 20 yards out. He met the ball with a first timer that whizzed past the cross-bar to the Brinton players relief. Keen tactics prevailed with the players indulging in clever combination. The C.G.E. were pressing when the interval arrived. No score.

Six Goals in Second

On resuming, Richardson of Brintons took Adkinson's place. Both goalies were kept busy as the forwards tried to break into the scoring column. Eventually Clark, at outside right sped along the line to swing the sphere over to the other wing where G. Downer gathered up the ball with his left foot to bulge the net behind the C.G.E. custodian. Within the next ten minutes the Electrics forced the issue without any success but it arrived when Ross took a close pass on the run to slip the ball out to Buchan who banged in a drive below the cross-bar giving the goalie no chance to save. Encouraged by their success they went right back to make the count two-one when McMaster sent a lightening drive into the rigging from a pass out by Buchan. Quickly the scene of action was transferred with the kick but Bolton saved and the kicker was penalized for touching the ball the second time. With only ten minutes to go, the winners got the breaks through lack of timely clearing by the C.G.E. defense thereby permitting the Brinton pivot to pick the inside of the upright. Two minutes were left when the same performer enacted the same play again but goalie saved while the centre man headed the ball back into the net. Brinton Athletic 4, Canadian General 2.

Goal scorers: Brinton—G. Downer (2), N. Downer (2).

Canadian General—J. Bolton, goal; J. Mitchell and S. Murduff, full backs; W. Mackenzie, F. Earl and T. McPhate, halves; H. Keith, Ben McMaster, J. Buchan, A. Mitchell and A. Ross, forwards; subs, W. Harris and J. Cribbis.

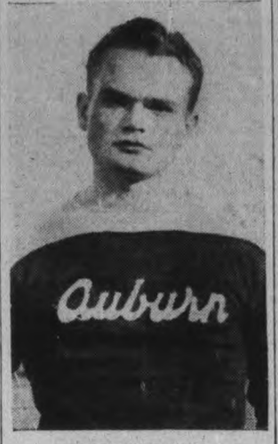
Big And Fast



MIKE LOUCKS

Lanky local lacrosser who has returned to the Petes' lineup and is going good. He will see action here tonight when the locals tackle Orangeville in an O.L.A. senior "B" fixture.

Bradman Runs Afoul Of Rules

LONDON, July 8 (C.P. Cable). — The Australian Cricket Board of Control's insistence on its rule forbidding touring cricketers contact with relatives while abroad is reported to have brought Don Bradman into conflict with that organization.

The board refused the Australian captain's application to have the rule waived to enable Mrs. Bradman to visit him in England. It is understood Bradman, the world's greatest batsman, has threatened to refuse to participate in future tours unless the "no wives" rule is revoked.

Australian touring cricketers are required to subscribe to a prodigious list of "don'ts" and "musts" when signing contracts, but the ban on wives and relatives has caused considerable discussion.

Neither Bradman nor his wife have made any public comment on the matter, but Australian newspapers are headlining stories dealing with the rift.

Buffalo Bisons Beaten 8-4 By Toronto Leafs

NEW YORK, July 8—(CP). — Newark is one city in the International League where the customers have reason for complaint. Next to winning the pennant, all the good burghers ask is that the Bears lick the daylights out of the "hated" Jersey City Giants. And the Bears are giving double satisfaction.

Just as Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants pack them in, despite the big difference in the standings between the two teams, so the league leading Bears and fifth place little Giants are sure to have a good crowd on hand when they do battle.

A crowd of 12,000 turned out last night to see the champions stop the Jerseys 7-4 and increase their league lead to 9½ games over Buffalo Bisons, who took an 8-4 trouncing from Toronto Maple Leafs. The third place Syracuse Chiefs lost to Baltimore Orioles by the same 8-4 count and had their lead over Rochester Red Wings cut to a half-game. The Wings defeated Montreal Royals 7-1.

A pinch homer by Frank Reiber with the bases loaded in the ninth inning gave the Leafs their margin of victory over the Bisons and moved them into a tie for sixth place with the Royals. The Leafs scored most of their other runs with extra base hits as Charley Sheerin also connected for the circuit and Flea Clifton and Joe Gantenbein belted out triples.

Old Silas Johnson held the Royals to five hits while his mates bagged twice as many off three Montreal flingers, to score his eighth victory of the season.

Orangeville Here In Lacrosse Tilt

Lacrosse fans here can bank on plenty of action this evening (Friday) at nine o'clock when Orangeville and the Petes clash at the George St. arena in an O.L.A. senior "B" fixture. It will be their first meeting of the year and little is known of the O's, though they have been up around the top of their group—leading it for a time—all season. The Petes are also well up the list and both clubs should turn it on in exciting style this evening. Practically every lacrosse game the Petes have engaged in during this schedule have been hot and exciting. While the locals have won most of their homes games, they have one loss and two draws against them in this tough grouping. They hope to chalk up a win tonight.

No important changes will be made in the Peterborough lineup for the struggle tonight. The regulars like Red Creighton, Chute, Worthy, King, Dundas, Whitton, Crowe, Magee and a few more, will be on deck again and tearing in hard all the way. The experienced Orangeville outfit will likely be at full strength and anxious to cop a decision here as the schedule is advancing rapidly toward the play-off stage and every tilt is important. A big crowd of fans is expected to see the game. A local midget melee between Rotary and Y's Men's teams precedes the senior scrap.

Baseball's Spectacle As Nationals Win Out

Part of the crowd of 30,000 baseball-fans who jammed Crosley Field, Cincinnati, to watch the favored American League All Stars bow before the National League's chosen team, 4-1, is shown above. The Nationals were at bat when this shot was made.

Oshawa Juniors Here Saturday

Oshawa Juniors play the Young Petes in a double-header here tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at two and four o'clock. These will be regular Lakeshore Junior Baseball League games, seven innings each, and were switched from Oshawa here owing to the C.O.B.L. contest tomorrow in the Motor City. There has been much rivalry for several years between the Oshawa Juniors and Herb Ralph's gang, and both games tomorrow ought to be nifty battles all the way. They deserve a big crowd of Saturday baseball fans as this is a smart junior league with plenty of fine players and tight tilts common. The admission is low for the type of ball offered.

"High Pockets" McCabe will be in action on the Oshawa slab in one of the fixtures. He is a lanky speed-ball hurler with a real rep in junior ball circles. Gee Clark, Lefty Condon and Bob Todd are all available for twirling duties for the Young Petes. The locals have a classy young aggregation with several minor loop stars aboard who will be seen in senior company within two years. With the Bowmanville threat disposed of, Herb Ralph's Y.P. gang are now faced with the task of rubbing out Oshawa to make sure of the playoffs.

Humphries Given New Contract

CLEVELAND, July 8 (A.P.). — The Cleveland Baseball Club disclosed to-day it had torn up the 1938 contract of Johnny Humphries, outstanding rookie pitcher, and replaced it with a new one good for the remainder of this season and all of 1939.

The club said it had given the 23-year-old Humphries an advance in salary because of his effective relief pitching. The right-hander has participated in fourteen games, mostly in a relief role. Of the six games in which he has figured for the averages he has won four and lost two.

Soccer Notes

All C.C.F. players are requested to be at the Empress Hotel on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. Transportation for the game at Deloro has been arranged and the league match will be played at five o'clock.

The final of the Father Phalen cup will be played on Saturday afternoon between the Canadian General and the Brinton. The Electrics are the holders of the trophy at present.

Kick-off at 2.30 o'clock.

Deloro-Havelock Game Called

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, July 8.—After ten innings of keenly-fought softball with the score than 16-all, the first play-off of the Deloro, Marmora and Havelock Softball League between Deloro and Havelock on the former's grounds on Thursday evening had to be called on account of darkness.

The second of the series of three games between the runners-up takes place in Havelock on Monday evening. Teams were:

Robinson Beats Montreal Player

OTTAWA, July 8 (CP) — With Gordon Robinson of Niagara Falls, Ont., assured of one semi-final berth in the men's open singles event in the Ontario tennis championships tournament, the battle for the other three spots will continue today over the Rideau Lawn Tennis Club courts.

Robinson gained the bracket by trimming Dr. Georges Leclerc of Montreal 6-1, 6-1. Rain halted play while other quarter-finalists were still in the thick of their engagements.

The Ottawa city champion, Don McDiarmid, will have 6-2, 4-2 lead when he takes the court for the remainder of his unfinished match with Bill Pedlar of Vancouver while Montreal's George Robinson will have a 7-5, first-set victory behind him when he meets Bill Piggott of Hamilton again. The other quarter-finalists, Lewis Duff of Montreal and Eddie O'Hara of Ottawa, will start from scratch. They were the only pair of the quartet who did not begin their matches yesterday.

While interest centred on the mens open singles competition, continuation of the semi-final battle between Mrs. Frank Fisher of Toronto and Mrs. W. Tees of Montreal also promises plenty of action in the women's open singles. Mrs. Fisher was leading her Montreal opponent 9-8 yesterday when the match was called.

Betty Bell of Toronto and Doreen Graham of Ottawa who won final berths in the junior women's singles with easy victories over Ottawa opponents will decide the title today.

Winnie O'Connell of Ottawa and Barbara Barnard of Montreal will meet in the other women's open singles semi-final match if time permits.

Instructors At O. A. C.

When the Ontario Athletic Commission's camp at Lake Couchiching starts to function, July 2, two of the instructors will be Lew Hayman, LEFT, and Bill Cook, known across Canada for their prowess on gridiron and hockey cushion. Teachers from all over the province will receive instructions on coaching from experts such as these two. We need hardly say that Lew is coach of Toronto Argonauts rugby team, and also a basketball expert, while Bill is often referred to as hockey's greatest right wing. Last year he coached Cleveland Barons.

Cogs Cop 17-12 Win Over Motorists

Cogs copped a 17-12 victory over the Motorists last night at the Bowl in an exhibition men's softball game. It was a wide-open and loose affair with plenty of arguments. Interference plays in the second and eighth inhings caused disputes, the umpires getting a ride. A flock of walks, an error and some timely hitting in the eighth gave Cogs their margin of victory. Naish, Fleming and Wilson all saw service on the losers' mound, while Todd and Akers had slab duty for the Southend Loop squad, none of the hurlers being overly effective in this slugfest. Their support was quite shaky.

Watkins and Todd of Cogs hit a double and two singles each, while Jamieson got two doubles, Mackness a double and a single and Mowry a homer. For Motorists, Starr clouted a homer, double and single, as Weir got thre singles and Playford a double and single. Fielding features were provided by Mackness and Art Heal of the winners, and Starr and Playford of the Motorists. The teams:

Motorists—Walsh, c, 2b; Calladine, 2b, c; Starr, 3b; Playford, cf; Weir, lf, ss; Smith, 1b; Fleming rf, p; Naish, p, rf; Gould, ss, lf; Wilson, p.

Cogs—A. Heal, 2b; Leggett, lf; Todd, p, rf; Akers, rf, p; Mowry, ss; Jamieson, 1b; Watkins, c; Mackness, cf; C. Heal, 3b.

Score by innings—	R	H	E
Motorists	402 020 04	12	11	7
Cogs	141 300 26	17	14	7

Umpires—Ranger and Woods.

Hockey Club Re-organizes For 1938-39

Considerable re-organization work was planned at a general meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club last night, with some of the officers for 1938-39 season elected and a nominating committee appointed to bring in a slate of other prospective officials at the next meeting, which will be held July 14th. R. M. Glover declined to stand for re-nomination as club president, stating he might be absent part of next winter from the city but saying he and members of the 1937-38 executive would co-operate wherever possible with the incoming executive.

The former officers retired and the gathering of some two dozen players and fans named William Jackson chairman of the meeting. It was felt that a nominating committee should be named to check on prospective presidents and vice-presidents, as well as an executive committee. This nominating committee will be: Wm. Jackson, Ken Kingston, Alf Gratton and Bun Kingdon. The office of secretary was divided into two offices, with James Dorris elected recording secretary and Cliff Cadd the active secretary. Alf Gratton was appointed treasurer.

A motion was carried that a financial committee consist of the active secretary, treasurer, manager and one active player. The coaches and managers will be named at the next meeting, when the president and executive will be chosen from the nominating committee's report. In the meantime, Wm. Jackson was appointed chairman. A vote of thanks was passed unanimously to the 1937-38 executive for the work done by that body in local hockey. There was much discussion regarding finances, handling of tickets at games and a strong slate of officers, many suggestions being passed over to the new executive through the nominating committee.

took a great interest in the game. He was a member of St. John's Anglican church.

A member of a family that has been prominent in the life of this city for generations, he was a grandson of the late James Stevenson, one time member of Parliament for Peterborough, and of the late Rev. J. W. R. Beck, former rector of St. John's church. His father, Col. James Stevenson, was for many years commanding officer of the old 57th Regiment.

Surviving besides his parents, Col. and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, are his wife, formerly Marion Harstone, and one daughter, Margaret, aged 2 years.

The Funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. from St. John's Anglican Church.

Second Investiture

LONDON, July 8—(CP-Havas).—Accompanied by home secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, the king today drove from Buckingham Palace to St. James' Palace for the second investiture of the season.

Manion In Nomination Speech

Here is Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, of Fort William, former Minister of Railways and Canals in the Bennett government, delivering the speech before the Conservative convention in Ottawa's Coliseum, in which he accepted nomination for the post of party leader. With Quebec's delegates supporting him, Mr. Manion faced a field including four other candidates, in the balloting. With withdrawal of Bennett, Stevens and Meighen he was favored to win.

MORE ABOUT—
Manion New Leader

the balloting, nor was Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Leader, who stirred the first day of the convention with a keynote speech on Empire relations.

Defeated in the last general election, Dr. Manion now has the problem of finding a seat in the House of Commons and one choice immediately faces him. Mrs. George Black, member for the Yukon, told the convention she would resign her seat and ask Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his followers to give the new leader an acclamation there.

Vacancies exist in the Federal riding of London and Waterloo South and it is possible Dr. Manion will be offered nomination in one of these. He would not comment on such possibilities but warmly thanked the 70 year old member for the Yukon.

Highlight of Dr. Manion's pledges to the party was his promise to create a department devoted to the problems of youth, with its own minister.

Platform features included consultation with Empire Nations on matters relating to defence, opposition to railway unification, completion of the Trans-Canada Highway as a National undertaking, selected family immigration from the British Isles and France, tariff protection, Federal public works and a non-partisan department to administer unemployment relief.

Urges Quick Organizing.

Dr. Manion warned his electors to remember that they had placed a heavy task before him and he would need all their co-operation and effort. He told them to go home and organize with all possible speed and efficiency.

"The next election may sneak upon us like a thief in the night," he declared. In any event it would come within a year or two and he would not be surprised if the Government moved to bring it on quickly before the Conservatives could prepare.

Should he be called soon to form a Government Dr. Manion would find fresh cabinet material immediately at hand in the persons of those who were his opponents. Mr. Lawson was Minister of Revenue in the last phase of the Bennett Government; Mr. MacPherson was Attorney-General for Saskatchewan, and Mr. Massey is a leader in the youth movement for which Dr. Manion promised a separate department.

Mr. Harris, Toronto industrialist and dynamic personality whose energetic debating has been a feature of the House of Commons for 16 years, already is being prominently mentioned for the task of National Organizer for the Party.

Mr. Bennett, made leader when he was 57 years old became Prime Minister three years later, but Sir Robert Borden was leader 11 years before he became head of the Government.

Consideration of the resolutions committee report, taken up subject yesterday, delayed the balloting when acrimonious debate arose over questions of defence policy and railway unification. Young Conservatives from Montreal and Toronto spoke freely against those sections of the platform but got little support.

When Senator J. T. Haig of Winnipeg, returning officer, marched into the convention hall with the final ballot resolutions were still being discussed and his report was held up while resolutions were rushed through.

But the news had leaked out and the speakers platform was beseiged by cameramen and interviewers who crowded around Dr. and Mrs. Manion while the chairman tried to maintain order until essential business was completed.

The first ballot resulted as follows: Manion, 726, MacPherson 475, Harris, 131, Massey 128, Lawson 105, by agreed procedure the winning candidate had to poll a clear majority over all others, with the lowest candidate dropping out if a second ballot became necessary.

The second ballot gave Manion 830, MacPherson 648, and Harris and Massey tied at 49 each. At the Winnipeg convention, where Dr. Manion was also a candidate, Mr. Bennett won with a vote of 780 on the second ballot, with five other candidates in the field for both ballots.

Ballot Results

Soon after the result was made known Prime Minister Mackenzie King sent Dr. Manion a message of congratulation and declaring he would "look forward to renewing with you, in your capacity as leader of your party, the friendly relations we have enjoyed over many years in the public life of our country."

Immediate appointment of a national organizer was one of the recommendations of the organization committee. Mr. Lawsco was organizer for the 1935 campaign. General A. D. McRae, now Senator from Vancouver, who organized the party 1930 campaign, was urged to again take that office but definitely refused.

Always Be Accessible

Dr. Manion, a native of Pembroke, Ont., a former Liberal who entered parliament in 1917 as Unionist member for Fort William which riding he represented constantly until 1935 when he was defeated, is married, has three married sons and is a grandfather.

"I have never been lonely," he declared, referring to the traditional isolation of those in high places, "and I do not propose to be." He declared he would not stand aloof from his associates and would always be accessible to them.

"I am your leader but I am not your commander," Dr. Manion declared. There would be no tinge of dictatorship in the performance of his new task.

Mr. MacPherson entered the race at the last minute, although his name had been suggested more than once as a possibility. His heavy vote was probably one of the surprises of the balloting. He was born and educated in Nova Scotia, had a distinguished career overseas and took up practice of law in Regina.

Dr. Manion is the second Roman Catholic to lead the Conservative party since Confederation. He is the first war veteran to become head of a federal political party in the Dominion. He served in both the French and Canadian armies and won the Military Cross at Vimy Ridge.

Loyalists Hold Up Valencia Drive

HENDAYE, France, July 8—(AP)—Stiffened resistance of government troops south of Teruel blocked insurgent efforts to-day to drive down the Guadalavier river valley and strike toward Valencia from a third direction.

General Jose Valera's Castilian forces were at the borders of Valencia province, but government troops, who had fallen back 12 miles in five day, hastily dug into new positions and fought the advancing insurgents to a standstill.

Insurgent despatches from Teruel admitted the offensive on the Teruel-to-Mediterranean front was held up but said fresh troops were being sent to the front line for a new attempt to resume the insurgent advance down the coast.

Two other drives against Valencia showed marked insurgent successes—south of the main highway from Teruel to Hagunto and along the coastal artery southward from Castellon De La Plana.

Neutral Port

This map shows the location of Almeria which has been suggested as a suitable port in Loyalist territory to be guaranteed immunity from bombing when Generalissimo Francisco Franco receives assurances that cargoes going there would not consist of munitions or arms. The proposal is being studied by the British government and shipping companies. The railroads running to Madrid and Valencia are threatened, if not dominated, by the Insurgents, according to the latest available reports. The broken line shows the main railroads in Loyalist territory.

Paid 25-Year-Old Bill

MEAFORD.—Twenty-five years ago George Gugins delivered a sewing machine to a customer who said he could not pay for it immediately. Gugins trusted him, saying he could pay at his convenience. Ten years ago the man made partial payment and the other day he appeared at Gugins' home to pay the balance in full.

Must Defend Herself

WELLINGTON.—"If Great Britain is involved in war, then in a split second New Zealand will also be at war," Mark Fagan, Minister without portfolio, declared. "But, in the absence of help, a friendly nation might not be able to send men overseas," he added. "Therefore, New Zealand would have to defend herself."

Evidence Tinged With Perjury Magistrate Says

"I have rarely heard a case in which there was so much contradictory evidence," declared Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court yesterday afternoon in dismissing a charge against Donald Lloyd who lives near Young's Point in Smith township of having robbed with violence Francis H. Patterson of Peterborough on the night of Wednesday, June 9.

The crown offered no evidence in a similar charge against Earl Lloyd, a brother, and it too was dismissed.

"I am satisfied," stated the magistrate in acquitting Donald Lloyd "that these two young men tricked Patterson into going out to that farm on the night in question. But I do not feel that what happened there was serious enough to constitute robbery with violence, although it may have been trickery."

In his concluding remarks to the two brothers Magistrate Gee said that he had not been at all satisfied with the evidence that had been given by them nor by their wives. "In fact," he added "much of the testimony that has been given here today on both sides was tinged with perjury."

When the afternoon session opened Hilliard Dunsford, Smith township was called by the defence and told of Patterson and Douglas coming to his house on the evening of June 29 and making some inquiries. He said Patterson did not seem to be sure just what person he was looking for and the same of Bernal Harvey was not mentioned.

Bernal Harvey testified that he was brought up in the same district at Patterson's people had been and that he had known Patterson ever since the latter worked in Braund's store.

In cross-examination he admitted that was quite a while ago and said he was not prepared to deny that it was 18 years ago.

Asks For Protection

Earl Lloyd, brother of the accused, was the next witness and in his behalf Mr. Carley asked for the protection of the Evidence Acts.

He corroborated his brother's evidence as to what had taken place at the Harvey farm after Patterson had arrived there and denied that his brother caught Patterson by the throat and threatened to choke him. Witness claimed that after his brother had read the receipt he had handed it to him and he had read it aloud. His wife and Donald Lloyd's wife were both there and could hear what he read and he swore that the words "taken by threats under protest" were not on the receipt when he read it and signed it.

Mrs. Pearl Lloyd, wife of Earl Lloyd and Mrs. Muriel Lloyd, wife of the accused were called and both corroborated the evidence of their husbands as to the fracas at the Harvey farm. Both swore that they were just outside the door of the barn, saw the money paid, the receipt handed over and then read aloud by Earl Lloyd and both maintained that the words "taken by threats under protest" was not mentioned when the receipt was read.

Didn't See Women.

Frank H. Patterson was called by the crown in rebuttal and swore that he did not see either of the two women at the Harvey farm nor anybody else except the two Lloyds and Douglas who had come there with him.

In his address T. J. Carley, K.C., who defended the Lloyds declared it was obvious from reading the receipt that the words in regard to "threats" and "under protest" must have been added after Earl Lloyd had fixed his signature to the document and he maintained that was enough to discredit Patterson's story.

On the other hand Mr. McElderry submitted that the very fact that Patterson had turned up at the Harvey farm that night was proof that Mrs. Patterson was telling the truth when she told of Donald Lloyd coming to her house and telling her he was Bernal Harvey and that he wanted Mr. Patterson to come out and see him in regard to an Electrolux. The Crown Attorney pointed out too that Earl Lloyd had been there when Patterson arrived and it was on a night when Bernal Harvey was often absent on a shopping trip to Lakefield.

Expressing criticism of a great deal of the evidence he had heard Magistrate Gee finally dismissed the case on the ground that what had happened in his opinion did not constitute robbery by violence.

ELDERBERRY BLOSSOMS BLOOMING.

Clusters of white blossoms in low swampy spots along the highways are attracting many people who have visions of delicious elderberry pie, and who intend to pick the berries when they ripen next month. The plan is to spot the bushes by the white blossoms, make a mental note of the location and then return when the berries have ripened. Only a few people in this section appreciate or have knowledge of this type of berry. They are deep blue, much like a huckleberry and are excellent for pie or to make wine.

Five Liquor Cases Before Magistrate

Liquor charges took up the greater part of Magistrate A. E. Gee's time in police court this morning. Two men were charged with being intoxicated and both were adjourned for a week.

Two young men pleaded guilty to consuming liquor illegally and were fined ten dollars and costs. A young woman pleaded guilty to being drunk and to being a second offender, having been convicted on June 27 for being drunk. She was remanded in custody until Monday for sentence. "Maybe some of your friends who supply you with liquor will come around with the money to pay your fine," Magistrate Gee told her when she said she had not enough money to pay a fine.

Harry E. Baker faced three charges under the Securities Frauds Act and was remanded until Saturday without plea. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., said that he had been in touch with the man's lawyer and that a plea of guilty will probably follow.

The charges were laid on information by Mrs. Effie Huffman, Downie street, as a result of purchase of stocks not listed under the Securities Act, last November.

Marmora Couple Still Farm At 81 And 72

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, July 8.—In Marmora township, not far from the boundary line between that township and Madoc township, reside an interesting old couple in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Reynolds.

The former, who was 81 on the 24th of January of this year, is a son of the late Sidney and Margaret Jane Reynolds and most of his life has been spent in the 77-year-old dwelling that he regards with affection as his home. He was born on Lot 1 of the 10th Concession of Marmora township and practically all the days of his manhood have been spent at farming. The call to go to the lumber camps or river driving went unheeded by him, but he is known to tell some good hunting stories as a result of his fondness for a gun.

He received his education at a school in Huntingdon township, Kate McCarthy being the teacher best remembered by him.

Mrs. Reynolds was formerly Elizabeth Margaret Neal, daughter of the late John and Jane Neal of the 14th Concession Rawdon township. She is 72 years of age and still very active in her home duties. Her chief hobby has been knitting and quilting. She remembers her school days in Rawdon with great clearness and among those best recalled was a Mr. Brown, her first teacher, who later became a Methodist preacher, and a Miss Eliza McInch

Seven children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds—four daughters and three sons—of which number one daughter is deceased. With the exception of one son, all surviving children are married and grandchildren number twenty-two. In the years of their early married life Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds often used to drive to Belleville market and back in one day.

Third Test Match Is Postponed

MANCHESTER, England, July 8.—(CP).—No play was possible today in the third England-Australia cricket test match. Following heavy rain yesterday, showers this morning prevented play before lunch on the opening day of the Doy-day contest, but umpires and officials wanted until mid-afternoon before postponing the start until to-morrow.

Officials had made arrangements to accommodate a crowd of 40,000 at the Old Trafford ground and the postponement will mean a heavy financial loss.

While the team deadlocked in the five-game series after two drawn encounters at Nottingham and London, interest in the third test is at a high pitch.

Grabbing Lady Godiva Gets Attacker Mobbed

TEDDINGTON, Eng., July 7. — (CP)—A bystander who attempted to pull a 13-year-old modern Lady Godiva from her white horse in a charity fete here today was knocked to the ground and beaten by an angry crowd.

Mirabelle Muller, attired in flesh-colored tights and a long flaxen wig, was grabbed about the waist by an unidentified man who shouted, "this is supposed to be a God-fearing country."

He almost tore her from the stirrups before the crowd pinned him to the ground. He was taken to a hospital.

Mirabelle, somewhat shaken, continued on her journey still mounted.

Farmer Suspects Stock-Poisoning

LINDSAY, July 8. — Police are again investigating the claim of William Humphries, Verulam township farmer, that another attempt has been made to kill his cattle and frighten him away from the district.

Today Humphries found a horse and a cow ailing. He said he found evidence they had been given hypodermic injection. Last March three of his pigs died after drinking well water and Humphrie's mother and sister became sick from the same cause.

Humphries is sure some person wants to frighten him away from the neighborhood and he has asked police protection. The preliminary investigation is being made by Provincial authorities.

Campbellford Woman Has Been Actively Engaged In Teaching For 66 Years

CAMPBELLFORD, July 8.—Mrs. E. Vermilyea last week celebrated her 82nd birthday. One of the most unique persons that has ever lived in the town of Campbellford and in fact she can probably claim a record that cannot be equalled any place in the world. She has been actively engaged in teaching both in public school and of late years doing private tutoring since she was sixteen years of age, having in all taught a total of 66 years. For many years she conducted both day and night classes at her home on Canrobert street and has been known to countless children as Auntie Vee. She is still carrying on her work although during the past two years illness had forced her to limit her classes; she is at present tutoring one child five days a week. Unfortunately she shrinks from publicity and asked that nothing more than the mere mention of her birthday celebration be mentioned. With regard to her method of teaching she told the Examiner that one of the most important things was to really like the person you are teaching. "I have spent more time in studying my pupils than in actually teaching them," she declared. Following the conversation which the Examiner had with this fine old lady during which she forbid any notes being made, she kindly consented to pose for the picture which by no means does justice to the sparkle in the eyes which carry with them a tender sympathy and understanding revealing one of the finest persons we have ever known.

Young Girl Tourist Is Paralysis Victim

COBOURG, Ont., July 8 (C.P.).—A case of infantile paralysis has been discovered in Cobourg, the patient an eight-year-old girl from the United States. The girl came to Canada on July 3 and went out to Rice Lake with her parents. Taken ill there she was brought in to Cobourg to a home rented here for the summer.

Dr. W. E. Wilkins, Medical Officer of Health. He expressed the opinquarantine. He expressed the opinion that the girl contracted the disease before she left her home in Ohio, and that the case had progressed five days before she arrived in Canada.

Driving Warnings To Come By Mail

MONTREAL, July 8.—(CP). — Any morning now Mr. Average Householder may awaken to find not only bills in his mail box but also a polite letter from the Director of Provincial Highway, warning him to amend his driving conduct.

"Dear sir," the sample letter issued by the Department reads, "we have been informed that you drove your automobile, or allowed it to be driven past a stop-sign.

"Please amend your conduct so as to conform with traffic regulation and you will save yourself some trouble.

Yours truly,
E. CHARLES GIROUARD,
Director of Provincial Highway Traffic."

Special Grains To Be Examined

Results in the growing of special varieties of oats and barley will be discussed at the field meetings to be held in the evening of Tuesday, July 12 at 6.30 E.S.T. at the home of Clarence Mann, followed by another at Gordon Hancock's farm. Grain growers of the neighboring townships are reminded that L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist, will be the speaker. Selection of gains by experiments to determine which are best suited to certain areas is the purpose of these field meetings and also of the planting of plots of new varieties of seed.

"Out" At Ball Game

NORANDA, Que., July 8—(CP).—Baseball games are fine things—from a distance—as far as Barney Szuch of Powell Rouyn Gold mines is concerned. He was sitting 25 feet from the batter at a game here when the batter took a lusty wallop at the ball and the bat slipped it connected with Szuch's head, knocking him out for two hours. He is still in hospital with a badly cut head but missed having his skull fractured.

Man Aged 69, Father Of Four Sons Appeals For More Relief

HE LOOKED liked that beaten and lonely figure in the insurance company's picture with the warning caption, "a pick is heavy at sixty-five". He's past sixty-eight, and he was asking the relief committee of the council Thursday night to increase his allowance of six dollars and some cents. Not old enough for the pension he said to the committee. "If I was getting it I'd soon light out of here." He came to Peterborough seven years ago from a nearby town, and is said to have been on relief most of that time. Some members of the committee were sympathetic to his request, but they couldn't help thinking of this man's four sons, "six footers and built in proportion", and they wondered if there was some way they could invoke the law that is written to compel children to support their aged parents. And so the four stalwart sons crowded into the foreground of the committee's vision, and there won't be any relief increase for this old man. Two of them are married, and two others are away in the north country working in the woods or picking berries or something like that. "They should be ashamed of themselves leaving you down here to beg for help." Alderman Dutton said to the man who has certificates from five doctors that he is unable to work. "My feet swell up on me and it is pretty hard getting started most mornings" he told the committee.

"You can't expect much work from a man of 68 or 69" Ald. McCannan commented. Anyway they are going to have him examined by the M. O. H., a gesture of some kind or other, but apparently Doctor Fraser's report will have no effect in securing any more relief allowance. Not while there are two strapping sons, exceptionally well dressed and all that, who are content to let their father beg from the municipality. With a big deficit in sight, the committee told this man he had better look to those two married sons for support.

Tribute Is Paid Late Lawyer By E. A. Peck,

"The death of Mr. Stevenson was a keen shock, and possibly I felt it more than other members of the Law Association because at one time I was associated in practice with his father and the present Judge Denistoun when the firm was known as Denniston, Peck and Stevenson," E. A. Peck, K.C., stated. "Mr. Stevenson was a very capable lawyer. He was always cheerful and plucky at times when I fancy now that he must have been suffering but never showed evidence of it. I feel sorry, more so than I can express, for his wife and his parents. I watched Walton grow up as a boy, enlist for overseas and return to his home town to practice law. I can remember voting for his grandfather, the late James Stevenson.

"He had the respect of all the members of the Bar and I know his clients had every confidence in him. He was studious and industrious, and I had been interested in his enterprise in going once a week to Lakefield where he also had an office. I think a great many people in Peterborough will regret very much the death of Walton Stevenson."

Efficient Military Officer

"The death of Major G. W. Stevenson is keenly felt in military circles," Colonel J. A. Dewart commented to the Examiner today. "Loss will be felt not only in the city but elsewhere throughout the district. Major Stevenson was recognized as a very efficient military officer, keenly interested in his unit from which he recently retired, and highly esteemed by his associates and the men under him. His death was a shock to us all."

WILLIAM H. DAVEY

CENTRETON, July 8.—The death took place on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Cobourg General Hospital of Mr. William Henry Davey of Haldimand township. Mr. Davey was 71 years of age and was born in Cornwall, England, having come to Canada with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davey, early pioneers who settled and made their home in the little village of Centreton, where he has lived most of his years.

Mr. Davey has not been well for many years having suffered from the effects of a stroke which left him practically paralized. The funeral service was held at the United church on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. H. W. W. Bromwich officiating. The choir rendered the anthem "Looking This Way" and Mr. George Seymour sang a solo, "The Old Rugged Cross."

Left to mourn his loss are his daughter, Mrs. Fred Spencer, Toronto; two sisters, Mrs. Robert Rusk, Castleton, Mrs. W. Rogers, Centreton; two brothers, Albert and Thomas of Craigmyle, Alta.; and two grandchildren, Thelma and Billie Spencer of Toronto; several nieces and nephews and one aunt, Mrs. William Score, Centreton.

The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in Centreton cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. John Walton, Cephas Turk, Charlie Blodgett, Ross Curtis and John Gillespie.

The Rambling REPORTERS

WRONG LINE.

Thursday evening a tourist car got into the wrong line. Driving up Water street apparently not reading the banner across the street at Dublin they waited ten minutes to be examined by, what they thought, was going to be the customs or some similar examination. But they were slightly peeved to find it was the line for a free car testing.—D.W.

HAS HIS FORTUNE TOLD

This reporter thinks he will turn gypsy fortune teller and make himself a pile of money.

"You've been having very bad luck for the past few months," a gypsy fortune teller told him the day after he returned from the bush north of Apsley where he found Elwood Anderson, for whom searchers had been looking five days. "Your luck is going to change soon," the voluptuous damsel told the dismayed reporter and charged him fifty cents for the information. I have good luck. I will bring you lots of it," she said.

It was this same girl who was nearly drowned in the Otonabee river on Wednesday afternoon when she tried to save her young brother. The reporter offered to trade seats with her and sell her a bit of his luck.—P.

Relief In June Was Given To 387 Families

Peterborough's relief costs for June amounted to $9,004.47 as compared with $5,353.09 for the corresponding month last year. The number of families receiving relief increased from 232 to 387; the number of their individual persons from 694 to 1,186; single men are up from 25 to 30; and the single women from 36 to 40. And the per capita cost is eight cents higher, from $5.40 to $5.48 a month.

These figures were quoted in the monthly statement to the Relief Committee last night by A. G. Metheral, the city's relief officer. The big increase in the disbursement of money for provisions, milk, and so on sharpened the previous focus of an estimated overdraft at the end of the year that is likely to reach $30,000 unless summer produces some substantial improvement in employment. Alderman Dutton, chairman, suggested that several of the members may seek an interview with the Ontario Department of Public Welfare to ask for some financial assistance beyond the scale already determined.

The Government's intimation that it will pay 70 per cent. of $4,500 relief expenditure for this month and the city the remaining 30 per cent. plus whatever the excess may be over the $4,500 limit. The total expenditure of $9,004 for June, which was virtually based on the same quota, indicates about what the July deficit payable out of the city treasury is likely to be.

Figures for Six Months.

The Council's position is shown by a few other figures from Mr. Metheral's statement. Up to the end of June the total cost of relief in the city was $72,977.36, and the rebate from the Government including approximate amounts for May and June is $33,174, leaving $39,803 chargeable to the city.

The Council's relief appropriation for the whole year was $47,500 and its expenditure for six months $39,803.36, leaving $7,696.64 as the amount available for July.

And with that slender balance in sight, the accounting of the city's relief is not far removed from the red ink.

"Strawberry Bride" Quits On Hubby

ST. LOUIS, July 8—(AP). — It was the romance—not the berries—that jelled for Alex Schwartz, who found a bride in a box of strawberries.

Back in April, the 33-year-old huckster related, he discovered a note in a box of fruit, telling of the loneliness of 18-year-old Loree Shaw.

He wrote, enclosing his picture. She did likewise. Last Saturday Schwartz and Loree were married at Searcy, Ark., near her home.

But after the ceremony the bride and her parents had a talk. She left with them and did not return.

CHAPTER 33

"NAW, NAW, not thataway," Buckshot Brown was bawling out Ellen Dale, the lady who, until a few weeks ago, was one of Hollywood's darlings. "Don't throw it like you was trying to wrop up th' whole cow. Make a smaller loop, spur yore hoss, git up close and sort of dab it on quick like. Understand?"

Ellen tried again. She had been laboring for an hour with the liariat rope. First Buckshot made her try at posts, then at a Mexican lad who thought it fun to run from her and dodge her loop, finally he had her chasing a genuine steer although a somewhat tame and friendly one.

"But he has horns, Uncle Buckshot! The rope has to go over them, doesn't it? And they might hook Pintado!"

"Aw!" the old-timer snorted his contempt for that. "Any hoss wuth his salt'll git outa th' way of horns. You git you a quick loop and throw quick."

Ellen recoiled her rope, took a deep breath and spurred Pintado for her fifth try. Patter-pat patter-pat patter-pat. Pinatado's hooves beat faster and faster tatoo, carried her alongside the steer's rump.

"THROW!" yelled Buckshot.

Ellen's loop sailed.

Miraculously it went true, dropped over the steer's horns and instantly tightened.

Without any sort of command Pintado stiffened his front legs and slid to a halt so quick that the rope stretched from the saddle horn, jerked the steer in a windmill somesault that ended in a loud "PLUMP"—and tossed dainty Miss Ellen Dale over onto the dust.

Two cowboys over by the corral had been watching, and they shouted an alarm. Concepcion Rivera and a brood of children heard and came running. Juan Salazar began stepping as fast as his old legs would go, and Buckshot Brown himself was almost frantic with fear for the girl.

Pintado, being a good range horse, did exactly as he had been taught. He kept the rope tight, no matter what the steer did. He had to back up some, and so led the steer right onto Ellen's prospirate form.

"HUH! HUH-YAHHHHH!" Men were shouting, futilely, and running.

The Mexican lad who had helped did the most good, simply by dashing up to "shoo" the huge steer to one side away from Ellen. In a moment four adults were picking her up.

Dirt and dust and gravel stuck all over her, and automatically she began brushing it off, even as she gasped for breath which seemed slowly returning. There were sundry scratches and bruises but no cuts or breaks, it was ascertained.

"Knocked the wind outa you!" Buckshot declared, brushing her back.

She had more attention than she needed or deserved for three minutes or so. Buckshot apologized over and again, as if it were his fault. He ordered her to go in the house and spend the remainder of the day in bed. But she had managed a smile through her pale lips by this time.

"No," she whispered.

And then Ellen Dale did a thing which will be told on the ranches of Arizona for 10 years. She "proved out."

Ignoring protests of the others, she got back into the saddle unassisted took the rope that a cowboy had removed from the steer—and set out to lasso the animal again.

She had uttered no word of explanation. She had just stuck out her dainty, dusty chin and resumed her job. At first she had trembled visibly in the saddle, and she had to make 12 more attempts with the rope before she finally got her loop again on the steer's horns.

When Pintado slid to his accustomed stop this time—she stuck!

"EE-YOW!" shrieked a cowboy, and the whole gang of spectators (a dozen or more had gathered) waved their hats in wild approval. By George, that girl had guts! The boss—Bill Baron—they already knew about him. They had observed his qualities and come to respect him. But the old woman—she hadn't been proved before.

Old man or old woman is cowboy lingo fondly applied to the owner of any ranch for whom the cowboys are working. The man or woman may actually be 20 or 80, age is not the considreation. "Old" is a term of endearment or loyalty there.

A happy cowboy, mounted, dashed into the fray when Ellen made her catch. He leaped joyfully from his saddle to the steer and removed the rope, grabbed the steel by the tail and whooped around the big open area there, laughing with the other flock as he bounced.

Ellen was still shaken, but a glow such as she had not felt before crept through her. She had known adulation at the theater boxoffice. She had been beseiged by autograph hunters in her day. She had bowed graciously to applauding society audiences at personal appearances, knowing they would forget her in a moment and turn their applause elsewhere. But, something in the approval of these outdoor people, these Mexican and American ranch folk, made her happier than they could know. Down in her heart, a little bit, she wished Bill Baron had been there to see it. (She needn't have worried on that score, because every man on the place subsequently made it a point to relate the incident to Bill at least four or five times.)

Some of those present asked where Bill was. As a matter of fact, he was off in the hills winning for himself a nickname. It was something of which he was never ashamed, but which he will not live down till his dying day. "Bill" became almost forgotten after that evening. Not even Ellen called him that any more, for a while.

"A man came for him just after noon," somebody explained. "He was a Mexican. I overheard part of the talk. Seems the Mexican lives in that old mine shack over yonder past the divide two miles. Said his wife was awful sick. Bill couldn't make him explain much, but agreed to ride over and see about the woman.

Nobody thought much of it at the time. Someone knew the Mexican was a herder who had some sheep stationed on a government tract over there. Bill would come for more help if the woman were really in danger.

Buckshot taught Ellen how to lasso a steer by the hind leg, or rather showed her how to practice it. He gave her some strong pointers about keeping in the saddle, too.

"Fergit whut you learned in the riding stables," he counselled. "This is range ridin', not city dude stuff. This here 'postin'," you mention, it's all pap. They's only one way to set in a saddle, young woman. That's to set yourself the way you feel the most comfortable, and no fancy stunts to it. You'll do it natural, and you'll be a whole lot easier on yore hoss when you do."

This was range gospel, and she sensed it. Bill had told her the same thing. But sometimes it is hard to un-learn things. She stayed in the outdoors all afternoon. Next day, Buckshot promised her, she'd have to tackle a horse that would buck a little.

Bill came back, looking rather strange, toward sundown. He promptly dispatched a Mexican woman and a girl, with sundry supplies on horses to the distant sheep herder's canyon.

Next morning the sheep herder himself came to the DD ranch again.

He was garrulous with gratitude. He crossed himself often, talking. He gesticulated. He swore eternal service and obligation to Bill Baron. He talked and he talked. Bill himself was not present but the others listened, and Buckshot translated with mounting interest, grinning broadly.

"Th' Mex says," Buckshot told Ellen then, "thet his wife was about to have a visit from the stork, and he didn't know it was due. He got Bill, and Bill didn't have time to come for no help. So Bill, he up and done all th' work hisself, brought thet women's baby safely into th' world and with his own hands, by dads! Away back thar in thet mountain cabin. By dads, Doctor Bill—ain't that somethin'! HAW-HAW-HAW-haw-haw!"

Girls and Boys Need to Learn About the Difficulties and Dangers of Marriage Before They Make the Trip to the Altar; Knowledge Will Save Them Later Grief

THAT there should be so many unhappy marriages—and especially that so many marriages should go on the rocks in the first few years of wedlock—is the more strange because virtually all marriages are entered into in good faith and with the earnest desire and intention of both the husband and wife to make each other happy.

No man marries a woman with the set purpose of making her miserable. No woman deliberately tortures her husband. No married couple, with malice aforethought, makes a home that is a hell on earth. Yet these things happen to good, kind, well-meaning people who started out in marriage with their hearts filled with love for each other and their souls simply sloshing over with the most attruistic motives. When the tragedy occurs, they know no more than any one else what precipitated it.

Of course, when disgruntled married people ask for divorces they have to allege some grievous wrong that has been done them that will appear to justify the breaking of the marriage bonds. Hence we have the humorous spectacle of meek, gentle little men, who wouldn't harm a fly, being divorced by their wives on the grounds of inhuman cruelty, and of wives swathed in sables and loaded with diamonds divorcing their husbands for non-support. The truth is that every wrecked home is an inside job, but those who tore down the roof above their heads did it oftener through ignorance than with criminal intent.

We wouldn't drop a starry-eyed bride and groom from an airplane into the midst of a jungle in a strange country and expect them to find their way out of it without ever mussing up the wedding veil. We wouldn't put any boy and girl at the head of a complicated business that they knew nothing about and for which they had had no training and be surprised if they made a failure of it.

Yet that is precisely our attitude toward marriage. We see two blundering ignorant creatures who have no idea of the duties and responsibilities they are assuming, who are as unacquainted as if they had never met before, who have had no training in diplomacy or previous experience in handling wild animals, get married. Then we wonder when the marriage blows up. The amazing thing is not that there are so many divorces, but that there are so few.

What does the average girl know about marriage when she marries? Nothing. What does she know about men? Less than nothing.. Her idea of marriage, in spite of all the evidence she has seen to the contrary, is a perpetual petting party. Other women's husbands may have grown stodgy and unromantic and take their wives for granted, but hers is always going to be a great lover, spend his time holding her hand, telling her how beautiful and wonderful she is.

Although she has been petted, spoiled and indulged all of her life and had the best of everything in the family, she is sure that she won't care a thing about pretty frocks and not going places; will just dote on pinching pennies, cooking, washing and scrubbing when she is a poor man's wife.

It never even crosses her mind that the boy she is marrying won't make a doormat of himself for her, as her mother and father have done all of her life.

And the bridegroom is just as ignorant as the bride. He expects the impossible of marriage just as she does. He thinks it will be coming home at night to a lovely wife in a pink gown with a rose in her hair, a smile on her lips and a swell dinner smoking on the table.

When he finds out that marriage is mostly bills instead of billing and cooing; that his dream girl has no more idea of cooking than she has of Sanskrit; that he has temper and nerves and fussy little ways, he is just as much disappointed as she is when she discovers that he has dropped all love-making at the altar; that he takes her affection as a matter of course; that he doesn't notice she has done her hair a new way and that he can be just as unreasonable and cantankerous as her father is.

Neither one has any tact. Neither one has any self-control. Neither one has the faintest notion of how to handle the other one. So begin those daily spats and squabbles that kill love and make home a place of torment and that send the man out in search of some woman who will pour oil over his bruised vanity and that turn the wife into a married flirt, or make her one of those bitter women who are always gibing at marriage and men.

What every bride and bridegroom need is, in reality, about fifty years of the experience of marriage with which to start out on their wedding day.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—I married a travelling man who represented himself to me to be single and wealthy. I have found out that he has a wife from whom he is not divorced, and children. How can I get out of this mess without any scandal or anybody knowing it? A. B. C.

ANSWER:

You can't have a marriage annulled without its being known, but no scandal will attach to you, as you are the innocent party. Why did you marry a man without taking the trouble to investigate his past? It seems to me that you have brought your trouble down on your own head. Marriage is the most important act of a person's life and yet men and women enter into it with less consideration than they would give to buying a new dress or a police dog.

What Every Woman Wants to Know

Wedding bells for John and Dorothy! How did she manage it? For it's taken for granted that woman helps Cupid.

She's very lovely but it's more than beauty. The girl's clever. When John first called did she show him that she was dying to be alone with him? No, they chatted with the family, then listened to the radio. Sometimes—when he asked for a date—she arranged a jolly foursome.

When he invited her to a movie and dancing afterward, she was sympathetic, interested, flattered him a bit when he talked about himself. She even asked his advice—the pretty minx. Soon he was started altar-ward.

Old Ship Goes Down

KINGSTON, Ont., July 8—(CP).—The old Warrenko, once a United States blockade runner during the American Civil War, crumbled to her doom last night, when struck across the bow by the Sprucebay, package freighted of the Tree Line Navigation Company.

Jutting out about 30 feet from her slip at the foot of Gore street, the 228-foot coal barge was an easy target for the big freighter, hugging the shore line. It is believed Captain Montgomery of the Sprucebay did not see the Warrenko in the dark. His own boat was not damaged and it sailed for Toronto an hour later.

Immediately after the crash the Warrenko sank in 25 minutes.

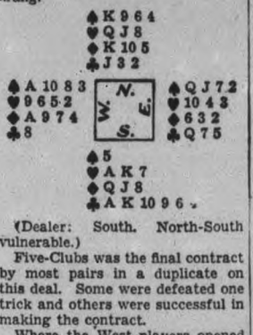
LYING TELLS TRUTH

SOMETIMES a false-card is not as deceptive as the natural play would be. The declarer may be able to read from the peculiar maneuver that something is wrong somewhere. One defender or the other is trying to fool him. If he can figure out that one had a possible good reason to try deception and the other could not, your craftiness may prove a boomerang.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

Five-Clubs was the final contract by most pairs in a duplicate on this deal. Some were defeated one trick and others were successful in making the contract.

Where the West players opened a trump, there was no problem to the play. However, with the lead of the heart 2, which most West players chose, the situation simmers down to whether South, with sure losers of the spade A and diamond A, should play for the break in trumps or finesse. The majority decided in favor of the break and were set one.

At one table, East in his endeavor to fool the declarer, played the 7 on the first lead of trumps. South, not seeing the 5, figured East could have a reason to false-card whereas West could not, so decided to finesse. This enabled him to make five-odd.

Tomorrow's Problem

After two diamond tricks have been cash against South's 3-No Trumps contract and he wins the third round, how should he plan the balance of the hand?

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

It was quite late at night now. Mary Jane, the rag doll, who had been forgotten by her mistress, Dinah, and left out in the garden to sleep behind the hedge, was sure of that. All the lights in the house had gone out.

"No one will come for me now," Mary Jane sighed softly to herself. "I'll have to stay here all night." She didn't blame her mistress for forgetting her. Mary Jane loved her mistress a great deal. "I guess she was too busy to think of me. O-ah, what's that?" she suddenly exclaimed in alarm.

"Here....move aside, young lady!" a sharp voice said to her. At that moment Mary Jane saw Mr. Worm's head come popping out of the underground tunnel to his house.

"Move aside, young lady!"

"You're about to roll down my chimney."

"Oh, I'm sorry. I didn't mean to lie so close to it."

"Then move aside, please."

"But I can't move aside."

She Can't Even Try.

"Can't? I've never heard of such a thing. Of course you can. You aren't even trying. How would you like me to come tumbling down your chimney?"

"Here! What's all the trouble? You're keeping the whole neighborhood awake," a squirrel said hopping over.

"This young lady," the worm said quickly, "is sitting on my chimney." Then he turned to Mary Jane and said: "I have to build my fire and cook my dinner. Don't be surprised if the smoke comes rolling up in your face. I've given you fair warning." With that it popped back into its tunnel and was gone.

"What am I going to do now?" Mary Jane said in alarm to the squirrel.

"Tut-tut," the squirrel said. "Don't you worry about that. You come with me. I've got a fine, big house. There's plenty of room for you. You can be as snug as a bug in a rug. Follow me."

We Noticed

....Another little frock noticed in the shops was of pure white, but with a gay little bolero of blue, yellow and red stripes. Without the jacket it would be perfect for tennis.

◇ ◇ ◇

....The smartest of the feminine looking beach costumes are cut like housecoats with neat, double-breasted tops and full skirts that billow about the ankles.

◇ ◇ ◇

....The most popular beach shoes have thick platform soles of cork, and the smartest kind of bathing cap is perfectly plain, usually a solid color to match the suit.

◇ ◇ ◇

....Someone in a lovely afternoon ensemble of white crepe with black polka dots. The dress had a short jacket, and a rose of the same material trimmed the neckline. With it was worn a black panama sailor hat.

◇ ◇ ◇

....In a George street window—a perfect little sports dress of heavy natural linen with high, round neckline from which darted tiny, diagonal pleats. Its only trimming was a tricky red Zipper which traced a line of brilliant color up the front of the bodice.

Roberts—Mackin

ROSENEATH, July 8.—A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at the United church parsonage, by Rev. L. W. Scott, when Florence Etta, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Macklin, Roseneath, and James Lewis, second son of Mrs. William J. Roberts, Roseneath, and the late Mr. Roberts, were united in marriage.

The bride looked charming wearing a gown of soft blue sheer, with a touch of pale pink on the bodice, and white accessories She carried pink and white sweet peas and baby's breath, with pink satin streamers.

Sets Off Frock

The vogue for panels of multi-colored pastels is illustrated in this unusual afternoon frock worn by Loretta Young. Against a background of white peau d'ange is shirred, by means of heavy cording, strips of silk in pale chartreuse, orchid and slightly deeper green. The large white straw hat is sashed in similar colors.

Must Be Different

Even a swim suit must be different from every other woman's, or its owner cannot do her best in her mermaid role.

So, a very simple little suit called "Coquette," has contrasting lapels to give it that distinctive look.

The suit is in new soft, lightweight wool combined with lastex. The contrasting lapels are made of pure silk and lastex.

Rev. Reg. Howden To Wed Member of The Bar

Rev. Reg Howden, son of Mr. and Mrs. William George Howden, Bethune street, who is at present curate at St. Clement's Anglican church, Toronto, is being married on August 6 to one of Toronto's few women barristers, Miss Edythe Haughland. Miss Haughland is a graduate of Varsity and of Osgoode and a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority. Her bridesmaids are to be Margaret Baird and Marie Copeland, both lawyers, and Pat Musson.

The newlyweds will be living in Lakefield where the groom has a triple job, chaplain of the Grove School, master at the Grove School and rector of the Parish. They will start housekeeping in an enormous rambling old rectory there which they have been renovating for some time. The marriage is to take place at St. John's Church, York Mills.

The bride was attended by Miss Verna Brown of Grafton, who wore yellow sheer and white accessories, and carried sweet peas and baby's breath.

Melville Macklin, brother of the bride, was best man.

Following the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents, where, with the immediate relatives, they sat down to supper. The dining room was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers, with a large bell suspended over the wedding cake, which centred the table. The wedding cake rested on the same stand which held the bride's parents' wedding cake. Pink and white bands with dainty bridal place cards also adorned the table.

Acting as waiters were Misses Marguerite Macklin, Mary Grant and Doris Budd, cousins of the bride, and Harold Wilson.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a white gold ring, and to the best man a gold watch chain.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Roberts left by motor amid showers of confetti for Kingston and points east.

For travelling the bride wore a navy blue suit with pale pink blouse, hat and gloves. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Roberts will reside in Port Hope.

Style Whimsies

In the new fall coats, shoulders still are widened, but not greatly exaggerated. Some are boxed, and others stiffened with an inset triangle in epaulet effect.

Lawn Social Held Connelly's School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 8.—Connelly's School was the scene of a gay gathering on Wednesday afternoon and evening when a crowd estimated at close to three hundred attended the lawn social and supper held under the auspices of the Seymour Women's Institute. It was reported that over two hundred and fifty guests sat down to supper which was served on tables in the school grounds and the guests were served the usual bountiful repast with Mrs. R. McCulloch, Mrs. F. McColloch and Mrs. G. Curle in charge of the tables.

Other attractions during the afternoon and early evening included a fish pond and candy booth both of which were reported to have made a very successful return to the Institute. Mrs. C. McCulloch was in charge of the fish pond and was assisted by Miss Beatrice Rutherford. Mrs. F. McKelvie and Mrs. D. Durran were in charge of the booth. During the supper a number of the guests watched the ball game which was in progress between West Seymour and Trent River teams, which resulted in a tie.

Main portion of the evening program was given over to the orchestra consisting of James Farrell, C. McKelfie, Wilsie Phillips and Thomas Lee who favored the audience with several selections both during and after supper. Other assisting artists included Miss Ruth McCredie, who offered a vocal solo; Miss Helen Beatty, who gave a tap dance number and Misses Fay Kelly and Patricia Long who gave an interpretation of the Highland Fling. Mrs. F. McColloch, president of the Institute, was chairman for the evening and in her opening remarks thanked all those who had assisted in the program as well as the large number of guests who had contributed towards making the event such a success.

IN MEMORIAM

BALLANTYNE.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. James Ballantyne, who passed away July 8, 1937.

One year has passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth,
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay
But the love for her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.
She bade no one a last farewell,
She said good-bye to none;
Her spirit flew before we knew
That she had from us gone.
A Mother we loved is waiting
For us, just over the hill;
In Heaven, dear Mother, we'll find you
When God's great will is done;
We'll stand once more beside you
When He calls for us to come.

—Ever remembered by Husband and Family.

Young Willie Herridge Meets Conservative Bigwigs

This scene touched the hearts of Canada's Conservatives gathered at Ottawa to choose a new leader and to draft a new party platform. It shows six-year-old Willie Herridge, son of Hon. W. D. Herridge and the late Mrs. Herridge (R. B. Bennett's sister) as he was lifted to a microphone by his father and by Convention Chairman John R. MacNicol, RIGHT, to broadcast his thanks to the gathering for extending to him a delegates' credentials. Bennett Delivers Valedictory Punctuating an impassioned plea for national and Empire unity with lashing denunciation of party followers who arrayed themselves against him while in office, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, retiring leader of the Conservative party, delivers his valedictory address as leader before the Conservatime convention in Ottawa. Just before he faced the microphone, Mr. Bennett sent word to his lieutenants that he would not seek re-election to the chieftain's post.

Rain Needed Badly By Fruit Crops

TORONTO, July 8 (CP).—Rains are required throughout the Niagara peninsula and in York, Halton and Peel counties to bring the fruit crop along, Department of Agriculture representatives said yesterday.

Crop prospects are promising this year with the quality of most fruits better than last year. Prices are about the same and department officials look for a $9,000,000 fruit crop this year, slightly better than last year's return of $8,795,000 to producers.

Tomatoes, which brought producers $3,000,000 last year, are just coming on the market now from the Leamington district in Essex. Acreage is down 18 per cent this year because of lower demand from canners, but the crop prospects are good. Some rain is needed.

The apple crop this year is quite irregular. Some varieties, such as spies, are much better than usual. McIntosh Reds are making a very poor showing this year. Rain is required. The general prospects for apples are good, but the return to farmers likely will not exceed last year's $1,500,000.

Dry weather has about ended the strawberry season. Prices have been normal at about seven cents a quar for the producer at the patch. Th crop last year was valued at $800,00 and likely will be about the sam this year.

Raspberries, just coming on th market now, stand in the greates need of moisture if last year's returi of $50,000 is to be equalled.

U.S. To Spend 10 Million On War Plan

Will Award Contracts, Train Industry To Produce Supplies

WASHINGTON, July 9 (A.P.).—The United States War Department is getting ready to spend $10,000,000 "educating" industry to produce war materials.

Congress authorized the expenditure over a five-year period in an effort to gear the industrial machine more closely with the military preparedness machine. An initial $2,000,000 will be spent in the next 12 months.

The "educating" will be done by awarding small contracts for war supplies to firms which do not now produce them, but could by making slight changes in their plants.

A clock manufacturer, for instance might be given an order for certain metal parts used in artillery range-finding instruments.

The theory is that the manufacturer, because of experience attained in producing the peace-time order, could begin production speedily in war time.

Unlike the army's usual purchases, the educational orders will be non-competitive.

New Federal Division To Rule Promotions

OTTAWA, July 9.—(CP)—The Federal Government will set up a new division in the secretary of state's department to assist the provinces in controlling company promotions and securities salesmen, it was announced today.

An appropriation for the division, which will not be large at first, was passed by parliament. Its organization and work wil be under the immediate control of W. P. J. O'Meara, assistant under secretary of state.

Canada's nine provinces have achieved a great measure of uniformity in legislation governing company promotions and stock selling but there has been no central source to which they could go for information respecting particular promotions of salesmen, officials here said.

Cases have been known where a licence for a particular stock issue having been refused in one province, it has been floated in another. Securities salesmen refused registration in one province, or having lost their licences, sometimes have been able to go to work in another province.

The new division in the companies branch of the state department will keep a central registry of company promotions, promoters and securties salesmen and to this the province will be able to turn for information. The information will also be helpful in the administration of the Dominion Companies Act.

Killed In Ethiopia

ROME, July 9 (CP-Havas).—Two Italian officers, one non-commissioned officer, three soldiers and four Blackshirt militiamen were killed in Ethiopia during skirmish and police operations in June, it was announced last night. Two other non-commissioned officers died from wounds, while 24 others died during the month from illness, the bulletin said.

Death Investigated

An investigaion of all circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, ABOVE, heiress of the $20,000,000 Horlick Malted Milk fortune, was ordered by Ontario's Attorney-General Arthur Conant. Mrs. Sidley died while a house guest of W. Perkins Bull, K.C., at Lorne Hall, Toronto. An autopsy performed on the request of Mrs. Sidley's physicians revealed that she died from natural causes. Police have announced the case closed.

Young Tornado Rips Swath At Lake Simcoe

TORONTO, July 9.—(CP).—Ontario residents looked to-day for cooling rains promised by the weather man after a day of intense stifling heat that sent the mercury up to the 90-degree mark and higher.

Toronto was the warmest centre in the province yesterday, with a thermometer reading of 92, but across Southern Ontario the oppressive wave was general. London's 88, Ottawa's 86 and Huntsville's 87 were indications.

Some places were cooled last night by scattered storms that reached near-tornado proportions and were accompanied by heavy rains. In the Lake Simcoe district trees were blown down over summer cottages and traffic was delayed by a downpour of rain.

A young tornado, accompanied by heavy rain, turned Pine Beach and Elm Beach on Lake Simcoe, into a mass of debris. Several hundred trees were pulled up by their roots, burying cottages and cars and in one case cutting a cottage directly in two. At least 10 cottages were seriously damaged by the storm which swept across the lake, mowing down whatever lay in its path.

A trail of damage was left behind a terrific wind that hit Pelee Island, most southerly spot in the Dominion, flattening crops and driving the Steamer Islet Prince to shelter in a damaged condition aftea a cable broke as she lay in port.

The London district welcomed an hour's storm that brought an eighth of an inch of rain, but it was nearly as muggy afterward as before.

Crops generally needed rain, Provincial Agriculture Department officials said. Growth has been highly satisfactory so far, but the most important stage has been reached.

The world centre for commercial violet growing is in Dutchess county, New York, home of U.S. President Roosevelt.

Irish Guards To Calm Jerusalem

Police Ride All Buses; Sabotage, Riots Keep Roads Deserted

JERUSALEM, July 9 (AP).—A regiment of Irish Guards arrived in Jerusalem today to help in the restoration of order.

The slaying of two Christians and one Moslem in an Arab village in the Nazareth district brought the number of deaths in three days to 61. At least 153 were wounded.

Most Arab shops in Jerusalem remained closed. Few persons dared venture into the streets. Strict curfew laws were enforced in the largest cities.

Two policemen—one British and one native—sat with loaded rifles atop every bus in Jerusalem. Buses throughout Palestine repeatedly have been targets for bombs and rifle fire. Four Arabs were killed and 36 injured when a bomb shattered a bus here yesterday.

The Black Watch picketed the main square of the Jewish quarter and the Arab market area, scene of yesterday's bombing.

Blame Girl of 12.

Arabs charged that 12-year-old Jewish schoolgirl, arrested following the bombing, had carried a handbag from which a companion drew the missile and flung it into the crowd.

Jewish spokesmen said, however, that most of the attacks on Arabs were by paid agents Provocateurs.

Many instances of stoning were reported. Railroads, telephone lines and government property were sabotaged at many points.

Police patrols in country districts used police dogs to track persons who ambushed two British police officers. The officers said they killed one of their attackers and described him as an Arab.

Trade in Haifa, Palestine's chief port, was hampered as a result of the disorders. Traffic to neighboring districts was virtually stopped.

Seamen and marines from the battle cruiser Repulse patrolled, with fixed bayonets, Kingsway in Haifa, scene of recurrent disorders. The cruiser Emerald landed 600 marines yesterday.

Counter Attacks Halt Rebels

HENDAYE, France, July 9 (AP).—Spanish government militiamen halted a two-day retreat on the eastern front today and began a series of counter-attacks against positions the insurgents had conquered, including the fortified town of Nules, 28 miles north of Valencia.

Although forced out of Nules yesterday by General Miguel Aranda's Galician troops, the militiamen said they had recaptured Hill 221 dominating the cross-country road from Nules to Moncofar, five miles to the southeast near the coast.

Nules, once a prosperous health resort, was abandoned by government forces after three days of hard fighting at Villavieja, two miles to the west.

Both sides reported a heavy battle, involving planes and artillery, was being fought south and southwest of Nules, where the militiamen formed new defence lines.

In surgent headquarters admitted General Garcia Valino's troops operating in Espandan mountains were limited to "some rectification of the front lines and reconnaissance of the conquered territory."

Meanwhile, the government concentrated on strengthening fortifications before Valencia and Sagunto, indicating that it was resigned in view of the insurgents' superiority in planes and artillery to standing sieges at those cities.

A Barcelona dispatch said insurgent planes conducted a moonlight raid on the northern outskirts of Barcelona, inflicting an undetermined number of casualties. Anti-aircraft guns kept the raiders from the centre of the city.

Quintuplet Skunks Hold Up Travellers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, July 9.— About seven o'clock on Friday evening John Shannon and Edward Lummiss, two young lads of Marmora Village, who have been camping out at Booster Park, decided to take a stroll into the village to let their folks know all was well, and when half-way between the Park and No. 7 Highway were forced to a halt while Mama Skunk and her quintuplets crossed the road in an easterly direction.

The boys, who were returning after dark, said they would not be caught unawares.

Dangerous Man

MONTREAL, July 9.—(CP)—Convicted of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, Real Heatcote was sentenced to 15 days in jail by Judge Maurice Tetreau yesterday. Jury Finds Fatal Accident Could Have Been Avoided If Stop Sign Been Obeyed

HAVELOCK, July 9 (Special)—Contradictory evidence featured the inquest Friday night into the death of 17-year-old Elva Preston who died Monday evening from injuries received when the car in which she was riding turned over after a collision at the intersection of Highways 7 and 30 at the west entrance to the village of Havelock at three o'clock Monday afternoon.

The jury after more than an hour of deliberating brought in a verdict of accidental death, and added that in their opinion the accident could have been avoided if Mrs. Baker, driver of a car which collided with another driven by Nelson Coons of Lakefield and in which Miss Preston was a passenger, had obeyed the stop sign before crossing No. 7 highway. They recommended that a full time resident highway traffic motorcycle officer be placed on duty in the village of Havelock and that electric stop and go lights be placed "at this busy intersection."

Riding In Rumble Seat

Evidence disclosed that Elva Preston was a passenger along with 6-year-old Harlan Coons in the rumble seat of a sport coupe, which was being driven east on Highway No. 7 Monday afternoon, Nelson Coons was the driver of the car, which was owned by his brother, and his wife and 3-year-old daughter were passengers in the front seat. The car after being struck broadside as the driver attempted to swing to the left and avoid a north bound car, went out of control, turned over one and a half times and Miss Preston was thrown out, was crushed beneath the car as it rolled. The north bound car, a large sedan was driven by Mrs. Caroline Baker of Kingston, and her 17-year-old daughter, Doris, was a passenger. The car is owned by her husband. Neither of these two received any injuries.

Coons told the jury he was driving east about 35 miles an hour, an estimated figure because the speedometer was not working, and that the Baker car did not stop at the highway sign. He stated he swung to the north to avoid a crash, tooted his

Tot 3, Sleeps On Track Is Killed By Train

MATTAWA, Ont., July 9 (CP)—Coroner Dr. A. Chabot of Lorrainville reported today to railway officials here he believed Florent Labelle, age three, was killed by a train as he slept on the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks near Bairn, Que., 90 miles north of here.

The coroner said the child likely woke just as the train hit him. A small bruise on his forhead marked a fractured skull. The boy's body was found Thursday. His father, A. Labelle, farms near Bairn.

Dressed As a Mountie Regina Crook Beats Stores Of $200

Regina, July 9.

DRESSED IN A Royal Canadian Mounted policeman's dress uniform, which he obtained by fraud, an unidentified man cashed worthless cheques at stores here today amounting to $200.

Going to the home of a constable, the man, with a companion, told the constable's wife her husband had received sudden orders to go on parade and had sent him for the uniform. Unsuspecting, she turned over the clothing and included her husband's revolver.

100-Year Dispute Nears End In Gran Chaco

BUENOS AIRES, July 9—(AP).—Foreign ministers of Paraguay and Bolivia adopted and sealed with a kiss to-day a preliminary accord to end the century-old territorial fight over the almost-worthless Gran Chaco border area.

The agreement must now be submitted to the two governments for final approval, whereafter mediators of six countries, who have tried since 1935 to keep Bolivia and Paraguay from going to war again over the "green hell," hope a final treaty can be signed in five or six days.

The accord is to determine the Bolivia-Paraguay boundary through arbitration by presidents of six American countries or their representatives.

The precise formula of the agreement was withheld pending formal approval of the two governments, but information from reliable sources indicated its main part was that Bolivia and Paraguay agree a zone varying from 12 to 50 miles through the Gran Chaco was subject to arbitration.

Dies After Dive

RIVERSIDE, Ont., July 9 (CP).—Everett Monroe Smith, 26, Detroit, died here to-day, from injuries suffered in a shallow water dive a few hours earlier. Smith dove off a small dock striking his head on the bottom.

D. F. Linton, Windsor, said Smith had apparently broken his neck. The water was two feet deep at the point where he dived in.

See Acclamation For Manion In Ontario Seat

OTTAWA, July 9.—(CP)—Hon. R. J. Manion, new National Conservative leader, today continued his discussion with men high in the party council concerning party re-organization and the course he will adopt in obtaining a seat in the House of Commons.

The majority of the delegates to the National Conservative convention, which concluded with Dr. Manion's election last Thursday, has left the capital but many important party men remain to assist the new leader in taking over his duties.

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, the retired chief, left yesterday for Sussex, N.B., to take part in a regimental ceremony but he is expected back in Ottawa Monday or Tuesday when he will turn over his duties to Dr. Manion.

The former Minister of Railways and Canals likely will take over the offices in the centre block of the parliament buildings reserved for the leader of the opposition. At present Dr. Manion's headquarters are in a downtown office building.

There are two vacant seats in the Commons, London and Waterloo South, where Dr. Manion might be nominated. Several prominent western Ontario Liberals are in Ottawa and it was learned they discussed with him the possibility of accepting the London seat.

No Opposition

It is unlikely the government would oppose him and unless one of the other parties nominated a candidate Dr. Manion would be returned by acclamation.

Mrs. George Black, member for the Yukon, has offered to resign her seat and ask Prime Minister Mackenzie King to concede Dr. Manion an acclamation.

However, there is no particular hurry for the Conservative leader to find a seat aa the next session of parliament will not be held until late fall or early next year.

Sometime during the next few months, Dr. Manion probably will tour Canada and speak in the principal cities. Speculation concerning the choice of a new party organizer continues. Joseph Harris, M.P. for Toronto-Danforth, and John MacNicol, M.P. for Toronto-Davenport, are both mentioned.

Stand-Patters' Win Seen In Manion

WINNIPEG, July 9.—(CP)—Election of Hon. R. J. Manion to leadership of the National Conservative party was a victory for the "stand-pat" policy of the past and a win for Quebec, J. S. Woodsworth, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leader, said last night in addressing the C.C.F. Manitoba branch's annual convention.

There will be nothing radical in the Conservative policy under the new leader, Mr. Woodsworth said, charging the Liberal party had taken the place Conservatives once occupied and had become the Conservative party.

With respect to social legislation the two old-time parties were side by side. While the C.C.F. stood for social reform, Liberals and Conservatives voted solidly for things as they are, he said.

"The Conservative party has turned down its opportunity to be a reform party and I think that leaves a splendid opportunity for the C.C.F. which is pretty well recognized as the third political party. If we play the game right and are big enough we may become the official opposition to these other two parties."

Farmhand Suspect Nabbed In Haymow Hideout For Brockville Murder

Early Morning Tip-off Sends Police To Frankville Farm Ending 5-Day Search Of District

BROCKVILLE, Ont., July 9 (CP).—William Gunning, 21-year-old farmhand, sought in connection with the death of Miss Irene Mott, was captured in a hay mow near here early today. Gunning had been sought by police for questioning since Tuesday, when Miss Mott and her mother were brutally attacked by an unknown person.

The arrest came after Provincial Police stationed at Toledo received a tip on Gunning's whereabouts at six a.m. today. They rushed at once to Frank Eaton's farm near Frankville village and found Gunning in the hay loft of a barn. He was brought to the police cells here, under an assault warrant issued three days ago.

Police said Gunning was taken without a struggle and seemed in good physical condition after four days and nights of hiding. He was questioned at police headquarters here for more than an hour and a half. County Crown Attorney H. Atkinson said he could not state yet when Gunning would appear in court or on what charge.

Gunning was seen by members of the Eaton family coming out of a swamp and entering their barn last night. Inspector W. H. Lougheed was notified and found the man there early to-day.

The young farmhand, employed by Frank Mott, father of the young woman, had been missing since early last Tuesday at that time Mott returned from doing the early chores at his barns to find his 69-year-old wife and 32-year-old daughter unconscious and bleeding on the floor, each in her own room.

Both had been terribly beaten about the head with some blunt instrument and were hurried in to Brockville General Hospital. Miss Mott never regained consciousness and though an operation was performed to relieve the pressure on her brain from the multiple skull fracture, she died early yesterday.

Mrs. Frank Mott, less seriously injured, had most of her hair torn off and was badly beaten. While she recovered consciousness, she is still in hospital and has not yet been able to give police any great assistance.

Ends Five-day Hunt.

For the past five days Provincial Police steadily broadened and intensified their hunt for Gunning. Extra officers were brought into the district and directed by Inspector W. H. Lougheed of the Criminal Investigation Department from special search headquarters set up at Toledo Village, 18 miles north-west of here.

A score of fruitless tips were run down, including one that Gunning had gone to Montreal, but police continued in the belief he was hiding somewhere in the immediate neighborhood.

The funeral of Miss Mott is being held to-morrow from her father's farm home near Frankville. An autopsy was made yesterday.

Japanese Warn Foreigners Off Yangtse

SHANGHAI, July 9 (AP).—The Japanese, moving 20,000 fresh troops up the Yangtse River for an intensified drive on Hankow, sent a new note to Great Britain and other foreign powers today urging removal of all foreign vessels and citizens from the danger zone.

The note stressed the "desirability of voluntary evacuation" along the river between Nanking and Wanghsikong, halway to Hankow, and cautioned particularly against remaining in the 80-mile stretch above Kiukiang, 131 miles downstream from the provisional capital.

A similar note to the foreign powers June 11 was rejected. Foreign authorities had not yet had time to answer the new communication, but in view of their past stand it was considered likely it also would be rejected, with British and United States gunboats at Kiukiang remaining there.

Kiukiang, next major objective in the drive, and Kuling, a hitherto untouched mountain resort where a number of foreigners have sought safety, were mentioned in the memorandum as danger spots.

Questioned as to how foreign vessels could evacuate Kiukiang with a boom blocking the river 30 miles above the city, a Japanese spokesman said he understood there was a channel through the boom and mine fields.

The Reason Why.

Asked why Kuling was included, since it was 13 miles up in the mountains and of no military importance, he said he had information that Chinese troops were there, which made it a military objective.

The memorandum declared the Japanese "regretted" the foreign powers had rejected the previous suggestion. It said there was an element of danger for neutral vessels in the river despite the fact that they had their flags painted on awnings, and urged that they use other distinguishing devices, such as painting the vessels in special colors and flying long streamers.

The Chinese have laid hundreds of mines in the Yangtse, the memorandum said, and many still drifting are a source of danger.

The Chinese announced, meanwhile, they had made several successful counter-attacks against Japanese advance units along the Yangtse, including a victory at Huanmutang where the Japanese were said to have lost several hundred men and 10 armed launches.

Fear Matriarchy Menace Where Dad Commutes

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—Families in which the father commutes to work often develop into matriarchies which threaten the children's "healthy emotional maturity," a feminine educationalist said today.

Dr. Caroline B. Cachry, director of research for the Progressive Education Association, said the absence of the father-influence in many such homes subjected growing children to too much feminie dominance.

Children of both sexes, she added, also come under undue feminine influence in the primary grades.

"Girls frequently find it difficult to adjust to masculine relationships and boys show submissive attitudes due to the dominance of mothers and woman teachers," Dr. Zachry said.

Snake Bites Girl 5

DUNDAS, Ont., July 9 (C.P.). — Five-year-old Dorothy Eberic was recovering at her home here to-day after hospital treatment for snake bite.

The child was playing in the yard of her parents' home yesterday when a three-foot milk snake fastened itself to her lower lip. Swing Music Taboo To Well-Bred Cows Says Ayrshire Man

Little Falls, N. Y., July 9.

WELL-BRED cows are lovers of classical music, but they can't abide "swing," Lawrence Grow, caretaker of a prize herd of Ayrshires, said today.

The herd, owned by Mrs. E. H. Teall of Fair Maples Farm, has its own radio set in the barn, and is milked daily to the soothing accompaniment of classical tunes. Music makes the cows give more milk, Grow insists.

B. C. Jobless Finally Agree To Temporary Relief

VICTORIA, July 9—(CP)—Single jobless men in Victoria demanding a works program from the British Columbia Government will accept the Provincial Government's offer of temporary relief pending transportation to their various homes, their leaders state.

A jobless spokesman said last night 200 of the 850 men who came here from Vancouver would report today for re-registration at a special Provincial Employment Office here.

Acceptance of the Government terms climaxed the men's demands for a works project. Their campaign opened in Vancouver May 20 when 1,000 men from closed-down forestry camps marched into the Georgia Hotel, Civic Art Gallery and Post Office.

The hotel sitdowners evacuated the building the next day when paid $500 by the city council. But their fellows remained in the other buildings until driven out June 19 by police using tear gas and riot sticks.

More than $30 000 damage was done to downtown store windows, smashed by the men after their eviction from the post office.

The same night 100 jobless came direct to Victoria to "sit on the Government's doorstep" until their works program demand was granted. During the past three weeks they have been joined by 750 others who travelled here from Vancouver via Nanaimo down the 80 miles of coastline by freight train.

Driver Is Cleared In Tweed Death

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, July 9. — Charges of reckless driving and criminal negligence, preferred against Eldon Keith, Walkerton, following the death of the late Mrs. Emma Fobert, Tweed on June 24 last, were Friday dismissed against Keith in County Police Court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C.

No evidence was presented against the accused man by Provincial Police, who preferred the charges of reckless driving in the first instance, Keith entering a plea of not guilty. Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien then requested the court's permission to withdraw the charge of causing actual grievous bodily harm, namely criminal negligence. The request was granted by His Worship.

The charges were laid following the death of Mrs. E. Fobert, who died as the result of injuries received while a passenger in Mr. Keith's automobile near the village of Roslin on June 17th last. At an inquest looking into the death of Mrs. Fobert, the incident was declared purely accidental and no blame was suggested or attached to any party.

Union Essential

VANCOUVER, July 9 (C.P.). — Rev. Elbert Paul of Vancouver last night warned the 42nd annual conference of Baptist Churches in British Columbia that the "Baptist denomination will become nothing but a bubble in the Pacific Ocean" unless the conference fulfills terms of the union with three Prairie Provinces.

Speaking on the Western Union of Baptist Churches, ratified by the convention last year but not yet fully in effect, Mr. Paul asked delegates to sink their differences and the "insularity that characterizes Baptists." No action was taken.

This is the second large fish which has been taken from the canal here in town during the past week with Walter Sutton taking a twenty-four pound lunge at the north end of the town on June 30.

Morning No Time For That Big Deal

CHICAGO, July 9 (AP)—You may as well not plan to put over that big deal first thing in the morning. Your chances will be much better a couple of hours or so after lunch.

Dr. Nathaniel Kleitman of the University of Chicago said today experiments have convinced him that man's efficiency is at its peak when body temperature is highest—in the middle of the waking hours—usually mid-afternoon for most individuals.

Dr. Kleitman has just returned from Mammoth Cave, Ky., where he and B. H. Richardson, a graduate student, lived for 31 days on a 28-hour day schedule in one of a series of experiments dealing with the functioning efficiency of the human system.

Jury Finds Accident

horn, and applied the brakes but was unable to avoid the collision. His evidence was partially coroborated by his wife, a sister of Miss Preston who was noticeably distressed by the accident and the sudden death of her sister, and was not questioned at length by Crown Attorney McElderry.

Andrew Currie of Havelock, attendant at Wellman's Service Station, and Clifford Davey, also of Havelock, both stated they were eye-witnesses to the crash, and both were positive the Baker car did not stop at the highway sign nor did it change its course. They described the accident. Both estimated the speed of the Baker car at approximately 25 miles an hour.

Mrs. Georgina Nobes, of Havelock, whose husband operates a gas station on the north-east corner of the intersection, and Don Kennedy, an employee at the same station, both told in evidence that they saw both cars just before the collision. Neither was ready to estimate the speed of either vehicle, but both said the Baker car stopped in exactly the same position following the crash, and was later driven farther north on Highway 30, of the travelled portion. They made the same statement as two other witnesses that a car driver going north on No. 30 Highway had an unobstructed view both ways on No. 7 Highway for several hundred feet. Neither witness could remember hearing the horn blow, although Currie, a previous witness testified he heard it plainly.

Nelson Wellman, service station proprietor, said he was in his garage when he heard the crash. Saw the coupe turn over, and later assisted in taking Miss Preston to the private hospital at Havelock. He said there was a stop sign on the east side of No. 30 Highway just before it joined No. 7, and that since the accident the sign had been moved from its former position about 15 feet east of Highway 30 to within 3 feet of the highway. This gave motorists coming from the south a better view, he said, as the sign in its first location was partially obscured by an automatic wig-wag signal located further south.

Not Eye-witness.

Archie McCall, Ray Peters, Trevor Watson, Ray Gibb, and Don. Moloney all testified, and although not eye-witnesses, were all close to the intersection when the smashup took place. All were agreed the Baker car at the time of the accident was just a short distance from the north edge of Highway No. 7.

Miss Doris Baker, daughter of the driver, stated in evidence the car was being driven by her mother north across No. 7 Highway. She said they had often passed this way, and that her mother knew of the stop sign. She was positive that the car stopped first at the railway crossing and then directly opposite the stop sign. The car was in second gear when the accident took place, she claimed. Miss Baker described the Coons car as going very fast.

Provincial Constables Lloyd McClure and Gordon Broughton, who investigated the accident, stated the Baker car could not make the tire marks shown in photographs submitted by the Crown if it had come to a full stop. Both said anyone driving north had a clear view of the intersecting highway for several hundred yards. Tests made of the Baker car brakes showed the service brakes to be fair, and the emergency brake "useless." Constable Broughton had been en route to Havelock at the time of the accident, and arrived less than five minutes after the crash.

Dr. Walter Binkley of Norwood who treated Miss Preston following the accident, said death was due to hemorrhages which followed severe injuries to both lungs. The girl received numerous cuts and lacerations on the head and body. Dr. Donald Holdcroft of Havelock corroborated this testimony and said he had assisted Dr. Binkley in a post-mortem examination of the victim.

The jury was composed of Steven McQuaig, foreman, Charles Roberts, George Hubbell, William Copp, Howard McQuaig, Randall Wood, William Rice, Bruce Curtis, Angus Clarke, and John Bannon. Dr. J. C. Smith, chief county coroner of Lakefield, presided, and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., examined the witnesses.

Claim British Shipping Being Rapidly Lost

LONDON, July 9—(AP) — The Labor Opposition assailed the government in the House of Commons to-day for letting the British merchant marine be "swept off the seas" b ycompetition from three continents.

Arthur Greenwood charged "the United States is building 70 ships in the United Kingdom to-day."

While this is happening, he said, "some of our competitors now are heavily subsidized. The United States, Japan, Germany, Italy and France are subsidized in one form or another."

Pointing to wartime dangers, Mr. Greenwood said the British merchant marine had 2,000 fewer ships than in 1914, excluding tankers.

He added it possessed only 38 per cent of the world's tonnage compared to 44 per cent before the Great War.

Janetville Enjoys Closing Festival

JANETVILLE, July 9.—The last open air supper of the season took place on Tuesday afternoon in the form of a strawberry festival held at the community park under the auspices of the Presbyterian church.

The weather was all that could be desired and a large crowd gathered.

A snappy game of baseball was played by Nestleton and Janetville, the former winning by a slight margin.

Later in the evening all assembled in the large C.O.F. hall where the young people of Sonya presented their splendid play "Nora, Wake Up."

Rev. W. H. V. Walker, pastor of the church, was chairman and extended a hearty welcome to everyone.

Between the acts, Messrs. Harvey McGill and Leonard McNeil rendered delightful music with their accordion and guitar, as did the Janetville orchestra.

Rev. M. A. Bury of the United church, upon request, spoke a few words and extended best wishes for the future, to the sister church. The proceeds were most gratifying, amounting to over $100.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. V. Walker visited Mrs. J. Capstick at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Shea, of Fleetwood, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Bradburn on Tuesday.

The many friends of Mr. Ernest Hill regret to learn of his critical illness at the Ross Mememorial Hospital. Being a member of the Orange Lodge the men of that order and also some neighbors gathered at his home on Wednesday to gather in the season's crop of hay, hoe the turnips and do all other odd jobs that needed attention at that time. The members of the L.O.B.A. sent baking and assisted in serving the meals to the men. Mrs. Hill being at the hospital with her husband.

The local merchant is the connecting link between producer and consumer.

His contact with the buying public is direct, intimate and personal. He knows his customers, their likes and dislikes; why they buy one product and refuse another; why one brand sells more rapidly than others.

It may be assumed, therefore, the retail merchant knows the best way to produce immediate sales in his locality, and it is significant that his basic advertising medium is the local daily newspaper.

In the first four months of this year the Canadian daily newspapers carried more than 40,000,000 lines of retail advertising—striking evidence of nationwide confidence in the value of the daily newspapers in Canada, as productive advertising media

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James
Toronto

WHAT DO I KNOW OF THE BIBLE?

"The WORD of the Lord endureth for ever.—I St. Peter 1:25.

Do you read the Bible, otherwise what can you know of the Divine Library? The humblest and highest of every age has confessed that there is more in the Bible that finds him than in any other book. Men of the most diverse characters and temperaments have responded to its mysterious appeal.

Heine, a Jew, a famous German writer and poet of the last century, became blind and paralysed in his closing years. He lay on his death bed for about three years. His spiritual eyes were opened as the Bible was daily read to him and he received comfort and peace.

Savonarola, the Italian reformer, preacher and martyr was fascinated by this Book. He could not open the Book without feeling exalted by the thought of reading God's Word.

The Bible stands for the great ideals of liberty, justice, truht and righteousness. "What doth the Lord thy God require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humble with thy God?" Micah 6:8. Canon Driver, the great Old Testament scholar, calls this the high water mark of the Old Testament.

Our forefathers read the Bible daily; perhaps in a spirit of superstition. This is the great danger of the Book-bibliolatry. At the same time its reading left its mark upon the character of the British people. As a race they hate hypocrisy and cruetly and love liberty. The Bible never dies. Its spirit lives all through the ages. Today we have to remember that to read the Bible thoughtfully means study. It means that we are to try and see the great lesson it teaches that "righteousness exalteth a nation." The nation that forgets God and worships other gods —science and culture—that nation sooner or later disappears. The Bible teaches that culture and civilization of a high order cannot support a nation or a person in the truest sense. Forgetfulness of God brings its own condemnation. The Book stands alone. It is a unique revelation that the nation loving God and obeying His moral laws will live also.

This Book can never perish. It has an undying spirit. Socrates cried, before he drank the hemlock: "You must catch me first before you can bury me." So the Bible lives. We can never bury it.

We must read it with a child-like spirit and a contrite heart. It will never open its mysteries of life but to humility and faith. The secret of reading the Book is to ask for the Spirit of God which led men to reveal Divine truth. "Lord open mine eyes." It is only life that gets the answer of life. Unless you bring to the Bible the spirit of teachableness, the devotion of God's service and the desire to practice the spiritual lessons you have learnt it will remain a sealed Book though you may read it through and through many times.

A great philosopher once asked whether Christianity were true or not answered: "Try it; try it." "Live your Bible" said Ruskin, "and your doubts will cease." But when a man's life is hard, bitter, selfish, thoughtless the eye of the soul becomes more and more dim, and you may read the letters in the Book, memorize important passage—yet it will be a sealed Book to you. This is the Lord's own promise: "He that doeth will know of the doctrine whether it be of God."

Nearly four hundred years ago, in 1549, a great lover of the Book wrote this beautiful prayer. It is hot with the breath of countless saints who have offered it as a preparation before reading the Word of God, which endureth for ever.

BLESSED LORD, Who hast caused all Holy Scriptures to be written for our learning: Grant that we may in such wise hear them, read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest them, that by patience and comfort of thy Holy Word, we may embrace and ever hold fast thy blessed hope of everlasting life, which Thou hast given us in our Saviour Jesus Christ.

"THY WORD HAVE I HID WITHIN MY HEART THAT I MIGHT NOT SIN AGAINST THEE."

"BRASS TOCKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July is Numbers 13:26-33; Joshua 14:6-15, especially Joshua 14:6-15, the Golden Text being Numbers 13:30, "Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

"The next step in human progress is always an invasion of the territory of the impossible." Ten of the princes of the tribes of Israel, sent ahead to spy out the land of Canaan, brought back a very disheartening report about the promised land. "We are not able," they moaned, "to go, up against the people; for they are stronger than we."

The Grasshopper Complex

"And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had spied out unto the children of Israel . . . and all the people we in it are men of great stature . . and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so were we in their sight." When we admit that we are whipped we are whipped indeed! But Caleb and Joshua had no such idea of defeatism. They had the courage to bring in a minority report. The grasshopper complex that made the majority say "We are not able," they answered with a stout and emphatic "We are well able." "And Caleb stilled the people before Moses and said, Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it." Thank God for courageous minorities! They saw all the difficulties of giants and walled cities that terrified the majority, but they saw them not in comparison with their own weakness, but in comparison with the omnipotence of Jehovah, their God. Their faith begat courage in their hearts to attempt what the majority regarded as impossible. But the policy of fear prevailed and infected the whole nation and stopped the clock of progress for 38 years. It is not difficult for us to believe this story for we have been living through nine years of depression, dragged out by lack of confidence born of fear of giants in the way. Recovery will come only when we recover our faith and our willingness to accept the partnership of God and venture with Him.

No "Deadline"

Caleb's courage as a spy at 40 years of age, inspiring as it was, is exceeded by his courage at 85, when the tribes were settled in the land and, Caleb the aged, asks Joshua to assign to him as his inheritance the giant infested hill country of Hebron, the most forbidding portion of the promised land. He did not take the position that the nation owed him a pension or a living. He still had plenty of fight left in him. He recognized no "deadline" by reason of age: "Lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old. As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me; as my strength was then, even so is my strength now . . . Now therefore give me this hill country whereof Jehovah spake in that day . . . It may be that Jehovah will be with me and I shall drive them out, as Jehovah spake." Caleb specialized in what others called the impossible. Others used two words, "not able", Caleb put those two into one and made himself "notable". Is not this the lesson we all need just now? "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

A National Message

By the Late Rev. Dr. W. Pascoe Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

Israel in the New Testament, No. 2

We have seen that the Epistle to the Romans was written to Israelites, and there is much evidence that the Epistle to the Hebrews was so written. St. James addresses his to the twelve tribes, and St. Peter to the "Sojourners of the Dispersion" who were undoubtedly the people (Israel) referred to by Hosea when he told them God would not have mercy on them for a time, but that they were to be again brought into the covenant with Him. So that, from "Ye are not my people" it should be said unto them "Ye are the Sons of the living God." Hosea 1-6-10. Hosea was admittedly a prophet to the House of Israel.

Coming to the Gospel of St. Matthews (XV, 24) we have our Lord's statement, "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the House of Israel." In Matthew 10, when our Lord sent out the twelve Apostles He said, "Go rather to the lost sheep of the House of Israel," and this injunction must refer to the whole of this dispensation, for they finish with, "Verily, I say unto you, Ye shall not have gone over the cities of Israel, till the Son of man be come" (verse 23) showing how great a nation Israel must have become by that time.

Again Caiaphas, moved by the Holy Ghost, prophesied, "that Jesus should die for that nation; and not for that nation only (i.e. the Jews) but that also he should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad" (John XI 52). These in Caiaphas' time, could only be the cast out House of Israel.

Our Lord's parable of the husbandmen (Matt. XXI 33-46) refers to the rejection and crucifixion of Christ by the House of Judah, and so the "other husbandmen" or the "nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" must of necessity be Israel.

For is not our Lord "the Redeemer of Israel" and the nation so redeemed must be the one bringing forth the fruits of the Kingdom which was taken from the Jews, and given to a Nation?

Cannot we now claim that from Genesis to Revelation, God's scheme of rescue from the fall, in the redemption of Israel, is obvious, and that, after that redemption, through the revelation given them, they were to carry the Gospel to the uttermost parts of the earth. This work was to be done by a Nation (Israel) and history proves that it has been done by Britain.

Cathedral Musings

A philosopher once said that there was no such thing as either a false religion, or an absolutely true one. This statement seemed very shocking to many of his contemporaries, yet, if we look at the matter dispassionately, me must admit that in a great measure he was right. For every religion that has ever been, was in its time, considered a positive revelation of truth, but each in its turn has been supplanted by other positive religions of a higher order. For each one has more or less, fallen away from the pristine ideals by throwing away the spiritual substance for the illusory shadow of materialism, a materialism of thought, action, and symbolism.

In regard to our own Christian religion, which, as enunciated by the Master, was perfect, even the disciples were reproved by Him for their lack of understanding and St. Paul found it necessary to point out that spiritual truths could only be discerned spiritually; that they were but foolishness to the outer bodily man. It is and always has been, impossible to present interior states of being and of realization in terms that are intellectually comprehensible. To draw an analogy, one realizes a certain ocular sensation as a certain colour, it is instinctively classified and compared with other sensations that produce the mental concepts of other colours and so one arrives at a realization of the most delicate tints and hues. But could you describe even one single color to another, who say, being born blind had never had such realizations? It would be clearly impossible. So it is with the great spiritual truths. They cannot be expresesd save very imperfectly and, no matter how they are put, they are liable to be greatly misunderstood except by those who are able to discern the living things that lie behind them. This has been the fate of all religions. Their followers have sought to intellectually interpret and define what the Founders have taught and have necessarily failed in what is impossible. Had they, on the other hand, simply sought to attain the spiritual heights on which the Founders stood, then by virtue of the effort, if of nothing else, they would have attained the spiritual discernment necessary to enable them to realize these truths in themselves, their own hearts and consciousness. They would have found the Kingdom.

Science Threatens Ancient Trade Of Beating Gold Leaf

Wrapping gold leaf

Quartering hammered ingot

Goldbeating machine

By GLEN WILLOW
Central Press Canadian Writer

BROOKLYN, N.Y., July 9.—Modern machinery is playing tug-of-war with the professional pride and sentiment of the goldbeaters of Brooklyn, sons of toil who inherited their ancient art from the Pharaohs of Egypt.

For today modernization is overtaking this unique industry after nearly 4,000 years of unchanged methods. The goldbeaters are torn between hanging up their hammers and turning their sinewy forearms to directing machines in the task handed down by their father, of pounding the precious metal into thin leaflets.

Like the vanishing blacksmith at his anvil, the goldbeater stands before a block of granite and hammers away all day to pound almost pure gold into leaves, 250,000ths of an inch in thickness, that are used to gild domes, letters, signs, hatbands and books, and for a thousand and one other decorative purposes.

Now science has added a modern aspect to the art by introducing tiny rubber mountings, called vibro-insulators, to arrest the intense vibration set up when the goldbeater pounds constantly upon his bundle of gold leaf with an 18-pound iron hammer.

Trade Being Mechanized

The mountings are used to suspend the quarter-ton granite block which is the "workbench" of the goldbeater. In one Brooklyn goldbeating plant, the vibration was so great that it shook the building like an earthquake. Now the goldbeaters are hamering at their art on the third floor. Heretofore, because of vibration, the beating could be done only in the basement.

The goldbeaters are also developing machinery to do their work, confident of easing the burden of beating incessantly the day-long but disdainful of the modern method of performing their tasks. Many of the goldbeaters have been hammering gold on their same granite blocks for more than 50 years.

Goldbeaters say that recent experiments proved machines can pound as "sound a leaf as the hand-hammered product, but that the art of turning the package of metal, incased in thin sheets made from the intestine of an ox, during the pounding process is yet to be developed before machinery can take over the duties.

It requires 36 hours of almost constant hammering to produce a gold leaf of the proper thickness. The goldbeater obtains for about $400 an ingot of 24-karat gold, three inches long, half-inch wide and half-inch thick. This is alloyed to 22½ karats with copper and silver to give it more body, then it is rolled into a ribbon one-thousandth of an inch thick.

It's Very Slow Work!

The ribbon is cut into small squares which are placed between the sheets of intestine, and then the beating begins. The pack contains 550 sheets of gold leaf. Under constant hammering and turning, so that no spot is struck twice by the hammer, the gold spreads to a four-inch square, the size of the finished leaf. This is cut into four one-inch squares which are replaced in the pack, and the hammering is repeated until the proper thickness is obtained.

From each small ingot about 30 packs, or 16,500 leaves, of the final thickness are obtained. The gold leaf sells at retail, usually in books of 25 sheets, for between 75 cents and $1. The average goldbeater hammers only about $45 to $60 worth of gold leaf a week because of the tedious operations.

The small packages, which are covered with parchment—usually old deeds obtained from England—contain about 12 pennyweight of gold, valued at around $1.75. The sheets of intestine which incase the gold leaf during the pounding process are cleaned and smoothed by the goldbeater with the hind foot of a Siberian rabbit and a soapstone mixture.

Problem Of Life To Be Discussed

Union services for Trinity and St. Andrew's churches will be continued in Trinity church next Sunday morning and evening. At the evening services the subject will be a problem of life, which is stated by a correspondent as follows:

"I have been brought up in an old fashioned Protestant home. We had family worship, and were required to attend church and Sunday school regularly. After I got to college I saw that much of my religion was mere emotionalism, and that many of my religious ideas were impossible. As a consequence I lost all my faith, and in addition became cynical. I am now married and have a little daughter, and am much concerned about her religious training. I personally cannot believe in a god, but I can believe in Jesus Christ. Is not that sufficient for me and for her?"

This is a case from real life, and it represents the attitude of a large number of young people in our time. It opens up before us many questions which are difficult to answer. It is a censor of the home, the Sunday school, the church, and the college-institutions which have much to do with the moulding of young life. It vitally effects our theology, and our aproach to the Christian religion. The commission of the Church of England has been criticized by some well meaning people for publishing its book "Doctrine in the Church of England," which contains the report of the commission on christian doctrine appointed by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York in 1922.

We are reminded in the films that time marches on and whilst the great principles of our faith remain the same, the mode of presentation must take account of the new light that God is continually flashing into human minds. If we are not receptive to this we are not loyal to God, or obedient to the voice of His spirit.

Reaching the border of the promised land, Moses selected twelve men to go through the land as spies to report the nature of the land and its people.

After 40 days they returned bringing great clusters of grapes and other proof of the land's fertility. But they claimed they were not able to conquer the giants inhabiting the land.

Caleb and Joshua, however, brought in a minority report, saying, "We are well able to overcome it." Their courage came, of their faith in God's help.

Forty-five years later, as a man of 85, Caleb asked as his inheritance the giant infested hills of Hebron. Old age brought no "deadline" for Caleb.

Silenced By Fear

Dr. Henrich Neumann of Vienna is a celebrated surgeon. He is a recognized authority because he has gained the right to be recognized.

Within recent days he has been attending the conference in France where the question of what to do with refugees has been under discussion.

There are thousands of refugees in central Europe who want to leave but there is no door open to receive them. Dr. Neumann says there are 40,000 political victims in Austria who should leave that country by the first of August. From conversations which he had with authorities in Berlin he was convinced that was the desire and purpose of the Nazi government.

Despatches state that Dr. Neumann was not anxious to discuss the question although he has a great fund of information. The reason for his reluctance in speaking is that he has a wife and family in Vienna and he hopes to return there shortly and join them.

Fear is what keeps this eminent surgeon from telling what he knows. Just plain fear of what the Nazi authorities might do to him—or his family.

Waited Ten Years

Tom Jacobson is a farmer with a tract of land not far removed from Medicine Hat, but actually he has not been doing much farming for the last ten years. A man who farms goes through certain movements or operations regularly. That is, in the spring he puts grain in the ground and later on he cuts it and passes it through a threshing machine.

But Tom Jacobson although living on a farm has not been doing that. He has been putting in the seed but he has not been threshing out any grain in the fall. For that reason he has come to the conclusion that people have rather forgotten him as he hasn't had a crop in ten years.

This year Tom Jacobson says it is different; there has been rain and his land promises him a crop. Perhaps he would have been better off if he had not waited there, but he could not take his acres with him and he says he could not have given his place away.

Rain makes the difference between this year and those ten barren ones. But ten years has been a long time for Tom Jacobson to wait for a crop.

Could Have Found Out

Mayor Day of Toronto is not at all certain that the finances of the Police Benefit Fund are in good shape. Toronto obligated itself to pay $10,000 a year into the fund for 40 years, and that started in 1910, and also to make an additional $143,000 annual contribution for another 40 years, commencing in 1931. Fear is expressed that as policemen are retired they will draw so much in pensions the fund cannot remain solvent.

The Mayor took the case of one policeman who is now eligible to retire and draw $1,000 a year because he has served on the force for 25 years. The man's age at present is 46 and he had contributed $140 a year to the fund. If the man lives until he is 70 then he would have drawn approximately $24,000 out of a fund to which his total contribution amounted to but $3,600.

It is difficult to understand why there should be trouble in arranging such matters. There are a good many companies which can present schedules and plans showing how much money is needed to provide for the retirement of an average number of men. If such matters could not be computed with a fair degree of accuracy in the actuarial departments of insurance companies then the business would soon be in a bad way.

Regard It As Proof

Those who argue that fatalism has its place in our daily lives might possibly find a bit of material in an accident case reported from Goderich in Huron County where Harold Asquith, a youth of 18, was charged with reckless driving.

Hearing of the case was postponed for a month because young Asquith was writing examination papers and it was not considered fair to disturb him.

In brief the story is this: While driving a car on the way to school, Phyllis Steele, a girl of 11 years, darted out on the roadway in front of the car. In order to avoid striking her Asquith turned his car into the ditch where it snapped off a pole. The pole toppled over and the girl, instead of being struck by the car, was hit by the pole which the car knocked over. The magistrate said there was no reason for bringing a reckless driving charge and his decision seems right enough. The point which the fatalist would make is that the girl of 11 was going to be injured any way and escaping the car put her in position to be struck by the pole. We don't subscribe to such theories, but there are those who do.

He Noticed It

Arthur B. Wood of Montreal, president of the Sun Life Assurance Co., returned a few days ago from England, and one of his observations was: "It is surprising how little space is given to important Canadian news in British papers." Mr. Wood felt it was bad for business because people in England heard and read so little of important developments in Canada.

Mr. Wood has found out something that a good many people have been finding out for a number of years. What we do in this country makes little difference to the editors of Britain, and the only reason one can give is that they believe the readers of their papers would not be interested.

It is something about which little can be done; perhaps nothing at all. Newspapers are privately owned; they are published according to the desire or direction of the people who own them, and the people entrusted with getting them out use the material which they have reason to believe will be most eagerly read by subscribers.

When Mr. Wood of Montreal found that Canadian news was pretty well snubbed in the British papers he discovered something which has been in existence for a long time.

Fighting The Army Worm

Army worms attacked and laid waste to an area of some 25 acres of grain about two miles west of Whitby, and a member of the staff of the Agricultural College at Guelph was sent at once to the affected area to direct operations. Fortunately we have not many such attacks but when they are made they are ruinous as the worms can play havoc with a field of standing grain in short order.

Even the premises of the Agricultural College at Guelph are not immune from attack as there was an infestation there about the same year as the World War started. Dr. Zavitz was then in charge of the Field Husbandry department and he was somewhat disturbed as the worms had selected a field of oats for operations from which he had estimated he would take 65 bushels per acre.

We recall quite well the method then used and it appeared to be simple and effective. The worms move just as an army might, that is, they all come from one direction at the same time. When they were moving toward the field of oats a furrow was plowed deep, with the turn-over side facing the direction from which the attack was coming, leaving the vertical side of the furrow as the one which the invaders would have to climb. In the bottom of the furrow at intervals a post-hole borer was used to make traps about six inches deep and in these there was poisoned bait. The worms got into the furrow easily enough but found they could not climb the straight edge. They then started along the bottom and fell into the traps. Through prompt action in this way the invasion was halted, although the advance guard of the worms which had entered the field before discovery of their presence had been made had done considerable damage. We have heard it stated that the amount of traffic which passes on some of our highways would check the advance of the army worm and undoubtedly there might be cases where that would be correct enough.

He Had a Rough Time

Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian Minister to Washington, and the brother-in-law of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, was at various times mentioned as a probable candidate for the leadership of the Conservative party. But when he appeared before the convention he had a rough time of it. Possibly he went the wrong way about it because he openly attacked a number of resolutions which had been passed, and classed them as "a lot of junk." We do not know exactly what weight or respect should be delegated to a resolution, because each convention sees many passed which mean very little or even less. But a convention regards resolutions as its own children and does not desire to hear them attacked.

When Mr. Herridge exclaimed that "these resolutions are a disgrace to the Conservative party" some person in the hall answered "So are you." When he referred to the resolutions again as a form of treachery another voice invited him "to go back to United States." At several places in the report of proceedings the reporters have written that "the crowd booed and jeered him."

What special significance the incident had we are not prepared to say, but it does seem to show how thoroughly a section of public opinion can be mistaken when estimating the standing a man has, or what chance may be for political preferment at the hands of the party which he supports. Mr. Herridge may have called down the demonstration on himself by his attack upon the resolutions as undoubtedly such resolutions would emanate from those who had gone farther in the history and service of the Conservative party than had Mr. Herridge. He emerged from the great convention with ample proof that he was out of step with the political family.

Several Editorial Pens

George W. James, editor and publisher of the Bowmanville Statesman, plans to go to Vancouver in August to attend a newspaper convention. Each week he turns out a bright and talkative editorial page, but when he is in Vancouver he does not wish to be bothered sending material home. His method of filling in has been to ask the service clubs of Bowmanville to supply the editorial material for a couple of weeks, but there was another week left. That is why he wrote to the Town Council suggesting that the members attend to supplying the material for that issue. Judging from reports members of the Town Council almost jumped at the chance, for they named a committee of the reeve and deputy reeve and one councillor with Mayor Jones named in the capacity as supervisor.

Apparently there are no restrictions placed on what members of service clubs or the Town Council can or may say when they fill up the columns of the paper. If they have something pointed to say about the editor or his habits or his looks or about the way he treats his family or neighbors the way is open for them to proceed.

It may be a good thing to try out. An editor is apt to get just a trifle cocky at times and become possessed of the idea that his hand is the only collection of digits in the community which can with intelligence and capacity shove along the editorial pen or whack upon the editorial typewriter. When Mr. James returns from his Pacific deliberations he may glance over the pages produced during his absence and discover a style of writing which he never before suspected existed in his community and which may cause his readers to clamor for more of the same stuff. Or again he may find editorial opinions which will startle and annoy him but with which he will have to live and spend his spare time disclaiming responsibility for the views expressed. It's a good experiment and now and then we'll take a look to see how the thing is working out.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Federal Conservative party may have a new leader but he is no stranger in Canadian public life.

Toronto police are to enforce the law against bingo games. However the Toronto folk still have a lot of race tracks where they can do their gambling.

Mr. Bennett's farewell to politics was worthy of the man and of his record. His last speech as a leader was one of his greatest.

Examination papers now being marked in Toronto are said to weigh twenty tons. They'll seem heavier than that to some of the pupils when the results are announced.

For the seventh year Australia is able to report a surplus. That we may mention is in the face of the fact that our brothers down under contribute more heavily to Empire defence than we have ever done.

People in Japan marked the beginning of the second year of the war with China by eating three-cent lunches. We don't know much about such a lunch, but would imagine the biggest thrill would come in handing the three cents to the cashier.

In the second quarter of 1937 there was a fire loss in Ontario which represented an insurance loss of $1,454,688, and there was also a loss of $409,214 which was not covered by insurance of any kind. In the latter class would be those who would understand what the word loss actually meant.

At the last meeting of the Listowel town council there was some discussion regarding where the policemen were to be found if needed. The report says that "Councillor Osier tried to explain that if a policeman had to be in one section of the town he couldn't be in another at the same time." After looking up such works as the Parliamentary Guide, the Canadian Almanac, the Dunning Budget and the Oxford Dictionary, we have come to the conclusion that the Listowel man is right.

HEAT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Uncle Eben came today, but hadn't very long to stay, he just was passing through; although the day was very hot, he hopped a train which must be caught, he had so much to do.

¶ My Uncle Eben's up in years, he's almost bald above the ears, and he is quite sedate; I marvel when he walks the street, he keeps himself so pressed and neat, and he stands very straight.

¶ The collar that he wore was tall, like one might wear cold days in fall, it did not bother him; and it was stiff as it could be, and plain enough for one to see, it clamped close to his chin.

¶ His shirt was stiff and starched and white, that didn't seem exactly right, but it was very neat; I mentioned that the day was hot, but all the answer that I got—he didn't feel the heat.

¶ My collar's fresh to start the day, but not for long it stays that way, seems hot as any quilt; before the day is nearly done, I know I need another one, for it begins to wilt.

¶ But when the sun hits Eben's bean, he stays unruffled and serene, and walks so very straight; while I chuck off my vest and coat, feel like an angry billy goat—and chant my hymn of hate.

Putting Money In A Clay Bank

(F. E. Ellis in Montreal Herald and Weekly Star)

NELSON MONTEITH, one-time Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, is a real farmer. He has lived out a long and happy life on the old farmstead in Perth county. He has an abiding faith in the permanence and security of rural institutions. When he talks, it is in terms of the countryside. I well remember one trite remark of his, made to the student body of the Ontario Agricultural College. He was discussing investments. "Boys, put your money in the clay bank of your farms," said this veteran farmer. "Put it in tillage and fertilizer and tile drains drains. It will be safer there than in any other banks I know of. Over a lifetime it will yield the best dividends."

These words of homely wisdom came back to mind on a morning recently when another veteran farmer, and a very successful one, drove into the yard to settle an account that we had over seed grain. We got talking about investments. I am very glad that we have always had all our money tied up in real estate," he commented. "Back in the days of frenzied speculation before October, 1929, there were times when one was tempted to take a fling on the stock market. I remember one stock that looked particularly good to us. We almost yielded to temptation. That was just three months before the crash. That same stock was soon worthless. Had we had our money where we could have got it easily, we might have frittered it away in speculation, as did so many others."

I thought of the fine brick house set in a beautiful grove of trees where this man lives, of the big, red barn that houses his registered Holsteins and of the 200 or more acres of well tilled land. All this he had to show for the faith of a lifetime in the farm investment. There may have been times when it seemed slow going. It must have looked like slow plodding to labor for a year and live carefully in order that just a little more might be whittled from the mortgage or another field tiled. But the race is not always to the swift and the man who talked to me was a victor in life's race for financial security.

ANOTHER INSTANCE: This time I was talking with a man who, in earlier years, had been a very popular professor at the O. A. College. He had resigned to go into industrial life and had accumulated more than a competence. His next move was to purchase a very run-down farm not far from where the writer once lived. It had no fences, no buildings worthy of the name and loads and loads of stones to pick on every acre. He was not under the necessity of slowly improving that farm as finances permitted. What most of us would have been glad to do in a lifetime he did in half a dozen years. His neighbors said that he spent money like water. Perhaps he did. I even suggested to him once that he had invested two or three times as much money in the old M—— place as he could ever hope to get out of it. "Perhaps you are right," he agreed cheerfully, "but I will always have something real and substantial to show for my investment while my safe is full of paper worth little or nothing that cost me the price of several farms." Costly experience had taught this man the security of the farm investment.

There are men who invested their savings in farms when prices were greatly inflated, just as men are doing today in the tobacco areas in Ontario. Values have since dropped to where they have no apparent equity in the farms to which they nominally hold the deed. This is a calamity marking an unusual epoch in our economic history. Taking the long view, however, the industrious man will find no safer investment than that advocated by Hon. Nelson Monteith—his own clay banks.

To The Editor

WORK AND WAR

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Would you spare me a portion of your valuable space to make a few comments on this business of getting a job and a war. What is to become of the youth of this generation? How are the young men of to-day going to ever make a decent living and have a steady job? There are thousands of single men and women out of work to-day with nothing but a black outlook ahead. How are they ever going to be able to settle down and get married.

Why haven't we the unemployment and health insurance here, which is working so good in the Old Country. And the minimum wage which will insure everyone a decent living? God has given man everything he requires to attain happiness and live in peace, yet the people are denied this, because a few men in control of capitol and industry think of nothing else but profits, and because they cannot get the price for their goods and make their big profits. Men are working on short time. In some cases not even 30 hours a week and for as low as 25c an hour. The only thing that will remedy all this is to have a strong labor government in power. That will work in the interests of the working man, and we will only have a labor government if the people will support one. And if they won't support their own party they have no right to complain over conditions. If it ever happens war is forced on us, the wealth of the country should be conscripted as well as the labor. So the burden will be equally shared. But above all Canada should remain neutral in any overseas war. And should be armed only to defend the country, and not to go out of the country and fight.

• Asks For The Exact Wording

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir: As there has already been so much discussion regarding the training of British air pilots in Canada and as the question may come up in the next election, would it be possible to publish the statement which Prime Minister King made which has caused all the controversy.

I do not know if you have this in your possession but if you could secure it I am sure there are a number who would be glad enough to read exactly what was said.

DAILY READER.

Peterborough July 8.

We print here the statements made by Mr. King, taken from the official reports of the House of Commons Debates of Friday, July 1:

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I say that we will look after our own defence in cooperation with other parts of the empire, just as they will look after their own defences in cooperation with other parts of the empire, but that cooperation will be most effectively maintained and carried out by each port managing its own affairs and being responsible to its own parliament for all its actions in respect thereto.

I have made this statement at this time this morning so that there can be no mistake about the attitude of the Canadian government on this question, and if at any time my right hon. friend wants to go before the Canadian people and have this issue fought out, I am quite prepared at the appropriate time to go before them.

Mr. BENNETT: I am bound, Mr. Chairman, to say "So am I." I want to say, further, that his own Minister of National Defence is my authority that we are going to depend on the might of our partner, Britain, for our naval defence, and that means our life. That is not what I said, but what the Minister of National Defence said; that means, the defence of Canada by the taxpayer of England, who is denied the right to train his men in Canada for the purpose of protecting that navy.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I want to take issue at once with that statement.

Mr. BENNETT: That is what it means.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: They are two entirely different things. This government has never at any time said that it was not prepared to give in our own establishments the opportunity to British pilots to come over here and train, but they will do it in our own establishments, controlled by our own Minister of National Defence who is responsible to this parliament. That is an entirely different thing from having a branch of the British forces establish headquarters in this country, direct their own men here and be responsible, not to this parliament for what takes place in Canada as a consequence, but only to the British parliament and the British people.

✧ ✧ ✧

Mr. BENNETT: I made it clear at the threshold of my observations that aerial attack and defence are entirely different from other warlike operations. We are dealing with operations in the air. It has never been suggested that England should undertake defensive or offensive operations in Canada, but to train their airmen where they would be free from attack, that they might protect that navy on which we depend, that navy which is to save us and our harbours and our trade and commerce east and west. The training for air service is different from that for the navy and army. I would not for a moment suggest that the militia of England or the army of England should train here. Far from it.

Mr. VIEN: The principle is the same.

Mr. BENNETT: It is not the same.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: It is exactly the same.

Mr. BENNETT: It is quite different, carrying into the air bombs with flying machines and training men to meet an enemy at our gate and to defend the navy that preserves from destruction our commerce on the open seas is quite unlike military operations. There is no similarity in the world.

Mr. MACKENZIE King: May I say one word in conclusion. There is not a man in this parliament who believes more strongly in the British empire and the part it is playing in the world to-day than myself. I believe that the British empire can be kept together and made an effective instrument for peace throughout the world by effective cooperation between the self-governing dominions and the United Kingdom. But I do say that any reversal of the trend, of which we are all fully cognizant, that has taken place in the last century with respect to military establishments, whether they relate to the army or the air or to the naval service, would be a factor in dismembering the British empire and would create all sorts of controversy and discussion in the country, serving no useful purpose in the end. This empire can be kept together by effective, helpful cooperation. This government is prepared to cooperate with the British government and with the governments of all the other self-governing dominions in ways which we believe will most effectively help to preserve the unity of the empire and make it a great force for peace and good will throughout the world and for the maintenance of peace. But we are not going to take a step which we may believe might have the effect of beginning to disrupt the exceptionally happy and united relations which all parts of the empire enjoy to-day each with the other.

Mr. CAHAN: I would ask the Prime Minister whether he seriously suggests that affording facilities, at the expense of the government of the United Kingdom for the training of men in flying, with the idea of ultimately employing them in the British air forces for the protection not only of the United Kingdom but of all the other dominions, is a retrograde step. The training of British air forces in Canada would be the first step, it seems to me, in cooperation in that direction. Such reasonable cooperation would not, I think, imply the exercise of British military authority over this country.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I am glad my hon. friend has asked the question he has. I wish to go a step further than he has gone, in his statement that this country should cooperate in a way that will be helpful to all parts of the British empire in matters of defence by saying that whereas he proposes that we should have the British government come and pay for establishments which they are supporting in this country for the training of pilots, we ourselves are prepared to have our own establishments here and to give in those establishments facilities to British pilots to come and train here. But they must come and train in establishments which are under the control of the Government of Canada and for which the Minister of National Defence will be able to answer in this parliament with respect to everything concerning them.

May I say again to my hon. friend that when we have requests from the British government for a particular purpose we shall be prepared to consider them, but we have had no requests from the government of the United Kingdom for the establishment of training stations in this country up to the present. We have had some exploratory conversations with respect to what might be desirable with a view to affording facilities for pilots to train, and we have indicated our position, as I have stated it on the floor of this house this morning, that we are quite prepared in connection with our own establishments, to help in affording facilities to British pilots if that will be of service to them. But I ask my hon. friend this question: Does he believe that an announcement by any government, either Liberal or Conservative, in this parliament, to the effect that the Canadian government was going to permit military establishments in Canada to be owned, controlled and operated from Great Britain, would for one minute make for peace and unity and helpful, cooperative relations between Canada and the United Kingdom and other parts of the British empire? I am not prepared to go that far, because I believe that that kind of announcement would be prejudicial to the exceptionally happy cooperative relations that we at present enjoy.

• When They Fight At Meetings

(Port Arthur News Chronicle)

MEETINGS OF THE Port Arthur City Council apparently are events of interest to a considerable portion of the population because at each one the seating accommodation of the council chamber is entirely taken up and standing room generally is at a premium.

It cannot be said on the other hand, that benefit accrues to the community from sessions like that of Monday evening this week.

The actual business of the meeting, previously discussed and prepared in finance meeting, constituted merely the adoption of reports therefrom, and required only a few minutes.

Afterwards an hour or more was occupied by exchanges between the mayor and aldermen wrangling over matters of policy and procedure and not altogether free from personal allusions.

One alderman made the statement, during this heated discussion, that it would be better to conduct the debate and make the decisions in open council. This, possibly, is true, for whatever else is to be said about it, there are times when aldermen wish their statements to be known to the public. The desire to make these statements in open meeting, after the matters concerned have been decided in committee, sometimes leads to the controversial and unpleasant exchanges.

It is also, no doubt, true that these personal troubles in council meeting have an effect on the character of the board from year to year. They must surely cause capable citizens to refuse to become condidates at the annual elections. There are men in the city who would be quite willing to give their time and talents to the management of civic affairs for a season if they thought they could do so in an agreeable atmosphere, where all were actuated by principles of service alone and not engaging in bickerings, but who so dislike these things that they refuse at year ends to be candidates.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

SING UNTO GOD, sing praises to his name: extol him that rideth upon the heavens by his name Jah, and rejoice before him. A father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widows, is God in his holy habitation. God setteth the solitary in families: he bringeth out those which are bound with chains. . . . The chariots of God are twenty thousand, even thousands of angels: the Lord is among them, as in Sinai, in the holy place . . . . Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation. Selah. . . .

The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all. Bless the Lord, ye his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word. Bless ye the Lord, all ye his hosts; ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure.— Ps. lxviii: 4-6, 17, 19; ciii: 19-21.

Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to usward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered.—Ps. xl: 5.

BETTER TO GO TO WORK.

(Judge)

PEOPLE ALWAYS find some way to keep from working. Everywhere they think about the weather, and discuss it with one another. In the midwest they worry about the C. I. O.; in the south they debate the race problem; and in the west they wonder about tourists. All these puzzlements serve the same purpose: they give you an excuse for not typing, or bookkeeping, or clerking, or housecleaning.

In New York, of late, people have been worrying about War. The papers print all the international news, and it is very easy to kill an afternoon denouncing the latest piece of weaseling in the British Foreign Office.

It does waste time, but it is growing too dangerous. Last week lightning struck in Manhattan about 3:00 a.m.. We woke up in a sweat, convinced that our building was being bombed.

We dismissed our dream next morning, but within the day, three people confessed that they too had seen the bombers overhead. One man claimed to have heard the cries of the wounded: a girl admitted jumping out of bed and hiding in the closet.

Perhaps it would be better to get to work.

A Bit of Nonsense

The train had been making very slow progress, and suddenly, with a shudder, it came to a violent halt. One of the passengers, a very irritable fellow, poked his head out and demanded of the guard the reason for the stoppage.

"There's a cow on the line," was the reply.

The train started off again, only to stop about an hour later.

"What is it this time?" demanded the irritable one. "Another cow I suppose?"

The guard smiled a sarcastic smile. "Oh, no," he answered. "It's the same one. We've caught it up again."

ACTED STRANGELY

Brentwood, Essex. — Suspicions that a 23-year-old assistant, Robert Davis, had put poison in the family's milk or coffee three times were disclosed by William Barton, Warley Hill, Brentwood, veterinary surgeon.

He was giving evidence at the inquest on Davis, whose home was in Brentwood, and who was found dead on Shenfield Common.

Mr. Barton said that Davis had been excitable and had suffered from head pains since fracturing his skull in a motorcycle accident.

Six weeks before, Mr. Barton added, he and his daughter, aged four, noticed that the milk with their breakfast cereal tasted bitter. He was violently sick, his neck seemed to swell, and he wanted to take his collar off.

The coroner (L. F. Beccle) to Dr. F. E. Camps, Chelmsford pathologist: "What does that sound like?"

Dr. Camps: "Arsenic, I think."

Mr Barton continued: "On the next occasion coffee served in the evening had the same taste. My wife and I had only a few sips.

"The third time was at breakfast, when the milk again tasted bitter. I asked Davis to taste it and he agreed there was something wrong with it.

"I decided to have it analyzed. I put the milk in a bottle, sealed it, and put it in the refrigerator.

"When I went for it later I found the seal had been tampered with. I tasted the milk and found it was fresh.

"My wife told Davis he was suspected of tampering with the milk after the bottle had been sealed. That night I heard him go to a loft where poisons were temporarily stored, and next morning I was told he had been away all night."

Dr. Camps said that white powder found in Davis' stomach was being analyzed.

WOMAN DISCHARGED IN HUSBAND'S DEATH

"Never Had Strychnine in My Possession," Mrs. R. E. Sandford Says

Downham Market. — Mrs. Rose Emma Sandford, 27, of West Dereham, Norfolk, who had been accused of murdering her husband by administering strychnine, was discharged by the bench at Downham Market.

After her counsel, George Pollock, had submitted that there was "not one vestige of evidence to hang a fly," the magistrates retired for 50 minutes.

On their return the chairman, J. R. Bennett, announced:

"We have carefully considered this case, and we find that on the facts placed before us, there is not a prima facie case made out justifying this bench in sending this woman for trial.

"We are unanimous in this. She is, therefore, discharged."

There was subdued applause from the back of the court — quickly silenced by the chairman.

Mrs. Sandford, who took the magistrates' decision calmly, remained seated for a few minutes, and then there was an affectionate reunion with her mother, Mrs. Dye, and her two sisters, who were in court.

Afterwards she said: "I feel now as I felt all through the case—that I had nothing to worry about. I had never seen strychnine, nor had it in my possession."

PREFERS JAIL TERM TO DETENTION HOME

Girl Wife, 17, Wants to Prepare For Husband's Liberation

London. — A 17-year-old wife, Freda Georgina Lloyd, of Hillingdon, Middlesex, was offered the alternative at Middlesex sessions of going to a home for six months or going to prison for three months.

She chose prison. Her husband was sentenced on March 24 to 12 months' imprisonment. She wants to have a home ready for him when he is freed, and the prison sentence gives her more time to do this.

"If I went to the home I should be at liberty only two months before my husband came out of prison, and that would have given me no chance to set up a home," she said.

Mrs. Lloyd and her husband were accused of stealing from a gas meter. At the same time as he received his sentence, she received one of three months, but she appealed.

The appeals committee, wishing to save so young a woman from prison, asked if she would go to a home and wait there until her husband came out of prison. She refused.

PRIMPING FOR DADDY GIRL MEETS DEATH

Gas Alights Flower Placed in Her Hair

Shoreditch.—"Let's play a joke on daddy . . . you dress up in trousers and I will put on a dance frock," said Annie Rrances, 19, of Grange St., Shoreditch, to her mother.

The girl put on a dance frock of velvet and tulle.

"I must put a flower in my hair," she said, and moved to a mirror above a lighted gas fire. Then she screamed and dashed in flames into the street.

This was the evidence given at the inquest in Shoreditch, when it was stated that death was due to shock following extensive burns.

A verdict of "accidental death" was recorded.

GIRL WITH 'SICK MIND' FOUND ASPHYXIATED

"Living Too Much at Home With Your Mother" Court Declared

Bradford (Yorks). — Twenty-three-old Edie Green, blonde girl golfer, was found lying dead, gassed, at her home in Great Horton-road, Bradford, it was revealed—a week after she had been ordered to find work or go to prison.

She had been found guilty of receiving articles, including golf clubs, stolen from the women's room at West Bowling (Bradford) Golf club, and the magistrate had said to her:

"You no doubt do not know it, but your mind is sick. It is sick because you have been living too much at home with your mother. You have got to get out and make friends with other people and you have got to get work.

"I am going to adjourn this case for a month, and if by that time you have not got work you must go to prison."

When the inquest on the girl was adjourned it was said by her mother that she left a note—which was not read—on an open Bible by her bedside.

The mother, sufferer from heart trouble, said: "Edie always put my welfare before everything else. She always protested her innocence of that charge."

TIMEKEEPER ROBBED OF $1,500 PAYROLL

Overpowered By Two Gunmen on Lonely Moorland Road, He Says

Glasgow.—Police are searching for two armed and masked men who, a motorist has reported to the police, overpowered him on a lonely moorland road at Eaglesham, near here, and stole a bag said to contain more than £300 ($1,500) in notes and silver.

The hold-up took place in daylight and the robbers, according to the account given to the police by the victim, Frank B. Inens, of Richmond Ave., Glasgow, drove his car back to Glasgow, holding him a prisoner in the back.

Mr. Innes, timekeeper to a firm of contractors, was on his way to pay wages to men working on a reservoir.

He states that he was struck on the head with the butt of a revolver by one of the men, who approached the car when he stopped to open a gate. He sustained slight concussion and a thumb injury.

Descriptions of the two men issued by the police state that one of them speaks with an Irish accent.

ANGLO-IRISH TRADE PACT KILLS CATTLE SMUGGLING

'Racket' Formerly Cost British Exchequer More Than $180,000 Yearly

FINES WERE FUTILE

Belfast.—The death-blow to Ireland's greatest racket — that of cattle-smuggling across the border —has been given by the new Anglo-Eire trade agreement.

Since the legislation came into force, this secret traffic, which cost the British exchequer more than £36,000 ($180,000) a year to combat, has dwindled to insignificance.

Today cattle smugglers who formerly were prepared to risk any hazard to escape the high customs duties are reverting to peaceful citizenship. They are no longer threatened with ruin.

Vigilance along the border is still strictly maintained, but it is no longer necessary to have large police reinforcements.

Every animal going into Northern Ireland must still be checked or marked. Trafficking in contraband goods was the inevitable outcome of tariffs. Smuggling did not start in real earnest until the Anglo-Irish quarrel over land annuities.

Fines ranging from £4,000 ($20,000) to £10 ($50) did little to check the cattle racket.

REWARD FOR SAVING DOG

St. Helier, Surrey.—After rescuing a puppy which was running among the traffic on the Sutton by-pass, 10-year-old Gerald Hensman, of St. Helier, was approached by a man who asked for his name and address. Gerald told him.

Now Gerald has received a silver cup from the anonymous witness.

Mrs. Lawson Smith told this at the inquest at Scarborough when a verdict was returned of "suicide while the balance of mind was disturbed."

POLICE QUIZ VILLAGERS

Bury St. Edmunds.—Villagers of Risby, near Bury St. Edmunds, home of the poisoned farmer, William Murfitt, were questioned by detectives about any stranger seen near Quays Farm on the night before the farmer's death.

$500 TELEVISION SET ESTABLISHES RECORD

Program Received From Alexandra Palace 220 Miles Away—Weather Helped

Middlesbrough. — At Ormesby Bank, four miles from Middlesbrough, a small audience watched a 70 minutes' program of television from Alexandra Palace, 220 miles away.

This is a record. Not long ago it was suggested that 30 miles was television's limit.

The program was received in a wooden hut 700 feet above sea level, following months of experiment by a local radio engineer with a steel lattice mast 80 feet high.

The program came through with only occasional interruptions. The apparatus used was a $500 standard set with a two-valve unit added. This is the first time television has proved satisfactory in the north of England.

One of the engineers who took part in the test said: "It is a big technical achievment, but the day was particularly favorable and reception was on a special aerial at a great height."

ENORMOUS INDIAN PYTHON TERRORIZES LONDON AREA

Mothers Bar Homes Against Intrusion of 12-Foot Fugitive Reptile

ESCAPED FROM CAGE

London.—An Indian python, 12 feet in length, disappeared from the house of its owner, Cyril Heddon, of Powerscroft Rd., Clapton E.

Mothers living in the district kept their children at home, and closed their doors and windows against possible intrusion by the snake. One woman telephoned and asked for police protection, and a wireless car was sent to the house.

Helped by scores of people, the police started a hunt which went on all day. They searched gardens, areas and cellars without success.

"The python recently had a good meal, and there should be no danger so long as he is caught within a reasonable time," Mr. Heddon said. "He has never known hunger, and there is no knowing what may happen if he is hungry. Normally he is extremely tame.

"I bought him at a pets' store two years ago, when he was 10 feet long. Since then he has grown at least another two feet. He escaped from his cage in a top-floor room and crawled through an eight-inch opening of the window. He either got on to the roof or dropped 20 feet into the garden."

"Although the python has been kept as a pet for two years, it might still be dangerous in unskilled hands," a zoologist stated. "Small pythons are popular as pets, and the zoo usually has a section of six to seven-foot pythons which can be handled by visitors. A keeper is always in attendance to see that the snake is not offended by being squeezed or by having its nose touched.

"The missing python may be accustomed to being handled by its owner, but it might object to being touched by strangers. If it decided to attack it could easily crush a man's arms or leg to a pulp, or kill a child before the victim had any chance of being rescued."

"As in the case of the similar factories already established in connection with the expansion scheme the new factory will be financed and owned by the government, but its operation and management will be entrusted to Rolls-Royce, Limited."

It is anticipated that the factory will take six months to build and will employ 4,000 men.

WILLING TO REFORM BUT REQUIRE SUPPORT

Former Recorder Thinks Criminal Mentality That of Child

London.—Sir Holman Gregory, former recorder of the city of London, said at Gray's Inn Hall that after being in close touch with offenders for upwards of 50 years, he believed that there were few of them who were not really sorry for their conduct.

"My experience is, if you hold out the hand of friendship to those who fall, and encourage them to reform, they are only too willing to do so. Their trouble is this—in mentality they are children. Leave them to themselves and they will fall back."

PRAM WITH INFANT SWEPT INTO RIVER

"All Part of My Job," Lock-Keeper Says After Rescue

Reading. — Hearing a scream, a mother ran to her front door here to see her 18-months-old baby boy floating in his perambulator in the middle of the River Kennet.

Half-full of water, the pram was swept 200 yards by the fierce current.

It seemed about to sink.

But the scream had also reached the ears of Bert Lawson, 54-year-old lock-keeper, father of six children, champion life-saver of Berkshire.

Without waiting even to strip off his jacket, he plunged in the river, swam to the pram, released the baby from his strap, and struggled with him to the bank.

The child, blue-eyed, fair-haired Maurice Bennett, youngest of a family of nine, soon recovered.

And Mr. Lawson went back to his gardening.

"I'm not saying a word," he declared. "It's all part of my job."

DUMMY BODY 'HANGED' FROM OXFORD TOWER

Night Climbers Also Deface Plaque of Wm. Pitt at Cambridge

Cambridge.—Night climbers left their marks in both Oxford and Cambridge—in one case a defaced plaque and in the other a hanging "body."

The plaque was that of William Pitt above the entrance to the Pitt club, in Jesus Lane, Cambridge. Workers noticed that it had been smeared with paint and drew the attention of the police.

It was found that Pitt's nose had been painted deep red, and across the plaque had been written in large black letters: "My love's a red, red nose."

The plaque is about 15 feet above the street level and is about three feet wide. To climb to it would be a matter of great difficulty. Jesus Lane is frequently patrolled by the police. The Pitt club is one of the most exclusive of Cambridge clubs.

At Oxford, undergraduates who looked out of their windows at Keble college were shocked to see what appeared to be a body hanging by about seven feet of rope from a gargoyle on a tower above the quadrangle. It was found that the "body" was a dummy. The climb up the tower must have been a dangerous feat.

There have been other climbing escapades at Keble, and the college has been put to great expense during the last two or three summers repairing damage they have done.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

CLAIM FRENCH POLITICIANS INVOLVED IN DRUG TRAFFIC

Paris Newspapers Demand Full Light Into Millionaire's Part

"SECRET FACTORY"

Paris. — French politicians are stated by the Paris press to be involved in the alleged drug trafficking concerning which M. Louis Lion, millionaire owner of a noted Paris resaurant, was arrested.

A well-known member of the Paris bar is also mentioned as being involved.

Newspapers of the Left insist that full light should be shed on all M. Lion's alleged activities.

The Oeuvre writes: "Well-known names were mentioned; and then suddenly, without apparent reason, well-informed people said in the Chamber of Deputies, at the Bourse, among the police, in the cafes and even in the street: 'The affair is already dead and buried. In 48 hours it will be forgotten and nobody will dare to speak about it any more.' We should like to know why."

The Oeuvre adds that the police of many nations have been co-operating in a merciless war against drug traffickers, whose names they have exchanged.

All the suspects' correspondence has been seized and frequently photographed before being delivered. The paper says that M. Thevenin, the examining magistrate who is to investigate M. Lion's alleged activities, has a file containing several hundred reproductions of letters.

The Paris Soir states that an important new witness was questioned all day at the Surete Nationale, the French Scotland Yard. The paper also mentions the existence of a secret drug factory in a Paris suburb.

An arm was amputated and he has been under medical treatment ever since.

When he applied to the justices for time to pay the fine, they gave him several months and brought the case to the notice of the home secretary.

The pardon bears the King's signature—"George R.I."

YOUTH READS GOETHE THEN TAKES HIS LIFE

Praha Schoolboy Is Heartbroken When Romance With Girl Broken Off

Praha.—The story of a broken romance lies behind the death fall from the fourth-floor window of one of Praha's biggest schools of a 16-year-old schoolboy, George Glaser.

A letter found by the police revealed that Glaser was in love with a girl in the same school and that their friendship had been broken off.

A few days ago Glaser said that he was deeply impressed by Goethe's 18th century story of "The Sorrows of Young Werther," in which a boy in a similar position suffered agonies and finally committed suicide.

The police also found six letters to Communist leaders in the dead schoolboy's clothing. An unsuccessful search was made by the police at the school for a Communist cell.

MOTHER GAINS SON'S RELEASE FROM FALSE IMPRISONMENT

Wrongly Convicted of Attempted Murder in French Foreign Legion

IS WELL TREATED

Marseilles. — Ex-member of the French Foreign Legion, Reginald Percy Thurston, a Briton born in Huntingdon 25 years ago, arrived in Marseilles a free man, after serving one year of a life sentence for attempted murder.

Convicted in June, 1937, at Fez, Morocco, of attempting to murder his Legion sergeant, he was pardoned by President Lebrun after a review of the evidence.

Thurston, alleged by the prosecution to be "The Phantom," who terrorized Fez at night by robbing and shooting all who tried to stop him, said:

"I owe my release to my mother (Mrs. Pearson of Devonshire Terrace, Southsea). When she heard I had been condemned, she got the British authorities to act.

"I joined the Legion in 1932, because I had been unlucky in a love affair with a Huntingdon girl. It was tough, but a good life. We were well treated, provided we turned up on parade and kept discipline.

"I saw fighting in the 1934 war in South Morocco in the Atlas mountains. The Arabs were our enemies, and they are enemies.

"I knew nothing about the attempted murder of the sergeant. I was in bed at the time. Even during the trial he said he did not know me.

"Altogether I have been 22 months in jail. I was well treated all the time. When I was condemned to life imprisonment people in court gasped with astonishment."

PUSHES BROKEN BIKE 70 MILES TO COURT

17-year-old Boy Is Bound Over After 30 Hour Journey

Leeds.—Wearily pushing a broken bicycle, a 17-year-old boy called at police headquarters here.

He had just ended a 30-hour journey of 151 miles from Whitehaven—and over 70 miles from Kendal to Leeds, had been done pushing his bicycle up hills and coasting down them.

His reason for the journey—he had to appear at Leeds quarter sessions to answer a charge of breaking into an office building and stealing 1s 6d (36 cents) and three bars of chocolate.

The boy was Thomas John Cannon, of Whitehaven, and after pleading guilty he was bound over in the charge of the probation officer.

A reporter gave Thomas money to repair his bicycle. A court official had given him his fare home, and a detective had paid for his tea.

So wearing a blue coat, flannel trousers, and white beach shoes in which he had done the journey, Thomas caught a train home—with the broken bicycle in the guard's van.

"I was told at the police station at home that I should have to get to Leeds somehow, and the only way seemed to be on my bicycle," he claimed.

PETES TAKE 18-6 LACROSSE VICTORY OVER ORANGEVILLE SQUAD

Locals Sparkle To Cop Nod In Lively Scrap

The Petes knocked off Orangeville here last night by an 18-6 count in an O.L.A. senior "B" struggle before nearly 500 fans. Playing in sweltering heat as a storm threatened, the Petes grabbed an early lead and easily held their own the rest of the route. They had a 6-0 edge in the first frame, were in front 11-2 at halftime and had a 13-5 margin going into the fourth.

The visitors were shorthanded at first and took a time to get their bearings. They played better lacrosse in the second and third heats, outscoring the Petes in the third, but were fading again in the fourth. They worked hard and played fair lacrosse but looked outclassed most of the route as the Petes tore in fast on nice passing plays and shot with accuracy in close. It was a clean contest with but one penalty drawn.

All the Petes looked good in this encounter. The veterans shone the first half but eased up some the last part, while the younger players kept up a stiff pace despite the heat and the mounting score. Red Creighton was brilliant in the home net and he had good support from his defence and forwards. Westonfelt played a bangup game all the way while Whitton and Crowe were other consistant standouts. But the scoring summary is a good indication of how the whole team figured in on the goals and checked their rivals up effectively. King, Worthy and Dundas showed some smart ball-handling when they were on. The two Mackenzies, Newstead, McDonald and Jessop looked like the pick of the visitors.

The teams:

Orangeville: Goal, Fife; defence, Robinson and Brawley; centre, Smart; wings, Newstead and H. Mackenzie; rover, D. Mackenzie; alternates, McDonald, Chapman, Bradley, McGrath and Jessop.

Petes: Goal, R. Creighton; defence, Chute and Miller; centre, Worthy; wings, King and Dundas; rover, Whitton; alternates, J. Creighton, Westonfelt, Magee, Crowe, Pammett, Bowen and Vitarelli.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 9.—The Outlaws strengthened their hold on first place in the Hastings Softball League when they took a 13 to 12 decision from the Tanners Friday night. The game was featured by Hahn's long homer for the Tanners in the seventh innings. It was the longest drive of the season and came with none on. Kelley, who followed him also clouted a nice homer. The Tanners put on a ninth inning rally and scored 3 times but fell one short of tieing the game.

McKee allowed the Tanners 16 hits as he struck out 8 and issued the same number of free trips to first. The Outlaws could only collect 10 hits off of the combined offerings of McCoy and Hahn. McCoy allowed 7 of the 10 hits and struck out 6 while he passed 4 in the 4 innings he pitched. Hahn struck out 2 and walked 1 for the remainder of the game.

Kelly and C. Scriver, both of the Tanners, were the leading batters, each with 3 hits in 5 times up. There were several bad errors with the Tanners again in the lead, having 10 to the Outlaws' 7.

The teams:

Tanners. — C. Scriver lf, 3b; Thompson, ss; Ibey, c; Hahn, p, 3b; Kelley, cf; McCoy, lf, p; Faux, 2b; M. Scriver, 1b; Blackbourne, rf; N. Scriver.

Outlaws— Radford, cf; Phillips, 3b; McKee, p; Stickler, 2b; Clapper, 1b; I. Bonds, c; Puffer, ss; G. Bonds, rf; Scriver, lf.

Tennis Tourney Reaches Finals

OTTAWA, July 9 (CP).—Finalists in five brackets were scheduled to decide major titles in the Ontario tennis championship tournament today over the Rideau Lawn Tennis Club courts. Last night heavy rain halted play in a men's doubles semi-final match.

The Vancouver duo of Bill Pedlar and Phil Pearson were leading the Ottawa pair of Don McDiarmid and Eddie Connolly 6-1, 5-2 in their semi-final men's doubles encounter when play was stopped and the match delayed until today when it will be finished. Lewis Duff and George Robinson of Montreal and Bruce Hall, Toronto, and his partner Gordon Robinson of Niagara Falls, Ont., are the other semi-finalists.

The premier event of the tournament, the men's open singles final, will be decided by McDiarmid and Duff who yesterday earned the berths by gaining victories over George Robinson and Gordon Robinson respectively. McDiarmid, Ottawa city champion, won his encounter in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4 while Duff outlasted the Niagara Falls ace in a 2½ hour, five-set struggle. Scores were 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

Ill with indigestion in the deciding set, Duff took a short rest and finally won. Both contestants featured a long-driving game but Duff earned points repeatedly with a shot chop which he used generally after a long rally.

Winny McDonnell, Ottawa city titalist in 1937, flashed championship form when she trimmed the McGill university champion, Barbara Barnard, in a match that last only 40 minutes. Miss McDonnell won 63, 6-1, and will meet Mrs. W. Tees of Montreal in the final today.

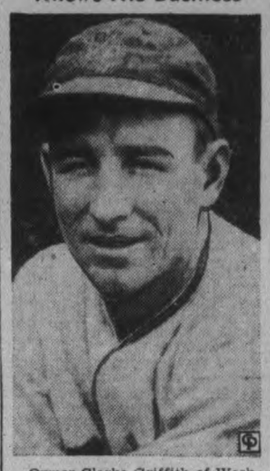
Wally Berger and Billy Myers—Berger hit two homers, driving in four runs, and Myers hit homer in 10th to break up bal lgame for 7-6 win over Cubs.

Roxie Lawson, Tigers, and Mike Kreevich, White Sox — Lawson pitched two-hit, shutout ball for six innings to have 7-5 opener win; Kreevich hit double and two singles and scored three runs in 5-3 nightcap victory.

Rosy Rosen, Dodgers—Hit homer, double and single, drove in three runs and scored four in 13-2 win over Phillies.

Odell Hale, Indians—Hit single in 10th to drive in winning run to beat Browns 8-7.

Knows His Business



Owner Clarke Griffith of Washington Senators loves to trade a player, and then bring him back to the Nats, often many years later. The latest example of this is Sam West (above), now patrolling Washington pastures as only he can, Samuel being one of the best fielders to ever show in the circuit. He was with the Senators previously from 1927 to '32, and came back from the Browns in a trade for Mel Almada.

SPORTS -DAY BY DAY-

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THERE ARE A LOT of odd occupations or pastimes which come loosely under the heading of sports. Some are decidedly loose. We have heard such stunts spoken of in sports as chess, bridge, billiards, bucksawing, log rolling, corn husking, dice, flycasting, cards and so on. But yesterday we read of a new one, and a rather hilarious event it must be. The item comes from Disney, Okla., and the Galt scrivener ran it this way:

* * * * * * *

"MIGHTY RIPPER DAVIS made good his boost—he's tree fighting champion of this Grand River Valley boom town. He hurled Wild Red Angelo, who called himself an untamed and uncrowned brass knuckle expert, out of a big oak tree on Monday. Severa ithousand perspiring visitors roared in approval. Ripper let out his Tarzan roar, feinted Angelo out of position, wedged him into a crotch of the tree and hammered him into submission. Then he hurled Wild Red from the oak and emitted an off-key victory cry. Ernest Andrews of Tulsa was an unhappy referee—a big firecracker exploded in his hip pocket and blew out the seat of his pants!" Yessir, it must be quite a spot down that way, eh?

OVER THE WEEKEND the Peterborough Hockey Club nominating committee will be busy drawing up a slate of prospective officers to be presented at the open meeting Thursday p.m. at 8.15 in the Chamber of Commerce. President, vice-prexy and executive committee remain to be electd, and the managers and coaches appointed. Secretaries, treasurer and a financial committee have already been named. The nominating squad consists of Bill Jackson, Ken Kingston, Alf Gratton and Bun Kingdon. After next Thursday's gabfast, the club will be prepared to go ahead and commence on plans for the coming winter—as puck officers must get down to business in the hot weather whilst the players don't see action till after Xmas.

SOME 500 FANS saw two lacrosse squads run themselves into grease splotches last eve at the George St. Arena with the Petes taking an 18-6 chuckle over Orangeville. Nothing to it but a bit of perspiration—quite a bit. The Petes looked a lot better than their rivals, who must have climbed to the top of their heap through a misprint in the standings! All the locals looked good in this fray and they didn't rough it up to draw any penalties, which should be worth a headline. Those sweatered athletes can sure take it in the heat. And, we might add, they can have it! The Petes play in Hamilton on the 12th. The Y's Men's midgets copped a 3-1 nod over Rotary last p.m., too.

KEENE GALS BEAT C. G. E. by a 13-5 score last e'en at the Bowl in an exhibition softball game, arranged when Lindsay dropped out of the loop. Schedule will be revised, likely a double schedule, to be published next week. Tuesday's tilt stands, with Keene and C. G. E. meeting once more at the Bowl in a billed joust. Bea McDowell twirled nice ball last evening to get 11 strikeouts against the Electrics. Both sides booted the ball around like a couple of Old Country soccer teams, but it wasn't a bad affair and quite a crowd witnessed proceedings. The C. G. E. crew will have to tighten up and hustle from now on or they'll be left holding the w.k. sack whilst Keene and Westclox clash for league honors and the P. W. S. U. prize.

BILL (FLASH) HORROCKS, boxing instructor of the Peterborough A. C., has quite a stable here now. About 35 junior and senior boys training, with Paul Hillier the physical trainer. He hopes to have an open-air ring ready soon for outdoor work and the public will be invited to watch the leather-pushers drill. Bill expects to take several of his better boxers to the Kingston Centennial the first week in August to fight against some of Canada's topnotchers in the amateur ring. And he may have a show here around the end of July. Reg Lesurf, local lightweight, is due to meet Hub Smith, Dominion finalist last year and present Quebec and Ontario champ. Art Nokes is another local scrapper who will meet a tough baby in Joe Northmore, star Kingston welter. Several other locals, too, including Don Batley, 80 pounds, who is slated to meet Young Saunders of Kingston. The club here has been going four months and Bill is making doggone sure his pugilists are ready before he shows 'em. He has a real rep in Ontario as a boxing instructor.

A HOT TIME WAS had in Toronto last p.m. at the joint meeting of the O. B. A. and C. O. B. L. executive officers. Prexy Max Swanton of the Central Loop and Vern Dawson, Jim Dorris and Bill Kay of the Petes, with Pud Lane and Neil Hezzlewood of Oshawa, battled hard for their rights and were partially successful. The loop and club moguls were panned by the O. B. A. officers but presented their case quite well. However, it looks like Kingston Ponies are out. The O. B. A. claimed that, following the midseason loop meeting in Oshawa, the Petes had applied for permission to play Bob Doll and Frank McNally, but the Ponies have not yet put in an application—and they have no less than seven ineligible players! Counting the Napanee guys. Hence the O. B. A. said Kingston would have to get this bunch passed and then apply for re-instatement. Which Kingston won't do. So we suppose the GM-men and Petes will finish it out to declare an O. B. A. team, and fill in with exhibition games. The locals are in Oshawa today and have the GM-men back here Tuesday eve at four o'clock.

OUR CLUB GOT a fine break—and credit goes to the Messrs. Swanston, Dorris, Dawson and Kay—when the O. B. A. granted Lefty McNally a transfer from Cambridge, Mass., to this city; and gave permission to Bob Doll to play for the Petes. But Doll is suspended three games for playing before he was officially okayed. The O. B. A. checked on his pro activities and found he had been out a year, so they changed their minds about rejecting his application. And the Petes again have a good ball team, even if the league has dwindled. Guess a playoff series will have to be arranged soon between Oshawa and Peterborough. If we win we get some O. B. A. playdown games. At least, it's better than folding or trying to get by with a mediocre squad. McNally may pitch today in Oshawa.

* * * * * * *

HITHER AND YAWN: An O. B. A. transfer was granted Jim Lamont from Vancouver to Cobourg. . . . Lindsay Post says Art Lepper and Bud Murray will play for the Toronto cops in the softball game in Scugogville on Wednesday next. . . . Brinton Field, July 16th will be the scene of a big field days of sports, etc., open to the public. . . . Omemee and Motorists have a men's softball setto Monday at the Bowl. . . . Happiest gee in town today was Frank (Lefty) McNally, imported twirler who thinks this town is swell. . . . So do we, by golly! . . . Buster Whitton is the most colorful lacrosser on the local team, and a mighty effective player. . . . After next week, softball fans will see the two Westclox teams playing every night or two for a time. . . . Leo: sure, if ya can get ducats we haven't seen one yet. . . . Too bad the Ponies are out but they can't blame the C. O. B. L.; the Kingstons didn't live up to their agreement at the recent Oshawa meeting to apply at once for transfers. . . . Gotta scram and sit—maybe in a downpour—in the open pressbox at the Oshawa ball orchard.

Whitecombe Family For 15 Years Have Sought British Open Crown

SANDWICH, England, July 9 (C. P.). — The Whitcombe family finally has bagged itself a British open golf championship.

For 15 years, three inseparable golfing brothers have traversed the golf courses of the United Kingdom winning practically every golfing trophy offered at one time or another—except the treasured open crown.

Reggie Whitcombe, at 40 the youngest of the trio, won the title yesterday.

After battling a 50-mile wind that all but blew the players off the course and sent scores kiting up into the 90's, and after waiting while the late finishers, including the defending champion, Henry Cotton, finished their rounds, Reggie's comment when he learned of his victory was:

"All we cared about was that a Whitcombe won. We didn't mind which."

But the extra money a champion can earn probably means a lot to Reggie, who often has been near but never before on the top. Cotton estimated his 1937 victory over Reggie was worth $25,000. When Walter Hagen beat Reggie's eldest brother Ernest by one stroke back in 1924, he said the title was worth $50,000 annually.

The Whitcombe temperament, much the same in 48-year-old Ernest and 42-year-old Charles, played as big a part as Reggie's skill and his powerful build in battling the gale. He just kept on playing his game and shot 75-78 on the last two rounds to turn a two-stroke deficit into a two-stroke victory. He finished with 295 for the 72 holes against 297 for Jim Adams and 298 for Cotton.

Recover Funeral Car

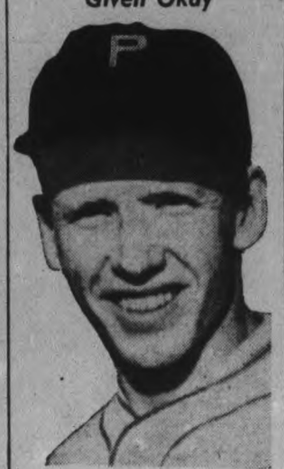
MONTREAL, July 8.—(CP).—Police sought Ellsworth Wood of Boise, Idaho, to-day to inform him that his car in which there was a box containing his father's ashes, was recovered here yesterday.

Reported stolen at Ottawa Tuesday, the car had in it personal effects of the owner, valued at $1,000.

Real Golfer At 86

FULLARTON, Ont., July 9 (CP)—Tony Gettler of Fullarton thought golf was a silly sort of game, certainly not the thing for a man of 71. Then he took up golf. That was 15 years ago. Now at 86, he plays almost daily on the nearby Mitchell course shooting nine holes in 55. He once scored a 42.

Given Okay



FRANK McNALLY

Star southpaw pitcher for the Petes who was given permission by the O.B.A. last evening to play with the locals, after his case had been carefully reviewed.

Y's Men's Midgets Get Lacrosse Win

In a Midget Lacrosse League game played last evening in the George St. arena, Y's Men's team took a 3-1 decision over the Rotarians. It was a tight lively match all the way with the winners having a trifle more punch to cash in on chances. Martin scored the only goal of the first frame on Joiner's pass, with Martin later drawing a penalty in this heat. There was no score in the second but Horton and Joiner drew five-minute penalties for fighting, with O'Donnell and McMahon also being chased. In the third, Dundas scored from Martin to make it 2-0 but O'Donnell took Weaver's pass to tally for Rotary. McMahon drew a penalty. In the fourth, Martin notched the lone counter, and Land was gated. The teams:

Y's Men's: Goal, Willshaw; defence, B. Dundas and Parnall; centre, D. Dundas; wings, Joiner and Martin; rover, McMahon; alternates, Rhodes, Land, Easton, O'Connor and Dunford.

Rotary: Goal, Lacheur; defence, Roberts and O'Donnell; centre, Maudsley; wings, Hudson and Cox; rover, Foster; alternates, Cooper, W. Parnall, Weaver, Horton, Dayman and Batley.

Referees, O. Sloane and E. Creighton.

Local Players Get O.B.A. Nod

The O.B.A. last night at a meeting in Toronto with C.O.B.L. and local officials granted a transfer to Frank McNally to play for the Petes, and okayed Bob Doll's application for permission to play here. However, the latter was suspended three games for participating in a league contest before he was passed by the Ontario body. The C.O.B.L. was informed by President Jack Scott of the O.B.A. that Kingston Ponies could not be re-instated until they had applied for same and had seven ineligible players passed.

The meeting was heated for a time but the C.O.B.L. and club delegates admitted the error of their ways in using ineligible players. They pointed out that they had, after a midseason meeting in Oshawa, decided to ask for all questionable transfers and had done so. The O.B.A. agreed that this had been done in Peterborough's case but stated Kingston had not yet put in a single application for a transfer. Max Swanston was league delegate to the meeting. Neil Hezzlewood and J. A. Lane of Oshawa were present, and the Peterborough delegates were James Dorris, Vern Dawson and William Kay.

Operation At Month

STRATFORD, Ont., July 9 (CP) One-month-old Wayne Byerman is "doing nicely" in Stratford General Hospital after an appendix operation, it was reported today. While operations on infants are no longer a rarity, they are still far from common, the doctor said.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

There were a couple of wisecracks released up at the club last night that we think are well worth repeating—one was:

"I suppose if one wants to interview Mr. Chesler it can be done by appointment only"—and the other was "I didn't know that Benny was left handed,"—"He isn't, but his right arm has been awfully sore since last Wednesday night."

Not being satisfied with winning the Stratton Trophy on Wednesday, Benny Chesler came right back last night to pilot his rink into front place in the Tip Top Tailor competition—out of 26 entries the Chesler quartette was the only one with three wins. So keen was the competition that fourteen rinks were compelled to play off for the second, third, and fourth prizes, and to those who stayed up till two o'clock, they were well repaid. Never before has a local tournament been so strongly supported. Ken Sloan, manager of the Tip Top Tailor Co., expressed on behalf of the company appreciation of the individual members and the games committee for the wonderful support and co-operation.

Winners

W. Cathcart, G. Snowden, T. McMillan, B. Chesler, skip. Tip Top Tailor Trophy, and each a pair of white flannels donated by Tip Top Tailor Company.

T. Pitchford, H. Taylor, V. Selkirk, G. Gimblett, skip. Second—each a leather ball case.

J. Detcher, A. Nelson, C. Williamson, J. Sedgewick, skip. Third, each an electric lamp.

T. Ryan, R. McGarrell, V. Tully, J. T. Braund, skip, Fourth, each an electric lamp.

And once again the Peterborough Club has demonstrated to the clubs in this district that as Peterborough goes so goes the district.

At Cobourg yesterday, out of an entry of 34 rinks entered in the ladies annual tournament 13 of them entered from our local club.

As one chap remarked last night, he never saw so many bowling widowers as he saw yesterday.

So big was this tournament at the lakeshore town that the overflow were sent out to Port Hope in order to hurry along the contest, and at that we met a couple of rinks coming in Charlotte street well after midnight. The only local rink to reach the pay-off station was that of Mrs. Coursey. Some of them came close, but the money doesn't jingle for coming close. The winning rink was:

Mrs. A. Heckman, Mrs. L. Bearne, skip, second—each a linen tablecloth.

More than 1,700 children have enrolled in the swimimng instruction classes held daily in East York's two Public School tanks.

Klinger Gives Cardinals 6 To 2 Setback

NEW YORK, July 9.— The score is now 1-1 in brainy Branch Rickey's game of ivory movements for the year.

In between brainy Branchs movements of glee over the Dizzy Dean thing, he must be giving himself a few kicks where they'll do the most good for what he did—or didn't—do with Bob Klinger.

For a couple of seasons now, St. Louis Cardinals have been in crying need of pitchers. And for nigh onto 10 years, they nursed Klinger and his curve ball along through their farm "chain gang."

Last winter brainy Branch let Pittsburgh Pirates draft Klinger from Sacramento for $7,500. And all Rookie Bob has done so far is lead the league in the won-lost column, with seven victories against one setback, and turn in an earned-run average just over two per cent. The pay-off is that four of his victories have been against St. Louis Cardinals, the latest a 6-2 setback yesterday.

Consider also that the gas house gang has been paying the freight on Klinger during most of his wanderings in the bushes.

At 29 now, and with some nine years' experience, Klinger is hotter than ever. He's beaten the Giants twice, and that's one of the reasons the Pirates are hot on the New Yorker's trail in the National League race.

Yesterday's victory, however, didn't take anything off 3½ game bulge the Giants boast, because Terrible Terry's Terriers topped Boston Bees 4-2 on Harry Gumbert's four-it pitching and Alex Kampouri's two-run homer.

Over in the American League, the Yankees' 10-game unbeaten run ended as Boston Red Sox topped the New Yorkers, 9-8. Since Cleveland nosed out the Browns 8-7 in 10 innings the junior circuit's first-place deadlock was broken, leaving the Tribe on top of the Yanks by a game.

Cincinnati Reds snapped their six-game losing streak by trouncing the Cubs 7-6 on Billy Myers' homer in the 10th. Brooklyn clubbed the Phillies 13-2 with a 15-hit attack.

Harry Kelley, now of Washington, blanked his ex-mates, the Athletics, with seven hits for an 11-0 win. Rudy York and Hank Greenberg hit homers as the Tigers trounced Chicago White Sox 7-5 in the first game of a double-header, but the Sox came back to gain an even break by taking the nightcap 5-2 in 11 innings.

Traps All Around

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP).—David Weinstein, 23, drove to traffic court to answer a charge of passing a red light. He waited three hours for his case to come up and then was fined $5. Outside, he found a ticket on his car for parking overtime. Back he went into court, where the judge suspended sentence.

MAPLE LEAFS SHUT OUT THE CHAMPION NEWARK BEARS 10-0

Behind Masterful Pitching Leafs Open Series Up With Vicious 13-Hit Assault

TORONTO, July 9.—Every so often it just happens that way—champions run up against near-tailenders and find themselves outclassed.

It happened last night at Maple Leaf Stadium when the lowly local International Leaguers tackled the champion Newark Bears in the opener of a five-game series, outhit them, outhustled them, and generally outplayed them as they racked up a decisive 10 to 0 shutout win.

Behind a masterful exhibition of "clutch" pitching by Mike Meola, the Leafs opened up with a vicious thirteen-hit assault on a pair of visiting moundsmen. Caught between that combination the Bears didn't have a chance.

Meola was in rare form. Two of the four safeties he gave up didn't get past the infield, and although his control wavered throughout, he was simply invincible in the pinches. Two of the hits came in the ninth, when the invaders loaded the bases with the help of an error by Bobby Porter. But with only one out, Maestro Mike retired the final two without any damage.

Leafs Hit In Bunches

It went like that all the way through. In the first and fifth he hit a batter and walked one, but the Bears couldn't insert a hit when it was needed.

The Leafs utilized practically every hit they collected from the combined servings of Jack Fallon and Xavier Rescigno, a pair of young right-handers. Fallon worked six innings and was touched for half a dozen safeties. Four of those, however, came in the first and two in the fourth, for a pair of two-run innings.

Rescigno toiled the seventh and eighth, but he didn't have a thing. Singles by Sheerin and Clifton, a double by Burns, a walk to Smith and a wild toss by the hurler accounted for a quartet of markers in the seventh, while successive one-baggers by Sheerin, Gantenbein, Burns and Petoskey produced the final two runs of the game before a man had been retired in the eighth.

The Leafs failed to ring the scoring register in the second, third, fifth and sixth, and during those four frames, Flea Clifton, who walked in the sixth, was the only runner to reach base safely.

The game was really won in the first inning, thanks to Meola's shutout hurling. Sheerin laced the first pitch for a single to touch off a two-run rally. Successive singles by Burns and Petoskey and Mayo Smith's double which torpedoed through Schulte, manufactured that outburst.

Clifton's Triple Scores Two

Smith's single and a pass to Reiber were followed by Clifton's terrific three-base drive to the scoreboard for two more in the fourth.

Fallon was billiant aside from those two frames. He claimed eight strikeout victims all told, while Meola racked up seven third-strike outs. Umpire Borski deserves a portion of credit for those figures, however.

Rescigno, otherwise known as "Mr. X," didn't look like a pitcher and didn't look as though he wanted to pitch. He made an error, walked a batter and gave up seven hits in two innings. Les Scarsella's feat of whiffing three times was equalled by Bobby Porter, who struck out in the first and took third strikes in the sixth and eighth. He had chances to drive in four runs.

It was the Leafs' second victory over the Bears in ten games this season....Ted Olson and probably Joe Mulligan will work for the Leafs in tonight's twilight-floodlight double bill, which starts at 7....Jack Haley, unbeaten rookie, with nine victories to his credit, and Lefty Marius Ugo Russo are slated for mound duty for Newark .... The teams are idle Sunday and resume hostilities with a twin bill Monday evening.

Contest Is Close In Senior Lacrosse

TORONTO, July 9 (C.P.). — Mimico Mountaineers are under way again and their bid for the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior title, or which Orillia beat them in the finals last year, is bound to provide highlights all down the schedule's stretch.

The Mountaineers' leap to a second-place tie with St. Catharines, through well-devised victories over Brampton and Orillia on the road, was the feature of this week's play. When they walked into Orillia and defeated the Terriers before 2,000 fans on Thursday, they cut the league leaders' margin over St. Catharines to two points. Toots Harrison's Mountaineers have defeated last year's Dominion finalists in both their meetings on the Orillia floor this season.

To-night St. Catharines can catch Orillia by winning at Brampton in the night's only contest. Next week's games are: Tuesday, Brampton at Mimico, Fergus at Hamilton; Thursday, Hamilton at Orillia, Brantford at Fergus; Saturday, Mimico at St. Catharines, Orillia at Brampton.

Here is the league standing:

	W.	L.	F.	A.	Pt.
Orillia	10	3	177	131	20
St. Catharines	9	3	223	119	18
Mimico	9	4	101	136	18
Brampton	6	6	101	126	12
Fergus	5	7	128	151	10
Hamilton	4	8	133	155	8
Brantford	0	10	112	215	0

Buffalo Bisons Beaten 9 To 5

NEW YORK, July 9 (A.P.). — Buffalo Bisons, who have been concentrating on cutting down the lead of the champion Newark Bears in the International League baseball race, would better start looking after their second place laurels instead. Both the onrushing Syracuse Chiefs and Rochester Red Wings threaten to pass them.

While the Bears and Bisons have been playing less than .500 ball in the past two weeks, the Chiefs and Red Wings have been coming along like a prairie fire. The Chiefs, who have won 11 of their last 13 games, are only two games behind the Bisons, while the Red Wings, who have captured 12 of the last 16 starts, are but a half-game further astern.

The Chiefs mauled Montreal Royals for 14 hits and won 9-1 and the Red Wings whipped Jersey City Giants 4-2, while the Bears and the Bisons both went down to defeat last night. The Bears were shutout 10-0 by Toronto Leafs and Baltimore Orioles homered the Bisons into 9-5 submission.

Al Glossop led the Chiefs' bombardment against Bob Porter and Ken Heintzelman with a triple, double and single, and his mates added four extra base blows to make things easy for Lefty Tel Kleinhans. The Royals made six errors afield, and that helped push them down into the cellar behind the Leafs and Orioles.

The Wings battered Ky Vandenberg and Ted Carpenter for 10 blows, with homers by Johny Hopp and Estel Crabtree featuring the attack. Hopp also smashed out a triple as did Catcher Sam Narron.

HOTSPURS GET HIM

TOTTENHAM, England—(CP).—B. Sproston, Leeds United international full-back who played for England in every representative game last season, has been signed by Tottenham Hotspurs for $40.000.

More new American automobiles are seen in the Philippines than for some time.

Keene Girls Win Over C.G.E. 13-5

Keene defeated C.G.E., 13 to 5, last evening in an exhibition girls' softball game before a good crowd at the Bowl. Bea McDowell hurled for Keene, allowing 11 hits and two walks while striking out 11 in a good performance. I. Hopkins twirled for the Electrics, being nicked for 15 safe blows and one free base as she fanned two. Their support was wobbly. P. Bigelow led C.G.E. at bat with a triple and three singles, while B. McDowell of Keene belted out a homer and three singles, and H. Nelson conked a triple and single. Two neat running catches were pulled off by 14-year-old M. Batley, and other fielding features were shown by P. Bigelow, A. Clarke, M. Belle and M. Miller. The teams:

Champion Casters Compare Notes

The fellow on the LEFT has a name that's brief and to the point, while the fellow on the RIGHT has one that's long and meandering, but they both won championships at the Oakland, California, casting tournament. LEFT is Waldo Ek, of Portland, who flung the three-eighth ounce lure an average distance of 305 feet three inches in three casts, thereby setting a new record. Herman Hittenberger, of San Francisco, is the other party and he won the accuracy contest with a "fine score of 97"...which probably means something to a caster.

Stoney Lake Hit By Bad Storm

Stoney Lake was hit last Friday afternoon by one of the most violent electric and wind stormbs that has swept over that district in years, with the east end of the lake getting the worst end of the fireworks staged by Nature. For a few minutes the wind attained almost cyclonic velocity. The lightning was very severe and the rain came down in close to cloud-burst proportions. In spite of the awe-inspiring nature of the storm, however, no reports of damage have been received, beyond the blowing down of a number of trees.

Lightning Destroys Cashel Fire Tower

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, July 9.—Believed to have been caused by lightning, from a nearby thunderstorm on Friday afternoon, the cabin on the 80-foot Ontario Forestry Branch lookout tower in the Township of Cashel was completely destroyed. The tower observer, Farlington Chard, was out of the tower at the time it broke into flames. Tower table, binoculars and telephone were lost in the flames which rapidly destroyed the wooden structure. The cause of the fire remains a mystery, as the tower, in line with protection measures, was completely grounded, but it is believed that the charge entered the cabin through the telephone.

Plans for the immediate construction of another cabin to be erected on the steel framework are under way. This is a serious loss at the present time of high hazard, as Cashel Tower is one of the best stations in the district, and is an important key in the lookout tower system.

Starting inside the rear part of the Tweed Foundries, fire of unknown origin was extinguished before any serious damage was caused on Friday evening. The fire, when noticed, had just broken through the back of the building, and firemen were on the job to extinguish it before it had the opporunity to gain any headway.

Caught In Bathtub

ST. LOUIS, July 9—(AP).—A two-year hunt ended yesteday when G-men got their man—in the bath tub. Federal agents trapped the man, booked as Herbert Dixon, 40, former barber, as he was taking a bath at the home of a relative. The agents said he had been sought for two years on charges of interstate transportation of stolen automobiles.

Dictator Votes

Joseph Stalin, dictator of Soviet Russia, is shown here as he cast his ballot in the recent Soviet "elections." Stalin's government was voted back in power.

Eddie Cantor Off On "Mercy" Trip

Planning to transport 300 Jews from Germany to Palestine during his visit to Europe, Eddie Cantor, radio and film comedian, is shown here with members of his family as they sailed from New York aboard the S.S. Queen Mary. Mrs. Cantor is shown, LEFT, with her married daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Metzger. Another daughter, Janet, is shown standing next to Cantor.

Richter, Purdy P.O., was arrested by Constable William Beatty, R.C.M.P. and Provincial Constable Palmateer, thirty miles north of the village of Bancroft on Thursday. A quantity of alleged moonshine liquor was also found on Richter's premises the police revealed. Richter was taken to the Hastings county jail, at Belleville on a charge of breach of the Excise Act. The inroads of Japanese troops into China at the end of the first year of the unofficial Sino-Japanese war are shown on the ABOVE map. The shaded line indicates the deepest points of penetration by the Japanese. In addition to the nine provinces whose capitals have been captured, three others have been invaded by the Tokyo forces; Hupeh, which contains Hankow, temporary capital; Fukien, where the Japanese seized an island off Amoy, and Kwangtung, where they seized an island off Swatow.

Goddard And Chaplin Team Up Again

DEL MONTE, Calif., July 9 (CP).—Film actress Paulette Goddard and Charles Chaplin are to be teamed professionally again, and if Pebble Beach society is right, they are at last ready for the public to regard them as teamed maritally.

The actress, who for several years rumoredly has been married to Chaplin, has been here for 10 days as Chaplin's house guest.

Yesterday she registered as "Mrs. Charles Chaplin" in entering a tournament at the Cypress Point Golf Club. The social set accepted this as virtual confirmation of the long-standing rumors of her marriage to Chaplin. Incidentally, she tied with Harry Hunt of Pebble Beach for first place in the tournament.

Reports from Hollywood said Chaplin would produce and personally direct a modern comedy starring Miss Goddard. Chaplin was said to be planning a role for himself in a four-reel talking picture this autumn, but expected to play a non-talking part, as in the past. Two years ago Miss Goddard was Chaplin's leading lady in "Modern Times."

The actress erpects to enact a role in a summer playet of a little theatre group at Cape Cod, Mass.

When Miss Goddard came to Del Monte 10 days ago, she announced she was enrout to Reno, Nev., "to start a ski club."

She settled down for several days of work as a drama student of Chaplin. Since then, she hasn't mentioned Reno.

Canadian Legion Notes

A chields amang ye takin' notes, and, faith, he'll print them. — Burns.

The angel of death passed over the district twice during the past week and two ex-service men passed to the great majority, Pte. W. Anderson of Hiawatha and Major J. W. Stevenson of this city. The Legion flag is flying at half mast very frequently these days.

The funeral of William Anderson was held at Hiawatha on Wednesday last and the Legion was requested to furnish three of the bearers to act with three ex-service bearers of the tribe. The bearers from the Legion will never forget the impressive ceremony they witnessed at the church and at the graveside. The filing past the open coffin in the little church by the whole community of Hiawatha, the many women who kissed the cold cheek and held up their little children for a last look at the man who was a friend to every child in the community.

The bearers were Hanlon Howard, Hank Muskratt and Russell Thompson for the community, and Comrades H. Wilford, W. Gracie and R. Mitchell.

Provincial Constable David Silvester Has Fish Jump Into Boat Beside Him

ON A HOLIDAY at Harry Pearson's camp of cottages at the east end of Little Mud Lake, Dave Silvester comes through with a fish story to make the laboring in the vineyard a wearisome affair for those who know a lot of lakes in the Kawarthas where the breezes blow on grassy banks 'neath the shade of pines and elms and willows. The Provincial Constable first relates that a group of Cleveland people at the Pearson place have had splendid fishing. They sent home seven big muskies, packed in ice, the other day, to make their friends envious, and also to spread the fame of the eastern waters of Chemong Lake.

Dave goes on to tell of an interesting battle with a big bass one morning this week. He played the beauty toward the boat, and then suddenly it made a dash under it taking plenty of line. Finally to make a long story short this bass flung itself into the air, in a wide arc and plopped right into the boat. Cottages were all occupied early this week at Pearson's and also over on Deer Bay. Nearly a dozen automobile parties had to be sent on to other resorts indicating that the season has opened on a big scale, and if it continues at that rate the district is in for a big summer.

Plea Of Guilty Is Entered On Three Counts

Henry E. Baker, 66, of Toronto, who was brought down from the Queen City to answer three charges under the Ontario Securities Act, involving fraud in a stock transaction with Mrs. Huffman of Peterborough, pleaded guilty to all three charges before Magistrate E. A. Gee this morning, and was remanded until Monday for sentence.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that Baker's lawyer had informed him the man had to face another charge in Toronto on July 13.

Baker told the court that his family were living in Toronto on relief, but afterward admitted, when Crown Attorney McElderry brought up the matter, that he had lived sometimes at good hotels in Toronto.

"You were living on the fat of the land while your family was on relief," commented the magistrate.

Council Inspects Health Camp At Jackson Park

"It's a great work. We extend congratulations," Mayor James Hamilton told Kiwanians on Friday after members of the city council had inspected the club's camp for underprivileged children at Jackson Park. Members of the council were guests of Kiwanis at the club's weekly luncheon meeting at the Empress hotel.

John I. Allen, chairman of the camp committee, outlined the work of the club since the camp was first organized fifteen years ago. The club and council members then adjourned to Jackson Park, where they inspected all buildings on the grounds.

The newly constructed bathing beach in Jackson Park creek was a pleasant surprise to council members and most Kiwanians. The city contributed the beach to further the club's work and it had been completed only a few days previous. A sand bottom has replaced the old gravel, steps have been constructed leading from the roadway to the water, and a cement base has been built. The water is kept at an even level all day, shallow enough to be safe, deep enough to permit the yeungsters to swim.

DIED

BARBER, William Lorne. — At Nicholls Hospital, on Saturday, July 9, 1938, William Lorne Barber, of Akron, Ohio, U.S.A., in his 58th year. Resting at D. Belleghem and Son Funeral Home, 190 Hunter West. Funeral announcement later.

Building Supply Dealers Reduce Prices

Reduction of prices on a broad range of their products used in the building industry has been the response of Peterborough dealers in lumber and building supplies to the challenge issued by the Hon. Chas. Dunning, Minister of Finance, in his announcement of the cancellation of the sales tax of eight per cent on nearly all materials that enter into the construction of houses, factories and other structures.

Not only have these dealers absorbed losses on stock already purchased when the removal of the sales tax was decided by the Federal government, but they have demonstrated their desire to co-operate with the government, the public and builders by paring prices to lower levels that are now in effect.

Down 13 Cents a Barrel.

For example, the removal of the sales tax on cement meant a reduction of 13 cents a barrel, but the local dealers on their own initiative have lopped off another two cents, making the price 15 cents a barrel lower than it would otherwise have been if the Dominion government had not decided on a drastic effort to assist the industry and people generally who were planning new houses or other buildings.

The sales tax on lime and plaster, amounting to from 50 cents to $1.00 a ton, has been struck off, and the dealers have gone one better by making the reduction on these lines $1.00 a ton.

Gypsum board, down $2.50 a 1,000 feet with the disappearance of the sales tax, has actually been reduced by the dealers $5 per 1,000 feet.

Additional Cuts.

Gypsum of lath instead of being $1.50 lower by the government's relief to the industry has been cut $2 per 1,000 by Peterobrough dealers.

Then there are the Donnacona and Ten-Test lath and panels on which the reduction averages about $2 per 1,000, and the dealers have made the cut a straight $2 on these lines.

Asphalt shingles down 48 cents per square by the sales tax benefit, is actually reduced 50 cents by the trade.

Elimination of the sales tax on lumber becomes an advantage of from $1 to $3 per thousand applying to the material required in building a house. Among the products included in this category are, lumber, sash and doors, siding, stairways, balustrades, window frames, door frames, plaster board, fibre board; also building paper, prepared roofings, brick, building tile, building blocks and so on; varnishes and paints.

The reduced prices put into effect by the local dealers are their expression of appreciation of the action of the government in dispensing with the sales tax. The lower prices are being quoted at a time when constructional activity in this city is showing a decided upturn in the building of new houses and also in the completion of plans for a group of larger jobs that are bound to provide substantial employment during the next few months.

Many Asiatics inhale their favorite perfume after dinner to quiet their nerves and aid digestion.

CHAPTER 34

THE STUFF of life is made not of houses and clothing and such visible things, but of the subtler intangibles which cannot be purchased or had all at once and which develop around us day by day.

Ellen Dale was giving thought to these matters. Buried in her great chair covered by the woolly ram's hide, which she had already come to love, she had books stacked near her. Many were of lighter reading, but some that Bill had selected for her were of classic import. She held now a volume of Emerson, and one trenchant sentence struck her with its power:

"Sooner or later that which is now life shall be poetry, and every fair and manly trait shall add a richer strain to the song."

She didn't quite understand it, but it was sweet even so "Every fair and manly trait shall add a richer strain." She thought of the character traits in those she had gathered around her. Besides Bill Baron there now was a total of 53 women, children and men. The Dale-Durango ranch was a big one, was coming to have importance in the southwest, she realized. Most of the servants and cowboys had been hired by Bill, but Ellen herself had picked the cook and other help for her home. She did not have too much help, and saw to it that all were kept busy.

Her delight now was with the "fair and manly traits" shown in most of them, however humble and poor. It was, too a source of pleasure to know that her original intuitive judgment concerning Bill himself had been borne out. He was a man's man, and a woman's; a young western gentleman, not too young and not too perfect.

Sometimes she cried a little, in private, because he did not make love to her. She felt that he wanted to; and yet she never could be quite sure when he was serious and when he was teasing. In any event, though, she was developing in him and in some of the others the priceless elements of friendship, the stuff of life. She hoped they were finding at least some similar good in her.

"Better get your riding duds on, cowgirl," Bill commanded her early Thursday morning. "You're going with me to the Gap. We got to take in a thousand head of steers."

"Okay, Doctor."

She had picked up the nickname given him by the hands. Bill himself had never commented on the service he had rendered the Mexican woman. The husband had christened his son for Bill—William Daniel Baron de Anza was the new mite's name—and he had received a $10 gold piece from his godfather plus a layette from Ellen and the Casa Hermosa servant staff.

Doctor Bill told her she'd better stay near Buckshot Brown as they approached the herd of cattle, and fall in behind. The cattle were being brought from the old John Slaughter acreage farther south, where they had been assembled at Bill's order from half a dozen sources including both old and New Mexico.

They could be heard long before they could be seen—"BAWR-R-R-R-R" in a low gutteral chorus never ending, emanating from a veritable thunderhead of dust on the horizon. Their approach made a magnificent spectacle; somehow it awed Ellen, and it awed her more to realize that they belonged to her. For no good reason as she sat in her saddle there on a hill-slope, she had fleeting memories of days in the New York 10-cent store, before she had won the contest that launched her on the way to fame. The contrast in situations was profound.

Bill took charge of the herd, directing his cowboys to keep it moving, on through the Gap thence onto the DD range. The Gap was a dip or saddle in a mountain ridge which afforded a short cut in that direction. It was reached by going up a steep incline. When the cattle headed through they began to pour over all at once.

"It's like a cascade of water! cried Ellen, viewing it from a distance. And so it was. A living, bawling, seething mass of animals flowing over and down.

Every few seconds some great bull would top the rise there, pause a moment with his head high, bellow a challenge to the world and plunge on. Ellen saw the picture they created, especially in partial silhouette that way. She heard the shrill, happy yip-yip-yipping of the cowboys urging the animals on, with the drumming staccato of hooves for a thematic background.. Except on a theatre screen she had never seen anything like it. The music of it enthralled her, that and the living beauty. Mountains and cliffs themselves were theatrical backdrops, and the actors were supplying their own wild orchestration.

"Watch 'em, watch 'em! Ain't they dandies: "Old Buckshot Brown sensed the grandeau of the spectacle too, but lacked the words and the trainin' to express precisely what he felt.

And yet—right there was the reason why a man will be a rancher; and a woman. The reason why intelligent folk will work and suffer all manner of hardships to eke out a bare living in the open west. The inherent grandeur of ranching does something to a person, give a spiritual like unlike that to be had in any other profession.

"Look at them spread and open out into a great moving fan!" Ellen murmured, half to herself. She moved her horse up a few yards. The cows were drifting onto the flat range again, well below the old man and girl. "Oh, there's a calf!"

A few baby critters had tagged along inevitably. With a herd like that some mother cows are bound to get in, and a few are bound invariably to calve en route, it seems.

Buckshot explained it to her, along with dozen of other details. The old fellow welcomed the role of tutor, and she profited immeasurably because of it. Through his teachings, and her natural appreciation of beauty in whatever form, Ellen saw not the dirt and sweat and noise of the herd's arrival, but the epic nature of it.

"I honestly believe a cowboy has the most interesting life in the world," she ventured, after a bit.

"Yessum, it's a fack he does," agreed old Buckshot. "He don't know it sometimes, but he's a shore-nough king. Didja ever hear me recite thet cowboy pome, ma'am? Th' feller as made it up is dead and fergot, years ago, I reckon. But it's a right fair pome, ahumpf—"the old-timer cougher and struck an oratorical pose there in his saddle, which would have been comical if it hadn't been in dead earnest—"listen and I'll say it, ma'am:

"Th' bawl of a steer to a cowboy's ear
Is music of sweetest strain;
And th' yelpin' notes of th' gray coyotes
To him are a glad refrain.
"Fer a kingly crown in a noisy town,
His saddle he wouldn't change;
No life so free as th' life we see
Way out on th' open range.
"Th' rapid beat of his bronco's feet
On th' sod as he speeds along,
Keeps living time to th' ringing rhyme
Of his rollicking cowboy song.
"His eyes are—his eyes—lemme see now—
Oh yeamp—
His eyes are bright and his heart as light
As th' smoke of his cigaret;
There's never a care for his soul to bear,
No trouble to make his fret.
"Th' winds may howl and th' thunder growl
Or th' breezes may softly moan;
But a cowboy's life is a royal life,
His saddle his kingly throne."

DOROTHY DIX

There Is No Happiness for the Wife Who Hangs On to Her Husband Whom She Doesn't Love and When He Genuinely Loves Another Woman

DEAR MISS DIX—A friend of mine is genuinely in love with a man who made a rash marriage in his extreme youth. This man has outgrown his wife, who, in fact, ceased to be his wife in the real meaning of the term before my friend met him. The wife admits that she does not love her husband, but has no idea of relinquishing a soft berth and has given him no legal cause for complaint. In a deadlock such as this, what are the two persons to do who feel that their only happiness is in each other? No children are involved. All three of these people are young. A. H.

ANSWER:

It is far beyond my poor ability to solve this great tragic problem of life. The law tells us that marriage is a binding legal contract, and that because we have made a losing bargain we have no right to break it. The church tells us that marriage is a sacrament and that the vows which we made at the altar we cannot take back.

But human nature cries out that it is cruel that we should be punished more for the mistakes that we have made in all good faith and that we often make in the blundering ignorance of extreme youth than we would before the most heinous sin that we could commit. Our common sense asks what morality there is in a man and woman living together who have come to hate each other; what good end to society is subserved in binding two persons together who bring out all that is worst in each other's character; why is one home of discord worth more to the world than two homes in which there are love, peace and happiness?

As I have said, I am not wise enough even to attempt to settle this question, but Rupert Hughes discusses it most illuminatingly in his novel, "We Live But Once." He takes exactly this same human triangle — the fine man who marries an inferior woman who does not even attempt to do her duty as a wife, who is selfish and silly, narrow and petty in every way. The man outgrows his wife and ceases to care for her. She grows equally tired of him because there is no congeniality between them, but she hangs on to him with a death grip because he is her meal ticket.

Then the man meets the other woman—big, broad, capable of an overwhelming passion. The two fall in love with each other, and the question is how to deal fairly with the wife. The man talks the matter over with his wife and proposes what he calls a "friendly divorce"—both to accept the situation like intelligent human beings, to realize that they are not responsible for the fact that their childish romance has petered out into nothingness and that they no longer love each other, or have anything in common, and so to part without animosity, without bitterness, without scandal and mud-slinging. He offers to give her what money he has and tells her that he is securing her happiness as well as his own, because she will find some man who will fill her needs for a life companion far better than he does.

In the end this proves the solution of the problem in this individual case. A man with more money than the husband of a more flippant type bobs up and the wife, with a new headlight diamond on her finger in place of the pin-point sparkler she has worn, goes off to get a smart Paris divorce and everybody is happy.

This is a very modern solution of the divorce question. In a case where the wife does not love the husband she always has her price, whether it be money or another man, and it is only a question of paying it. This may be a synical and cold-blooded way of looking at the matter, but it's a way that probably would work in the case you cite.

But when the wife still loves the man who has grown weary of her and who has outgrown her, then God alone knows what he ought to do, and whether the happiness of one poor, weak, feeble creature should be considered before that of the two who are stronger and more intelligent and more capable of grappling with the world. Only how is she to be saved anyhow? What happiness is there for the unwanted wife with the husband she is holding against his will?

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a girl of 18. There are nine of us in the family and my father is unable to work. I have two brothers at work, but they cannot make enough to keep the family in good condition. My sister and I both want to go to work—she is older than I—and help to support the family, but when we speak of getting a job our mother and father say that every girl who goes out to work "goes to the dogs." Do you think so? Don't you think we could work and still be respectable? ANXIOUS.

ANSWER:

For heaven's sake, child, where do you live that people entertain such archaic opinions? Why, you are fifty years behind the times. It used to be thought not respectable for a girl to earn her own living. Nowadays we don't think a girl is respectable if she doesn't earn her own living when she is poor.

As for a girl "going to the dogs," as you put it, because she goes outside of her home to work, that's utter nonsense. In fact, just the reverse of this is true, and the girls who work in stores and offices and factories do so because they prefer to earn their money honestly rather than take it by what is euphoniously called "the easiest way."

There are no more honorable, straight, honest women in the world than the army of girls that you see starting forth to work every morning, and I, for one, always feel like taking off my hat and standing at salute, for as I watch them I know that courage and valor are passing by.

And there are no women more respected, so you need not be afraid of having your moral standard lowered, or being discredited when you join their ranks.

Get you a job, child, and go to work. It is a shameful thing for girls of 18 and 19, who are husky and intelligent, to sit idly around and make their poor brothers toil to support them. It is a disgrace for a woman to be a parasite. It's an honor for her to be self-supporting and independent.

DOROTHY DIX.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 10.

Sunday's horoscope holds token of rather conflicting conditions, with much working at cross-purposes, but generally lively and happy affairs. There may be disagreeable angles concerning the emotions or intimate relationships. Yet, there may be a stabilizing of the fortunes with the prospect of sudden changes in pursuit of progress and pleasure.

If This Is Your Birthday,

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a rather conflicting year, with the prospect of strife, breaking up of old sentimental affairs, travel, and much activity and satisfaction in the pursuit of pleasure. Surprising adventures may happen in this direction, and there may also be an event that will result in putting the fortunes on a firm foundation.

A child born on this day may have rather contradictory traits of character, with much impetuosity, self-indulgence, and contrariness. But, at the same time, it may be rather adventurous, romantic, likeable and much sought.

For Monday, July 11.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and interesting day, with much stirring about on short trips, and possibly with sentimental and romantic affairs claiming the attention. Nevertheless, there may be some contracts to be signed, and these are promising, provided there be not an excessive outlay of funds. This also applies to pleasurable indulgences.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a progressive and pleasant year, with much activity, short trips, new business and contracts, all of which should prove profitable if given proper consideration and not carried off too expansively in ideas or in extravagance.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be a "high flyer" both in business and pleasure, unless given an early outlook against overexpansiveness and extravagance. It may live beyond its means, but should maintain a respected and responsible status.

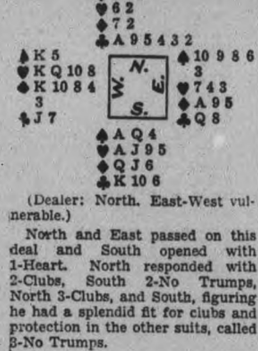
RUBBER BRIDGE HASTE

MANY RUBBER bridge enthusiasts could improve their games tremendously by having an occasional fling at duplicate. Nothing will make them more careful about apparent trifles which can spell the fate of an entire contract. Rubbers have a tendency to make some players develop speed and pride themselves upon it. As a consequence you will frequently see one of them rush into trouble such as blocking an entire suit that could easily be cleared by overtaking an intermediate card.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North and East passed on this deal and South opened with 1-Heart. North responded with 2-Clubs, South 2-No Trumps, North 3-Clubs, and South, figuring he had a splendid fit for clubs and protection in the other suits, called 3-No Trumps.

The diamond 4 was West's initial lead, which East won with the A. He returned the diamond 9, which South covered with the J and West took with the K. When South won the third diamond lead, he figured he was safe, for he could count six possible clubs and one trick each in the other three suits.

The declarer was fortunate in that the outstanding clubs were divided two-two, but was dismayed when he found after cashing the K and A that the 10 in his own hand blocked the suit. The lead of the 10 to the A on the second round would have meant success instead of failure.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

The Squirrel waited for a moment or two for Mary Jane to follow him. But Mary Jane, who was just a rag doll, just kept lying on the grass behind the hedge. She didn't move even the least little bit.

"Well," said the squirrel at last, "aren't you coming with me? It's getting late, you know. I want to get some sleep to-night and so do the rest of my family."

He started dragging her.

With that he hopped over to her, took hold of the back of her dress with his paws, and started dragging her over the grass to the old elm tree by the garden wall. Then he pulled Mary Jane through the round door of his house inside the hollow trunk of the tree. It was as dark as night. From somewhere inside the house she could hear tiny voices saying: "Is that you, Father?"

"I've brought company with me," the squirrel called back. "Turn on the glow lights, please."

Fireflies for Lights.

Little feet went scampering over the floor. The next instant Mary Jane was surprised to see clusters of small lights begin to glow in different parts of the house.

"They're really fireflies and glow worms," the squirrel explained to her. "They give a very good light, don't you think so? Here, let me help you on this chair. You'll find it comfortable, I'm sure you will."

He lifted her on a chair which was standing against the wall. The chair seemed to be made of twigs and reeds with a cushion of soft green moss.

She looked around. Over against the farthest wall were Mr. Squirrel's family, three little squirrels and their mother, all sitting up with their hands held in front of them as though they were getting ready to wave hello to her. And Mary Jane felt so happy she wanted to go to them. But she knew she was only a rag doll and couldn't.

Perils At Home

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 9 (AP)—The afternoon was sunny and warm and nine-year-old Bartholomew LaPorte wanted to go crabbing along West River, but his mother forbade the expedition. Disconsolate, Bartholomew wandered into a bedroom, climbed into a cedar chest and there, seven hours later, his mother found him—dead from suffocation. A lighted flashlight glowed beside the body.

Shoe Plant Reopens

GALT, Ont., July 9 (CP).—The Scott Shoe Company factory, closed for the past 17 days because of labor difficulties will be opened Monday morning, the management announced today.

Murray McGrigor, managing director of the company said an agreement effective until April 30 next has been signed by the company and by five employees chosen to represent all employees in the factory.

We Noticed

....Someone coolly attired in a dress of white linen with large brown buttons and wide brown belt. With it was worn an enormous hat of brown linen.

✧ ✧ ✧

....A linen dress was again the choice of another vacationist, and it was of bottle-green strikingly trimmed with buttons red as raspberries.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Gingham is being revived for sports clothes, and plaided frocks are being shown for evening.

✧ ✧ ✧

....One of the prettiest dirndl dresses we have seen was of natural-colored hop-sacking, made with high, shirred-in waist, and trimmed at the square neck and at the hem with bright wool braid.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Another dirndl dress, which seems to be everyone's pet this summer, was of white linen trimmed with red and blue tape bands at the neck and three slender rows around the full skirt.

Jean Kelly Weds Harvard Bamforth

Miss Helen Jean Kelly, daughter of Mrs. Kelly and the late James William Kelly, 352 McDonnel st., Peterborough, was married to Mr. Harvard Lake Bamforth, son of the Rev. R. Bamforth and Mrs. Bamforth, 33 Dennistoun avenue, on Wednesday at the home of the bride's mother.

Roses, regal lilies, larkspur and hydrangea decorated the house, and the officiating minister was the father of the bridegroom. Mrs. Burritt E. Kelly of Bobcaygeon, aunt of the bride, played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. W. Smith Kelly of Toronto, the bride wore a gown of white chiffon made on Grecian lines, with fingertip veil caught with a wreath of gardenias. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and lily-of-the-valley. Her attendant was her sister, Miss Gwen Kelly of Morristown, N.J., who wore a frock of yellow net, made with fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. She carried a fan bouquet of yellow roses and delphiniums. Dr. Frederick Bamforth of Columbus, Ohio, was groomsman.

A reception followed the ceremony, and the bride's mother received in a gown of delphinium blue chiffon with matching accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. The bridegrooms' mother was gowned in printed orchid chiffon, with matching hat and corsage of purple orchids.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Bamforth left for a trip to Gaspe, and on their return will live in Peterborough. The bride travelled in a frock of navy chiffon with white trimming, and white Panama hat.

Smart Jewelry Enhances Frocks

Hollywood film stars keep abreast—and at times just a little ahead—of the latest fashion trends. Although costume jewelry is not new by any means, it seems to have found a definite place in the wardrobes of smartly-dressed women, both in America and abroad.

Lovely Lucille Ball, film actress, is shown wearing a tricky new bracelet of pink crystals as she fastens a new type of pin on the collar of her becoming frock. The pin is a tiny gold hand holding a pink rose.

Although these costume accessories add a charming touch to her ensemble, you will have to agree that the frock would be lovely enough without them. It is a Quaker type dress of lightweight wool in gray, trimmed in men's cotton shirting in striped Paris pink.

Debutantes Have Additions Low-Cut Gowns

LONDON, July 9.—(AP—Debutantes appeared at Thursday's Royal Court with modest additions to low-cut gowns which Court circles had hinted were too decollete.

Unable to arrange for new costumes in a limited time a least seven debutantes fell back on scarves. Dressmakers hurriedly made the concealing drapes to match the gowns and the debutantes draped them around their shoulders when curtesying before the King.

Some society girls wore the low necklines and daring bodice effects. Gossips predicted the Earl of Clarendon, the Lord Chamberlain, might do something about it.

"To Tan Or Not To Tan"

The yearly problem of whether you will try to get sunburned or not this summer is here. You should be guided more by the sort of life you lead than by your complexion and coloring. If you live in the country, or if you are going on a long holiday, if you look your best in cotton frocks and bathing suits, then it is worth your while to take trouble to work up a lovely golden tan. This is how to do it.

First you must find out what is the reaction of your skin to the sun. Acclimatize it gently; five to ten minutes in the sun the first day, ten to twenty the second, according to the strength of the sun.

Next, protect your skin while you tan by a suntan oil or lotion; use it liberally before each sunbathe. If you want to brown quickly use a mixture of three parts pure olive oil to one part vinegar.

When you have the tan you want, take care to match your make-up to it. Beware of using too light a powder, or a purplish lipstick; all lipsticks and rouges should have an orangy tint. Make-up should look as natural as possible; go easy with the rouge, and put vaseline instead of eyeblack on your lashes and eyelids. At night give your skin special care and rub in skin food round your eyes to avoid any wrinkles.

Lastly, about your hair. The sun is excellent for most heads, giving them life and color, and bleaching golden lights into dull or mousy hair.

You should take a bottle of good brilliantine in case your hair gets too dry from over-exposure, and give it an extra brushing at night. There are only two heads that should be kept out of the sun, the two extremes. The owner of shining blue-black hair should always be sun shy, because too much sun will give it a reddish tint which will ruin the ravens wing effect.

The other head is that of the genuine silver-flaxen blonde, whose delicate fine hair wil get dull and lifeless if exposed to the sun and will need a lot of oil baths to get it right again.

Where The Pearls Are Found

Although it may ruin an illusion, it is necessary to state that true pearls never occur in edible oysters.

"Blister" pearls are attached to the shell and are not true pearls. They are flattened and irregular in shape.

"Conch" pearls are not usually classed as true pearls, as the shell of the conch pearl is pink—and it is from this that we get our shell cameos.

The source of the "oriental" pearl is the Persian Gulf, the north and north-east coasts of Australia, Japan, Panama, Venezuela, and the South Sea Islands. Fresh water pearls are found in the waters of the United States (mostly in tributaries to the Mississippi) and in

Slacks and Chic Trench Coat Are Informal for Resort

Courtesy Good Housekeeping

By LISBETH

Slacks and trench coat make an informal and comfortable costume for resort and Hollywood wear. For the two costumes pictured here are smart in Hollywood, where one's favorite movie star may stroll as casually down the street, even as you and I!

The slacks are one-piece celanese rayon sharkskin and they are photographed on Hollywood boulevard, one of the most famous streets in the world. The trench coat, as you see, is knee-length and tied with a self-material sash around the waist.

A printed batiste dress is covered by a collarless coat and worn by the figure on the right. The informal suits are particularly good in California, where a woman who has been lounging slips a skirt over her play suit, adds a jaunty hat, changes her sandals and is ready for a studio confernece or the smart shops.

Striped Silk Chic

The striped silk sports frock is another summer favorite in more formal wear. In a coat frock in men's shirting stripe it is very chic with flap pockets on both skirt and bodice.

Sheer voiles, batistes and fine printed muslins are becoming more and more popular as the summer advances. The silhouette, in most case, is quite simple, with all-pleated skirts rivaling the gored models for popularity.

There are many slide fasteners and button trims, as well as finishing touches of narrow lace or organdie collar, cuffs and pockets.

There are fewer flock dots than last year, although navy with white dots is in the fashion picture.

Jacket frocks in sheers are very good this year. Some shown have square or round boleros. Waist, hip-length and full-length matching coats or jackets are good and are often the choice of the well-dressed woman.

White and natural shade frocks with jackets of bright printed linens or plain linens with multi-colored embroideries are attractive and well liked.

Wooden beads in many colors, and simulated wooden beads on patent leather belts are a feature of some of the newer bright summer frocks.

Branch Notes

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH

On Thursday evening the first meeting of the summer was held. The annual report for 1937-1938 was given by the treasurer, Jack Adamson.

All members were asked to attend the district council picnic at Chemong Thursday, July 21. To meet at the church at 6 o'clock.

A picnic was also decided upon for Saturday, July 16th to Birdsall's. The members to meet at the church at 2 o'clock. So come and have a good time.

Rev. T. S. Gault brought the meeting to a close.

Callander Expects Swarms of Tourists

The popularity of the Dionne quintuplets, four years old last May 28, seems to increase with their years. Tourists swarming into the little Village of Callander, 200 miles north of Toronto, will swell to 500,000 the number of unseen admirers visiting them this summer, it is estimated. Last year almost 400,000 viewed the intriguing little sisters—Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Marie—from the screened, horse-shoe-shaped observation gallery through which interested visitors were permitted to watch them at their play.

It is suggested that this may be the last season people will be permitted to observe them, which will be sad news for their many interested friends.

This autumn a home for the quints, their mother and father, Oliva and Elzire Dionne, and their seven brothers and sisters will be completed, ant it is possible when the quints are living there visitors will see them only from a distance, possibly 100 to 200 yards.

The new home will bring the Dionne family together for the first time since the fall of 1934 when the children were moved from their father's farmhouse to the Dafoe nursery 100 yards away.

Since then Dionne has striven to regain control of his children which was vested in a guardianship board, appointed by the Ontario Government, and of which he was a member. Appeals to the Provincial Government for a judicial investigation of the guardianship, in which Dionne did not co-operate, brought a conference at which it was decided to bring the family together. However, their affairs still will be looked after by the board.

The children themselves are growing every month, are never sick, and play as happily in the hot sun these days as they did in 40-below-zero weather last winter. They have just completed work in their third feature length motion picture, for which a cinema company came to Callander. In the film the children sing in French, their mother tongue, and speak a few words of English.

Italian scientists have developed a type of translucent glass which permits beneficial solar rays to pass through, but keeps out the sun's heat.

Mrs. J. Ego Is W.M.S. Hostess

Mrs. J. P. Ego, Gladstone avenue, was hostess to the members of the W.M.S. of Knox church on Thursday afternoon, when their monthly meeting was held. Mrs. A. Sanderson, president of the society, presided, and opened the meeting with a hymn and prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted and the treasurer's report given.

Mrs. Wm. Stevens gave a report of the Christian Stewardship; Mrs. J. Menzies the report from the Associate Helpers, and the devotional period was in charge of Mrs. J. Gerard. A paper on the last two chapters of the study book was given by Mrs. R. J. Sargent, and a pleasing duet by the Misses Bessie Hutton and Marjorie Lewis was much enjoyed.

The guest speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. W. H. Morton, president of the Presbyterial, was introduced by the president. Mrs. Morton, taking as her theme the last words of our Saviour before his ascension, which were "Unto the uttermost parts of the earth," painted a vivid word picture of the religion of Africa, India and Asia where the people are tortured by fear and superstition in their religion, comparing it with the Christian gospel of love. She also urged her listeners to give a welcoming word of cheer to the so-called foreigners who are trying to make homes for themselves in our land, and who, unable to understand our language and customs, often find themselves lonely. Experience, said the speaker, has proved that these people when trained and educated make splendid citizens.

After the president had expressed the appreciation of the members for Mrs. Morton's splendid address, the meeting closed with a hymn and the benediction.

Mrs. Ego, assisted by the social committee, served refreshments, and a social half-hour was spent. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the hostess for her kind hospitality.

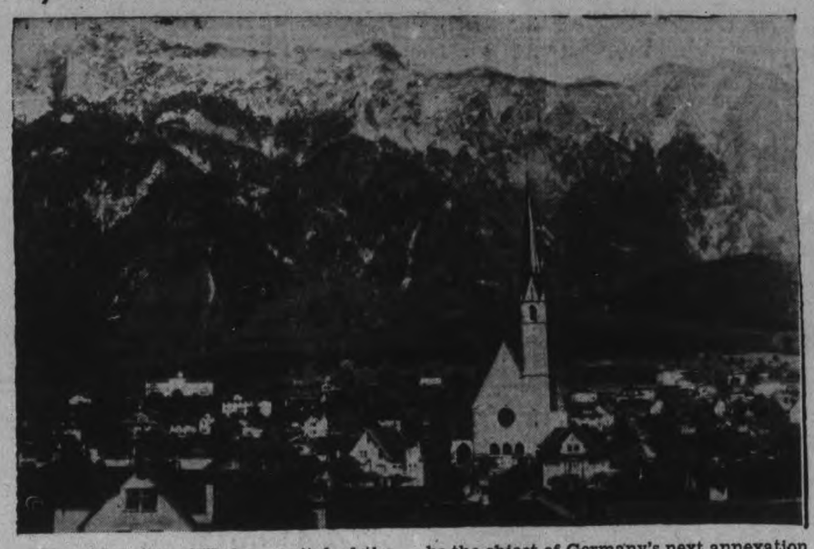
Tiny Liechtenstein In Nazi Shadow



Here is a view of Vaduz, capital of the tiny principality of Liechtenstein, where Austria's western frontier touches the Alps of Switzerland. It is rumored in the chancelleries of Europe that Liechtenstein may be the object of Germany's next annexation move. Last March the 85-year-old Prince Franz abdicated in favor of his nephew, largely because of Nazi tendencies in his land, and because his wife is part Jewish.

Ontario's Crops Looking Above Average

TORONTO, July 9 (C.P.).—Crop conditions for the whole of Ontario on July 1 were "average to above average," the Provincial Agriculture Department reported to-day in the monthly summary of its Statistics Branch, but crops "are now at a critical stage and a shortage of moisture would severely lessen the yield."

Fall wheat is ripening and harvesting will start about the end of next week, with prospects favorable for an above-normal yield. In Kent and Lambton Counties, an average yield of 28 to 30 bushels is predicted, against an all-province average last year of 24.5 bushels.

Barley conditions follow the general trend, and prospects elsewhere are highly favorable except in the territory from Lincoln to Leeds, where "the satisfactory filling of spring grains now in head is quite dependent on receiving rainfall during the next two weeks."

Cutting of hay, clover and alfalfa is reported near completion in Western Ontario and in full swing in the East. The yield is reported to range only from medium to average, but the quality is excellent and the feeding value higher than last year.

70,000 Acres of Tobacco.

Weather conditions were favorable for tobacco with the exceptions of winds which did minor damage in Norfolk. Blown-out areas there were replanted, but the new tobacco started slowly because of lack of moisture. About 70,000 acres of tobacco have been planted in the province this year, compared with 58,000 in 1937.

Reports state that sugar beets "never looked better at this time of the year." The beets benefitted by two weeks of dry weather after a period of wet.

The early potato crop in southwestern Ontario is moving in volume, and the quality is good with no evidence of rot. Quantity and size are not so good as last year because of lack of moisture, but the market is firm at $2.00 to the wholesale dealer.

Insect damage has been about average, though potato flea beetles have been abundant and the seed corn maggot did more damage than usual. June beetle flights indicate that next year more damage than usual may be expected from the larvae, white grubs.

The stations will be for the use of missionaries of all denominations and have been paid for by lectures given in the United States by Father Schulte.

100-Year Dispute

which followed a 3½-hour session of the Chaco Peace Conference in the foreign office here, 76-year-old Foreign Minister Eduard Diez Demedina of Bolivia and Paraguayan Foreign Minister Cecilio Baez embraced warmly.

Last War Cost 100,000 Men

Delegates of the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and Uruguay also put their initials on the document.

In a war over the Gran Chaco in 1932-1935, Bolivia and Paraguay lost an estimated 100,000 men. When a truce finall ywas signed. Paraguay was left in possession of most of the area—well over 50,000 square miles. Since then the six neutral countries have tried to get a definite boundary agreement.

The Chaco—partly jungle, bone dry in the dry season and almost a lake in the rainy period—became a bone of contention only after Paraguay and Bolivia began to expand. Paraguayans settled the more fruitful strip of the area and Bolivians the western edge, where there are oil deposits of doubtful quality. Eventually Bolivian and Paraguayan men met in no man's land, and sparks flew. Efforts to settle upon a definite boundary have failed since 1870.

Hughes Flies To Paris Under 17 Hrs.

Half Lindbergh Time Crack In Tail Delays Moscow Hop

PARIS, July 11.—(AP)—Howard Hughes, after spanning the Atlantic—New York to Paris non-stop—in less than half of Colonel Charles Lindbergh's time, was delayed tonight on his globe-girdling flight by bad weather and slight damage to his big twin-motored monoplane.

Hughes landed at Le Bourget airport at 4.55 p.m. (11.55 p.m. EDT) on a trans-Atlantic flight from New York, the first leg of a projected round-the-world flight.

The fliers had hoped to be off for Moscow within two hours after landing from his record-shattering crossing, 16 hours, 35 minutes, from New York.

But at the last minute a slight crack was discovered in the tail of his plane. He estimtaed repairs would require three hours.

Hughes himself was at the controls when the plane was wheeled to the runway late in the afternoon preparatory to the take-off for Moscow. But he wheeled it back into the hangar and announced he would not take off for Moscow on the second leg until to-morrow.

The airport's official control time for the landing was 3.55 p.m. GMT (11.55 a.m. EDT), computed to the moment the propellors stopped.

The American sportsman glided to an easy landing, running up a concrete runway in front of the airdrome where a crowd of officials and onlookers ran to meet the big, gleaming twin-motored plane.

His time from New York was 16 hours, 55 minutes—about half the time of Colonel Lindbergh, who flew non-stop from New York to Paris in 1927 in 33½ hours.

Hughes and his four-man crew were expected to remain in Paris long enough to refuel, make repairs and then take off for Moscow in hope of completing their round-the-world Odyssey within six days.

The big plane rolled up to a gentle stop in front of Le Bourget field's main building. Hughes, however, did not cut the two motors for almost a full minute after rolling to a stop—the first flier since Lindbergh to make the flight.

As soon as the propellers stopped whirring United States Ambassador William Bullitt went to the door of the plane and opened it. He stuck his head in and shouted:

"Did you have a good trip"

Russia Next.

Hughes said he was planning to take off for Russia "as quickly as possible."

And that means "one or two hours," he added.

Hughes was the first of his crew to alight. He was evidently tired, but had a broad grin on his face. Before coming out he had taken the trouble to put on a necktie and place a hat on his head.

The flight leader was followed by the other four airmen.

"We had a fine trip," said Hughes. "We made it in 16 hours 31 minutes."

Hughes evidently figured his elapsed time from the moment the airport was sighted, as other calculations gave 16 hours 55 minutes.

French air officers stepped up to pat Hughes on the back and touch his hand.

Bullitt introduced French officers to Hughes and members of his crew.

49 Panes Of Glass Are Broken At South Central

FORTY-NINE panes of glass were broken in the South Central School Saturday night by a gang of young hoodlums who threw stones through the windows on the east side of the building. Apparently not satisfied with breaking the panes by missiles from outside the gang made their way into the school and smashed other windows by tossing stones from the inside. At least when people in the neighborhood heard the sound of broken glass the ammunition was being hurled from the interior of the building. The police were called but the hoodlums had made their escape before the officers arrived.

British Troops Shoot Way Out Of Ambush

JERUSALEM, July 11.—(AP)—A patrolling squad of British troops and Palestine police today killed 10 members of an attacking band and wounded many others in beating off an ambuscade near Mount Tabor, biblical home of the Prophetess Deborah.

One Jewish supernumerary constable was killed and another wounded in the battle, waged in the village of Dabbourieyeh.

This clash brought total casualties in the week's bloody conflict to more than 300.

Countrywide reports reaching the Jerusalem central police headquarters showed five Jews were killed and eight wounded in outbreaks of violence Sunday.

The second week of the Holy Land's newest wave of terrorism found telephone communications cut over the whole of North Palestine.

Police and marines maintained order in Haifa. All Arab shops were closed. Night fires broke out in Jewish property near the Arab market area, but were quickly brought under control.

Shot In Barber Chair

A 24-hour curfew was imposed at Tulkarem. An Arab police inspector, Salim Bitar, was killed while sitting in a barber chair there. Four men entered the shop and riddled his body with bullets.

A large band attacked the Jewish settlement of Givat Ada and was reported to have suffered "heavy" casualties. The band entered the village and wounded three guards and kidnapped two children. Neighboring villages sent aid and drove out the raiders.

A group of army officers in Jerusalem dashed from their hotel and arrested an Arab when a bomb exploded outside. Police seized many other bombs. One was planted in the lobby of Jerusalem's newest movie theatre. Another was found in an Arab house in the village of Lifta at the outskirts of the city. A third was taken from a pedestrian's pocket on the east side of Jerusalem.

Tent-Caterpillar Army

TIMMINS, Ont., July 11—(CP)—A tent-caterpillar army is on the march towards Timmins. Tens of thousands of the pests are marching on the town.

They overran the stands at the soft-ball grounds, and ruined the grass. Saturday they crossed the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway tracks at the golf course and are now marching down the highway—towards town.

Under Water 9 Minutes Man Rescued

Gallant Rescue Made By Youth In Trent Canal

A gallant rescue by seventeen-year-old Ernie Hotrum of 216 Park street north and splendid resuscitation work by a squad of city firemen saved the life of Harry Kester, 23, representative of a Toronto firm, after he had been beneath the water of the Trent Canal Sunday evening for period estimated at nine minutes.

The rescued man is not out of danger, and this morning his condition was regarded at St. Joseph's Hospital as serious.

Kester, who roomed at the home of Robert Hotrum, 216 Park street, had returned Sunday evening from a trip to Stoney Lake with Mr. Hotrum and his son and it was decided to go to the canal for a swim. Kester and Ernest Hotrum went into the water just north of the lock at the canal entrance and the latter who is a good swimmer, swam up to the bridge above. Kester had swam across the canal and rested for a few minutes, clinging to a scow and then started to swim back again. He got into difficulties half was across, called feebly for help and then sank after Sid Parsons had made a plucky but unsuccessful attempt to save him and was nearly dragged down himself.

Robt. Hotrum, who had gone for a walk, saw the danger and ran for the life preserver at the lock and at the same time gave the alarm to his son and to members of the crew of the Bessie Butler, which was tied up below the lock.

Swims to Rescue.

A call was sent to the fire hall for assistance and meanwhile young Hotrum swam rapidly back to the scene. By this time the scow had been pushed out from shore and an effort made to locate Kester by means of pikepoles. Hotrum dived to the bottom once and failed to find his friend and then, after a brief rest, he plunged in again and

Mounties Urge Gun Registering

OTTAWA, July 11.—(CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters today issued a statement urging the public to co-operate in enforcing the new amendment to the criminal code with respect to registration of revolvers and pistols which was passed at the recent session of parliament.

The amendment requires persons possessing revolvers or pistols to register them between March 1 and July 1, 1939, and periodically every five years thereafter. In 1934, when registration of weapons was first made compulsory by parliament, no provision was made for a periodical re-registration.

The amendment, the statement said, will have "the effect of helping the public to decide whether they really desire to retain, as souvenirs or for the sake of protection, pistols and revolvers which may be stolen, and therefore may be a source of danger rather than protection. The law compels the registration of all pistols and revolvers, whether held at souvenirs or for any other purpose. In Great Britain, all dangerous weapons of this kind must be re-regsitered every three years."

Timmins Old Timers Recall Fire Of 1911

TIMMINS, Ont., July 11—(CP)—Old-time residents recalled today another fateful July 11, just 27 years ago, when a forest fire swept through South Porcupine, Timmins, Schumacher and part of Porcupine, claiming 73 lives.

"The wind reached hurricane proportions about noon," Jack Easton an undertaker here recalled, and in two hours and a half the destruction was complete."

Manion Hides Away For Week of Peace Will Pick Seat On Return

Ottawa, July 11.

HON. DR. ROBERT J. Manion, Conservative Leader, will defer a decision on the question of from which constituency he will seek entry to the House of Commons until his return from a vacation next week, he said today.

Mr. and Mrs. Manion were preparing today to leave for a week's vacation at the seashore. Just where the vacation will be spent was kept secret because the new leader wants a week "of perfect peace."

There are three constituencies from any one of which Dr. Manion may seek election. They are London, Waterloo South and the Yukon. The former two have been vacated by death. In the latter Mrs. George Black has offered to resign in Dr. Manion's favor.

Gastric Influenza Attack Sends King To Bed

Queen Spends Sunday In Nurse's Role; Recovery Likely In Time For Paris Visit

WINDSOR, England, July 11 (AP).—Cheered by the fact the King spent a quiet night, Queen Elizabeth motored to Buckingham Palace today from the royal lodge, Windsor Great Park, where the King is ill with gastrict influenza.

Viscount Dawson of Penn and Sir John Weir, physicians attending the King, examined him during the morning.

The Queen packed her two daughters off to London yesterday and spent the day nursing her husband. As a girl of 16, Her Majesty cared for war wounded at Glamis Castle, her home in Scotland, and ably she took over the task of administering the diet of milk the King's doctors ordered.

It was His Majesty's first illness since he became King in December, 1936.

A presentation party to have been held last night at Buckingham Palace was cancelled, as was a visit to a London hospital today.

A visit to Birmingham set for Thursday, to open that city's £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) hospital centre, probably will be cancelled also, along with an afternoon party at Buckingham Palace July 18, the day before the King and Queen are due to sail for France on a visit of state.

Will Not Mar Paris Trip

The visit has been postponed once—because of the death of the Queen's mother—but there was hope today the King would be recovered sufficiently to go this time. The first signs of illness appeared Saturday night when he retired early, complaining of a slight temperature.

He and the Queen had motored to Windsor Friday night. The family spent a quiet Sunday. Princess Elizabeth and her sister, Princess Margaret, went to services alone in the royal chapel Sunday morning before going back to London.

Physicians were summoned from London yesterday but the illness was not made public until last night's bulletin by Lord Dawson. It said the King was suffering from "a mild attack of gastric influenza which will necessitate rest for the next two days, especially having in view His Majesty's projected visit to France."

One informant said the present illness was a "recurrence of gastric trouble from which he has suffered from time to time."

Refugee Board Seems Assured

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France, July 11 (AP).—Virtual agreement on an Anglo-American plan for a permanent committee in London to handle the problem of world refugees was reached in private talks among the delegates of the 32-nation refugee conference here, attaches of the various delegations reported today.

A proposal that the permanent committee, as soon as it is established, ascertain how many refugees must be cared for and how much land is available for them in the 32 countries represented at the conference, was advanced by Constantino Herdocio, speaking for Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras and Panama.

Herdocio, a Nivaraguan, suggested that all participants then accept refugees, at least of the agricultural class, on a percentage basis to be worked out according to each country's ability to absorb them.

Francis Cremins of Eire, pointing to large Irish emigration, declared there was "not even land available to meet the needs of her own people." Heinrich Rothmund of Switzerland also closed the door except for refugees "wishing to stay a few days or weeks."

Accident Is Fatal

KINGSTON, Ont., July 11—(CP)—Leonard Head, 32, of Toronto seriously injured in a car accident three miles east of Odessa Sunday, died today in Kingston General Hospital.

Chief County Coroner Dr. F. C. Wilson, Napanee, has not determined as yet if an inquest will be held.

Provincial Traffic Officer Henry Jillings of Napanee is investigating the accident.

Cow Behind Idea To Annex Part Of Maine

FORT KENT, Me., July 11 (AP).—Ralph O. Brewster, member of the United States House of Representatives for Maine, today said a cow prodded citizens of Escourt, Que., into asking that a sliver of Maine be annexed to the Dominion.

The Escort Catholic union of farmers introduced a petition into the Canadian parliament asking that a topmost section of Maine, in township 20, be added to Canada. The petition was denied on the grounds that it was improperly framed, and might offend a friendly neighbor.

Brewster, returning from Escourt said the cow was owned by an Escourt resident. The animal wandered onto the United States side of the border. The owner had to pay a customs fee of $25 to get it back.

That was the straw which broke the back of Escourtian patience. They had suffered all manner of inconveniences because of their border location.

Some of the homes are located half in the United States and half in Canada, and grocers and tradespeople sometimes called at the wrong door—stepping into American territory and finding they must pay a customs duty on goods. Escourt citizens determined to remove the difficulty by asking that the border be moved to a wilderness section where such inconveniences could not happen.

Only one American family would have become inhabitants of Canada by the change in location, Brewster said.

Since the annexation petition had been doomed and because the United States would not countenance loss of any Maine territory, Brewster said the solution lay in a more lenient customs attitude toward the citizens of Escourt.

$500 Reward Claimed In Dome Gold Case

TORONTO, July 11 (C.P.). — Attorney-General G. D. Conant said to-day one person had claimed the $5,000 reward offered by the Provincial Government for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons stealing $41,000 in gold concentrates from the Dome Gold Mine office on June 7 at South Porcupine.

Mr. Conant said he would not reveal the name of the claimant, a private party not a policeman, until the aid of the party played in the arrests was proven responsible for the arrest and conviction of the thieves.

Police now hold Leslie West, 22, of Timmins and Otto Fabbro, arrested on July 7, on charges of stealing the gold.

Gang Of Expert Crackers Carry Out Raid Get $635 In Company Safe

3,000-Pound Safe Upset On Floor Heavy Door Is Removed At The Coca Cola Company Plant

Breaking into the massive safe in the office of the Coca Cola Company on George Street, early Sunday morning, a band of what the police believe to have been expert safe crackers, carried off the cash box, containing $603.66 in cash and $31.38 in cheques.

The burglary was not discovered until noon on Sunday when W. J. Begley, one of the office staff, visited the building and found the huge safe, weighing between 2,500 and 3,000 pounds, lying on its back with the heavy door completely off.

The burglars had entered the building by the garage at the rear, using an iron bar to rip the hinge off the door. Once inside they apparently had gone to work coolly and methodically. The first job was to provide a cushion upon which to turn over the safe so that the noise of its fall might be deadened, and for this purpose they carried bags of lime from the basement and spread them out on the floor, adding rubber hose, a pair of rubber boots, sweaters, windbreakers, raincoats and other clothing belonging to Coca Cola employees and even the doormat from inside the front door.

These preliminaries over, the burglars—it is estimated from the weight of the safe that there must have been at least three of them and probably more—turned the safe over into the pile of material on the floor and commenced with hack saws to saw through the two hinges on the door. Police believe this operation must have taken at least two hours. Then with the hinges sawn through, wrecking bars were used to gradually pry off the ponderous door until access could be had to the cash box. This was carried off, the thieves not waiting to try to open it on the premises.

All the tools used in the operations were left behind. Two saws and two crowbars were on the desk in the office and on the floor police found a screw driver with a taped handle that had been abandoned by the gang. Lime had been spilled all over the ground floor of the building as the bags were carried into the office from the basement and the foot prints of the burglars could be seen in the white deposit on the floor. From there it was clear that one of the gang was wearing shoes of the scamper type, with corrugated rubber soles.

The whole operation, according to having been a professional job. The the police, has every indication of burglars knew how to go about covering up the sound of unsetting the safe and getting the door off.

It is believed that they would not need a light as there are two street lamps outside that provide plenty of illumination for the office which is at the front of the building. There was no signs of a break-in from the outside and the thieves undoubtedly closed the door of the garage behind them after they got inside so that the police officers covering that beat would find nothing wrong as they passed.

Parliament Rated Very Low In Dicken's Opinion

LONDON, July 11 (CP).—More than 1,000 letters by Charles Dickens, including an outburst against the Morning Chronicle for which he once worked, were placed on sale today.

Among the collection, taken from the famous library of the Comte de Suzannet of Luasanne, is a series of 175 letters written by the author to Thomas Beard, parliamentary editor of the Chronicle when Dickens was a press gallery reporter.

In one he told of his experiences in covering an election campaign in horse-drawn vehicles. He wrote:

"I wish to God that you could have see me tolling in an out of the banners, drums, Conservative emblers, horsemen and gocarts with which every little green was filled. Every time the horse heard a drum he bounded into the hedge on the left side of the road, and every time I got him out of that he bounded into the hedge on the right side."

Dickens appears to have formed a low opinion of parliament. In a letter to Dr. Southwood Smith on social reform he wrote:

"I greatly fear that until governments are honest, and parliament pure, and great men less considered and small men more so, it is almost a cruelty to limit even the dreadful hours and ways of labor that at this time prevail. Want is so general, distress so great and poverty so rampant."

Something On The Chronicle

His letter to bear on the treatment he received when he left the Chronicle in 1836 he said:—

"I did expect on leaving to receive some slight written acknowledgment from the proprietors of the Morning Chronicle of the sense they entertained of the services I had performed.

"During the whole period of my engagement, whenever there was a difficult and harassing duty to be performed—travelling at a few hours notice hundreds of miles in the depth of winter — leaving hot and crowded rooms to write the whole night through in a close, damp chaise—tearing along and writing the most important speeches under every possible circumstance of disadvantage and difficulty. I did not think that my reward at last would be a regret that I had enjoyed a few weeks' rest and fear lest at the close of two years I should have received six pounds six shilling too much.

"I am happy to say that I can afford to part with the thanks of the proprietors."

Dog Breaks Its Leg But Stays On Waiting Its Master

Phildalphia, July 11.

A SMALL woolly dog, resembling a very dirty lamb, still stood today—on a patched-up broken leg—at a subway entrance awaiting the master who has yet to return. The dog began its vigil four days ago. Last night a truck hit it, breaking a leg. Three taxicab drivers got splints and bandages and in the light of the street lamp re-set the bone. The canine patient snapped down two hamburgers and returned to its post.

Gales Slash, Uproot Crops In Western Ontario

TORONTO, July 11 (CP)—Western Ontario farmers counted gains and losses today after a week-end of inclement weather that brought beating rain, hail and near-cyclonic winds to some sections and only a slight let-up in the heat wave to others.

Rain that fell in some parts was helpful to maturing crops, while the sheer force of the storm took heavy tolls among less hardy plantings.

The greatest damage was caused in the Niagara district, around Ingersoll and in Norfolk county, where terrific winds uprooted crops and beat down smaller growth. Saturday's scattered bursts of storm followed on those which struck Friday night in the Lake Simcoe district and on Pelee Island, in Lake Erie.

In the midst of an electrical storm in the Ingersoll district Saturday, part of the roof of Harry Hinge's barn in North Oxford township was blown off and bits were scattered about the countryside. Trees were blown down and crops damaged. Branches fell on Ingersoll streets and hydro electric power service was disrupted.

Trees were uprooted and tobacco ruined around Simcoe and Tillsonburg. About 400 or 500 acres of tobacco was damaged in the Tillsonburg district, to a possible extent of 80 per cent. Barns were damaged as wind of hurricane proportions accompanied torrential rainfall.

Farther west only light showers fell and farmers, anxious over crops nearly ready for harvesting, were delighted Sunday night when rains fell in the district between Windsor and London.

Good Customer Is Seen In Belgium If Wheat Price Right

Quebec, July 11.

BELIEF BELGIUM purchases of Canadian wheat this autumn will "depend upon the price and United States competition" was expressed by Yves Lamontagne, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Brussels, on his arrival here aboard the liner Duchess of Bedford.

The United States, Mr. Lamontagne said, is Canada's chief competitor in the Belgium market, but if the Canadian price is "right," he indicated Belgium again will be the good customer it has been in the past.

New Potatoes 20 Cents On The Market

New potatoes at 25 and 20 cents a peck featured the Saturday market with the sharpest decline in recent weeks. Delbert Olan of Cavan Township had a fairly large offering of certified Cobblers at the higher price of 25 cents the peck, and that price was fairly general except for smaller sized potatoes that were quoted at 20 cents. Farmers expected the decline on the strength of increased supplies reaching the city during the week. Some of the district growers and others from beyond the immediate township disposed of stocks along the main street during the week at prices that meant a loss to the retail dealers on the stock they had on hand.

Bert Arnott's home-grown tomatoes were the first of the season, selling at 25 cents for the ordinary quart-sized berry box quantity. The tomato crop is reported to be exceptionally promising, but it will likely be a few more weeks before the Peterborugh product appears in volume.

Offa Williamson presented another market feature in the first showing of clover honey, two-pound tins selling at 35 cents and four-pounders at 60 cents. Mr. Williamson disposed of his entire supply. Strawberries continued to attract buyers, and several growers were getting 15 cents a box for large and clean fruit.

Huckleberries 20 Cents a Quart.

Huckleberries were 20 cents a quart box and were rather plentiful. Bill Saltern from over in the eastern section of Dummer told The Examiner the crop was better than it had been for the last three or four years. He is one of the pickers who will likely be in again next Saturday.

Cabbage and cauliflower from local gardens were 5 cents a head, carrots and beets 5 cents a bunch, and generally six bunches for 25

Karr of Toledo, Ohio and Jack Peterson, Peterborough collided at the intersection of McDonnel and Aylmer street and the Ohio car was turned over, coming to rest up-side-down on the pavement. Third Set Of Twins Are Born To Couple In B.C.

Vancouver, July 11.

VANCOUVER physicians described as a "record in Canadian medical history" the birth of a third consecutive set of twins to Mrs. Jack Dye, 36-year-old wife of an unemployed chauffeur.

The latest set—a girl and a boy—were born here Saturday. There were already five other children—twe sets of twins and another child born singly.

Doctors said the latest twins—like their brothers and sisters, Marion, 8, Dorothy and Donald, 4, and Joan and John, 18 months—are "normal and doing fine."

"I think I've read somewhere about three consecutive sets of twins," said Dr. C. W. Whittaker, attending physician, "but I've certainly never come across it before."

Girl Athletes Shattered Seven Records

TORONTO, July 11 (CP)—Ontario's girl athletes today surveyed their record-breaking performances in the annual provincial women's track and field championships Saturday when two Canadian and five Ontario records were shattered.

Both new national records were established in junior events, Thelma Mantle of Toronto Lakesides winning the junior 60 metres hurdles in 9.7 seconds after having equalled the old mark of 9.8 seconds in winning her preliminary heat.

The other Dominion mark to fall was the junior 400 metres relay record when Miss H. Ince, H. Morrison, P. Davis and N. Murrall sprinted the distance in the new time of 50.4 seconds.

Only senior mark to fall was the provincial discus throw record. Lois Schoenberg of the Hamilton Olympic Club won this event with a toss of 97 feet, 10 inches. Junior provincial marks were set up in the shot put, the discus throw, the broad-jump and the javelin throw.

Toronto Laurels won aggregate team honors with 82 points. Hamilton Olympic Club was second with 34. Senior individual honors were shared by Dot Smerdon of Laurels, Mary Haydon of Ottawa and Jeanette Dolson, Olympic and Empire Games runner from the Toronto St. Clair Club.

The three won seven of the 10 individual events between them, Miss Smerdon accounting for the shot put, the javelin throw and the baseball throw. Miss Haydon won the high jump and the broad jump while Miss Dolson won the 60 metres and 100 metres sprints.

Jessie Smerdon of Laurels led the junior record-breakers with two new provincial marks to her credit.

Picnic Is Planned By Millbrook W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, July 11.—The July meeting of the local branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Alex Harkness, Union street, on Saturday at 8 p.m., with the president, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, in the chair, and over twenty-five members and visitors, including a number of girls from the Klim Club, in attendance.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. M. Ball, showed $3.25 fees and $2.50 from piano rent, since the last meeting. On hand at present is $37.00. No reply has yet been received from the Morrish branch, invited as guests of the Millbrook society some time this month, and the executive was appointed to act as refreshment committee, and Mrs. H. Nattress and Mrs. B. L. Richards as a reception committee to welcome the visiting organization.

Announcement was made that July 30 will be "Achievement day" for the girls' clubs of the county, and will be in the Town Hall, Millbrook, beginning at 9.30 a.m., with the general public invited. Projects carried on through the year will be demonstrated.

Mrs. W. H. Armstrong took the chair for the program, presented by the local girls' club, of which she is leader, and the roll call was called by Marian Belch, secretary, the response being "Something I have learned about milk." A comprehensive report of the recent Girls' Conference at the O.A.C., Guelph, was given by the local delegates, Jean Belch and Kathleen Smith, illustrated lectures on the birds of Ontario, the subject of good manner and their advantages, tours of the barns and the livestock arena, being among the advantages enjoyed, and capably described by the girls.

After discussion, it was decided to hold the annual picnic at the Mansion grounds on Wednesday, August 10, Mrs. George Falls, Mrs. E. C. Richards, and Mrs. H. J. Armstrong being appointed as sports' committee; members will bring baskets, and their own dishes.

The girls served homemade candy during the social hour enjoyed at the close; business items will receive attention at the picnic which will take the place of the August meeting.

Loyalists Defending Last Mountain Lines

HENDAYE, July 11 (A.P.).—The Spanish government rushed all available reinforcements into the Espadan Mountains to-day to form a human wall against the last natural barrier to the insurgent advance against Sagunto and Valencia.

Insurgent despatches said the range had been "invested," but military observers expressed doubt that the insurgents had enough manpower to surround the mountains completely.

Squadrons of insurgent warplanes swept over government lines in the Espadans to-day in successive attacks. Reports from the battle zone said the defenders were hanging on.

General Vargia Valino's Navarrese troops, climbing goat trails in the face of government machine-gun nests, were trying to break through to Segorbe, "backdoor to Sagunto," before General Miguel Aranda's Galician army could drive down the coast to Sagunto.

Meanwhile, the government was using all men not needed at the front to strengthen the fortifications both at Sagunto and Valencia, which the militia has been ordered to hold at all costs.

Hughes Flies

The five fliers went to the airport commandant's office after police succeeded in cutting a pathway through the dense crowds cheering: "Vive les Americans!"

A special ground crew took the plane in hand immediately after Hughes and his crew left it and began to tune up the motor. Gasoline trucks were backed up and started immediately refuelling.

Took All By Surprise.

So quickly did the plane arrive at the airport that everyone was caught unaware. The first inkling was when the plane appeared out of the clouds to descend quickly to the field.

Because the plane is of the same type as those used by a large commercial airline with a terminal here, many observers thought at first the plane was simply another airliner from London.

The first intimation officials had the fliers were over France was a message informing Le Bourget they were about to land.

It barely had been received when the plane's broad wings dipped down toward the surprised crowds. Until that moment, in fact, airport officials denied the fliers even had reached the French coast.

Hughes said he had not been able to check but he believed he had 250 gallons of gasoline left when he landed.

Weather Good Ahead

Hughes was so eager to get off as fast as possible he refused to eat or drink. He said weather reports showed good conditions on the other side of the Rhine and he would head straight for Moscow by way of Cologne, Germany. Permission to fly over Germany, he said, had been granted.

(The airline distance from Paris to Moscow is 1,541 miles, about eight hours flying time if Hughes' plane matches its transatlantic speed.)

Forty minutes after touching ground, the sportsman was poring over weather maps. His plane already was being fueled and oiled. Mechanics were checking and overhauling it.

Flies Great Circle

Flying the 3,600-mile "great circle" route traversed by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in 1926, Hughes had expected to land at Le Bourget field in Paris 22 or 24 hours after his takeoff. He was the first—and the last to date—to make this flight successfully.

The 34-year-old pilot, a big Texan who began a career in adventure by inheriting $17,000,000 when he was 18 years old, listened as Grover Whalen christened the twin-motored plane "New Yorkworld's Fair 1939."

A few minutes before, Hughes, aeronautical advisor for the fair, told the crowd in a brief speech over a public address system:

"I hope that in some measure this flight will bring about a world fellowship among aviators. No matter whether you are Hindu or American, as I am, if you fly you speak the same language."

The flier who once set a world speed record for land planes and still holds the Transcontinental speed record, bade farewell privately to Katharine Hepburn, screen star, to whom he has been reported engaged, before he drove to the field. Miss Hepburn did not visit the airport.

Colonel Lindbergh flew alone in a single-engined Ryan monocoupe, "The Spirit of St. Louis," which gave him an average speed across the Atlantic of 108.18 miles an hour. Except for a bank-and-turn indicator and an earth-inductor compass, he had virtually no instruments. He navigated solely by the sun, stars and compass, guessing at wind drifts with an accuracy which still amazes the aviation world.

Hughes, with a crew of two navigators, a radio operator, and a flight engineer, piloted a Lockheed 14, one of the fastest transport airplanes manufactured with a cruising speed of around 200 miles an hour. As navigational aids, his ship was equipped with 10 radio receiving and sending devices, including "homing" apparatus and direction finders. Hughes announced before he took off that his gyro pilot, the "automatic pilot," would do most of the flying.

Gastric Influenza

NO CHANGE IN PLANS

PARIS, July 11 (CP-Havas)—The indisposition of King George will not require any changes in plans for the visit of the King and Queen to this city July 19, according to authoritative advices from London. Paris was informed the King would be entirely recovered in two or three days.

Queen Comes From Mourning

WINDSOR, England, July 11.—(AP)—Queen Elizabeth, apparently satisfied the King is on the way to recover after a weekend attack of gastric influenza, today decided to emerge from mourning and take his place at Buckingham Palace presentation party tomorrow night.

She motored to London from the Royal Lodge, Windsor Great Park, after physicians had assured her the King was improving but needed a few days rest for complete recovery.

The Queen had planned to stay away from the party because of mourning for her mother, the Countes of Strathmore, who died June 23, but with the King ill she decided to attend so as not to disappoint the guests.

The presentation party is one of two held for newly married women and others not present at the full royal courts. It is fairly informal, in that guests wear ordinary evening dress and mere attendance constitutes a presentation. The Queen will mingle generally with the guests.

Half Foreigners

QUEBEC, July 11.—(CP)— J. P. Guimont, a Quebec scholarship student, who has been studying mathematics at Edinburgh University, said when he arrived home yesterday more than half of the University's 4,000 students were from foreign countries.

News And Photo Headliners Are Honored

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 11.—(AP).—For his exemplary work in covering the Spanish civil war, the late Edward J. Neil, for many years one of the best known staff men of the Associated Press, was honored by the National Headliners' Club to-day with a posthumous award.

A gold medal commemorating his outstanding and daring work, which finally led to his death in Spain last Jan. 2, will be struck and presented to his widow.

The Headliner awards are made by a committee of 15 newspaper, newsreel and radio men headed by Jack Price of the Magazine Editor and Publisher. Medals will be presented to other award winners at the National Headliners' frolic here next Saturday.

This year's award for the best and most colorful feature story went to W. B. Ragsdale of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press. The committee singled out a story he wrote on Al Capone and the Detroit gang, based on confidential files of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Coverage of the Sino-Japanese war won three awards. Norman Alley's shot of the Panay bombing for Universal Newsreel won the award for the best foreign newsreel.

Best Foreign News

The story of the bombing of Shanghai by John R. Morris of The United Press was given the award for the best foreign news reporting, and the picture of a Chinese baby sitting in the middle of a bombed railroad station and crying won the "best news photo" award for International news photos. The picture was taken from a newsreel shot by H. G. Wong of Hearst's News of the Day.

Three Chicago Times reporters won the award for the best United States news reporting. They turned in a series on the German American bund. John Metcalfe and William Mueller went to Bronzville, N.Y., and became friendly with some members of the bund. They gained membership, and meanwhile Metcalfe's brother, James, joined the bund in Chicago. All gathered information and Mueller wrote the stories.

A. Mingalone, Paramount Newsreel photographer who was "captured" by a cluster of balloons and carried 13 miles away from Old Orchard, "shot" that won him the award for the best United States newsreel scene.

The Kansas City Journal-Post won the award for "outstanding service to the public" with its campaign to rid that city of vandalism and racketeering.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, July 11—(CP).—A two-cent boost in July wheat featured to-day's session on Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Good buying lifted the price over the dollar mark for the first time in more than a week and it closed at $1.01⅛. Other futures received little support but generally remained firm. Closing prices were 2⅞ to 1¼ cents higher with October at 79½. November 78⅛b and December 11⅛b.

Concern over rust developments in North American spring wheat belts together with firmness in outside markets accounts chiefly for relative firmness here. July climbed easily from the start and at one time was up more than four cents.

Liverpool was firm, closing ⅞ higher to unchanged.

Major J. Walton Stevenson Is Borne To Rest By The Men Of His Battery

Largely atended by his associates in military, professional, and the other walks of life, the funeral of Major J. Walton Stevenson took place on Saturday afternoon from his late residence on McDonnel Street and St. John's Church to the Little Lake Cemetery.

The Union Jack draped on his coffin, the khaki uniforms of the men of his battery who bore it, and the presence of many of the ex-service officers and men of the city were reminders of the years Major Stevenson spent in France. Some of them perhaps may have pondered the thought that the toll of war had caught up with him, ending untimely and with tragic suddeness the law prictice upon which he had entered on his return from overseas and which he had successfully established in the community so long the home of his family. Others in the afternoon congregation were members of St. John's Church, some of whom could remember the ministry of his grandfather, once its rector, the late Canon Beck.

The solemn funeral rites of the Anglican Church were conducted by Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson, assisted by Rev. R. T. F. Brain and Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers of Toronto. At its conclusion Canon Robertson did not pay a eulogy to the deceased, but briefly spoke of the shock Walton Stevenson's death to the members of the church and to his many other friends throughout the city. "Never do I see a congregation like this but one thing about God is made plainer," he said. "It is the answer to the question why so many are here on this afternoon. It is to extend our sympathy to his loved ones, his parents and brother and sister, to his young wife because God made us with His stamp upon us, a little more like Himself with the grace to be sorry for those who suffer loss and to know something of His great love for us. The only thing we can do is to reflect upon the great sympathy of God for all men. Who seems to say, "Hush, My children."

The pall-bearers, in their service uniforms, were men of the 4th Field Battery, C.F.A., of which Major Stevenson was still commanding officer at the time of his death, Battery Sergt.-Major J. Weyer, and Sergeants J. Beavis, K. Devlin, F. W. Stanley, J. Victor, R. Rae, and R. Parker. In addition to the members of the bereaved family, others noticed at the cemetery were Colonel John A. Dewart, Lt.-Colonel D. J. Lawrie, Col. Frank Bradburn, Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, Captain John Harstone, Captain G. Murray Fraser, Captain W. Cameron, Lieut. Harry Rogers, Alex. L. Elliott, president of the Peterborough Law Association, and nearly all the members of the local Bar, Police Magistrate O. A. Langley, J. J. Duffus, Harry Grubb, Wilfred Fortye, Walter Perks, and others.

Rev. Canon Robertson read the prayers as the body was committed to the grave.

Looking Back
On This Date

JULY 11

Today is the anniversary of the first journey through the rapids of Niagara Falls by a man in a barrel. July 11, 1886, was a Sunday. Both sides of the Niagara gorge were thronged with visitors drawn by the announcement that, finally after many promises, Carlisle D. Graham, a cooper, of Philadelphia, would undertake his feat of risking death in a barrel of his own invention. The barrel was heavily weighted at the bottom, but the occupant was sealed in. He accomplished the feat, running through the rapids to Lewiston in 35 minutes.

A month and eight days later he made the journey again, that time with his head out of the barrel all the way. This left him hard of hearing because a big wave dealt him a deafening slap on the side of the head. On two other occasions he repeated, June 15, 1887, and Aug. 25, 1889. Then for 12 years he rested on his laurels. But on July 14, 1901, he made a fifth trip, which nearly ended his life. He was held in a jetty for 20 minutes and almost suffocated.

Not satisfied with all this, Graham decided upon "a double act." He arranged with a woman, Maud Willard, to go through the rapids on the understanding that he would await her at the whirlpool on the American side. If the barrel was swept out of the pool Graham was to swim to Lewiston beside it. If it was caught and held there he was to go alone. But the dual act failed. Miss Willard and her pet dog died, while waiting for the barrel in which she made the journey, to be taken from the river, when it was gripped in the whirlpool. Graham did not know of her death, and proceeded to carry out his part of the stunt. He swam through the rapids to Lewiston, and lived to tell the details. But he never repeated. He had won his "fame" and was satisfied.

It was on July 11, 1896, that Hon. Wilfrid Laurier was sworn as prime minister of Canada, but his cabinet was not sworn until the 13th. Once Sir Wilfrid thought that 11 was a lucky number. But he changed his mind in 1911!

Real Hospitality

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 11. — (CP). — Captain Mark Berry of Port Stanley, has returned from the re-union of Civil War veterans at Gettysburg and is chuckling over the extent to which the United States' government went to provide entertainment for the veterans. "I had a quarter in my back pocket when I left, and I've still got it," Berry said. "I didn't get a chance to spend it."

Police Are Holding Farm Hand

Following a brutal attack on her and her mother, Irene Mott, LEFT, died in Brockville, Ont., hospital. Mrs. Mott, RIGHT, is still unable to give a coherent account of the attack which took place in their farm home. Police are holding William Gunning, 21-year-old farmhand, in connection with the murder.

With The Boy Scouts

The Sacred Heart Troop were apparently a well-scared gang of boys according to report. Holding a meeting over Green Hill way, each patrol built their own bivouac when a man nearby started firing shots into the trees above their heads. Like good scouts they ducked for cover. Tonight another outdoor hike is planned, so all boys are asked to look under the clubhouse steps for instructions.

The All Saints' Cub Pack held their last weekly meeting for the summer last Friday, but all boys are warned to keep an eye on this column for future activities; and for a start all Cubs who want to be in on the weiner roast must be on hand at the parish hall not later than 2.15 p.m. this Wednesday afternoon to get full instructions.

Cyril Monkman, James Airth, Douglas Head and Dick Crowe were invested into the Cub brotherhood at a service held at St. Andrew's recently. Clifford Smith received a service star. Douglas Morrison and Robert Frise were duly made first-star Cubs, receiving the badge of that standing. A few days ago the St. Andrew's Pack held a weiner roast, with Akela Whalon in charge assisted by Mrs. Whalon, District Captain of the Girl Guides; A.C.M. Gordon White, and Cub Instructor Don Corrin.

Last week-end found Rovers Chas. Jeffries, Frank Pammett and Ronald Gynane with A.R.L. Jack Collis and the Skipper at Sandy Lake making preparations for the St. John's Cubs, who are at present camping on Mr. Irvins farm on the shores of Sandy Lake. The trip was made possible through the kindness of Mr. W. Green of the troop committee.

On Friday, July 1, the St. John's Scout group, undaunted by the rain, went to camp on Pigeon Lake for a week, with Scouter Fred Ford in charge. Rain eased up on arriving at the camp grounds and the tents were soon pitched. On Sunday morning a Scouts own service was held, the camp leaders taking the various offices. Tuesday, the camp split in two sections; one section going by land, the other by boat to explore the rock formation and caves at the end of the lake, the sections changing places for the journey back.

Wednesday was Visitors' Day, and District Commissioner and Mrs. J. T. Hornsby, with Assistant Commissioner E. Wolfe were among those present. The Commissioner gave good report of the camp and conduct. On Thursday, Rev. Mr. Brain, District Cubmaster Gordon Clegg and Mrs. R. R. Ford were special visitors. On this day Gordon Best and Jack White were invested into the world wide brothedhood of Scouts. Owing to the rain, the ceremony was held under the big marquee. Friday the trip home was as wet as the journey out, but the spirits were as high as ever. The tentage was laid out in the Sunday school and the senior Scouts getting ready to go off with the Cubs on Saturday.

Saturday, July 9, turned out fine as some 18 Cubs and six other leaders set out to camp on the shores of Sandy Lake until next Friday.

Good hunting, St. John's.

Two Factories Not Boarding Cheese Made

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 9.—At a meeting of the executive of the Northumberland and Peterborough Cheese Producers' Association held in Campbellford on Saturday evening, President of the Northumberland Association George S. Vanvolkenburg stated that there were no factories in this county which were not complying with the regulations governing the boarding of cheese.

The meeting was called at the request of Secretary S. L. Josh of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board at Belleville, who drew attention to a number of complaints from some districts where there were factories which were not boarding.

George Elliott, president of the Peterborough Producers' Association, claimed that he was not in a position to make any statement before the meeting, since he would not have a meeting with his executive before next Saturday. He however intimated that it had already been brought to his attention that there were two factories which were not conforming to the rules regarding the boarding of cheese.

Newspaper ads are like that. You can rush them into print anywhere, anytime. You can use them in specific communities to bolster up weak markets, or meet local situations, economically. You can tie them in at the last moment, even, with new promotion plans and sales campaigns. Right up to press-time, almost, you can change or replace (and even cancel!) them.

No other medium in the whole advertising world is so flexible, so adaptable to the needs of everybody's business as the newspaper. That's why the big leaders in advertising tip you off—by their own "majoring" in this medium—to newspaper advertising as the sturdy backbone for your own campaign.

This advertisement was prepared for the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association, by MacLaren Advertising Company Limited.

Is Toronto To Blame?

Oshawa health authorities have made the rather uncomfortable discovery that the water in the lake frontage is not good. It has been tested several times and gets a rating of class "D" and that means it is unsafe for domestic purposes and is dangerous if swallowed when swimming, and the claim is made that the sewage disposal plant of Toronto is to blame. It is polluting lake water to such an extent that the effects are drifting as far east as Oshawa, and if that contention is correct what is to hinder the pollution from going farther?

Toronto authorities scoff at the idea; they say such a thing is not possible, but the pollution is there otherwise it would not be found when the Oshawa lake water is tested.

Other Toronto men say that if the pollution is extending to such a range it has become a matter of concern for the province and for the Dominion as well as for the city of Toronto, and therefore these governments should come along and give financial aid to Toronto in constructing a $15,000,000 sewage disposal plant.

One would not care to take an arbitrary view on such a question, but primarily it is Toronto's own problem to see that it does not pollute the water of the lake. Cities as a rule have not made an enviable or a clean record in this sort of work. There are many streams which are more or less polluted after they pass through places where many people live in relatively small areas. There are many cases where those living outside of these cities have had to take action in court to force the issue and there are a number of municipalities in our province which have not yet approached the stage where it can be said they have the ideal system of attending to their own sewage.

Toronto is a large city and it is growing. Each new house adds to the problem of sanitation. When great numbers of people prefer to be huddled together in large cities they create their own new problems and it would take some rather concise reasoning and broad argument to show that the province as a whole had anything to do with the creation of the menace in the first place.

When Thieves Are Stupid

There was a recent robbery of $41,000 in gold concentrates from the Dome Gold Mines, but the provincial police finally found and recovered the whole loot in a cottage near Timagimi.

The Timmins Daily Press finds it interesting to consider the case from the point of view of what the robbers did with their plunder, and the Press comes to the conclusion that they were not far removed from being stupid. Why they should deposit such loot in a cottage is one thing which the northern editor cannot understand, particularly when there are so many vast spaces where a hole could have been dug in the ground for purposes of concealment.

If a plane had been used to cover the distance between Timmins and Timagimi, then the Press is certain the plane went in the wrong direction. It should have headed toward some pre-arranged destination in the south. If a car were used to take the plunder away, then the course was again wrong, as the police could gradually tighten up on the car; and besides the number of available roads is not large. The persistence of the police aided by the blunder of the thieves resulted in finding the stolen gold, and the Timmins paper is inclined to believe that the stupidity of the robbers was a deciding factor in their undoing. And that of course is another way of stating that old belief that robbers generally do something which brings about their own undoing.

Buying a Used Car

A good many people who have purchased cars have done business through the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, and it is rather an interesting and novel departure to find this Corporation using advertising space now to advise people to buy used cars.

Of course there are a few stipulations made, and one is that the purchaser would do well to consult and deal with a reputable car dealer. The claim is also advanced that there are many used cars on the market today which have a good unused mileage in them, and mileage is actually what a person buys when taking over any car.

The Acceptance Corporation is looking farther ahead than merely getting a used car sold. It argues it is good for business, and it is. Getting the used cars out of the way encourages the making of new cars and making new cars puts people to work and it circulates money by reason of the amount of raw material which has to be purchased.

The experience of car dealers is that for each new car sold they have to handle almost three used cars, and the used car market is also important because experience shows that many non-car-owners enter the market first via the used car path.

The Acceptance Corporation people reason their case well and logically. They are not seeking to force people into the market who cannot afford cars, but they are showing how wise and carefully regulated purchasing can be managed so that it will give value, pleasure and mileage.

Do They Use It?

A mechanic in a garage was discussing with an Examiner man the condition of some cars which came in for repairs, and he said he had often wondered if many car drivers made use of their emergency brake. He was of the opinion that few drivers ever did unless they stopped their car and wanted to lock it in that way.

The mechanic said he had asked a number of drivers if they used the emergency or hand-brake much, and in every case the drivers had said they rely almost entirely on the foot brake. In some of the cars the hand brake was so placed it was a little difficult to reach.

Whether all drivers operate cars that way we do not know, but when the foot brake is in good condition the average driver would come by custom to rely on that exclusively. Whether he would think in an emergency of getting the added assistance of the brake going by that name is something on which information would be difficult to secure. The mechanic in the garage does not believe many drivers are accustomed to using that added brake and he may have good and sufficient reasons for having come to that conclusion.

A Long War

Alfred Cleall of Morden, England, died the other day and at an inquest Coroner Neville Stafford recorded a verdict that Cleall had died of war injuries.

But the man had not been engaged in any of the wars now going on in various parts of the world. His war service was in the years 1914-18, and it was in 1917 he received a bullet wound in the neck.

So it was 21 years ago—and it must be that war was waiting all that time to claim another of its marked men. War does things that way. On the 11th day of November in 1918 the order went out to cease firing. As a matter of official record it ended right then. As a matter of actual fact it was over for Alfred Cleall of Morden, England, only a few days ago.

And yet we have people in the world who scoff at those who say openly and plainly that they are trying to prevent another war even when we have evidence before us daily that the war which was supposed to have ended almost 20 years ago is still going on in a definite way for many of those who fought in it.

Toronto Has An Attraction

A cultural centre like Toronto always has something to show to the visitor, and that is right enough. Toronto is our provincial capital, the place where many of our young folk go to receive their training, and in all a city which makes its influence felt over quite a large area.

On Saturday Toronto was able to show to visitors among other things a man sitting on top of a flag pole out in the Sunnyside district. It was not a pole which attained to dizzy heights or which swayed violently in the breeze, nor was the gentleman clinging to a ball on top of it nor yet was he sitting on top of the ornament which usually tops a flag pole. He had something which resembled a seat, and it was said he could doze off there without danger of tumbling down.

When it rained he would of course get wet, and if the storm grew violent we take it he would have to remain up there the same as a tin horse on top of a barn.

When one looks at such a performance it is difficult to make out what the individual hopes to accomplish or demonstrate. If he wants something to eat or drink then it is sent up to him. He is not even proving that he solves the laws of equilibrium because he is in no immediate danger of falling. All he does is sit there and in time he will probably claim he has remained on the top of the flag-pole longer than any other person and will therefore be entitled to be named the champion flagpole sitter. Perhaps cultural Toronto can explain the significance of the performance, but at the moment we admit to having failed to grasp its full importance.

Should Be More Accidents

Judge Maurice Tetreau of Montreal had a man before him in court who had been guilty of driving his car while drunk. After he had pronounced sentence on him the Judge remarked:

"It is drivers like you who make our highways more dangerous than the battlefields of old:"

We have not the least objection to that remark, but there is a danger of drunken driving being stressed to the point where people may look upon it as the one and only peril of our highways. It may even produce the feeling that as long as a driver remains sober he is all right and has nothing to fear.

Accident statistics when carefully reviewed show that few of our accidents are caused by drunk drivers. One reason may be that traffic officers and policemen are apt to see them and take them off the roads. Driving while drunk is dangerous; it is something against which constant war will be waged by courts and officers—but it is not the cause of the majority of our accidents—it is actually the cause of a very small section of them.

Most of our accidents are on dry roads, straight roads, and in broad daylight. This paper believes that it is only good driving on the part of some of our car drivers which prevents more accidents. The other day we saw a car come from a gateway about two miles from Lindsay. It entered the highway without stopping and just then a car from Ohio was approaching at about 50 miles an hour. The set-up was all there for an accident but the Ohio driver acted wisely. He pulled his car down as quickly as he could, but there was no time or space for a complete stop. When the offending car came out it swung well across the highway and the Ohio car found room to edge in on a flat shoulder of the road at the right. It was a remarkably good piece of quick action and there was no accident.

There was another driver who was passing cars ahead on a curve and there was another car coming from the other direction which this wild driver could not see. The approaching car saw the situation and made room for the speeder to clear himself—but it was all set for an accident.

Another driver found himself in behind a rather slow-moving truck on a hill. He pulled out and took a chance of getting over the top of the hill, while every driver knows that the surest place to meet an oncoming car is at the top of a grade. That is what happened but the driver of that coming car was one of those who believes in allowing all possible space and he was well over on his side of the road. Had he been travelling close to the white line nothing could have prevented a crash. It was another case where a good driver saved a miserable one. We feel that now and then there ought to be a word spoken for our good drivers. They are actually and definitely cutting down the accident record.

These drivers to whom we refer as doing things which make accidents were not drunk; they were just foolish or stupid. Added together they form the class which creates our major road hazard.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There is one thing to be said about the leadership of the Conservative party—while Hon. R. B. Bennett was in command there was never any doubt regarding who was at the head of affairs.

Man in Orangeville broke his leg while driving in a harness race, but after some attention went on to finish the race. Well it couldn't be said of him that he didn't have a leg to stand on.

Of the 1,500 and more Conservative delegates at Ottawa 600 of them came from Ontario. And when it comes to paying taxes Ontario does not get overlooked either.

Isle of Man farmers are protesting the establishment of a bomb school, saying their cows will be disturbed. The dairymen want them to put the school some udder place.

A mother skunk with two young ones has taken up residence near the home of the Dionne children and tourists making the trip for the first time now find it easier to know how to reach the place.

We are a little bothered about our transportation system in Canada but it is no stranger than finding Britain and France being asked to help finance the taking of German and Italian troops out of Spain.

Premier Aberhart has a new plan for running business so he will not have to deal with the banks. It's hard enough getting along with the banks, but it would be tougher getting along without them.

SUCCESS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When he was young Jim Sprout left home, deciding he'd get on alone, his future seemed obscure; no person bothered much with him, and he was tall and somewhat thin, his home likewise was poor.

¶ Jim went to school like what he should, but got along just fairly good, got kept in after four; and wise heads nodded when he went, they said he'd be a weary gent, bent toward the poorhouse door.

¶ Jim Sprout went miles before he stopped, saw many lands before he docked, went quietly on his way; and then he settled down out west, he found a spot he liked the best, and figured he would stay.

¶ He had a little cash by then, and worked along with honest men, and thus his holdings grew; he figured then he'd go back home, instead of living there alone, his working days were through.

¶ Jim Sprout tore down the shack at home, and put up one of brick and stone, old timers looked amazed; the skinny lad that they ran down, is now the richest man in town, the folk are rather dazed.

¶ They say it's strange to hear them talk, as they meet in the village block, for they're all praising Jim; they tell they knew that he was smart, and they could see right from the start—that he was bound to win.

General Store A Meeting Place

(Christian Science Monitor)

A FAMOUS GROCERY in Washington, which had supplied groceries to every President since Lincoln, closed the other day. Burchell's store, it was, founded eighty-two years ago when the Capital was a village. The building will be used for other—and fore profitable—purposes. The fate of this landmark was the same as many another of its kind at crossroads hamlets and in larger villages from coast to coast. Whenever and wherever they have put up their shutters, a social as well as trading centre of simpler days has gone.

"General stores" as well as gorcery stores, many of them were. "Everything from a needle to a threshing machine" made up their stock—gingham, groceries, overalls, prunes, salt pork, molasses, kerosene, nails, candy, hoes, wash-tubs, shoes, calico, cheese, crackers, horse collars, dried beef, canned salmon, sugar, socks, saleratus, neckties, sheep-dip, shirtwaists, fly paper, fish hooks, mops, brooms, raisins, curtains, catsup, mousetraps, bolts, cotton batting, straw hats, rubber boots, pins, plows, pitchforks, Paris green, patterns, pickles, pie plantes, sweaters, shoe polish, flat-irons, clothes pins, horsewhips, harmonicas, and who can remember what else?

Most of them were department stores without departments. No wonder the many, miscellaneous odors blended into something distinctive and delightful.

Such stores began to diminish in number when automobiles came in and it was as easy— and much pleasanter—to drive to the county seat and trade at Brown's Bazaar or the Busy Bee Emporium than to stop at the crossroads. Then came the chain stores. Before long even the hitching posts made way for a gasoline pump.

In their heyday these stores were the community centre. From them radiated the news of Jennie Jones' new baby, the painting of John Johnson's barn, the news from the county court, the schedule of Barnum and Bailey's circus, the auction at Robinson's farm, and other tidings of importance. And as for news of the larger distant world, did not the drummers from city wholesale houses supply it well seasoned with anecdotes and color?

Winter evenings, in the pre-radio days, the country store was the community forum. Crops, politics and horses were staples of conversation. Early arrivals got the chairs nearest the stove. Later loafers had to sit on the cracker-barrel, the nail keg, or end of the counter. Yarns lasted till the mail came in or the kerosene lamps went out.

A few such stores still do business at the old stand. The others which have gone linger in mellow memory.

CHEW ON THIS.

(Detroit Free Press)

AFTER CAREFUL study, Drs. A. L. Winsor and Barney Korchin, of Cornell University, have arrived at the conclusion that worry is one of the important causes of bad teeth.

It's all quite simple too once you accept the premises and get the explanation.

Acid saliva is hard on enamel (that's orthodoxy). Saliva is naturally acid (that's more or less heresy).

When one worries or is angry, the mouth becomes dry. This signifies that the saliva flow has been cut down. And with the lessening of the flow, the acid content increases. And with the increase of the acid content the little imps which are responsible for caries (decay to you) get busy.

And soon the black spots on your molars are as numerous as the black spots before your eyes after a night with a sick friend.

Obvious the cure is to keep your temper and cutivate a placid and contented state of mind.

This recipe sounds simple but is about as easy to follow as the Golden Rule.

Merely being addressed periodically as "my friends" doesn't help much either.

ROBBED OF CHERRIES.

(Letter in Toronto Globe and Mail)

THIS IS cherry time. I have fifty cherry trees and yet I will not get a pint of ripe cherries! The starlings eat a few, but the robins eat a hundred times as many as do the starlings. They plant their entire family of young birds on the trees and feed them all day long on cherries. For every injurious insect the robins eat, the starlings eat a thousand. Robins eat mostly earthworms and the earthworm is of great benefit to man. However, the cherry growers give the trees a spray of arsenate of lead early in the season and the robins lead without arsenate.

Speaking of cherries, try an exclusive diet of sweet cherries for any disease you may possess. Never mind your age or what illness you may have; you will be astounded at the beneficial results. A cherry diet will not cure your disease, but while dieting on cherries, the cause of your ailment will disappear and the body will heal itself.

A SAINT OF PEACE.

(Montreal Gazette)

ARGUMENT over the birthplace of St. Patrick led to exchange of blows in a Quebec tavern, the man who said France being hit on the nose by the man who could not recall the town, although he thought it was in Ireland. The sequel was in the police court. For the benefit of the disputants on this old question, it may be pointed out that St. Patrick was "probably" born near Dumbarton, Scotland, perhaps at Kilpatrick, his father being Calphurnius, a Roman, and his mother Conchessa, of British origin. In any event, the good saint was a man of peace, so his champions should not fight in his name at this late day.

• A Whale Of A Lot Of Talk

(Bowmanville Statesman)

EARLY ON JULY 1st, the sessions of the Federal Parliament came to a close, and as the Globe and Mail says, "It was not productive of anything very spectacular." About the only production that it could boast of was a whole lot of talk. On our desk is a copy of Hansard, the official report of House of Commons debates. It is the second last one for the session, and the last page is numbered 4786, which would suggest a whale of a lot of talk, for a minimum quantity of useful legislation.

This everlasting talk, and jockeying for political position at the expense of the taxpayers is doing much to bring governments in Canada into disrepute. The average voter has enough intelligence to know that legislation like that passed in the session just closed could be accomplished in a lot less than five months, and with much less idle talk.

The Peterborough Examiner has been running a column during the sessions in which appears the Hansard reports of some of the debates. If you have ever stood in a public school playground and listened to children argue, you will understand just how some of the discussion is carried on in the House of Commons. Some little matter of minor import brings on hours of debate, and a major matter slips through in short order or is held over for the next session. We wish we had the space to publish some of this clap-trap during the session. It would most certainly bring out as forcibly as any means, the tremendous amount of time wasted in the house in idle and non-profitable debate.

• The Business Of Hating The Jews

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir: The Jewish race retain a unique distinction in the world, for of all races none so much as this particular race has suffered more world wide prosecution and contempt. Whether the cause for this begins during Biblical times or not does not interest me. I am only interested in denying that they, more than any other race should be so flagrantly and heartlessly hounded.

Because I am human I know this: they too are humans; they live and breathe and love; they too are the product of the Almighty as well as others—thus they are entitled to the security and freedom of the world in equal proportion with others.

I pride myself on having many friends. There are many Jews included. I dare say that among them there are some who are obnoxious: the same is to be said for every nationality. I esteem the Jewish race because they are an idealistic race. This truth is more than borne out when we consider that regardless of having been driven about for centuries over the face of the earth they yet retain their customs and creeds.

Do those who stupidly denounce this splendid race ever consider the fact that just this type of stupidity on the part of the oppressors has forced the Jews to a shrewder and more clever level economically than the other races? In a capitalistic world, where gold is all powerful, the greatest safety is found if one is entrenched behind material success. Money protects one from much; is it else but logical therefore to assume that this race, as human in their desire for safety as anyone should endeavour to protect themselves against unjust prosecution?

While in Toronto for a few hours recently I came across an ugly little rag called The Thunderbolt, which apparently, is the Fascist organ. It denounces many things; venting its hatred on Capitalism, Communism, Socialism, and Jews. Particularly Jews. At the door of this race they apparently lay the blame for all the evils of the world.

They hate them! Golly, how they hate everyone! And reading that paper I admitted to myself with deep regret that this odious hatred for the Jews was being preached even in Canada-in a land of such freedom as ours.

Because of Canada's freedom, the paper to me appeared crude and out of place-but the pity is that there is a certain class of people who, as a result of lack of education (not necessarily scholastic) will, by and on the strength of emotional appeal, direct their groundless hatred towards the Jewish people. They who do so however will find themselves in a decided minority; and what puzzles me is that they will hate the Jewish class only—why not everyone on general principles?

And the fact that the fascists preach a vile hatred against any one class in particular is, one imagines, to be expected from an organization who end meetings with such a silly salutation as "Heil Arcand." — such spineless subsurviency must as a matter of course reflect a spineless and foolish philosphy—at least to my mind for I had always placed this Heil Someone idea at an intellectual level on par with illiterate half-wits who had never been taught to do their own thinking.

Sincerely,
ALEX SJOBERG.

• After A Year's War In China

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

IT IS NOW EXACTLY a year since Japan commenced military operations against China in real earnest after five years of sporadic raids in the course of which they took several bits of Chinese territory. Japan did not declare war. Her statesmen called it an "incident," never dreaming that it would amount to much more than that. They did go as far as to declare the incident might take to the end of the year to be finally cleared up. But the incident is still in full swing, and the Prime Minister, Prince Konoye, now refers to it as the Chinese "affair." Whether it be incident or affair does not matter. It has become a tremendous war in fact if not in law, bigger by far than any other Japan has ever engaged in, demanding greater efforts on the country militarily and economically than they bargained for. Japan is actually fighting for her life; her existence as a world power, and unless there is a crack-up of Chinese resistence, of which there is at present no indication, the world may witness the spectacle of a great nation hurtling to its doom. Japan is too deeply involved in this "affair" to back out without disastrous loss of prestige. She must see this thing through, even if her leader decided that the only way out is political hari-kari. Even "face" compels them to continue.

The same situation is confronting General Franco and his insurgent junta in Spain. He dare not seek compromise with his foes. His backers, Italy and Germany, would not let him. They seem determined to help him to beat down his fellow countrymen. What the rest of the world may well wonder is what is to happen in the Far East and in Spain when these wars end. These long drawnout campaigns are terrible strains on the people directly engaged. They are also a mental strain on the people of other nations who cannot help but ask themselves what will follow. Will there be an era of peace, or will the struggle for concessions and "adjustments" lead to another World War?

The war in China has had many unexpected results. Others shared with Nippon the belief that China would fold-up after a few military defeats. The Chinese have suffered and lost enormously in lives and property, much of the latter being perpetrated by themselves in order to deprive the enemy of commercial advantages. Contrary also to belief they have given up their individualism and become a nation welded together to resist. What the government has failed to do in centuries the Japanese have unwittingly done by the callous use of their bombing airplanes. These attacks have been ruthlessly made in China and in Spain because the attacking forces have failed in the military sense and seek to terrorize the non-combatants into a state of mind which would lead to revolt and a demand for peace at any price. In both cases the effects have been the reverse; they have stiffened the determination to fight and created a spirit of hate which will continue at least as long as the contemporary generation lasts, increasing the difficulty of governing the countries when nominal peace is restored.

✧ ✧ ✧

An American correspondent stated a few weeks ago that while, prima facie, the Japanese troops occupied vast territory, they only had control within the range of their artillery. Strung out more than a thousand miles apart, the Japanese lines are peculiarly susceptible to guerrilla tactics. By deliberately letting the Yangtse river run wild and Chinese have forced the mechanized enemy armies to make a wide and difficult detour. The Chinese keep retreating slowly and in perfectly sound order. Hunrdeds of thousands of new levies replace the casualties. The changing of the course of the Yangtse may not only change the course of the war but the course of the history of the Far East. Chinese cities may be captured, capitals may be shifed, but the Government remains intact and has the backing of the people; and the administration can move from place to place and continue the resistance. The "capture" of more territory adds to Japanese difficulties while the Chinese Government and army remains firm.

HOLD A CONSULTATION

(Guelph Mercury)

If a country has a decidedly possible career for, say, 300 doctors a year, and the faculties of the different medical schools turn out over 1,000, what are the 700 and odd fellows who are not wanted, going to do about it?

In Good Times . . . and Bad

there is no decline in the interest every citizen takes in the essential service the daily newspapers perform.

The local daily newspapers are the daily bread in the mental diet of the people.

It is a significant fact that, during the period between 1929 and 1937, the total circulation of the Canadian daily newspapers increased by more than 270,000 copies daily.

This increase in circulation is but one of many reasons why successful companies spend a large portion of their advertising appropriation in the medium that has the greatest number of readers, the greatest sustained interest, and whose services are obviously an essential part in the daily life of every community — the Canadian daily newspapers.

3,000 Tons Of Live Turtles Packed In Crates Shipped To United States

Over three tons of live snapping turtles passed through Peterborough Sunday afternoon enroute for Massillon, O., where next winter they will tickle the palates of the patrons of the Eagles' Club in that city.

This unusual cargo, representing the bulk of the season's catch made by Lorne Harris of Jubilee Point, consisted of between 700 and 800 turtles, packed in crates and bags and piled high on a large truck, which stopped at the market scales here long enough to have the load weighed.

Mr. Harris had come along as far as Peterborough to see his turtles get under way for their destination which is a cold storage house in Massillon.

H. W. Heasley of Massillon was in charge of the truck and he explained to the Examiner that the snappers would be killed as soon as they reached the Ohio city and the meat would be placed in cold storage ready to be served to patrons of the club next winter.

"Turtle meat is used for soup and is a great delicacy in that form," Mr. Heasley stated "and is also fried and served in that way. Our patrons are very fond of it and this is the third year we have taken a large consignment from Mr. Harris."

This new industry began some years ago, starting with a fishing trip made to Rice Lake by a number of Massillon sportsmen. They found that there were plenty of turtles in the lake and in the Otonabe River and succeeded in catching a few. Then they decided that there was a market for large supplies and accordingly Mr. Harris has been doing a very nice business in the turtle trade.

Some Big Fellows

"The average weight of these snappers," the Jubilee Point man said "is about 10 pounds. The biggest one in this shipment is 30 pounds and I figure he must be over a hundred years old as the turtles grow very slowly. I have caught one weighing 42 pounds and it is claimed there are some in this neighborhood that go 50 pounds."

"I was about a month catching 900 but the greater part of them were taken in a week when I really got busy. Some of them were caught in Rice Lake and the rest in the lower reaches of the Otonabee. I lost nearly a hundred through some form of illness and I still have some 30 left that the Ohio people had not room for on their truck. I use a special trap I invented myself."

"There seems to be an unlimited supply of turtles," Mr. Harris said. "I really believe I could take out ten tons a season if I could be sure of disposing of them all."

"You deserve the thanks of the fishermen for getting rid of the menace of hundreds of turtles a year," suggested The Examiner.

"I really think I should hear something from the Fish and Game Department," returned the Rice Lake turtle trapper. "There is no doubt the snappers kill vast numbers of wild ducks and muskrats every year. They kill fish too, but I don't think they do nearly as much harm that way as they do to the ducks and muskrats. They only roam around from about the middle of May to the end of August and I believe that if they kept up their depredations the year round they would clean out the whole district of ducks."

Blood Flows Again In Palestine

With Arab tribes from Transjordan reported massed on the Palestine frontier, and with the British rushing warships and troop reinforcements to the scene, the Holy Land again is in turmoil as Arabs and Jews clash on the sacred soil. British troops, like the machine-gunners shown here at Jaffa during former disorder, battled a band of 600 Arabs on July 7, killing five and wounding eight. Total casualties in two days of rioting were 33 killed and more than 100 wounded.

Deloro Booters Take C.C.F. By 2-1 Score

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, July 11.—Deloro won their league game with C.C.F. on the Smelters' ground on Saturday afternoon by the score of 2-1. Due to unforeseen circumstances the game was about an hour late in starting and only thirty-five minutes of play each way was decided on.

At the last moment Clare O'Neill, the home goalie who had donned his sweater, had to disappoint his team mates. William Hart made his debut between the posts and Norman O'Neill went to right half to perform well as a recruit.

C. C. F. kicked off but play was within scoring range of their goal for several minutes. After Brown had failed with a good shot, Brooks missed a possible score as he received a good pass from Gray. Elliott's shot also went wide. Gray off to another good sprint on the wing centred beautifully and another good effort proved unavailing. Receiving the ball from a corner kick. Townson, who had been particularly aggressive, shot wide.

C.C.F. now staged a rush on the Deloro citadel and Hart was called upon to make clearances which he did creditably. Taking play to the other end, the home forwards, gave Chamberlain some anxious moments. Brown and Brooks brought the visiting goalie to his knees in serving rocket drives. Smelt on a return rush shot wide when in a good position to open the scoring.

Hart made a brilliant save shortly afterwards leaping into the air to clear the ball as it was about to graze the under part of the cross bar.

Again the venue was changed. Brooks sent the ball over the cross bar and Gray stumbled when presented with a good opening for a score. Chamberlain saved well as Brown again tested him. Just before half time Bradley missed with a good shot.

Half time—C.C.F. 0, Deloro 0.

Brooks featured in a rush on resumption of play for his shot to go wide. C.C.F. finished some good combination with Dyer rushing Hart to register the first goal. Another rush was staged by the visitors and Henwood was unfortunate in hitting the cross bar. Deloro again returned to the attack for Brooks to kick wide and Townson to give the ball too much altitude.

A moment later Brooks displayed his old time agility in sending in a shot from close range which completely baffled Chamberlain. C.C.F. were pressing to break the tie when hail and later rain caused a cessation of play for about seven minutes. With the ground wet, and here and there pools to wade through, loose end to end rushes became the rule for the remainder of the game. Brooks and Bradley had unfruitful attempts in goal and then Hart neutralized a splendid shot by Henwood.

To Brooks fell the honor of scoring the winning goal scoring similarly as on the former occasion. Towards the end, Elliott almost scored as he raced down the wing to try his luck on his own. Play now ceased to be threatening for either side and Deloro ran out winners by the score of 2-1.

C.C.F.—Goal, Chamberlain; backs, Linesen, Jobe; half backs, Lawdence, McDonald and Mayette; forwards, Hart, Cousins, half backs, N. O'Neill, Henwood, Dyer, McClelland, Clapham, Smelt.

Hamilton Squad Defeats Havelock 12-7

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, July 11.—The Hamilton Hustlers junior softball aggregation invaded Havelock on Saturday afternoon, defeating the Wreckers by a 12-7 score. The city crew's victory came only after a tough struggle, in which the local boys took a commanding lead in the first innings, being in front 6-2 by the end of the fifth.

The game turned in favor of the Hustlers during the seventh when Brunton, on the Havelock mound, blew up, allowing seven runs to cross the plate. Recovering his control, he held the Hamilton team to three runs in the last three stanzas, but his team-mates succeeded in getting only one more counter.

Sanderson pitching for the Hustlers and Brunton on the Wreckers' mound went the full route, the former having 13 strike-outs to his credit and allowing 3 walks and 18 safeties. Brunton had 17 strike-outs with 8 walks and 17 safeties.

Brunton was heavy hitter of the afternoon, with a homer his first time up in the second inning.

The Hamilton team expect to make another trip down here in the near future, when the local fans look forward to seeing the Wreckers reverse the score.

YOUNG PETES AND OSHAWA BREAK EVEN IN DOUBLE-HEADER HERE

Homesters Lose Second Game Of Junior Bill

The Petes on Saturday were never in the hunt here in the second junior game. Oshawa got the jump on them by scoring seven runs in the first three frames and Cowie, who was on the mound for the visitors, stopped the Petes' attack very effectively in the early stages. He developed a wild streak toward the close that got him into trouble, but by that time he was working on a big lead. Incidentally Cowie did a great deal to win his own game by coming through with two doubles and a single and driving in three runs.

Neither Condon, who started for the Petes nor Todd who relieved him in the third was a mystery to the visitors, and their support was very uncertain, the young Petes kicking in with five errors and most of them were costly.

Oshawa scored twice in the first on a pas sto Yourth, an infield out, Pearce's sinble, a walk to Chestowski, and a double steal. In the third after Condon had walked Fair, Todd was substitute and ran into trouble, Kitchen's single, a pass to Chestowski, errors by McNabb and Stanley, and Cowie's first double chasing five big runs in.

In the fifth two errors by McNabb, Cowie's double and Yourth's single added another brace of counters.

Get One Run.

Castle's single, a stolen base, a walk and a passed ball gave Petes one in the second inning. They were blanked, until the sixth, when Kelly and Girard opened with singles and Cowie developed a wild streak in which he walked four batters. However, Kelly helped him out by getting caught off third and the Petes could not produce a hit when it was needed most and the result was they only got three runs out of the whole affair. In the seventh, Clark's hit, Chestowski's bad throw, an infield out, and Girard's fly to left accounted for the Petes' last run.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

LEFTY McNALLY will twirl for the Petes tomorrow in the twilight when the locals and Oshawa GM-men celebrate the 12th of July at 5.15 in Riverside Park. The speedy southpaw of the Petes was held out of the Oshawa game Saturday to save him for Tuesday here and he will face Jack Turner, lanky Motor City righthander who has been a jinx and a pain in the neck (not to mention the batting averages) to the Murphy men all season. It will be a real ball game and, with so many visitors in town that day, ought to see a record crowd at Riverside. The cocky GM-men haven't batted against McNally yet and they are in for a surprise, we expect, and likely a loss. But one never knows in the diamond game. Should be a peach of a tilt.

* * * * * * *

THREE TWIRLERS saw duty for the locals in Oshawa on Saturday, Kitchen being batted out in the second, Whitehill going pretty fair—in fact he allowed no earned runs—till he gave way to Jakafby in the last frame. While Jake Biddle forksided his smoke ball in to fan nine of the Petes and hold 'em to three hits in a nifty performance. He had great support at bat and in the field, while the locals lacked punch at the plate and kicked in with a terrible exhibition of fielding. Having no less than seven errors! They got a bad defensive game out of their systems and we hope they settle down and play real senior ball. But we've got to get more hitting if the team is going anywhere this summer.

* * * * * * *

ONLY THREE safe blows Saturday, one a homer, one a triple and one a single. With two walks. You can't win games that way, regardless of pitching or fielding. Chuck Kearns returned to the fold again and banged out a mighty homer over Hurst's head, Burton hit a triple but expired and perspired on third. And McNally, as a pinch hitter, bagged out a single. He was doubled off second after a steal, when Cadd lined to Biddle. The Petes threw the ball around like the American All-Stars and also booted several grounders. However, they should shape up like a smart squad soon with McNally back, Doll due to return, Kearns again in the line and Starr likely to sign before the July 15th deadline. Then watch 'em go!

* * * * * * *

OVER AT RIVERSIDE on Saturday, two junior Lakeshore Loop jousts were staged, with the Young Petes and Oshawa splitting even. Locals took a 7-2 win in the opening game but dropped a 9-5 decision in the nightcap. A lot of fair ball shown, too, with the teams still teid on top of the heap. Young Petes pulled off a triple play in the ninth of the First fixture, a pop fly to the catcher resulting in two runners being nipped off their bags. Condon was announced as starting pitcher for the Ralph team but a switch was made suddenly when McCabe was announced as the Oshawa hurler. So Condon pitched one ball. The umps was wrong in not making him pitch till the first batter had either been retired or reached first. Though it didn't make any big difference.

* * * * * * *

GEE CLARK hurled neat ball for the winners in the initial tilt and he was flinging against a smart chucker in "High Pockets" McCabe, the ex-Belleville pitcher. McCabe is a towering youngster with a lot of speed and a nice hook, He should go places. Condon and Todd twirled for the homesters in the second struggle but ran into oodles of trouble. Cowie got by okay for Oshawa, McNabb, Stanley Girard and Clark had two hits each for Herb Railph's Young Petes in the first tussle; while Clark and Castle hammered out a pair apiece in the second one. Cowe, Pearce and McCabe supplied most of the Motor Citizens' punch with the willow.

* * * * * * *

KINGSTON PONIES think the O. B. A. decision last Friday eve in Toronto to keep Kingston suspended while granting transfers to McNally and Doll of the Petes is a "peculiar" one. And they don't like it a bit. In the meantime, the Sports Federation secretary has sent word that members of the Ponies are under suspension in softball and other sports which are, like baseball, affiliated with the Sports Federation. The writer in the Limestone City says: "The new international bridge may be a big shot for sport in Western Ontraio as it will mean an easier contract for teams from Kingston and surrounding district to play with Ogdensburg, Watertown, Clayton and other nearby U' S. ports. An international ball League with Brockville, Kingston, Napanee, Belleville and American border cities would probably answer al lthe troubles of this section of the province for summer sport."

* * * * * * *

IN A PRETTY fair midget lacrosse squabble Saturday a.m. in the George St. arena, the Lions Club crew copped an 8-5 decision over the Kinsmen's squad Kiwanis and Rotary are slated to play there tonight and will be followed by a practice for Lions and Kinsmen. Sweaters shoulld be ready soon for these clubs. The Petes have an O. L. A. senior "B" scrap in Hamilton tomorrow night and the gang had better not stop to view the big Orange parade that p.m. in Toronto or they'll never get to the Ambitious City! East York is here this Friday for a senior gutted-stick fixture, proceded by a midget melee betwixt Rotary and Lions.

* * * * * * *

THOUGH 'TIS ONLY midsummer yet, there is plenty of football chatter around town now. On account of the local Orfuns are stepping up into O. R. F. U. senior company with Montreal, Toronto and Sarnia, Hundreds of letters of application have come rolling in and as someone remarked the other day "they can't all be star senior gridders." However, plenty of big rugby names will appear on the local lineup come autumn. Meantime, the Orfuns hold a mammoth "booster dinner" at seven bells this Friday eve in the Empress Hotel. Everyone invited, ducats being six bits a throw and may be obtained at Empress, Brooks, Playmor, Riley's or any executive member. The senior slate of officers will be elected Friday and all the plans discussed with the gathering. Come on, folks, and get your tickets right away.

* * * * * * *

OBSERVATION PLATFORM: On the request of many fans, the Senior Ball Club has decided to change the time of tomorrow's tilt at Riverside from four o'clock to 5.15. . . . Umping at Oshawa on Sat'day was wobbly and both teams kicked a lot. . . . Keene and C. G. E. gals have a softball fixture in the Bowl tomorrow in the twilight. . . . Omemee and Motorists men clash tonight at the East City saucer. . . . Hub Smith of Kingston, Ontario boxing champ at his weight, who will fight Reg. Lesurf of Peterborough within a month, will turn pro before the end of the year. . . . Tommy Pointer pitched four-hit ball and fanned 11 Sat'day as Port Hope took a 5-4 intermediate nod over Newcastle. . . . Canadian Open golf champianships will be held in Toronto on Aug. 18, 19, and 20; entry forms may be had by writing B. L. Anderson, 357 Bay St., Toronto. . . . No tennis comeback as yet re those invisible cups. . . . Young Petes have a double header back in Oshawa, probably next Saturday. . . . Note to Oshawa: "We trust your GM-men don't think tomorrow that all those street decorations are up for youse guys!"

Local Cricketers Show Good Form

The local club on Saturday went to Toronto to play one of the most important matches in their schedule. This was against the Toronto Cricket club, the match being played on the fine grounds of the T.C.C. at Armour Heights.

The result was a most encouraging improvement on the poor form shown on the previous Saturday, the match ending in a creditably even drawn game—the final score being Toronto 126 for 7 wickets, innings declared closed, Peterboorugh 99 for 6 wickets. This result was mainly due to great work by the Captain, Frank Dyer, 42, and Rev. G. F. Kelly, 27. Toronto opened strongly with P. C. Rea 46, and P. C. Bennett 31, but later wickets fell fast and with 6 out at 126 the innings was declared closed.

Two Peterborough wickets were down for 12, and then Dyer joined Kelly and the score was taken to 60 before the former was out for 27. Dyer then had a useful partner in Chambers (9), but at 86 was out for a freely hit 42. At the call of time the score was 99 for 7 with Williams not out 9 and R. N. Stewart not out 2. The last match between the two sides played in Toronto July 4, 1936, also ended i na draw—Peterborough 143 for 9 wickets, declared, Toronto 120 for 7.

Veteran Cricketer Celebrates His Seventy-Sixth Birthday

To-day, R. N. Stuart, the veteran treasurer and still active playing member of the Peterborough cricket club celebrates his 76th birthday. He is beyond dispute the oldest active cricketer in the Dominion, and probably in the whole Empire. There may be others who make an occasional appearance, but R. N. Stuart plays in matches every Saturday and turns out to practise twice a week.

Robert Norgross Stuart was born in Hampstead, London in 1862. He went to a well-known English school, Christ's College, Finchley, where he was a member of the cricket and rugby football teams. After leaving school he continued to play both games and was particularly efficient as a half back at rugby, in which position he played for first class London teams.

Coming to Canada in 1884, and to Peterobrough in 1903, he has been closely associated with games here, for many years as treasurer. He makes an ideal man for the job and it will be a sad day for local cricket when he has to give up the position. As a player he is still a useful member of the club and twice this season he has had long periods at the wicket providing runs at a critical time. In the field he can still compare favorably with much younger players.

All cricketers and friends here, with the many he has met in the cricket field throughout the province, will unite in wishing him continued health and strength and many happy returns.

On being asked, "R. N." said he had no special recipe for his active longevity; he had always lived a normal abstemious life; likes his pipe and is very interested in his garden. R. N. Stuart, too, is a fine example of muscular christianity. He is a past president of the Peterborough branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society; he is also a licensed Lay Reader in the Anglican Church and regularly takes part in the service at St. John's church.

Seymour West Wins Playoff

CAMPBELLFORD, July 11 — In the first game of the Township Softball League playoffs held here on Saturday, Seymour West copped a 9 to 1 victory from Petherick's in one of the most interesting games of the season. oBth teams gave a good exhibition on the field, but the Seymour West outfit had the edge when it came to batting, and there was plenty of excitement all the way as Petherick's were constantly within striking distance of high score and in these township league games it has been evidenced that anything can happen until the game is over with a complete reversal being by no means unusual in the last inning. Cliff Anderson was on the mound for the winners and pitched a consistently good game, giving the Petherick's team a total of ten hits, fanning two. Don Barnum did the tossing for the Corners team and fanned two and walked two.

The teams:

Pethericks — Reddick, ss; D. Barnum, p; L. Watson, c; E. Ingram, 3b; K. Oddie, 1b; J. Watson, cf; M. McKeown, rf; J .Barnum, lf; A. Reid, 2b.

Montreal Wins Four Titles Tennis Tourney

Ottawa, July 11 (CP).—Montreal racquet-wielders, figuring in four of the seven championships decided, dominated the 1938 Ontario tennis tournament which concluded Saturday on the Rideau Lawn Club courts here after a week's play.

Lewis Duff and Mrs. Winnifred Tees, both of Montreal, won the two major events, the men's and women's singles, respectively, while another Montrealer, Mrs. Frank Fisher teamed with Phyllis Ryckert of Ottawa to take the women's doubles crown and with Gordon Robinson of Niagara Falls, Ont., to win the mixed doubles title.

Two titles went to Vancouver players. Left-handed Bill Pedlar teamed up with a home-club player, Phil Pearson, to win the men's doubles crown, while Pedlar also captured the junior men's singles. Doreen Graham of Ottawa won the junior women's singles crown.

Duff, in the final against the Ottawa city champion, Don McDiarmid, lost the first set at love only to come back and take three of the next four. Scores were 0-6, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Mrs. Tees, a former Ottawa player, captured the women's open singles title with an easy 6-0, 6-3 victory over Winnifred McConnell of Ottawa.

Mrs. Fisher teamed with Robinson to win the mixed doubles from Ora Davis and Ed. Connolly of Ottawa, 7-5, 6-3. With Miss Ryckert as a partner, she trimmed Barbara Barnard of Montreal and Claire Walsh of Toronto 6-4, 8-6 in the women's doubles final.

Although the Duff-McDiarmid match held most interest for the large gallery, the men's final between the Vancouver duo of Pedlar and Pearson and Bruce Hall of Toronto and Robinson was a real treat.

Pedlar and Pearson earned most of their points with terrific smashing and a booming service and concentrated on Bruce Hall of Toronto while Hall's partner, Robinson, had hardly any work at all. A canny and experienced player, Robinson seemed to be feared by the Vancouverites who peppered the less-experienced Hall with an assortment of shots throughout the match which they won 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Lions Win 8 to 5 In Lacrosse Tilt

Lions defeated Kinsmen, 8 to 5, Saturady morning in a midget lacrosse game at the George St. arena. Mattucci scored twice in the first frame for Kinsmen and O'Toole once, but Vitarelli banged the ball into the twine for the Lions. In the second period Vitarelli scored two for Lions, aided once by Maloney, while Detlor got another on assists from Maloney and Caravaggie and Rochetti tallied for the losers. The tie was broken in the third period when Lions got three, Vitarelli scoring two and Roberts one. Vitarelli, Detlor and Maloney were outstanding for the winners, with Matttucci, Rochetti and O'Toole looking good for the losers. The teams:

Kinsmen—Goal, Bloom; defence, Rochetti, Mattucci; centre, Fallon; wings, O'Toole and Welsh.

Lions—Goal, Anderson; defence, Vitarelli and Roberts; centre, Caravaggie; wings, Maloney and Detlor.

Locals Get One By 7-2 Count In Nine Heats

Oshawa Juniors and Herb Ralph's Young Petes battled through sixteen innings of baseball at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon and so far as the leadership of the Lakeshore Junior group was concerned wound up where they started—tied for first place. The Petes took the full-length opener 7 to 2 in a game in which they were never behind and Oshawa grabbed off the seven innings second-end of the twin-bill 9 to 5.

The opener was a pitcher's battle most of the way between Grant Clark, the Petes effective righthander and "High Pockets" Ralph McCabe, Oshawa's six-foot-four heaver. Both had plenty of stuff on the ball as the twelve strikeouts credited to each in the summary shows, but the Petes kept breaking through McCabe's service in the later innings and the climax came in the eighth with Earl McNabb's long double with the bases loaded. Clark gave seven bases on balls but had his Sunday ball always ready for the clutches and would not have been scored on had it not been for a misjudged fly.

Pull Triple Play

The ball game included a little of everything and wound up with a triple play in the ninth by the Young Petes when Fair's attempt to sacrifice with two on resulted in a pop fly to Girard and the nipping of both runners before they got back to their bases. The fielding of Yourth at second for Oshawa and Castle's running catch of a fly against the grandstand were defensive features.

There was no score until the fifth when Clark walked, stole second and came home on Stanley's single and Girard singled to score Stanley. In the sixth Oshawa tied it up on Cowie's fly to left which went for a double when misjudged and singles through short by Yourth and Kitchen. Clark's single, McNabb's safe bunt, a wild heave to third by Wilson and Girard's single through third gave the Petes two more in their half and in the eighth with the bases loaded on a single, a walk and a wild pitch on a third strike McNabb doubled to deep left to drive in three runs.

Jack Condon had been announced as the Petes' pitcher in the opening game but when it was found McCabe was pitching for Oshawa the Petes switched to Clark after Condon had pitched to the first batter.

OSHAWA GM-MEN DEFEAT PETES BY 7-1 SCORE IN SENIOR GAME

3-Hit Pitching By Jake Biddle Beats Petes

Oshawa GM-men took a 7-1 C.O. B.L. decision over the Petes in the Motor City on Saturday. Some 500 fans saw Jake Biddle hurl three-hit ball while the Petes used three twirlers without effect, and booted the ball for seven errors in a sloppy showing. The same teams tangle here Tuesday, with Lefty McNally and Jack Turner slated to hurl.

The homesters Drove Russ Kitchen from the mound in the second heat with a three-hit attack which resulted in three runs. They added two more over six innings against Gunner Whitehill and finished it up with two in the eighth off Joe Jakafby. Whitehill allowed six hits while fanning four and Jakafby gave up two hits as he struck out one. They allowed no walks. Biddle's fast ball breezed by nine local batters, as he walked two and was decidedly stingy with base-hits. He had perfect support while the Petes' pitchers had wretched defensive backing. .. ...

Hits a Homer

Chuck Kearns' homer over the left-fielder's head in the third innings was the only run manufactured by the men of Murphy. Burton got a triple in the seventh with two out but died on third. McNally, as a pinch hitter in the eighth, singled and stole but was nipped off second in a double play. A walk to Kearns and one to Kingdon were the only other times a Peterborough player was on base. Doc Rowden led the Oshawa attack with a double and two singles in four. Biddle got a double and single, and Wallace and Jubenville had two singles each. The Petes' fielding was bad, as they failed to cover bases, booted grounders and threw poorly on occasions, just three of the Oshawa runs being earned.

Get Three Runs

The GM-men did nothing in the first but they got to Kitchen early in the second. Singles by Rowden, Wallace and Jubenville in a row, with an error and stolen base thrown in, and none out, finished the local heaver. Biddle hit one off Whitehill the same inning to send in the third run. Whitehill went good, scattering his hits and striking out two each in the fifth and sixth to allow no earned runs. One scored in the fourth on a single by Jubenville, an out and a miscue. Another tallied in the seventh on Foley's single, a sacrifice, passed ball and error.

Jakafby took over in the eighth and got two out but Bennett singled and Biddle doubled, followed by a local error, to let in two more runs. The visitors threatened but a few times and went down five times in order.

Indians Able To Win Out In Tough Games

NEW YORK, July 11 (C.P.). — One of the time-tested ways of deciding whether a baseball team really has the stuff to make it a pennant winner is to see whether it can come through in those tough games where one run is the difference between victory and defeat. And that's what makes Cleveland Indians and Pittsburgh Pirates look good right now.

When the Indians staggered through to an 8-7 victory over St. Louis Browns yesterday, it was their third-straight one-run victory and their 16th in 24 games that have been decided by that margin this season. Incidentally, it gave them a two-game margin over New York Yankees who dropped a 6-4 decision to Boston and Lefty Grove.

Pittsburgh Done Better.

Pittsburgh, sweeping a double-header with St. Louis Cardinals to run its winning streak to 11, has done even better in that line. The Pirates had little trouble winning the opener, 5-2, behind Cy Blanton, then came through 4-3 in the afterpiece. That was their 21st one-run triumph against six defeats. Pirates wound up two games behind New York Giants, who belted out a 5-2 victory over Boston Bees.

A four-runt blast in the seventh turned the trick for Pittsburgh as doubles by Pep Young and Jim Tobin started Bob Weiland off to defeat. Cleveland's one-run margin came in the ninth when Jeff Heath drove in the deciding tally after Billy Sullivan's homer had given the Browns a tie.

Grove, scattering 11 Yankee hits and fanning five, chalked up his 13th mound victory as Ben Chapman drove in three runs for him. The win left the Red Sox only 1½ games behind the Yanks.

Grove, scattering 11 Yankee hits and fanning five, chalked up his 13th mound victory as Ben Chapman drove in three runs for him. The win left the Red Sox only 1½ games behind the Yanks.

Reds Threatenig.

Two homers by Hank Leiber, accounting for four runs, paced the Giants to their victory, but they saw a new threat coming at them from Cincinnati. The Reds, who took over third place on Saturday, made it three straight over Chicago as Johnny Vander Meer squared accounts with Bill Lee. The score was 3-1 as Johnny, who lost in their last meeting, gave only four hits and an unearned run.

Washington advanced to fourth place in the American League and Detroit dropped from a tie into fifth as the Senators won two games from the Athletics while the Tigers lost 5-4 to Ted Lyons and Chicago White Sox. Jim Wasdell's homer with the corners crammed gave Washington the opener 5-2 and Zeke Bonura's pinch hit ended a five-run ninth inning rally that beat the A's 8-7. Hank Greenberg's 26th homer and Rudy York's 22nd marked the Detroit-Chicago clash.

Brooklyn Dodgers and Philadelphia Nationals divided a double-header and their "cellar" series, Brooklyn winning the opener 6-3 and the Phils the nightcap 5-3.

DOWN TO BUSINESS

HUDDERSFIELD, England — Joe Hulme, Huddersfield Town, Arsenal and England football player, has given up soccer for a business career. He still plays cricket for Middlesex in the summer.

He Rules the World's Courts

Here's a new picture of the one-man tennis team, Uncle Samuel's Don Budge. Always there seems to be one dominant figure in the tennis world... Brookes, Tilden, Vines, Perry. Now it's Budge. He is Australian, American, French and British singles champion and in the recent Wimbledon tournament had a part in winning the men's doubles and the mixed doubles. The game's leading luminary is expected to assist his country in retaining the Davis Cup, take part in the U.S. championships at Forest Hills, and then turn pro.

CRICKETER AT 70

Lefty McNally Hurls Tuesday

Lefty (Frank) McNally and Jack Turner will hook up in a pitchers' due here tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon at 5.15, in Riverside Park in a C.O.B.L. senior ball game. While the locals were losing in the Motor City on Saturday, Manager Eddie Murphy refused to pitch Lefty McNally, keeping him for the home game on Tuesday, and a record crowd of fans is expected to witness the mound battle between the Petes' starry southpaw and Turner, who has been a jinx all season to the locals. It promises to be a memorable melee and will be the first time the speedy U.S. twirler has faced the hard-hitting GM-men of Oshawa. They are likely to find his slants from the port side hard to solve.

With the return of the local left-hander to the mound, having been transferred by the O.B.A. on Friday last, and Tuesday seeing many visitors to the city for the July 12th celebration, local ball club officers look for a huge crowd of fans—provided the weather is right. The Petes themselves look for a keen ball game and a local win, but the 1937 league champions are always tough. If the Petes get the pitching they expect and the hitting they should be getting, the visitors are quite likely to take a licking. The game will be late in the afternoon, at four o'clock.

Combination Dominant In Soccer Tilt

The Canadian General had sweet revenge, on Saturday afternoon, by defeating the Brinton Athletic by the score of four goals to nil, in the final of the Father Phelan trophy before a large attendance of spectators. Crennel, Brinton goalie, and Bolton, Electrics' custodian, thrilled the fans with their clever exhibition of goal tending.

At the end of the game, George Blowers presented the cup to Captain Ben McMaster of the C.G.E. and Capt. Eric Jones, Brinton, congratulated the winners on their sportsmanship throughout the game.

Smart Combination

The spin of the coin fell in favor of the C.G.E. In the early stages, the players concentrated in feeling out the different styles of tactics, until Harris broke away on the left to send a lightning drive across the goal mouth where it run past. Then Brinton forwards distributed the ball to the wing which made inroads upon Bolton's charge. This was followed up by smart combination by the Brinton attack to leave Clark in a favorable position but again Bolton made a spectacular save. Exchanges continued even for a while with the Brintons getting the better of the argument, in midfield play, where McLeod, Jones and H. Adams intercepted every move made by their opposition, thus holding Electrics outside the shooting zone. Quickly the C.G.E. halves sensed the method of play and commenced to break up the swinging style thus permitting the Electrics' forwards to hammer away at Crenenli's charge who responded with a smart exhibition of goal tending and never hesitated to give instructions to his defense to hold his goal intact. He had to admit defeat about five minutes from the intervals, after the Brinton had peppered the C.G.E. goal to be repulsed. Earl relieved the pressure by punting upfield where McPhate trapped the ball. He beat two men and then passed across to Buchan who gently touched it back to McMaster, lying outside the penalty line. He connected with a left footer that landed in below the cross-bar in the rigging. Towards the rest period Brinton tried to get the equalizer. Half time: Canadian General 1, Brinton Athletic 0.

C.G.E. Blanked Brinton

On resuming, the Brintons reverted to the close passing style that proved their undoing, although at times the forwards broke through the Electrics' defense to find Bolton, in goal, conceding nothing as he would jump up in the air or pick up a low grounder slated for the inside of the post to send his team away to the other end. Twice did Murduff and Mitchell rob the losers of a break. Again Earl came into the picture with his positional play and full understanding with his wing halfs that always was ready to gather up the loose play. McPhate and W. MacKenzie put in a power of work stopping the Brinton attacks that were always dangerous. Earl broke up a raid that sent McMaster to beat two men in a row to send an oblique shot across the goal that found the inside of the nets. Two minutes later, Ross broke away on the wing to land a shot in below the cross-bar for the third counter. Canadian General 4, Brinton Athletic 0.

Goal scorers: McMaster (2), Buchan and Ross. Brinton: none.

Brinton Athletic: C. Grennell, goal; Ace Downer and Art Downer, full backs; H. Adams, E. Jones and J. McLeod, halves; S. Clark, D. Richardson, N. Downer, D. Leether and G. Downer, forwards; sub, A. McMaster.

Canadian General: J. Bolton, goal; J. Mitchell and S. Murduff, full backs; W. MacKenzie, F. Earl and T. McPhate, halves; A. Ross, A. Mitchel, J. Buchan, Ben McMaster and W. Harris, forwards; subs, H. Keith, W. J. Cribbes, J. Goodhue.

Accidents Kill 31 In Canada Over Weekend

TORONTO, July 11 (CP).—A toll of 31 violent deaths was recorded in Canada during the week-end—the most disastrous of any similar period this year. Thirteen persons drowned—four when a motor truck plunged into the Quesnel river in British Columbia.

Five persons were killed in automobile crashes, two in other mishaps and a young Toronto woman died of heat prostration.

Plunging into the Quesnel river after breaking through the chain barrier on a ferry dock, a light delivery truck carried Mrs. Frances Denby, formerly of Lake Alma, Sask., and three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Chancey Conners, formerly of Gladmore, Sask., to their death. Steve Masti and Joe Cantin, who had stepped from the truck, rescued Mr. and Mrs. Conners.

When Maurice Prevost, 11, attempted to rescue Aline Nadeau, 10, in the Rouge river near Huberdeau, Que., both were drowned. The little girl had been holidaying at the Prevost farm.

Life guards gave up trying to revive 11-year-old Gene Morris three hours after his body was taken from Lake Ontario at Toronto, where he had been swimming. Other bathing fatalities recorded in Ontario were at Normandale, on Lake Erie, where Elizabeth Ardley of Brantford drowned, and in Union Pond near St. Thomas, where Douglas Kelly, 18, suddenly disappeared from his companions' view.

Exhausted while swimming in the St. John River at Edmunston, N.B., Leo Ouellet, 15, sank and drowned. At Quebec 10-year-old Paul Plante drowned while swimming. A pool in the East River at New Glasgow, N.S., claimed the life of Russell Baker, 14 and at Glace Bay, N.S., Joseph Tobin is believed to have fallen from a dock to his death among tangled weeds in the harbor. George O'Brien, 18, of Montreal, drowned while bathing with friends at St. Eustache, 19 miles north of Montreal.

Three automobiles were involved in the crash near Tillsonburg in which Delaire DeRoo was killed. He died while the last rites of the Roman Catholic church were being administed at the roadside. Five others were seriously hurt.

Failure to round a curve near Toronto resulted in death to Rudolph Pettigrew of Toronto and serious injury to Miss Christine Lemon. William Oprel of Preston was killed when his motorcycle collided with an atomobile on the Galt-Hespeler highway in Ontario and Currie Wilson died at Kitchener, only a few miles away, after his car collided with another.

A reckles driving charged faced Philip Ryan today after a motor crash near Ottawa in which John Seymour of Ottawa was killed. Ryan's car turned over four times.

Charles Muir, 68-year-old farmer of the Wingham district of Ontario was killed when his team of horses ran away just as he was climbing on a wagon-load of hay. Injuries received in a dive into two feet of water at Riverside, Windsor suburb, were fatal to Monroe Smith of Detroit.

Heat was blamed directly for the death of Miss Freda Wilman, 25, who collapsed while walking on a Toronto street Saturday night.

President Albert Lebrun

King George and Queen Elizabeth

The state visit which King George and Queen Elizabeth will make to Paris on July 19 will be the first state visit of a British monarch to France in 24 years. Their Majesties' visit will be concluded on July 22 when they dedicate the Australian war memorial at Villers Bretonneux. President Albert Lebrun will act as host to the royal couple during their visit and has arranged an elaborate military display around the Arc de Triomphe which will emphasize the close friendship existing between England and France.

Is Retiring

Shown on his arrival in San Francisco aboard the liner Tatuta Maru is Sir Arthur Wauchope, for the past seven years British high commissioner and commander-in-chief in Palestine and Transjordania. this time was successful in finding Kester and bringing him to the surface and handing him to some of the other rescuers.

The firemen, three of whom were Stewart Foster, Robert McKenzie and George Gimblett, Jr., had arrived on a fire truck, while Fire Chief Gimblett and Fireman Orval Wilson came in the Chief's car, took charge of the resusicitation work. The inhalator was used for a short time and then the firemen resorted to the prone method of resuscitation and working in teams, while the sweat poured off their faces, they kept on for minute after minute striving to bring life back to the unconscious form. Ernest Hotrum and several others assisted in the work and finally after some forty minutes in which operations had not been suspended for a second, the workers were encouraged by the first signs of life, indications that Kester had begun to breathe again. Soon he was moaning and later as he progressed further toward recovery the rescued man began to struggle.

Taken To Hispital.

At this stage he was removed to St. Joseph's hospital where, after hypodermics had been administered he gradually quieted down and was pronounced out of danger by Dr. Robert Young.

Kester, who has been representing a Toronto firm here for several months, owes his life to the manner in which he was taken out of the water by young Hotrum who, although tired from swimming, unhesitatingly dived to save his friend, and to the very fine work of the firemen and those who assisted them in the work of resuscitation.

Orange Lodge Is Bulwark Against "Isms"

The Orange Order was lauded as a bulwark against Fascism and other dangerous isms which are threatening democratic government today by the Rev. V. E. Zufelt, minister of Knox United Church Sunday night as he addressed a crowded church at the annual church service of the Order. Uwards of 350 men and women paraded to the church behind the Salvation Army Band and following the service marched back to the Lodge rooms.

Over a year ago when the Orangemen began their crusade against the incipient advances of Fascism, their efforts were poo-pooched by many, but today even the most skeptical realizes the far sightedness of the Orange leaders because Fascism is definitely a live danger," said Rev. Zufelt.

A "Serpent's Head

The speaker declared the Orange Order was the only organization in Canada today that is prepared to resist the menace of Fascism, and he described the isms as a "serpent's head that is rising in our midst." The 12th of July celebration is the least of the men ventures of the Order he stated and is merely a public demonstration by the men and women who have high ideals and who give their loyalty to God and to the state.

Rev. Zufelt tendered a warm welcome to the visiting Orangemen and women who crowded the main body of the church, and in the course of his remarks said he regarded the work being done by the Order as lying in two fields, that of the Christian church and of the state and Empire. The main emphasis is placed on maintaining and protecting the principals and precepts of the British Empire, and Orangemen and women in doing this also are deeply loyal to their church. "The church finds it difficult to enter the field of politics, her ministers are not authorities on politics, but the Orange Order on the other hand always offers to its members a chance to discuss within the lodge any question of the day and thus determine what is best for the state. As the church takes a definite stand on all things religious, so also does the Orange Order take a determined stand on all State issues. God himself outlined the two great loyalties, of the individual to the Church and the State when he said "render there unto Caeser the things that are Caesers and to God, the things that are God's."

Not March of Bigots

On the 12th of July we celebrate the greatest victory of religious liberty. It is not a march of bigots. it is merely the celebration of a broad principal, namely that all within the country shall receive equal and fair treatment. "British traditions that are ours were paid for by blood of our ancestors, and today we pay tribute to the state in which we enjoy freedom." and we should be ready at all times to defend with out lives the great heritage that is ours."

A special vocal offering by four members of the choir was sung during the service and the singers were Albert Lee, John Donaldson, Ormie Denson and Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt. The Salvation Army Band played during the offering.

Mistaken Identity

Molly, an old grey tabby cat owned by Mrs. Andrew Stevenson of Crawford's Grove is shown (BELOW) as she proudly mothers two Pekinese puppies. The pups are owned by Bert Lacey, Rubidge Street, and when the mother of the two puppies died, Mr. Lacey stole the kittens away from the mother cat and substituted the pups. The arrangement worked perfectly. The old cat doesn't know yet that she is raising two sons of her arch enemy, the dog.

Bathing House Is Lifted From Its Base

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, July 11.—A portion of the tornado that swept over Lake Simcoe struck the northern part of Curve Lake with terrific force about five o'clock on Friday afternoon and did considerable damage to the property of Harry Pearson of Smith township, owner of a group of six cottages clustered about the north end of the lake.

When the storm swept up the lake, bringing with it a terrific downpour of rain, it lifted a good sized bathing house from its cement foundations and carried it about 10 feet up a hill where it smashed into a tree. At the same time Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Loesch of Cleveland, Ohio, had a narrow escape. A huge tree measuring about 22 inches across was torn up by the roots and hurled down within six inches of the corner of the cottage in which they were staying. The hole left where the tree was torn out measured about eight feet in diameter and was four feet deep. Other smaller trees in the path of the storm were snapped off as though they had been matchwood.

After the storm had subsided about ten minutes later, the men carried the bathing house, which was undamaged, back to its foundations. About eight o'clock the same night a second storm swept over the same area and again lifted the bathing house, this time smashing it to pieces against the tree.

At Downeyville all rural telephone service was disrupted, much damage was done to fields of grain, and several trees fell across the Omemee-Greenhurst road impeding traffic. A huge tree split in two by lightning crashed to the ground within a few feet of one of Pearson's cottages at Buckhorn, and three other trees in the same vicinity were struck by lightning and split. Further to the south on the flat stretches north of Burleigh upwards of a hundred trees were felled, but fortunately none struck any cottages or farm homes.

The flag pole was toppled at Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls, and some damage was done to the end of the verandah, by the fierce wind. The rain seeped through many cottages which prior to the storm had been water tight.

A boat house was shifted from its foundation at the head of Stoney Lake, and many boats tied at wharves were given a terrific battering.

The storm was confined to an area about ten to fifteen miles wide and swept from west eastward. At Lake Simcoe about a dozen cottages suffered extensive damage when trees crashed down on the roofs and broke through.

"SACRAMENT."

"Sacrament" was the subject of the Lesson-sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientists, Peterborough on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "Let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth. (I Corinthians 5:8.) Selections from the Bible included the following from Mark 14:22, "And as they did eat, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to them, and said, Take, eat: this is my body." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," "The disciples had eaten, yet Jesus prayed and gave them bread. This would have been foolish in a literal sense; but in its spiritual signification, it was natural and beautiful. . . .

"Their bread indeed came down from heaven. It was the great truth of spiritual being, healing the sick and casting out error. Their Master had explained it all before, and now this bread was feeding and sustaining them. They had borne this bread from house to house, breaking (explaining) it to others, and now it comforted themselves."

NEED MORE WATER

Application to the federal government for an increased flow of water in the Indian River from Stoney Lake was made through A. L. Killaly, superintendent of the Trent Canal, by James Hawthorne of Dummer at the week-end. The bulk of the Indian River's volume is said to be tapped from the lake at Gilchrist Bay. The river drives several grist mills, one of them at Warsaw for which more water is needed.

UNITED SERVICES

The combined congregations of Knox and St. James' United Churches worshipping yesterday morning at St. James' heard a most impressive sermon by Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, based on St. Paul's "Be not overcome with evil; rather overcome evil with good." The speaker reminded his hearers that Paul wrote this text while Roman chains dragged at his wrist. Man's desire to return evil with similar was fatal to man's soul. Between times of great spiritual achievement the soul should be active in doing good. As with fine tools — to rust is to die. Finally — the church militant advances when the enemy expects retreat. The choir and organist of Knox Church led the srvice of praise for the large congregation. Rev. Mr. Zufelt singing with deep feeling, the solo, "In Jesus."

Dream House

Here is a dream that is rapidly becoming a reality. It is the Kiwanis Club's Dream House rising from the ground on Princess Street. It is the house you paid a quarter or a dollar to a business man, a doctor, an insurance salesman, a teacher, a little boy or a young man, a little girl or a pleading damsel, to help build—and some day it may be yours if you are lucky enough.

Col. J. W. Miller Arrives Home From Gettysburg

Colonel J. W. Miller arrived home Saturday night from Gettysburg, Pa., where he attended the reunion of veterans of the armies of the North and South in connection with the 75th anniversary of the battle that marked the turning point in the war of secession, the shattering of the hopes of the Confederacy, and the beginning of a new spirit of union out of which has grown the great republic.

Among the hundreds of men who once wore the blue of the north and the gray of the south, Colonel Miller did not meet any other survivor of his unit, the 6th U. S. Cavalry. Even the landscape seemed changed and unrecognizaie after the passing of three-quarters of a century since that day in first week of July, 1863, he was captured and sent to the famous Libby prison in Richmond. One of the reports at the encampment indicated that there were 1700 Northerners and 500 veterans of the Confederate army under canvas fraternizing for the last time, recalling friendly encounters along the lines in lulls at the end of the day when the men of the north traded coffee for tobacco from the south, arguing the "ifs" of fate, what might have been the result if this or that other course had been followed, and finally agreeing that the prayer in Lincoln's historic speech, on that same ground in November of that year, "that these dead shall not have died in vain," had been fully realized.

Father's Attendant

Burton Miller, who was his father's attendant in the tent assigned to him, told the Examiner today the fact that they were from Canada seemed to increase the cordiality of their reception. They met hundreds of people from all parts of the United States, and their conversations carried the impression that the great democracies of British origin should be drawn together in closer relationship than in the past. Compliments to Canada were frequently expressed by the American hosts, some of whom fancied Colonel Miller had come a long way to the reunion. His route, however, was shorter than that of many of the veterans and their friends he met.

More than 200,000 visitors accompanied the veterans or assembled with them on the rolling ground of Gettysberg for the dedication by President Roosevelt of the new memorial and its perpetual light. Mr. Miller said their are more than 500 monuments in the area, some of them commemorating regiments, others erected by various states. Col. Miller traveled by motor in easy stages, and returned with no ill effects of the trip. It was a dramatic experience this reunion of men who once fought as enemies at a critical stage of the progress of the United States, and some of the warmest greetings Col. Miller received were from Southerners in their uniforms of gray.

The battle of Gettysburg opened on July 1 and four days later Lee's army of Northern Virginia, outnumbered by Meade's army of the Potomac, were in full retreat from the high tide of their advance that had been planned to capture Washington. Tremendous losses were suffered by both sides, and it was the episodes of those days, the charges and countercharges, the dead on the battle ground, the crowded field hospitals, a great chapter out of history recounted for the last time together by men who had each played a part in its making.

Man Fined $150 On Three Counts

Henry E. Baker of Toronto who pleaded guilty on Saturday morning to three offences under the Ontario Securities Act and was remanded for sentence until this morning came before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court today and Crown Attorney McElderry informed the court that the man's record had not yet come back.

"I am assured by his lawyer who called me over the telephone from Toronto," the crown attorney said, "that Baker has not been in trouble before, although sometimes there are mistakes about things of that kind."

"I had no criminal intent," declared the prisoner when asked if he had anything to say.

Magistrate Gee imposed a fine of $50 on each of the three counts, with the alternative of two months imprisonment on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently.

"There have been too many people going around like you have defrauding trusting widows and other persons," he told Baker.

This morning he was arraigned before Magistrate Gee in police court on charges of drunken driving and reckless driving to which he pleaded not guilty.

Way was defended by W. B. Gordon who said that he was not ready to proceed today and asked for a remand.

"We are ready to proceed now," said Crown Attorney McElderry, "but will not oppose the request."

Way was remanded until Monday of next week, bail being fixed at $1000.

Defense Objects To Adjournment

Strenuous objections were made by Defense Counsel T. J. Carley, K.C., in police court this morning when Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., asked for another adjournment in the charge against Chris McGrath of illegally selling liquor.

The case he said had been dragging on for over a month and there had been repeated adjournment at request of the crown. He could not see there was any reason for the delay because the witnesses were readily available.

"One of them lives in Oshawa," commented Crown Attorney McElderry.

"Well Oshawa is not very far away," said Mr. Carley, "and surely communication could be established in a month."

The crown attorney said that he had received a certificate from the provincial analyst for which he had been waiting but a material witness was still missing.

"Can we hope to have this case disposed of before the first week in August?" asked Mr. Carley. "My client is anxious to attend the corps reunion in Toronto and meet some of his old comrades there at that time."

It was finally decided to adjourn the case until Friday of this week with the understanding that it must be proceeded with then.

CHAPTER 35

BUCKSHOT BROWN wouldn't enter Ellen's Casa Hermosa much, after she moved in. He had helped build it, but when the paint and the "trimmin's" were all on, he was shy of the place, sensing that an uncouth old hillbilly such as he was out of place there.

However, a day or two after the cattle herd arrived, Ellen invited Mr. Brown formally to dinner. Dinner at seven. So save his soul, he could think of no way to refuse!

Right after breakfast that day he began preparing himself for the ordeal. He bathed out in the open stream up the canyon, notwithstanding a temperature of approximately 48 degrees. He paid a Mexican girl a dollar to come to his new rock cottage and press the only suit of clothes he owned. He labored at trimming his bristly whiskers, for the first time in at least 12 months. He borrowed a necktie from Doctor Bill Baron, paid a devilish cowboy a quarter to tie it, and finally saw Ellen herself re-tie it when he ventured in that night and glowed under her compliments.

Bill had refused to attend the dinner, saying he was jealous of Mr. Brown. And so, just for fun, Ellen put on all the style possible for Uncle Buckshot. He sat as straight as a soldier; with his knife shoveled peas, potatoes, meat, salad and bread sopped in gravy, relinquishing that favorite "tool" only when the Mexican girl took it away and gave him a shiny spoon with his ice cream.

"Fust ice cream I've had since I was in Phoenix," the old-timer ventured, happy to see the delicacy.

"When was that, Uncle Buckshot?" asked Ellen. "I didn't know you had been away any."

"A-humpf. It was a right smart while back, when President Harding come through th' west, ma'am."

"Oh!"

An hour or so after dinner, as they sat in the deep chairs before her fireplace, conversation improved. It is hard to maintain unaccustomed formality in the soft glow of a fire, with a sweet and friendly girl to talk to. Before he quite realized it, old Buckshot was fathering Ellen again, giving her advice which she couldn't have bought with all her money. Inevitably the talk got around to personal matters, including affairs of the heart.

"You think a heap of this Doctor Bill," he stated, it, rather than asked. "How you gittin' along with him."

She smiled wistfully. "Bill is very busy."

"He ain't no busier'n any other ranch man. That youngster is just like a bull. What you need is a ring in his nose to make him behave!"

She warmed her hands before the fire, and eventually murmured, "What I need is a ring on my finger. Anyway I feel now that it's hopeless, Uncle Buckshot. I am much younger than he, for one thing. He babies me around as he would a little sister. When he gives me any attention at all. Do you believe in omens, Uncle Buckshot? Do you believe in frogs?"

"How's thet? Frogs?"

She smiled but, didn't explain. "I was just pretending. Better skip it. I like having a big brother, too, and I can be happy just being near him. Honest I can."

Mr. Brown was good to talk to; a mellowed old man wise in spite of his exterior appearance, he answered the need for a confidante that every person feels. He thanked her and went away at 9.30 o'clock, which late hour amounted to downright dissipation for him.

Outside, he noted a light still burning in Bill Baron's quarters. Bill had caused a two-room apartment to be erected for himself adjacent to the bunkhouse where the cowboys slept. He ate with them in the abode cook shack, or from the chuck wagon or campfire pots when they were working on the range. Buckshot went over now and tapped on his door.

Young man and old sat together for half an hour, chinning. Bill was deep in plans for a new series of cattle feeding tests, and anxious to discuss them. He was physically tired tonight because the day in the saddle had been a hard one, but he would always talk.

"Things look swell to me, Buckshot. I have arranged with the university to extend the feeding tests in spring. They will send an expert down here next week to remain for 6 months or more. They want to experiment on some new concentrates, including an irradiated grain and cottonseed meal mixture. If their plan works, it means a new market for farmers' products, and cheaper and better cattle feed for ranchers plus a higher steer health ration due to vitamin increase."

'Sounds like you're coddlin' steers, Doc. Why, my old pappy—"

"I know, I know; your pappy scoffed at college teaching, thought a cow was a cow and destined only to rough it through, live or starve. But that isn't scientific, nor sensible under modern standards. Ellen Dale is already getting a name for herself because of the tests the Dale-Durango has made. Why, Buckshot, this big McKnight ranch in Texas wrote me they have already profited by one simple little formula evolved right here, and this ranch isn't three months old yet! The Dale-Durango is financing experiments that nobody has ever been able to do before, or interested enough. Not even the colleges. Don't you see? It can be worth millions to the industry!"

Except in a general way the talk went over Ephriam Brown's head. Wise enough to realize his knowledge was limited, he encouraged Bill to keep on. Younger men had to make progress; the old order must go. It is an immutable law of living. However, he poked a gnarled finger at Bill and spoke again now.

"But lissen to me, young Doc, I been up to Ellen's for supper. Dinner, she called it, by dads! Never et so much in all my days. But she ain't rightly as happy as she oughta be, seems to me. She's stuck off away out here in these hills when by rights she's a city woman. And they ain't no other young people her age at hand. Are you content just to work for her, and never go in for no finer sentiments?"

Bill grinned, but it was more of a sad grin than a happy one.

"Buckshot, I work here because the pay is good and because I can be near her. But a hundred dollars a week, which I get, is nothing compared to her hundreds of thousands."

"It'd be yours if you married her."

Bill glared at the old man then, his eyes flashing. It was answer enough.

"Yeamp, I know how you feel, damm if I don't." Buckshot admitted, rising to go. "Keep plugging, son. Something likely'll turn up."

He and Bill both were in bed within another half hour. Bill admitted to himself, when Buckshot was gone, that Ellen needed more friends, more social outlets. But he was honestly afraid to provide them for her. No matter how he arranged it, young men would be sure to discover Ellen Dale and make love to her, and that thought appalled him.

All at once it dawned on him that he had been guilty of high selfishness. Unable or unwilling to make love to her himself, he had established her in an isolated part of Arizona, secretly delighted that she was away from such sauve suitors as Sidney Bromberg and others in Hollywood. He felt that time might indeed turn up something, as Buckshot had said, but he didn't know what. Meantime he had been careful to keep himself extremely busy with his job, lest he brood about the matter, or do something he would regret.

He heard an automobile engine—probably some cowboy coming back from town—but paid it no attention. He lay there trying to think but too fatigued to avoid mental confusion, and was just drifting into first sleep when a strange sound assailed him.

It was a faint sound, but foreign to this place, at this hour.

It was music, guitar music, from somewhere in the direction of Ellen's home. Bill raised on his elbow to listen.

Presently there was singing too, soft distant singing, a man's voice in the night.

DOROTHY DIX

This is the first of a series of three articles by Dorothy Dix discussing 'How to Treat Your Husband,' a mooted question that comes into the life of every wife. The second article will follow Tuesday and the third on Wednesday.—Editor's Note.

• • • • • •

ALTHOUGH marriage has been the chief business of women ever since Eve put on the first wedding in the Garden of Eden, women have not yet mastered the first indispensable principle to success in their profession. Millions of women have married. Hundreds of thousands of women marry annually and yet, taking them by and large, they have not found out how to treat a husband.

Of course, here and there is a shining exception to this rule and the result is an inspiring picture of domestic bliss, but such cases are rare. The great majority of women still go stumbling on into misery and divorce because they have not had the wit to find out how to make themselves persona grata with their husbands.

In a word, they fail to strike just the right note in their attitude toward their husbands. Sometimes they treat them better than they deserve. Sometimes worse. But seldom do they treat the men just as they would like to be treated.

Both parties are to blame for this state of affairs. The husbands are to blame because they camouflage their feelings on the subject. They pretend that they want one thing when they really want another. They pose as big, strong, silent, stoical heroes who are above all human weaknesses and who would be repelled at the very thought of any blandishment or jollying. And they are disappointed because their wives are not mind-readers enough to know that they are just putting on a show, and that what they are really pining for is to be babied.

And wives make a mistake because they haven't enough sense to see this, and because they take their husbands seriously and because they don't realize that no man in the home circle is the same sort of man that he is out of it. The John Smith to whom a woman is united is no more the John Smith of the outside world than he is some other man.

The John Smith who is a lawyer or a doctor or a grocer is a big, strong, self-reliant man who is tolerant in meeting the vicissitudes of life and can stand for the unvarnished truth. The woman who marries him has understood all of these qualities and loved him for them and she naturally expects him to exhibit these characteristics in home life.

It is her error. John Smith the business man is dealt with on a plain, sensible, above-board platform, but John Smith the husband has to be cajoled and petted and wheedled along the road he should go if there is anything doing in the domestic felicity line in the household of which he is the alleged head.

Now the majority of husbands average up quite as well as the majority of wives, but even when a man is really good and true and strong, experience teaches his wife that if she is to get along with him in peace, she has to use tact in dealing with him and choose the psychological hour in which he is well fed and at peace with the world in which to impart to him inevitable bad family news, such as that the coal is out or the baby has broken his pet pipe or that Mother is coming for a nice long visit.

Also, she discovers that husband's sensibilities cannot stand the shock of being told the plain, unadulterated truth that a wife did a thing because she wanted to do it, or paid $40 for a hat because it took her fancy. Even when he doesn't object to what she does or her spending the money he feels it only decent for her to somehow drape chiffon over the transaction.

As a matter of fact, men don't object to being managed by their wives. It is the raw way the wives do it that gets them. They want to be bound by garlands or roses instead of being dragged along by chains.

But, most of all, husbands want to be petted and coddled and chucked under the chin. There isn't a man living whose secret ideal of a perfect wife isn't one who waits on him hand and foot and does things for his comfort with her own hands. It isn't because a man really wants his wife to slave for him, it is just because he is like the 3-year-old who howls for Mama to put on his shoes, or butter his bread when there are seven nurses standing around to do it.

Men want their wives to show them off. The expression on the face of little Sammy while his fond mother is telling the smart things he said is exactly the same expression that is on Sammy's father's face when his wife is bragging about his organizing a trust, or asking him to tell that funny story again.

A man wants to be babied when he is sick. He wants his wife to sit by his bed and hold his hand and believe he is going to die every time he has a headache, and if she doesn't he considers her a cold, hard icicle and wonders why he married her. Hence the first principle in treating a husband is to treat him as if he were your littlest baby. As long as you do that he will gurgle and coo, and you will never have to shop for a ticket to Reno.

DEAR MISS DIX—This question is being hotly debated in our office. Will you settle it for us? Are blondes more fickle than brunettes? Are blondes less to be trusted than brunettes? Are blondes less loyal in love than brunettes, and do they resort to trickery in winning men?

WONDERING.

ANSWER:

Anita Loos says that gentlemen prefer blondes, and she made her irresistible blonde a gold-digger, who was a cheerful worker. Miss Loos explained that she did not refer to the color of the girl's hair and complexion, but to her soud, which was blonde, if you get what she means. But I don't think you can judge a woman's character by her coloring.

I have known brunettes who were hold-up artists and girls with golden locks who were as unselfish as angels. I have known olive-skin girls with black hair and dusky eyes who were as meek as Patient Griselda, and girls with rose-leaf complexions who were as tempestuous and temperamental as they make them.

Tomorrow, Dorothy Dix says that husbands want their wives to treat them as if they were little tin gods. Watch for the second article in this series.

Charming Talkers Use Good Vocabulary

Break Bad Speech Habits

Mary's entertaining talk certainly makes friends for her! She's always ready with the right word.

Telling Kenneth about the new movie star, she doesn't flounder:

"Oh, she was sort of dark complected and her nose was kind of turned up at the end and her hair was—well—flat to her head. I can't hardly describe her eyes."

Instead, Mary says, "She's a brunette with a piquant nose, sleek hair and smouldering eyes." No vagueness! No boners, such as "complected," "can't hardly," "kind of," and "sort of." In a few more well-chosen words she pictures high spots of the movie for Kenneth.

Our 32-page booklet puts the words you want on the tip of your tongue. Enrich your vocabulary, weed out errors of grammar and pronunciation from our valuable right-and-wrong lists.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, July 12

A particularly eventful and memorable day is forecast from the interesting chain of lunar aspects. There is definite promise of a sudden turn which may have a far-reaching effect on the future life and its destinies. In this there may be an element of secrecy, with certain superiors aiding and abetting in affairs of progress and prosperity, and other persons attempting to impede and circumvent. In any case, do not be carried away by impulse or recklessness. Move calmly.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of major events, with matters of a sudden and surprising nature having radical influence on the life. Change of environs and interests is forecast, with employers or superiors assisting to great progress, and elders seeming to interfere and obstruct. Choose calmly and do not let impetuosity or overzealous enterprise misguide you.

A child born on this day may be extremely ambitious and enterprising, with talents and energies reaching to high adventure and progress. But in this there may be much to cope with and fortunes may fluctuate.

Fishermen Desperate

PETIT DE BRAT, N.S., July 11—(CP)—Father A. Boudreau, Roman Catholic parish priest, said last night conditions in the fishing community of Petit de Grat, Richmond County, were "desperate."

The priest said the situation was directly traceable to the low prices paid for fish by large companies.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 fishermen on the Richmond County coast are facing starvation, he added.

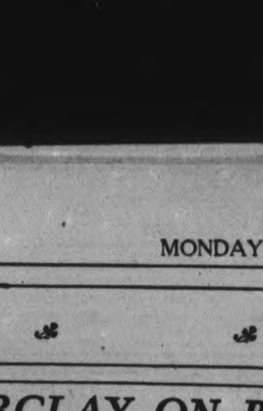
"The Authority on Authorities"

SHUN IT LIKE POISON

HOPES OF the declarer are sometimes very transparent. No clairvoyant ability is nedeed at all to tell that he would rather have you lead a certain suit to him than try leading it himself. If such is the case, your job is to avoid that suit as a rodent would duck "Rough-on-Rats". Lead anything else in preference.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

North and South reached a contract of 4-Spades on this deal and West started the defense by leading the diamond Q. Declarer won this with the K and cashed his two top spades. When the Q failed to drop, South lost hope of making the contract, for he had one sure loser in trumps, one in diamonds and two in clubs, as well as a possible heart.

West, however, aided the declarer by a poor play which made the game possible. On the second spade lead, West signaled a club. South then gave up a trick to East's high trump, whereupon the club 4 was returned. Now West led the heart 2, which was exactly what South hoped for. The 3 was played from dummy, East put on the 8 and South won with the 9. The heart A dropped the K and the two other hearts cashed, one providing a spot for the losing club. West's contention was that he did not return a club because after his signal his partner should have played the K, but that was no excuse for West to open up a new suit for the declarer.

What is the correct defense against South's 5-Clubs contract after the lead of the club 3?

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"How do you do, Mary Jane," said Mrs. Squirrel to the rag doll.

"We're glad you came to see us in our house," said the three little squirrels. They were sitting up on their hind legs inside their house in the hollow trunk of the elm tree which grew in the garden. It was all lit up with glowworm lamps and a firefly chandelier. The three little squirrels were holdin gtheir front legs in front of them as though they wanted to shake hands with Mary Jane.

But Mary Jane knew she couldn't go over to them and shake hands. She was only a rag doll, and rag dolls can't go anywhere unless someone takes them.

All at once the first little squirrel whispered to the second little squirrel whispered to the third little squirrel. The next instant all three of them scampered out of the house.

The little squirrels whispered.

"Here, where are you going?" their father called after them.

Something For Her.

"They've just thought of something," Mrs. Squirrel said, smiling at Mary Jane. "They're always thinking of something. I hope it's something nice for you. They've hidden some chestnuts about the garden. I gues sthey've gone to fetch them in to give to you."

"Oh, that will be lovely," said Mary Jane, wondering whether she would like chestnuts.

"Or perhaps it's some acorns they've gone after," said Mr. Squirrel. "Ah — I hear them coming back now. Well, what have you brought for our guest?" he asked the three squirrels who sat up on their hind legs again, this time right in front of Mary Jane.

"I've brought this little seed. The grasshopper gave it to me," the first little squirrel answered.

"I've brought this little root," said the second little squirrel. "The robin gave it to me."

"And I've brought this little stem from the edge of the pond. The whirligig gave it to me."

"And they're all for you," the three of them said in one voice.

Mary Jane smiled. "Oh, thank you very much. But what are they for?"

BUTLER, Pa., July 11 — (AP). — Rosie, a nine-year-old cow, is living the life of Reilly in a cottage-like barn equipped with gas heaters and runnning water. Rosie's gabled home has a front porch, a kitchen with a sink, an ice box and a lawn-like meadow on which she brouses. Every day she gets a bath. Mrs. Jennie Nixon, owner of Rosie, explains she built the barn in the style of a house to "demonstrate that a barn does not have to be an eyesore.

The annual picnic of the 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E. was a pleasant event of Thursday afternoon, and was held at the cottage of Mrs. R. E. Clarke, Chemong. About thirty-five members were in attendance, and enjoyed swimming and bridge during the afternoon. The bridge prize was won by Mrs. P. G. Wallace.

We Noticed

....During the week-end—an unusually smart and colorful assortment of play clothes ranging from the briefest of sun suits to sophisticated, simply tailored linens.

✧ ✧ ✧

....A three-piece play suit of cool cotton mesh in a lovely shade of rust had wooden barrel buttons trimming the shirt, shorts and skirt.

✧ ✧ ✧

....A nautical miss was wearing white slacks with a tailored, red flannel jacket, navy tam and gaily colored rope sandals.

✧ ✧ ✧

....A turquoise dress simply made with low, square neckline front and back depended on the almost-mahogany tan of its slim, blonde wearer for stunning distinction.

✧ ✧ ✧

....An ideal golf outfit noticed at the links consisted of shirt and skirt in white, with scarf of printed green light-as-a-feather wool, and an embroidered green felt belt.

✧ ✧ ✧

....A hit of the season was the young lady who wore a green gingham sun suit which was made with zippers up the sides, and backless to display a fine tan. She was very fair, and golden ringlets were bowed at each side with matching gingham. Eating an ice-cream cone as she trotted along beside her mother, the little three-year-old was quite unconscious of many admiring glances.

Mrs. R. J. Manion Most Interested In Her Home Life

OTTAWA, July 11—Quiet and unassuming, and with a charm that comes from graceful living, Mrs. Robert J. Manion, first lady of the Conservative party, is grateful for the support given her husband in his choice as Conservative chieftain.

Mrs. Manion, who is more interested in her home and the well-being of her boys than in public life, confessed she was thrilled at the result of the ballot, and admitted her husband's election was the most thrilling event in her life. Her political career, she told a newspaper reporter, was to act as critic to her husband's speeches at home before he appeared publicly. Mrs. Manion is an interested listener in every audience when Dr. Manion speaks, and plans to accompany him on all his public tours.

"I'm not the important one," she said shyly to inquiring reporters and camera men who flocked about her the day her husband was elected. The camera looked "menacing, like so many cannons," she said as camera bulbs flashed.

Mrs. Manion, is primarily an "old-fashioned wife," proud of her domesticity, and is a thrifty housewife who directs the running of her home very efficiently. She is to be seen on Saturday mornings returning from the market with a full basket of fruits and vegetables.

Mrs. Manion, who marked her 54th birthday on June 27, was born at Beloeil, near Montreal. She was formerly Yvonne Desaulniers, a daughter of the late D. L. Desaulniers ,and of Mrs. Deaulniers, who resides at 300 Wilbrod street, Ottawa. She was educated at Rideau Street Convent. On October 16, 1906, she was married to Dr. Manion at Sacred Heart Church in Ottawa.

Mrs. Manion is a keen reader of books, preferring biographies, and, while not a musician herself, is interested in and a lover of good music. She spends her summers either at their summer home at Fort William, or at Riviere du Loup, with her mother.

All the children of Dr. and Mrs. Manion are university graduates. They are James P. Manion in Paris; Paul D. Manion, of Port Colbourne; and Robert J. Manion, Jr., of Montreal.

STRIKING TESTS REVEAL HOW RECENTLY IMPROVED SOAP WASHES CLOTHES SHADES WHITER

THERE are many discoveries that are far less exciting, but few of greater importance in making life more enjoyable than the discovery of "scrubless" soap. One of the most outstanding of the "save work" soaps is the granulated soap, Rinso, which has helped so greatly to do away with the hard work of washday.

A new principle

For years Rinso has given millions of women whiter, brighter washes without scrubbing or boiling. It has done this by producing rich, lively suds that soak out the dirt—gently and safely luring out imbedded particles—and leaving to the housewife the comparatively easy job of scrubbing a few stubborn edges, rinsing and hanging out a dazzling white and much brighter wash.

The effectiveness of Rinso suds has been so marked that the makers of 26 famous washers have long recommended this soap above all others.

A further advancement

Recently the makers of Rinso announced that they had improved their soap. By actual test it was proven that the New Rinso gives, cup for cup, over 25% more suds than the old. These suds are longer-lasting and faster-acting, too. The New Rinso gives suds that last nearly one-third longer than ordinary suds. What a blessing that is in hard water areas!

The New Rinso in comparison to old-fashioned soaps washes clothes brighter and at least 5 shades whiter with perfect safety.

The discovery of New Rinso may not rate a mention in the history books, but to millions of women it means better washday results, economy, freedom from hard work washdays.

Women are amazed to see how many shades whiter the New Rinso washes clothes in comparison with old-type soaps

Keep Fit at MIDDLE AGE

A good many people are dismayed to find they're developing a "middle-aged sluggishness". There's no mistaking that tired, jaded feeling. If you feel a twinge of Rheumatic Pains, too, don't be surprised. Uric Acid is usually the cause. Luckily a daily ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water aids to drive Uric Acid away and helps put your liver—the real culprit—into order again. Just watch that sluggish feeling go when Fynnon Salt takes charge!

In Fynnon Salt are combined the elements of three remedial "Salts of the Earth". They are Sodium, Potassium and Lithium. Wealthy people seek them far and wide in the "waters" of famous European Spas. But now you can have similar benefits in your own home, from a large 75c bottle of Fynnon Salt! The effect of these elements in Fynnon Salt is most beneficial. They aid in dispersing painful Uric Acid crystals. They help clean the system of poisonous waste matter that causes Uric Acid. They assist your liver to work at full strength once more. Ask your druggist today for Fynnon Salt and start to get rid of Rheumatic pain. Large bottle 75c at all druggists. 33

Man Escapes As Police Lock Him Up

Bolts For Door As Sergeant Opened Cell Door

Arnold Cameron, 24, of Sunderland, Ont., under arrest to be returned to the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph to complete a two year term, made a successful escape from the local police station today as he was being locked up by Sergeant John Thompson and effected a clean getaway after a series of exciting adventures.

Cameron had been arrested here some days ago on a charge of stealing money and a ring from a woman and had been remanded until today.

In the meanwhile his case had been reported to the authorities and this morning Chief Inspector Swaizie of the Ontario Parole Board was on hand with warrants to have him returned to Guelph for violation of his parole.

No evidence was offered in the theft case and it was dismissed when the prisoner was arraigned before Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell, Crown Attorney McElderry reporting that Cameron was to be sent back to Guelph to complete his sentence which does not expire until August of next year.

Cameron was taken downstairs and searched and as Sergeant Thompson opened the cells door to lock him up, the prisoner suddenly tore out of his grasp and dashed out the open back door of the police station. The officer started to follow him and then realizing that the cell door was open and eight or ten other prisoners might escape had to stop and lock the door.

Visitor Helps

H. B. Reid, Hamilton bailiff, was a visitor in the police station at the time and took up the pursuit of the flying Cameron who dashed out of the laneway to the market square, crossed Simcoe Street and ran through the laneway between McCannan's office and Hamilton's grocery. Then he entered the rear door of Florence's ladies' wear store, frightening Mrs. Florence who ordered him off the premises, sped through the store onto George Street and then up the stairway to the Cripps' studio.

Albert Cripps was alone in the studio and was busy in the dark room when he thought he heard some one come upstairs. He began to search the premises and finally on moving the curtain below a dressing table in a small room, put his hand on the shoulder of a man. He quickly slammed the door shut and braced himself to prevent his captive from escaping. Cameron tried frantically to force the door from the inside and then kicked a hole through the giproc partition at the rear, and made his escape through the dark room and the studio front.

Fred Cripps had arrived by that time and was telephoning when Cameron dashed by. The photographer tried to hit the fugitive but he ducked the blow and ran downstairs and crossed George Street into the Metropolitan Store where in his hurried passage to the rear

Sheik Shot Dead Jerusalem Tension High

JERUSALEM, July 12 (CP).—Gunfire in the streets of Jerusalem's old city today took the life of a high Moslem holy man, Sheif Ali Hatib. He was shot down in the Muristan quarter while on his way to the Alags Mosque. A passing Arab woman was wounded by a stray bullet. The assassins escaped.

Since violence broke out July 5, 47 Arabs and 24 Jews have been killed 146 Arabs and 83 Jews wounded, five British soldiers wounded and 15 roving raiders killed and scores injured.

A British Jew, P. V. Tobias of Cardiff, head of the Palestine Plate Glass Company, was stoned and stabbed to death by Arabs in a Haifa street.

In Nazareth, Safad, Acre and Tulkarm a 22-hour curfew brought a halt to disorders. Many sections of northern district, however, reported bombings and shootings.

More Troops Called

A thousand more soldiers, a battalion of the Essex Regiment, arrived from Egypt.

The Arab sheik was fired upon at point blank range, receiving one bullet in the chest and two in the stomach. The killing caused an intense stir in Arab quarters.

Second Lieut. A. J. Wavell, son of Major-General Archibald Wavell, outgoing commander of British forces in Palestine was slightly wounded in the explosion of a land mine between Tulkarem and Nablus.

The Christian churches of Haifa sent an appeal to Sir Harold MacMichael, British high commissioner, urging protective measures for the Christian faithful.

Ontario Educational System Praised

SASKATOON, July 12.—(CP).—The Ontario educational system was praised by J. H. Sturdy, secretary of the Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation, in an address to a teachers' rally at the University of Saskatchewan last night.

"In Ontario teachers are though of as the keystone of the educational system rather than the doormat as is experienced in other provinces," he said.

He has just returned from a trip to study educational institutions in Ontario and he said Ontario had progressed far in regard to teachers' protection and recognition of their rights.

Orange Fifes Lead Thousands

Express Hope Manion Will Prove Second Laurier

TORONTO, July 12 (C.P.).—Ontario Orangemen to-day celebrated the 248th Anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne by parading in thousands at a score or more of cities and towns. The largest gathering was in Toronto, where the line of march stretched more than three miles.

Time-honored ceremonies of the march behind fife and drum were conducted in ideal weather except in parts of Eastern Ontario. Rain at Ottawa and Manotick threatened to dull the color of the celebration there.

E. N. Mitchell of Lindsay, the Orange Order's Grand Master of Ontario West, addressed an assembly at Georgetown where lodges from York, Peel, Dufferin, Wellington, Wentworth, and Halton Counties gathered.

Cecil W. Armstrong of Toronto, Deputy Grand Master of Ontario West, headed speakers at St. Catharines where 6,000 took part. The St. Catharines gathering was one of the largest outside Toronto, with lodges attending from New York State and the counties of Haldimand, Norfolk, Brant, Welland, Lincoln, and Wentworth. Largest delegation was from Hamilton.

12,000 Out in Toronto.

It was estimated 12,000 took part in the Toronto parade, which assembled beside the Legislative Buildings and proceeded to the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds beside Lake Ontario, where speakers addressed the marchers.

William H. Harper, 73-year-old County Marshal, led the Toronto parade for the 34th consecutive year. He was mounted on the traditional white horse.

After parades at Orangeville, Aurora, and Georgetown, the Orangemen held picnics with a total attendance of about 15,000.

At North Bay about 700 Orangebedecked lodgemen from the city and neighboring Phelps, Widdifield, Trout Mills, and Feronia paraded and then left in trucks and busses for a joint celebration at Powassan with Nipissing and Parry Sound district Orangemen.

Urge 10-Mile Faster Clip In Daytime

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP).—United States' traffic experts considered the advisability to-day of asking the States to let motorists drive 10 miles an hour faster in daytime than at night.

The differential was advocated at the Nattional Conference on Street and Highway Safety by S. J. Williams of the National Safety Council.

He proposed a daytime maximum of 55 miles an hour for most States and 60 miles an hour for prairie States, where flat, sparesly settled areas make higher speed safer.

The conference was attended by more than 50 representatives from a score of official agencies, motor clubs, manufacturers, and insurance ompanies. It was designed to modernize the uniform traffic laws recommended to States and municipalities.

The delegates asked all States yesterday to adopt the three- position hand signal for motorists already in use in 17 States. The system required a driver to extend his left arm straight out from his car to indicate a left turn, down for a stop, and up for a right turn.

Most States permit a driver to extend his arm straight out to indicate any of the three.

Second Kenny Fire Is Laid To Firebug

TORONTO, July 12.—(CP).—Arson squad of Toronto city police reported to-day the fire last night at the home of Mrs. Martin Kenny, stork derby contender, was "obviously incendiary." An investigation started immediately after the fire, the second fire in less than a week at her home.

The large Kenny family was at a summer camp and Mrs. Kenny said she was at a motion picture theatre when the fire broke out. The $300 fire damage included a large collection of wooden miniatures fashioned by Mrs. Kenny. Many of these were of the late Charles Vance Millar, eccentric Toronto lawyer and instigator of the Derby.

Mrs. Kenny and Mrs. Pauline Mae Clark each received $12,500 to withdraw suits attempting to upset the Millar will.

Windsor Calls From France As King Fights Off Flu

Brothers Talk 5 Minutes—Monarch Sits Up Signs State Papers—Visitors Barred

WINDSOR, England, July 12 (AP).—The King, sufficiently recovered from an attack of gastric influenza to sign state papers in bed, delegated the Queen today to take his place at a presentation party at Buckingham Palace.

The King had a quiet night and this morning was reported to be "getting on well." Last night the Duke of Windsor called from his villa in the south of France and had a five-minute chat with the King over a bedside telephone.

His Majesty was on a strict fluid diet and was forbidden to see visitors. Propped up in bed with pillows, however, he telephoned Queen Mary, the Duke of Kent and other members of the Royal Family, and conducted some state business.

A drop in his temperature encouraged a belief the King, after several days' rest, will be able to fulfill his long-standing engagement to make a state visit to Paris beginning Juy 19.

The Queen, who abandoned mourning for her mother, the Countess of Strathmore, who died June 23, will stand alone tonight to receive the guests at the nominally informal reception where attendance ranks as former presentation at court.

She made a quick trip from Windsor to London yesterday to make plans for the party and returned to Windsor for the night.

Too Much Work.

Many persons believed the illness was due partially to the strain of public duties since he came to the throne Dec. 11, 1936, on the abdication of his brother, now the Duke of Windsor.

The following bulletin, signed by Sir John Weir and Viscount Dawson of Penn, the atetnding physicians, was issued at Windsor Great Lodge:

"The King continues to make satisfactory progress. His Majesty is remaining in bed for the present."

Water-Cooled

KINGSTON, Ont., July 12—(CP)—A student of Queen's University solved the problem of being comfortable in formal attire at the summer School Association dance, usually the hot sun beating down on the flat gymnasium leaves the room so that that shirts and swains wilted. The unidentified hero had copper-covered roof flooded with cold water, changed it frequently, and the dancers all were cool.

Rumor Duplessis Cabinet To Quit

QUEBEC, July 12 (CP).—Lieutenant-Governor E. L. Patenaude reswore three cabinet ministers to office today temporarily setting at rest rumors of another cabinet shuffle, provincial treasurer Martin B. Fisher, public works minister, John S. Bourque and Hon. T. J. Coonan, minister without portfolio, were sworn in at noon.

When roads minister Leduc was dismissed from office last week by Premier Duplessis, the Quebec government probably established a precedent in Canadian parliamentary annals by technically resigning from office. Lieutenant-Governor Patenaude accepted the resignation an immediately asked Premier Duplessis to form a new government.

The Premier and several ministers were re-sworn on the spot and a couple more took the oath of office over again on Saturday. Until today treasurer Fisher, works minister Bourque and Mr. Coonan had been technically outside the cabinet because they had not been sworn.

A cabinet meeting is scheduled for later today or tomorrow, and this provincial capital was agog with rumors over what the gathering of the executive council may bring.

Some quarters believed the government might resign following the meeting, asking Lieutenant- Governor Patenaude to dissolve the Legislature, which would mean elections in autumn. In support of this theory it was argued the Premier might decide to go before the people for support in his cabinet purge although his Union Nationale government mandate does not expire until 1941.

Many Are Ready, Few Called For Farm Work

TORONTO, July 12.—(CP).—Possibility of a government order that all able-bodied men on relief make themselves available for harvest work was still under consideration by the Ontario government to-day. A Canadian Press survey of the main Ontario points, however, indicated no shortage of farm labor was likely this year.

In practically all centres a substantial number of men was ready for farm wodk, although farm experience is generally lacking. Most employment offices report a demand somewhat less than usual for farm labor.

Guelph alone reports farmers of that district hard pressed for help. Nearby Galt expects the usual shortage of harvest help later, but right now has 29 men available, six with farm experience.

London and Hamilton find lack of experience the biggest difficulty in the situation, although London has placed 240 men on farms in the past five weeks. Hamilton has placed all its single able-bodied men on farms but has 400 inexperienced married men available. Farmers, however, usually refuse to take inexperienced men.

Windsor is flooded with farm help yet demand is slowest in 15 years, officials report. All able-bodied men who had not worked in three years were cut off relief some weeks ago. In Chatham it is expected the few available men will find farm work, though the demands not great.

Single Men Cut Off

In Peterborough, too, single men have been cut off relief, but 275 heads of families are available for work. Niagara Falls has 100 able-bodied men available, St. Catharines 100, Kitchener 100, Welland 100, and Welland reports only one request for farm help all summer. North Bay employment office has had one call in three weeks.

Woodstock removed all able-bodied men from relief in May but finds no special demand for farm help. Only day-labor is demanded at St. Thomas, with 50 men available. Sault Ste. Marie is experiencing no shortage.

In some cases transients have picked up farm jobs themselves, reducing the demand on the district employment offices. In Windsor district particularly, this is believed responsible for the slow demand.

Lodges From 5 Counties Walk In Peterboro On 248th Anniversary

Largest Contingent Comes From Durham While Lindsay Orangemen Bring Largest Individual Representation

Celebration of the Glorious Twelfth of July, commemorating the 248th anniversary of the battle of the Boyne, pervaded Peterborough with a holiday spirit today as Loyal Orange Lodges from all sections of the district arrived in the city this mornng, assembling for the big parade this afternoon, concluding with a program of speeches in Victoria Park.

Lodges from Hastings, Northumberland, Durham, Victoria and Peterborough Counties demonstrated their arrival for the big event by individual and group processions along George Street this morning to the convening ground in Confederation Park. Havelock and Frankford on the east indicated the limits in that quarter from which the visitors were coming, many of the Hastings County lodges being headed for Shannonville.

Durham lodges turned out the largest contingents, although some of the Orangemen from that section reported that quite a number of the county members were going to celebrate at Orono, depleting the strength of the Durham fraternity in the general district assembly in this city. A special train from Port Hope added the largest quota of the morning to the city's gathering crowd, featuring the Port Hope and Cobourg lodges with their bands, and including Bewdley, Elizabethville and other companies. William Dickson of Bewdley, heading the lodge at the west end of Rice Lake, was greeted all along the uptown route by friends from the city and district. The morning street crowd also applauded the Port Hope ladies, but probably the warmest greeting was given the Lindsay brethren led by the boys' band of the neighboring town. The Sir Sam Hughes Lodge was one of the smartest in the morning's parading.

Welcome Visitors.

County Master Roland C. Darling of Lakefield and other members of Peterborough County L.O.L. received the incoming lodges from the south and west. Lindsay Orangemen apparently brought the largest individual representation. Changing times and customs were reflected more strikingly than ever in this morning's gathering of the district lodges, and the automobile accounted for the change in the manner of assembly. Neighboring Peterborough groups had only to march from their halls, but some of the lodges on the outer fringe of the district came in family cars or travelled together in trucks.

It was a morning of many personal reunions, the renewing of friendships heightened by a fraternal spirit that makes the celebration of the 12th of July an outstanding annual event for those who perpetuate its significance. Peterborough greeted the visitors with streets decorated with flags and bunting, dominated by the Union Jack, the only emblem of the Orange Order.

Hankow, Canton Feel Wrath Of Jap Fliers

HANKOW, July 12.—(AP).— Approximately 200 Chinese were killed or injured to-day when 18 Japanese planes dropped 100 bombs in this area.

Bombs exploded close to four United States' missionary institutions in Wuchang, just across the Yangtse river from Hankow, but no Americans were injured.

One wing of the Hupeh Provincial Hospital was demolished by a direct hit and many patients and members of the staff were crushed under the debris.

Chinese anti-aircraft guns kept up a continuous fire at the 18 bombers, which were accompanied by a larger number of pursuit planes.

(Wuchang, capital of Hupeh province, is a city of about 500,000 inhabitants. It is one of the Wuhan cities—Hankow and Hanyang being the others—which form a great inland group of industrial and commercial communities.)

Station Hit 7 Times

Canton, China, July 12—(AP)—Japanese aircraft bombarded this Metropolis twice today, scoring seven direct hits on the Wongsha station and causing 52 deaths and injuries to 200.

The raiders strafed the station area and the residential district near the Sun Yat-Sen memorial this morning. Shortly after noon air alarms shrilled again, bringing a new wave of panic while rescue squads still were picking up casualties from the first attack.

One large junk with a crew of about 30 was hit directly and disappeared in a shower of debris. Numerous small craft overturned, leaving victims struggling in the water or floating, dead or stunned, on the surface.

Wongsha station was left in a chaotic condition. Tracks were twisted. A huge crane was knocked down. Three locomotives were wrecked. Passengers intending to take the Hankow train got out of the station just in time.

Steady Hand-Hand Fighting Tells On Franco's Army

HENDAYE, July 12 (AP).—Desperate government resistance in the Espadan mountains slowed an insurgent drive today within sight of Segorbe, key point on the Teruel-Valencia highway.

Insurgent advices were silent. Government dispatches reported that hand-to-hand fighting was beginning to tell on insurgent General Garcia Valino's Navarrese troops who have ben pushing through the mountains the last two days.

General Jose Miaja held the highway, however, only at the cost of weakening the coastal sector which quieted down yesterday enabling him to divert several divisions to the defence of Secorbe, 15 miles northwest of Sagunto, an insurgent objective along the Mediterranean coast.

The insurgents, apparently aware of the government commander's strategy, began heav yartillery fire which was considered a likely preparation for a new push down the coastal highway against depleted defences.

Planes and warships anchored north of Sagunto aided the artillery.

The heaviest fire was concentrated on Chilches village, where the coastal road begins to skirt the Cid mountains about 24 miles north of Valencia.

No Harvest Assistance From Outside Alberta Announces

Edmonton, July 12.

WARNING that Alberta does not require outside harvest help was given today by Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, Alberta Minister of Health and Relief. "We have 1,000 registered unemployed men in this Province and 68,000 people on relief," said Dr. Cross. "There are 2,000 single unemployed at the soup kitchen here. We have plenty of men in this Province to take care of harvest requirements and do not need any from outside."

The Wrong Picture

HAMILTON, Ont., July 12—(CP)—The most famous case of mistaken identity at the Court House here ended satisfactorily. For six years the picture of some man hung on the walls of the court house under a card identifying the man as the late Matthew S. Wilson. Wentworth Warden in 1890. A year ago Sheriff J. W. Lawrason suddenly decided it was not Wilson's picture. A check with the family showed he was right, and now a picture of Mr. Wilson is in the frame.

France is changing its short-week idea for workers to one stipulating 2,000 hours a year.

Clues To Activity On Venus Sought In Her Clouds

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor.)

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 12. — (AP).—Astronomers of Lowell observatory are observing large white clouds on the planet Venus for clues to what is happening on this unknown world which is the earth's twin in size.

The clouds completely cover Venus. But they change their shapes and shadows from hour to hour, driven by furiously fast winds. With aid of a new method of analyzing their reflected light, they have become celestial signals that may reveal the mysterious forces beneath them.

Venus is the next planet inward toward the sun. At times she comes within 27,000,000 miles of the earth. Her diameter is about 7,700 miles. She has sufficient heat to maintain varied forms of life. Although whatever happens on her surface is veiled from telescopes. Her clouds hold the key to much fascinating information.

Venus can be seen in telescopes in the daytime. Her astonishing cloud changes are shown in three photographs taken on the same afternoon at 2.50, 5.50 and 7.15. All were "quarter moon" type, showing the sun shining on one edge, lighting about one-third of Venus' face.

The Cloud Changes

At 2.50 p.m. the clouds about her north pole were a small white clump. Three hours later they had expanded into an enormous cap, a thousand miles wider.

In another hour and 25 minutes, dark streaks, striped her whole body with cross bands that made Venus look like a crawling caterpillar.

E. C. Slipher, who took these photos, said that Venus' clouds change completely every 24 hours. Their light and dark streaks are not understood. They may be reflections from huge billows of clouds that shoot up into sunlight leaving vast cloud valleys between.

It is apparent already from studies of these clouds with the spectroscope that a day on Venus is probably more than two weeks long. The spectroscope, analyzing the light reflected from clouds that rotate with the planet, would show any speed faster than two weeks. It has shown nothing. It is possible that Venus rotates so slowly as to keep one face always toward the sun.

Dr. V. M. Slipher, director of the observatory, who makes the spectroscopic studies, says the quality of light reflected from Venus' clouds suggests they are made of dust.

Hughes Dashes On For Omsk After Brief 2-Hour Halt To Gas Up In Moscow

Has 18-Hour Edge On Wiley Post's Record After 7-Hour Leg From Paris; Wheel Damage Report Proves Wrong

MOSCOW, July 12 (AP).—Howard Hughes hopped for Omsk at 1.25 p.m. (6.25 a.m., E D T.) on the third leg of his round-the-world speed try. The silver monoplane made a beautiful take-off

He and his four colleagues had landed at Moscow's central airport at 11.13 a.m. (4.13 a.m., E D T.) from Paris, completing the second leg of their flight.

Their flying time for the 1,541 miles was seven hours and 49 minutes, and they refueled at once for the next hop of 1,624 miles to Omsk, with their competition the world record of seven days, 18 hours and 49 minutes set by Wiley Post in 1933. Weather indications were adverse winds the first 1,000 miles with a favorable breeze after that.

A crowd, including representatives of the United State Embassy and Alexander Troyanovsky, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, who is home on leave, watched the silver ship glide to a perfect landing out of the cloudless, summer sky.

Flying High.

Hughes said the flight from Paris was smooth but at high altitude. Radio Engineer Richard N. Stoddard explained they encountered icing conditions over France, compelling them to climb to 15,000 feet. "We were using oxygen tanks part of the time," he said.

The airport was all ready for the airmen. Two rooms were set aside for them, one for rest and another for eating. A meal had been ready for hours and the Russians' earnest effort to supply ice-water, without which Americans say they cannot live here, kept waiters busy.

Ice cubes in water glasses on the luncheon table had been renewed no less than six times while the welcomers awaited their guests.

Georgi Baidukoff, one of the Russian Polar fliers, greeted Hughes with the remark, "I'll see you in America," leading to speculation whether he was contemplating another flight.

Mikhail Gromoff and Andrie Yumochee, others of the Polar crew, also were in the crowd.

Hughes, hoping to break Wiley Post's 'round-the-world record of seven days, 18 hours, 49 minutes, appeared well on his way to that goal to-day.

18 Hours Up On Post.

Post's flight to Moscow in 1933, via Berlin, required an elapsed time of 50 hours and 10 minutes from New York. He was in the air 35¼ hours, and his distance at the Moscow point was 4,933 miles.

Hughes' at Moscow was 32 hours and 53 minutes out of New York, having flown 5,131 miles with a total time in the air of 14 hours and 24 minutes.

Hughes lifted his plane from Le Bourget Field, Paris, at 8.25 p.m. E.D.T. Monday, or 1.24 a.m. Paris time, after minor repairs had been made to the ship.

He had flown the first leg of the world-girdling flight from New York to Paris, in 16 hours 35 minutes to halve Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's flight time over the same course.

There had been some concern in Paris because, although the take-off seemed perfect, the plane's left wheel appeared to have been damaged.

French air corps officers feared Hughes might have difficulty in landing and warned him by radio.

Older Life Guard To Be Secured

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 12. — A summary of the Rotary International Convention held in San Francisco this year was the topic which occupied the Rotary Club's attention at their noonday luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday. Earl A. Bell, newly-elected secretary, was the speaker, and in reviewing the convention, stated it was the largest held in recent years with over 4,700 clubs sending representatives. An estimated 198,000 attended the convention.

The highest award given by the Rotary International went to the Toronto Club, which was presented with a bronze shield. To be a strong club it must be made up of real active members all of whom are keenly interested in the work of Rotary. It must be remembered, stated the speaker, that the community judges Rotary by the way the business of the club is conducted.

In reporting the work being done by the swimming instructor and life-saver engaged by Rotarians to be on duty at the Villa Trent, it was indicated that the boy engaged was too young to exert proper authority over the children, and it was recommended that an older person be engaged for the position.

Pair Unharmed As Train Cuts Motor Off

ST. THOMAS, July 12.—To have the automobile in which they were riding cut cleanly in two by a locomotive travelling at eighty miles an hour and yet escape without a scratch, was the experience last night by Mr. and Mrs. Darden Bassett of Rodney.

The stunned and frightened pair found themselves sitting in three-quarters of a car, the front quarter having been sheared off as cleanly as though cut by a knife. They were not even bruised, though both suffered from shock for a considerable time afterward.

The accident occurred on a grade crossing about two miles east of Rodney and the fact came to light only today. The famous New York Central flier, the Wolverine, was thundering along the rails at about 8.45 at an estimated speed of eighty miles an hour. Had the train been proceeding at forty or fifty miles an hour, it is believed both Mr. and Mrs. Bassett would have been killed instantly.

Saved by High Speed

Only the high speed of the express saved them, in the opinion of railroad men. Engineer J. H. Bathold of St. Thomas, who was in the cab of the locomotive did not know he had hit the car. He later reported he heard a slight sound as the train roared across the grade. At a slower speed, the effect of the impact would have been to demolish the car instead of cutting it in two pieces just in front of the windshield.

Part of the engine was torn out and hurled a considerable distance. The front wheels were neatly snapped off, but the windows in the car were not even cracked. Cornelius Nickleson of West Lorne, was at the depot three miles distant and he heard what he said sounded like a sheet of tin had been struck by the locomotive.

Bassett, an Aldborough township farmer, said he did not hear the train approach, nor did he hear the whistle. There was a misty rain falling at the time and the crossing is not protected by a wigwag system.

Wreck Commissioner Capt Demers Passes

OTTAWA, July 12 (CP)—A career in which he rose to various positions on sailing vessels and later was named Dominion wreck commissioner was closed today with the death of Captain Leander Arthur Demers.

One of Canada's most noted seamen, he died at his home here Saturday following an illness of several weeks. He was 75 and a native of Montreal. The funeral will be held tomorrow with burial in Notre Dame Cemetery here.

Experience in handling of sailing ships in the early eighties, and a wide knowledge of sailing vessels from tugs to liners enabled Captain Demers to bring to his duties of Dominion wreck commissioner as unsurpassed familiarity with water transportation.

He was appointed Dominion wreck commissioner in 1908 and with the exception of two years 1912 to 1914 when he served as harbor master of Port of Montreal he held the position until his retirement in 1934.

Captain Demers' rich knowledge of ships and laws of navigation gained during his many years at sea assisted him in rendering notable decisions in cases of wrecks he investigated.

His family had a business career planned for him, but he had ideas of his own and he made the sea his special vocation in 1878 when he was apprentice to a shipping firm and indentured to the brigantine beaver. Before he was 16 he had made many trips in his ship to different parts of the world. In 1886 he was made chief officer on board the famous clipper Thermopylas. He made many record trips on this vessel.

Foul Play Hinted As Lost Baby Found In Creek

NELSON, B.C., July 12 (C.P.).—Police investigating the death of 18-month-old Carmen Lajeunesse, whose body was found yesterday in a creek near Ymir said she might have been "killed accidentally and the body hidden there" or she might have been killed "deliberately."

Staff-Sergeant C. J. Barber of British Columbia Police, said there was no doubt she "was carried to the creek and thrown in, but whether she was killed before being thrown in the creek we have yet to determine."

Carmen was last seen late in May by her father, Morris Lajeunesse, playing near the Ymir Yankee Mine at the West Kootenay town of Ymir. The mine closed immediately she was missed and the miners, aided by British Columbia police and a police dog combed the area without finding trace of her.

They did find a man's blood-stained handkerchief. Police at that time suggested she might have been the victim of foul play.

Sergeant Barber said the child's body was found by four youths who had been picking huckleberries and went to the creek for a drink of water.

Snag Detains Body.

The body was caught on a snag in the stream. Above the log was an old footbridge, and Sergeant Barber Suggested the girl was thrown into the creek from that spot.

Carmen's body had been under water for some time, the sergeant said. After the child disappeared late in May a freshet roared down the creek. Recession of the water early this month brought the body to the surface level, he said.

The spot where the body was found had been covered by a search party of nine men who waded down the creek on the chance she might have drowned.

Sergeant Barber said the child's age, nature of the ground between the stream and the spot she was seen playing, and the distance she would have had to travel made it "impossible" for her to reach the creek by herself.

He said he was "certain" the baby had been carried up the hill from the Ymir Mine to the creek.

An autopsy will be held to determine cause of death.

Plea For Jews

LONDON, July 11.—(CP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury today called on Anglicans to join with "their Jewish brethren" next Sunday in prayer for Jewish suffering.

He told the Canterbury diocesan conference that "devilish" methods had been used in Vienna and deplored a world "dominated by evil spirts—a prospect full of darkness and confusion."

Alluding to the "horrors which are now being perpetrated in Spain and on a vaster scale in China" and the "cruelty and oppression that is being meted out in some countries to defenceless people," the Archbishop said he had eye-witness testimony of the tortures inflicted on Viennese Jews.

Hope Manion Like Laurier

GEORGETOWN, Ont., July 12—(CP).—Orangemen "fervently hope" the new National Conservative leader, Hon. R. J. Manion, will prove to be as impartial as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, an Orange rally was told here to-day by A. R. Hassard of Toronto, prominent in the Loyal Orange Order.

"A man who is a Roman Catholic has been chosen to lead a great political party throughout Canada," said Hassard, referring to Dr. Manion's election to leadership of the Conservative party at Ottawa last week.

"Knowing human nature as it is, can we depend on him, in critical junctures, holding the balance evenly for both great religious sects in Canada?

"A Manion may not be a Laurier, but if he should prove to be, one of our highest wishes will be gratified."

Quebec Dominations

BURK'S FALLS, Ont., July 12—(CP).—L. H. Saunders, Supervisor of Organization of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West, said here to-day, in addressing an Orange rally, that Quebec delegates "dominated" last week's Conservative National convention at Ottawa.

"A Quebec-controlled Tory party is no different from a Quebec-controlled Liberal party or any other similarly controlled party," he said.

"Quebec dominates the political life of Canada to-day and where is the man who will get on a public platform and deny it?"

Some Scraps in Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 12 (AP).—Observation of the 248th anniversary of the battle of the Boyne when King William III. defeated James II. was started today by a new battle which left many cracked heads.

Police, swinging clubs, found a large group which marched into Maghera, Londonderry county, from surrounding districts and tried to remove Orange arches erected for the celebration.

Three policemen were taken to hospitals with severe wounds. Several minor casualities accurred among the invading group. Police reinforcements were sent from neighboring towns to restore order. Numerous arrests were made.

Otherwise there were giant parades throughout the six counties of northern Ireland, mills, factories, shipyards and shops were closed while 60 separate parades were held and 250,000 Ulstermen were mustered in Belfast alone. Hundreds of policemen took their stations at dawn to preserve order along the route of march.

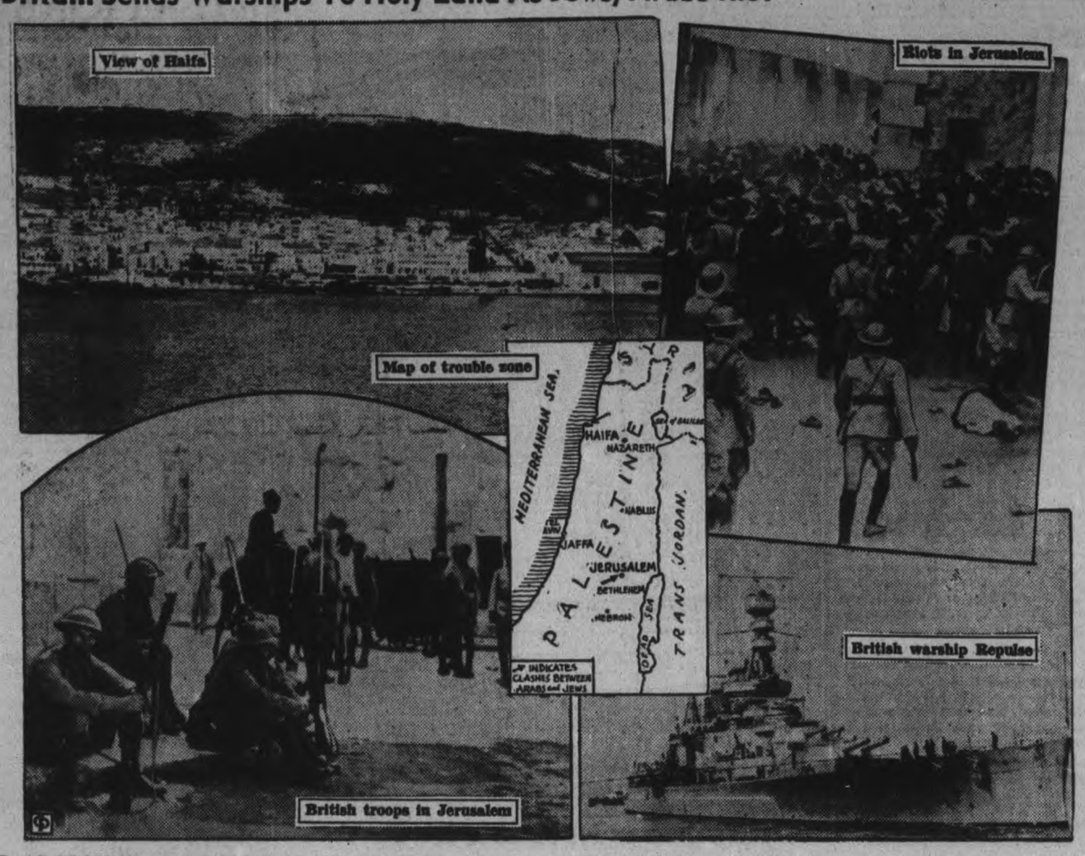
Britain Sends Warships To Holy Land As Jews, Arabs Riot



British troops stationed in Egypt have been ordered to Palestine following a fresh outbreak of terrorism between Jews and Arabs which has resulted in scores of casualties. The streets of Jerusalem and Haifa are being patrolled by troops in armored cars, while the warships, Repulse and Emerald, have been rushed to the trouble zone. Fresh troops from Aldershot have been ordered to the Holy Land as bombing and other acts of terrorism become more numerous.

Extreme Pacifism Is Dying Out In Britain Under Impact On Increasing Threats Of War

The extreme pacifism that was vocal in sections of Great Britain a few years ago is dying out under the impact of increasing threats of war from the continent, Dr. Percy Young, of London, England, son of Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's Church, told the Rotary Club at Mondays luncheon in the Empress Hotel, in an interesting impressionistic talk on conditions in the Old Land. A graduate in medicine of Western University, London, Ontario, Dr. Young is now practicing at Hatfield in the London area, the home of the Cecil family, also continuing his studies, and intimated that he hoped to return to Canada to carry on his profession in this country.

Nothing Else To Do

Persons who had vowed they would have nothing to do with the army, navy or air force, who refused, for example, to attend the annual tattoo at Aldershot because it was a military display, now realized that the Motherland is vulnerable to bombing attacks from the air. "And if war should come, what else can they do but fight?"

"The man in the street in the old Land takes it for granted that if Britain became involved in war, the Dominions would immediately throw in their support," Dr. Young said. They cannot understand that there could be any other feeling in Canada but a willingness and readiness to assist the Mother Country.

Britain Not Prepared

Britain is not prepared for war, Dr. Young continued. It has been comparatively recent since the production of airplane factories had been increased, changing a condition of slackness to capacity output. Plans for preparing the people in precautions against gas bombs from the air have been broadly expanded. Notices have been posted on posts and trees advising them what to do, and asking for volunteers, men of from 45 to 60 years and also women to assume the responsibility of carrying out essential duties in air raids. Wardens are going among the people instructing them in how to seal their houses, but only fifty per cent of the number of instructors needed have so far responded.

Retire To One Room

The general plan, apparently, is for the home owner to retire for safety to one room in his house, seal the door and window cracks and opening with paper, selecting a room in which there will be sanitary conveniences and a supply of food. Britains lack of preparedness grows out of the Englishmans belief that war is not coming, at least not soon. Hitler has declared that Germany lost the last war by lack of supplies, but he knows that his sources in that respect are less than before. He also realizes that war would ruin the Germany he is trying to rebuild. He might try to bite off sections of Europe separately, desiring Czechoslovakia to go along with Austria, but the French and Russian alliance with the Cbechs would almost certainly bring England into the group against him.

House Construction

Dr. Young briefly related the extensiveness of the house construction program on the fringes of London, told of its vast variety of holiday attractions including the growth of ice hockey, its efficient transportation systems, his recollections of the abdication of King Edward and the coronation of King George VI, and concluded with a reference to his feelings on seeing Canada after an absence of several years. He gained a fresh impression of great size and huge possibilities. The lake district around Peterborough seemed to him as attractive as the famous lake country in England, and he preferred the stimulating frost and snow of Canadian winter to the rains and fog of London.

"We are in a very lucky position in between the two greatest democracies in the world, possessed of British principles and also feeling the influence of the United States. I think we are in the most favorable position of any country in the world."

James Dutton, president, reminded Rotarians of their visit to the Boys' Camp at Clear Lake next Monday ,and Rev. Dr. Young mentioned the visit of Rev. Dr. F. E. England to Peterborough on July 19 speaking at St. Andrew's Church.

Looking Back
On This Date

JULY 12

The Twelfth of July has unfortunately seen many years when there have been broken heads and sometimes even dead bodies as a consequence of meetings between Orange and Green. But here is a story of how bloodshed on a Twelfth was averted through the foresightedness of William Hamilton Merritt, George Keefer and George Rykert, justices of the peace in 1844.

They had been informed that a large Orange excursion was coming from Toronto to the Falls to hold "a grand Protestant demonstration." and that it was the intention of the Irish laborers on the Welland canal to "prevent the party," and especially the alleged proposed burning in effigy of Daniel O'Connell. These J.P.'s, realizing the possibilities of the situation, appealed to the officer commanding the Royal Canadian Rifle Regiment at Niagara and asked that steps be taken to avert disorder.

General Elliott took prompt action. Troops were moved to Queenston to guard the road and other vantage points, and by the time the 800 excursionists (one placard said it was a "Grand Picnic of the Conservative Party"; another that it was a "Gala Excursion of the Loyal Orange Order," the Reformers said "What's in a Name?") arrived at Queenston the canallers, armed with fowling pieces and other weapons, had moved on towards the Falls. There they were followed by the military, and it was not long before the canallers moved along Lundy's Lane toward their homes.

The general gave the Toronto Orangemen high praise. "Nothing could be more peaceable, orderly and respectable than their conduct. There was no display of banners or music or anything that could be interpreted as a procession, while I understood that nothing could be more ruffian-like and intimidating than that of the canallers."

"All's well that ends well," is the summing-up of Mr. Ernest Green in the Welland Historical Society papers. The neighborhood of the Half Way House, and Drummondville, narrowly escaped witnessing scenes of brutal violence and bloodshed that day. "A Massacre of Unarmed Orangemen by Irish Ruffians" or "A Slaughter of Workingmen by Ruthless Soldiery" would have created a political condition of the greatest gravity. But for the foresight of the magistrates and the promptness, vigor and discretion of the officers of the Royal Canadian Rifle Regiment, July 12, 1844, might have been one of the darkest dates in our history.

All a Mistake

BELLEVILLE, Ont., July 12 — (CP)—Two Cornwall cyclists, Frank Bouyns and Henry Mayes, rushed in and told police their bicycles were stolen from in front of the Bank of Montreal. Police immediately started checking all city outlets. Two hours later the abashed cyclists told police they had made a slight mistake. They had parked their bikes outside the Canadian Bank of Commerce and they had been untouched.

4,500 Fans Greet Tunney's Decision

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 12 (AP) —Referee Gene Tunney gave George Fitch, New Haven negro light heavyweight, a 10-round decision over Steve Carr of Meriden last night, and talked to the crowd of 4,500 fans for two minutes explaining why he did it.

The former world's heavyweight champion said he would like to call the bout a draw but that Connecticut boxing rules forced him to be governed by his round by round point scoring which gave Fitch a 44 to 34 edge.

He gave Fitch five rounds, Carr three, and called two even.

Four Canadians Qualified For Final Stage

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 12. —(CP Cable) — Four Canadian marksmen qualified outright to-day for Saturday's final stage of the rich and historic St. George's Challenge Vase at the Empire meeting of the National Rifle Association.

The four were Company Sergeant Major George Emslie of Toronto, Sergeant P. M. Gibault of Vancouver, Aircraftsman T. W. Gregory of Ottawa, and Lieut. Steve Johnson, of Calgary. Emslie had a score of 73 out of a possible 75, the other three had 72's.

In addition three Canadians with scores of 71 are among the 58 competitors with that score who will shoot off for 37 places remaining in the final stage, limited to the hundred best scorers in the first stage to-day. The trio that might get in through the shoot are Lieut. N. Colville, of Vancouver, Lieut. G. A. Molecey of Vancouver and Sgt. L. S. Vaines of Montreal.

Four competitors tied for leadership in the first stage with 74's.

Second-Lieut. R. Fulton, whose father won the King's prize three times and whose grandfather won the classic once, turned up the winner of the tie-shoot for the Daily Mail Silver Cup. Fulton tied with several others in this match at 500 yards Saturday, having a perfect score of 50.

Winning Hit Is Scored As Single

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP).—William Harridge president of the American League decided today Jeff Heath's ninth inning game-winning single for Cleveland against St. Louis Sunday was still a single and not a triple.

Rules explain that if a fielder stops a hit by throwing his glove at the ball the batsman shall be credited with a three base hit. The rules also relate that in the home half of the ninth, a batter should be credited with as many bases as he might have made under normal conditions but no more than the winning runner took.

When Beau Bell, St. Louis outfielder, threw his glove at Heath's drive in Cleveland yesterday, perplexed scorers asked aid. Harridge ruled Bell's act occurred after the run had crossed the plate, and therefore the hit was a single and not a triple. Heath is formerly of Fort William, Ont.

Special Services Held In Millbrook

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, July 12.—The members of the Orange Order of Millbrook and the surrounding district attended divine worship at St. Thomas' Anglican church on Sunday at 7 p.m., Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson, B.A., having charge of the service, and preaching an appropriate sermon.

The Citizens' Band, under Lieutenant William Peryer, headed the parade from the L.O.L. hall to the church, and Past County Master, brother J. H. Paul, acted as director of ceremonies.

The rector chose his text from Revelation 7:14, and after dealing with world conditions at the present time, pointed out that a solution for these troubled problems cannot be expected, with peace and unity among the nations, until the prophecy is fulfilled "They have come out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

The band gave an hour's concert in the bandstand following the parade back from the church, with a large audience gathering to enjoy the music.

The Men's Bible Class had charge of the morning service in St. Andrew's church on Sunday, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco. The men, about forty strong, brought an inspiring message from Genesis 3:10; speaking on "Voices", and illustrating from Bible passages such as the voice of God calling Adam, after his sin in Eden; God's voice speaking to the boy Samuel; the still, small voice that brought His word to Elijah, when hiding from Moab; and the voice of satan tempting Christ in the wilderness.

The need of being able to distinguish God's voice and respond as did Samuel, "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth," was emphasized. Rev. Mr. Sisco will occupy his own pulpit next Sunday, July 17, evening worship on Sunday was withdrawn.

1938 Progress

London Life representatives have established three outstanding records this year in extending the services of life insurance to the Canadian public.

- For the first quarter of the year, the sale of Ordinary Life Insurance reached a new high level.
- For the second quarter the new Ordinary Life Insurance sold exceeded the above record by a substantial margin.
- June was the best month in the Company's history for Ordinary Insurance sales.

This last achievement is all the more remarkable since it exceeded June of last year by more than 50%, and was twice as large as June of 1936. This record was made possible by the work of the salesmen of Ordinary Insurance in both branches and does not include Industrial nor Group Insurance.

During the past five years, London Life representatives have further improved the quality of their service. You will find their message to be of interest and value.

TELEPHONE TALKS IN THE WATSON FAMILY

"It makes my holiday seem longer!"

Lois Daly, vacationing with Bill Watson's parents in the country, doesn't waste any time on letter-writing. Nor does she let her folks worry. She's adopted that old Watson family custom of telephoning — frequently. "It's better than letters to hear your voice," says her Mother. "And it gives me more time for fun," adds Lois.

Reductions in telephone rates—local and long distance—in 1935, '36 and '37 have effected savings to telephone users in Ontario and Quebec of nearly one million dollars yearly.

Knocking On The Wrong Door

The lay-off in the shops of the C.N.R. has affected London, and the City Council instructed Mayor Kingsmill to get in touch with the Minister of Transport at Ottawa and see what could be done about it.

The result was that the Deputy Minister informed His Worship that the Minister of Transport was not in the city and the proper person to see on such a mission was S. J. Hungerford, manager of the C.N.R. If we understand the report correctly the Mayor of London was given to understand that the solution of any problem about men working for the railway was in Mr. Hungerford's hands.

There are 200 men affected by the lay-off in the shops at London, and in all there are 1,800 idle at various points of the system. Judging by the place where Mayor Kingsmill first directed his request the idea had not dimmed that the Minister of Transport was the proper person to see about putting more men to work. It would be well if Ottawa were to persist in correcting that belief, and making it clear that the C.N.R. is being operated by the general manager of the road.

Fear of Thunderstorms

Can anything be done to remove the fear which comes upon some people when a thunderstorm breaks? There was a discussion going on about that in one home in the city where a daughter always wants to go and hide in a clothes closet or some such place until the fury of the storm has passed. There are people who make fun of such people, but we do not believe that process will ever bring about the removal of the fear.

As a rule Peterborough does not have as many thunderstorms as are recorded in the Western part of the province, nor do we believe they are as severe, but for those who dread them are at times bad enough. Such a storm will produce a feeling of fear and dread in some people, while we know of others who would prefer always to be in some place where they could view the storm to advantage. To them it is a great spectacle well worth seeing. If possible they delight in watching the storm gather and break.

We are certain that such people cannot understand the feeling of the more timid individual who dreads storms. If such a person feels safer and more secure hiding in a clothes closet then we believe the clothes closet should be available and standing room there should always be provided.

What Is An Accident?

A newspaper would naturally hesitate to make pointed comment in a case where a fatality had occurred if such would bring distress to relatives and friends. But actually there is something which needs saying and it has such broad application that it touches a good many similar cases.

We have in view the report of a fatal automobile accident on the Kingston Road a short distance from Toronto. The driver of the car was a young man and from pictures published of him it looks as though he were in full enjoyment of health and strength. He drove his car around a curve at such speed he could not keep on the highway. He ran across a service station yard on the wrong side of the road, then down a drop of three feet and finally collided with a tree. And there he was killed.

The headings placed on this story in the papers say his death was the result of an accident. But was it? It is right here a newspaper hesitates to advance the belief that this young man is dead as the result of something which he did to himself, and when the situation is analyzed it is difficult to come to any other conclusion.

The driver of that car would know he was approaching a curve; there would be signs on the side of the road telling about that, and he could also see for himself. He would know that a car cannot go on a curve at the same rate of speed it can use on a straight road. We do not consider it unfair to conclude that this young man would have all the facts in his possession which would be necessary to make the curve in safety. It is also a fact that he made all the decisions himself regarding the speed he would maintain at that particular point in the road.

The result of course is called an accident, and perhaps the kindest thing possible would be to let it go at that. But facts are stubborn things and they do point clearly to the conclusion that this young man brought about his own death.

A Seat For Dr. Manion

When Hon. Dr. Manion was named leader of the Conservative party it appeared a simple enough thing to arrange so he might speedily have a seat in the House of Commons. It had been mentioned several times there was an opportunity to provide for him the seat for the London riding, as it has been vacant for several months. It seems to be a difficult thing to transfer the enthusiasm of the convention from Ottawa to London. The Liberals of London not having attended the convention, feel none of the enthusiasm. The C.C.F. party has not felt the effects either and announce that when the seat is open for voting they will have a man in the field.

West Middlesex is likely to find its sitting member, Hon. J. C. Elliott, postmaster-general, retiring from public life as his health is not the best, and that gives the politicians opportunity to talk about a saw-off, the Conservatives taking London for Dr. Manion, and the Conservatives putting no man in the West Middlesex field. Such a proposal is having a question mark placed after it according to reports from London. Liberals claim West Middlesex is a safe Liberal riding where Mr. Elliott has been elected in every contest beginning with and including 1925. The riding came into existence in 1904 and has been Liberal since with the exception of one election which went to a Progressive. The Liberals feel like the man who wants something to boot in sawing off West Middlesex against London. But why should they? Not since the days of Hon. Charles Hyman in 1904 has there been a Liberal elected to Ottawa. The London riding created something like political history at the last general election by having seven candidates in the field, but the Conservatives had a comfortable majority. It would take a deft brand of persuasion to show that West Middlesex is more Liberal than London city is Conservative. The Liberals and Conservatives might arrange a saw-off but it does look as though the stumbling block would be the other parties which would insist upon placing a candidate in the field and forcing an election.

Will The Kiss Bring Peace?

Foreign Ministers of Paraguay and Brazil have concluded the preliminary movements toward bringing peace between these nations after having had another war over the Grand Chaco which is a strip of territory where the boundary line has never been definitely adjusted. No person has been able to explain just why either country wants the Grand Chaco. The territory in the dry season is baked to a frizzle, and in the rainy season it is something like a swamp. Likewise there is a great deal of jungle land in it. From 1932 to 1935 Bolivia and Paraguay fought for that territory and lost 100,000 men, and within recent months they have been doing the same thing again. Since 1870 there has been no agreement as to where the boundary line actually was, is, or had been or should be.

The method of concluding the formal discussions between the foreign ministers was unusual; at least it would be in this part of the country. When the conversations were finished with satisfaction the foreign minister of Paraguay kissed the one from Bolivia and the Bolivian in turn operated on the gentleman from Paraguay. A regular resounding sort of smack it was accompanied by sound effect such as a cow might make when extracting a hoof from a muddy road. It is even mentioned in the cables that it was an emphatic and determined example of the mature method and art of osculation.

We shall watch with something more than a mild degree of interest to see what happens now. Will a couple of full-grown men kissing each other in turn produce peace in the two lands and cause the people to see the folly of fighting over a strip of territory which no person would want as a gift? Perhaps the method may be better than that adopted in other parts of the world where national representatives meet and solemnly sign documents to outlaw war, and then turn toward home and plan for the next conflict.

A Poor Choice of Words

Rev. Norman Rawson, pastor of Centenary United Church in Hamilton, had in his Sunday evening congregation several hundred visiting members of the Orange Lodge. He considered it well on such an occasion to touch on public questions of the day, and selected as one of them the announcement made by Prime Minister King at Ottawa that if pilots for the Royal Air Force were to be trained in Canada then it would be the policy of the Canadian Government to see that such training were done under the auspices of the Canadian Department of Defence. It was also stated that if it were desirable to send British instructors to do the training they could be taken on the staff of the Canadian flying force.

Rev. Norman Rawson did not think much of the plan. He described it as "the most un-British utterance I have ever heard from a public man in Canada." We read also that the preacher declared "Everything about it stinks. The effect to patch it up reeks even worse than the original statement."

At the risk of differing with the reverend gentleman in Hamilton, this paper would hesitate to apply to the Prime Minister of our Dominion the designation of "un-British." We do not believe since we first had Prime Ministers in this country in 1867, right on down to the present, we have had a Prime Minister of whom it could be fairly or with truth be stated that he was "un-British."

Going farther we do not think the statement made by Mr. King can be put in the class of things which "stink." Had Rev. Mr. Rawson been debating in the House of Commons instead of preaching in his pulpit at Hamilton it is very likely he would have been requested to withdraw his offensive words and change a good deal his style of delivery.

In his sermon he appears to have been deliberately trying to do something which should not be done in this country. That is, seeking to divide the Canadian people when there should be no division. As in nearly every other situation there is a central point, and in this it is the desire to train pilots for the Royal Air Force. It was considered preferable by the Canadian Government to have it done under the auspices of our own agencies, otherwise there would be two sets of officers, two sets of standards and rules and qualifications operating on the same field, with one lot of officers and recruits under control of one government, while the others would be answerable to another government. We have no way of knowing whether Mr. Rawson had ever thought over these details, and was or is willing to work out a better plan himself by which there would be no confusion.

What the Canadian people desire is that training facilities shall be made available if and when they are desired to strengthen the Royal Air Force, and that in itself is so important a question that it should be settled—and we have no doubt it will — between responsible individuals in the British and Canadian governments. British officials are reasonable gentlemen and so are those who represent the Canadian government. Into such a situation a minister of the Gospel should hesitate to introduce the word "un-British" and the word "stink."

NOTE AND COMMENT

The dog days must be here. There is a story from Hollywood about a parrot once owned by Houdini which picked the lock of its cage and made its escape.

Hon. R. J. Manion is the second doctor to lead a political party in Canada. It is seldom the medical profession cuts in on territory upon which the lawyers usually have squatter's rights.

Royal Air Force flyers have set a new record for group flying by covering the distance from England to Egypt, by way of the Persian Gulf, in 32 hours. This exploit will not go unnoticed in several other countries.

After a long search for a missing Toronto boy he was discovered in bed and asleep at home. That sounds like the story of the woman who wondered how her husband spent his evenings and then went home and found him there.

A young Indian was in court at Lindsay on the charge of vagrancy and it was also stated he had been found sleeping in a church. We can understand the vagrancy business but right now we wish to inform the law that it's no criminal offence to sleep in church.

A new party is said to be planned by Hon. W. D. Herridge, showing that the fate of the Reconstruction party is already forgotten. Some one should tell Mr. Herridge never to buy a sailor suit until he has taken a good look at the wrecks along the shore.

A Toronto cleric wishing to describe a man in a perilous position referred to him as "hanging by his eyebrows on the edge of a precipice." After having heard that bit of trite phraseology we have been wondering when and if the fellow fell and how far.

Officials of the Department of Agriculture say they are not alarmed by the outbreak of army worms in certain portions of the province. All might be well if the farmers in whose fields the worms are operating could be persuaded to look at the situation in the same complacent manner.

COUSIN JAKE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Jake delights to sing, he lets it go like anything, I think he'd sing an hour; his voice is awful big I know, and he can dig things pretty low, and he has lots of power.

¶ And if Jake gets a chance to sing, they never coax or anything, an eager sort of man; he'll say his voice was never trained, or else perhaps he got it strained, but does the best he can.

¶ Some people scoff at Cousin Jake, and claim his music's a mistake, a tax upon his lung; they'd like my cousin better still, if he'd decide to just keep still, and muffle up his tongue.

¶ But Jake's voice comes like newfound wealth, he'll sing away just by himself, and do it all by ear; he'll holler out like anything, when he blows up and starts to sing, with no one there to hear.

¶ Jake sings outdoors or in a hall, it makes no difference at all, he simply lets it go; if Jake was singing in a barn, they'd hear him all around the farm, he just makes music grow.

¶ I'm glad my Cousin Jake's that way, I don't care what the critics say, I'd pin on him a prize; when he is asked to sing he will, and helps far more to fill the bill—than those who criticize.

Egypt Yielding More Secrets

FROM CAIRO, Egypt, comes word that a city of 20,000 dead and a richly ornamented funeral causeway have been unearthed from the dust of 50 centuries at Sakkara.

The discoverer, Selim Bey Hassan, said at least 20,000 mummies lie in the necropolis beneath the causeway which connected a valley temple with the funeral chapel of Unas, last king of the fifth dynasty.

The necropolis antedates the causeway—or walled passage—by about 300 years but Selim said he found evidence it was used long after the causeway was built.

Discovery of the latter was termed a find of highest importance because inscriptions on the walls answered the puzzling question of where ancient Egyptians cut and dressed granite used for statues and temples.

These inscriptions told the story of a technical school beside the quarries of Aswan where all the dressing was done and where men learned how to cut the stone which was shipped northward by way of the Nile.

The richly ornamented causeway is a passage 700 yards long and seven feet wide. The side walls, nine feet high, were covered with the largest known collection of old kingdom inscriptions and scenes.

With a ceiling of blue-painted stone to represent the sky, the passage was covered with large limestone blocks, with a central slit running its whole length to admit light and air, walls and floor were on white tura limestone.

Scenes depicted included the transport by boat of red granite columns and capitals from Aswan to the pyramid of Unas, wrestling between Egyptians and Bedouins, and transport by boat of Asiatic prisoners.

King Unas, who reigned over Egypt 5,000 years ago, was shown in company with a multitude of gods, preceded by bearers of offerings.

Other scenes showed work in the fields in the four seasons, including gathering of honey and figs, harvesting, bird catching and breeding of animals.

Marketing scenes depicted trading by barter, men beating out gold leaf, and the casting of metal, polishing of gold and stone utensils and weighing of goods in fine scales.

Discovery of the route from the chapel led to the finding of the valley temple itself. More than 300 stelae (slabs or pillars) and false doors were found in the temple—placed there to remind their owners of benefits conferred by the king.

The cemetery was cut from solid rock and covered several acres. It was traversed by long galleries from which passages led to funeral chambers and storerooms. Along with the thousands of mummies were found pottery vases and fragments of alabaster vases.

To The Editor

PUNISHMENT SURE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: As a reader of your paper, there has been a lot said about Mr. Deremo and Miss Williams. Miss Williams was taken against her will, from a good home and placed in a room by herself, on the top floor of the County Home, away from friends and freedom. She does not need to be in the County Home as she has her pension and what little property she owns in Douro. God will punish such people.

JOHN DEREMO.

FARM WORK

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The Toronto papers tell of a farmer with 300 acres of land who cannot get any person to work for him. Well I worked some years ago for J. E. A. Fitzgerald and on farms at Omemee and Cavanville. I have been working farms for the past 53 years in Canada and elsewhere. But the last five years Toronto has drawn me to higher wages and also to unemployment for the past four years. I am not old at 65 and there is only my wife and I left now as the children have all gone from home to make their way elsewhere.

If that farmer has a cottage and will move our furniture into it and give us civil treatment I have no doubt I can beat many younger men in work because I am an old-time farmer willing to turn my hand at anything except a single walking plow. I want the farm life again as it is the only work I can do.

THE LEAGUE OF PALS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Will you please allow me a little of your valuable space to bring to the notice of you: readers the League of Pals, which is bringing people of all nations together by correspondence.

Schoolboys and girls use our medium to exchange stamps, souvenirs, and ideas on sports; older people correspond about innumerable topics, such as politics, business, climate, ways of living and so on. Many people have had sunshine brought into their lives through the medium of the League.

Our chief aim is to foster friendliness among all peoples and already there are thousands of members in 60 different countries.

In many places there are now groups which organise open air activities, such as hiking, cycling, tennis and other games during summer; indoor social gatherings during winter.

We encourage our members to exchange visits, and give advice to facilitate this where necessary.

We are having our first International Pallobree this summer in Norway, and we hope to organise these gatherings annually in future, each year in a different country.

Many people would like Pen Pals in your district, and if anyone who is interested will get into touch with the undersigned, contacts will be made for them.

Anyone over 12 years of age will be welcomed.

NORMAN BOOTH, a
Chief Pal, Netherton, Huddersfield, Yorks., England.

• His Golf Does Not Settle It

(Toronto Telegram)

ANY ATTEMPT to make the question of Sunday use of parks an issue between rich and poor is as extravagant as the statement that the parks are padlocked to the public on the Sabbath. Controller Hamilton has stated that he plays golf twenty Sundays in the year, which means that he plays steadily every Sunday from the beginning of May to the end of September. But the thousands of persons who enjoy the parks on Sunday during the summer months are not particularly interested in Controller Hamilton's golf, nor has the use he makes of his Sundays anything to do with the use the public may be inclined to make of Toronto parks. Certain activities such as football, baseball, tennis, tobogganning and bob-sledding are prohibited in the parks on Sunday. Whether or not this prohibition should stand is an open question. On the one side are evtremists who favor a wide-open Sunday with business as usual in all lines but their own. On the other side are extremists who favor a wide-open everybody a Sunday of church-going and meditation. In between are many who believe the restrictions of the old Lord's Day Act are unduly oppressive, and who would welcome a latitude which would prohibit only non-essential commercial and industrial activity, whether in entertainment or otherwise.

It has been stated, but on what authority is not known, that Sunday is the only day on which poor people who are employed all week can enjoy the parks. After consideration of the number of people who are not working at all, the number who are released for recreation by the Wednesday early closing, the number who benefit from the long evening hours under daylight saving, the number in occupations which are permitted only on four days of the week, and the number who wouldn't play in the parks anyway, it may be questioned whether there is any great number of persons whom the Sunday prohibitions deprive of recreation.

But whether or not the prohibition of certain activities in the parks on Sunday deprives anyone of health-giving recreation, it seems that before anything is done to effect a change, the public should be consulted. Hitherto there has been much special pleading from one or two sources, but there has been nothing to indicate that it represents popular demand for a change. If the public wants to make a use of the parks which is denied them at present, they should have an opportunity of saying so. It would then be in order to consider what amendments were desirable in the restrictive legislation. And in any vote which is taken, it may be noted that the poor will have at least as much to say about the decision as the rich.

• Facts Show Chamberlain Right

(Ottawa Journal)

A CRIME it would be, certainly, were Britain to risk a world war over some of the things she has been asked to risk it for. Over those bombings of British ships by Franco, for instance. Last week in these columns it was pointed out that many or most of the ships bombed in Spanish waters or harbors were not, in the true sense, British ships at all. We find striking confirmation of this in a speech delivered in the British House of Commons by Commander James, reported in the British Hansard of June 1.

Commander James showed that shipping under the British flag in the Eastern Mediterranean falls under three categories:

1. Old legitimate established firms;
2. Pure adventurers, tempted by high profits; and
3. Perfectly legal but perfectly bogus companies of mushroom growth who are merely the nominees of the Spanish Republican Government.

Out of 140 British ships trading to points on the East coast of Spain in the last year, 27 had acquired their British registry within the year, while many of the remainder had been sold by their original British owners to mushroom concerns. There was, for example, the Mid-Atlantic Shipping Company, Incorporated July 21 1937, it had three directors, one Spaniard, one Briton, and one American (named Maimo de Gamboa). The British director owned 10 shares; the Spaniard and the American the remaining shares.

Much was heard some time ago about the "outrage" of the sinking of the Thorpehall. Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Winston Churchhill wanted war over that. The Thorpehall was owned by the Westcliffe Shipping Company, the directors being one Greek, one Briton, and the Greek captain of the Thorpehall. Out of 1,000 one-pound shares, the Greek director owned 499, the Greek captain 499, the British director two. The British people were asked to go to war, to risk a world conflagration, with Heaven only knows what consequences, to protect the profits of two Greek adventurers.

There might be fewer sensational headlines in the press, less lurid rhetoric from the Lloyd Georges and the Winston Churchills, if the British public, and the world generally, were better acquainted with these facts. Fortunate it may be, too, for Britain and for the world, that the cool keen judgment of Neville Chamberlain, plus his moderating courage, controls British policy today.

• He Desires To See Taxes Reduced

(Letter in Kitchener Record)

TO THE EDITOR: If the taxpayers of this city do not watch their step during the next few months the 1938 City Council, with Mayor George W. Gordon as the leader, will attempt to greatly increase the burden of taxation instead of taking steps to lower it.

In recent weeks Mayor Gordon and members of council have advocated that the city petition the Dominion government to present the city with the old post office building at the corner of King and Benton streets, in order that it could be torn down and the site utilized as an addition to the present civic square. In addition it has been proposed that Queen street north and Frederick street be widened by fifteen feet, the government to be asked to make a donation of its portion of the new federal building property to the city for still increasing the size of Kitchener's civic square.

With the agitation in newspapers and by various organizations throughout the Dominion for reduced taxes, and more economical administration of federal, provincial and municipal affairs, is it reasonable to expect that the member for North Waterloo, Hon. W. D. Euler, after using his influence to secure the expenditure of approximately $400,000 for a new post office, and another $300,000 toward the construction of the Grand River Valley conservation dams, will recommend that the government present the city with one of the most valuable business corners in the city?

Mayor Gordon and the aldermen should confine their efforts toward securing twelve feet from the government for the widening of Benton street, and encourage the sale of the remainder of the property as a business block in order that it can be assessed and taxes derived therefrom.

The taxpayers of the city had reason to expect that an effort would be made by Mayor Gordon and the city fathers to devise ways and means to reduce the taxes, which have been excessive for a city the size of Kitchener for the last decade, but instead of that they are "day-dreaming," and visioning a civic square which would cost almost a mill of the city's taxes per annum to maintain.

Being a taxpayer and having heard considerable criticism of the wild ideas of some council members the writer considers that the time has arrived to protest. Thank you, Mr Editor, for the space.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

NOW WHEN JESUS was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils. And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept. And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not. . . .

Afterwards he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen. And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. . . .

And these signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues;

They shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.—Mark xvi, 9-11, 14, 15, 17, 18.

KEEP STIFF UPPER LIP.

(Detroit Free Press)

THE YOUNG men and women who are leaving school and college for the wider and more complex life beyond the campus should not be daunted by the specter of unemployment.

When was there ever a time when every college graduate could step immediately into a lucrative job?

The dark is deepest just before dawn.

And the current business depression cannot last forever.

The important thing is not to give up hope if you do not find employment for your talents at once.

You will in time, if you keep a stiff upper lip and keep your eyes open, if you try to create your own opportunities and if you are willing to start at the bottom and work up.

The young man or woman who sits down and waits for opportunity to come is already licked—and always has been, whether times were good or bad.

Close your ears to defeatist talk.

You are, collectively as competent as those who have graduated before you, and if you are determined to work, you will find that the chance to do so will not be long delayed.

GAS TAX AND ROADS.

(Amherstburg Echo)

MOTORISTS who buy their gas at Amherstburg service stations pay the Government $16,684 annually in gasoline tax, it was learned by the Echo in a survey of the local service stations. Altogether the several service stations dispose of 278,066 gallons of gasoline during the year. With such a great amount as this being paid by our motorists it is only fair that Amherstburg should be given consideration in the matter of roads. Just now the connecting link of Highway No. 18 through Amherstburg is in a deplorable condition and is badly in need of attention. If Amherstburg were to be given back only part of the taxes paid this pavement could be easily repaired.

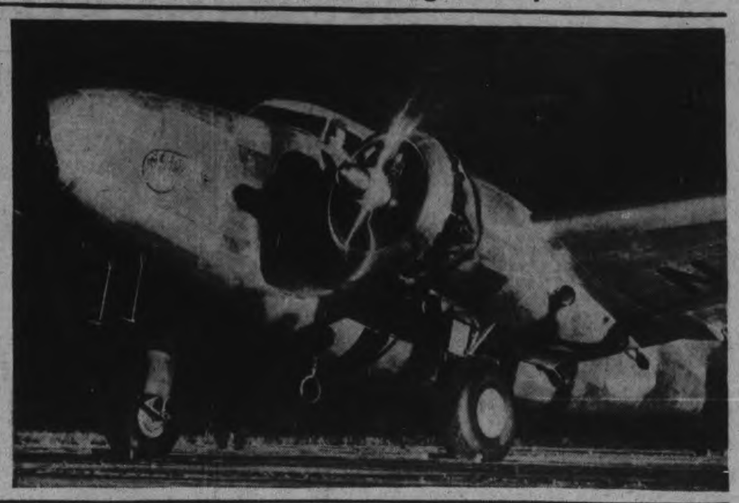
Hughes and Crew Land Safely In Moscow On Second Leg Of Trip



After a start delayed many hours by a recalcitrant engine, Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman-flier, and four companions swept their big transport airplane down the runway at Floyd Bennett airfield, outside New York, and headed out to sea toward Paris, France, on what is the first leg of a round-the-world flight. Hughes himself was at the controls as the machine took the air near sunset, while 5,000 watched, and the 33-year-old speed flier is shown in the cockpit at LEFT, as he checked over instruments just before the takeoff. At RIGHT is seen the giant monoplane, named "New York World's Fair, 1939," its 1,100 horsepower engines warming up on the airport runway. From Paris Hughes continued to Moscow.

ROOKIE JOE GORDON IS SPEARHEAD OF YANKEE VICTORIES

Team Required Someone To Spark Them

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—The present upswing of New York Yankees, which has yielded 10 victories in their last 13 starts, with one game tied, can be traded directly to the inspired batting and fielding of Rookie Joe Gordon at second base.

All the Yanks needed was some one to spark them, and the kid from Newark has supplied the spark. In his last 15 games Gordon has compiled a .450 average, including five homeruns, four doubles and two triples. His 23 hits in that period have knocked across 20 runs. He is tied today with Joe DiMaggio for the club batting lead with a mark of .325.

Since he made his last error on June 25, the boy who filled Tony Lazzeri's shoes has fielded brilliantly, handling 85 chances without a bobble.

Thought Season's Prize Bust

The "Flash" deserves a lot of credit for his recent comeback. A month ago the critics had about decided he was the season's prize bust. After an unimpressive start a slight injury had put him on the bench, and it didn't look like he would get the splinters out of his pants before autumn.

The Yankees were congratulating themselves on having obtained Bill Knickerbocker as "Gordon insurance" at second base.

But on June Manager McCarthy, evidently figuring the Yanks couldn't do much worse than they were doing, put Joe back in the lineup and told him to get going. Joe hesitated only long enough to get married, and since then he hasn't missed a game.

His big bat now is supplying the punch lost when George Selkirk, Huntsville, Ont., veteran, flopped and Father Time began whipping curves past Lou Gehrig. He's breaking up a ball game about once a week, and these victories supply that little bit of "difference" the Yankees needed.

Third Test Match Is Abandoned When Rains Again

MANCHESTER, England, July 12 (C.P. Cable). — The third cricket test match between England and Australia was abandoned to-day without a ball being bowled. Scheduled to start last Friday at Old Trafford rain made play impossible on each of the four days.

Only a brief inspection was necessary to-day to decide against starting the match. It rained in the early morning and the light was so bad that nearby factories were operating by electric light. Manchester people can hardly recall a worse week in summer time.

It was the second time in the history of test cricket going back to 1876 that an international contest had been abandoned without play. Strangely enough it was at Manchester, in 1890, that the first match was rained out.

Only Five Decisions

Of 16 Anglo-Australian test scheduled for old Trafford since 1884 only five produced decisions. The last completed game on the Lancashire ground was played 33 years ago, England winning by an innings and 80 runs. Rain was the principal contributing factor in the many drawn games.

The fourth match of the current series opens at Leeds July 22 with the teams deadlocked, the tests at Nottingham and London resulting in stalemates. Whatever the result the fifth and final contest at the Oval in London will be played to a finish. According to the rules the final encounter is to be played out, if after the conclusion of the fourth test, the difference in matches won is not greater than one.

Since international competition started between the two countries, Australia has been victorious 56 times and England 54. Thirty-one matches have been drawn.

Chess Championship Set Late August

TORONTO, July 12 (CP) — The Dominion chess championship and two other chess tournaments will be held in Toronto in late August and early September, it was announced today by Toronto Chess Association, subsidiary of Canadian Chess Federation. The Dominion championship will be held from Friday, Sept. 2 until Saturday, Sept. 8, with two sessions daily. Entry fee is $10 and the first prize $100.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

JUST DOING A Winchell for a space and announcing coming events. Tonight, weather permitting, there will be a senior ball game at 5.15 in Riverside Park. Between Oshawa GM-men (you've heard of 'em and the Petes—you may have heard of them too. Should be quite a tilt and ought to pack in the customers, especially with the big celebration in town today, what? It'll be Lefty McNally on the home slab and likely that elongated Toronto twirler, Jack Turner, on the Oshawa mound. Eddie Starr was out with the Petes last night at practise and we'll bet he will see action for the homesters this e'en. We are glad to see him return to the game, as Eddie should be a big help to the local baseballers. They say he shoots a mean game of golf, too, but he is a bit young to get stuck with that game! Or will we be slaughtered by the golfers? Anyway, tonight's tussle ought to be a pip, so help yourselves.

The Gridders' Reunion

AND DON'T FORGET the big "booster banquet" of the Orfuns Rugby Club at seven p.m. Friday in the Empress Hotel. There should be well over a hundred enthusiasts on deck for this big affair. Tickets, at six bits per each, will be available until seven bells tomorrow eve at Brooks, Riley's, Playmor Sports and the Empress, as well as executive ossifers. After this time, ducats may be obtained only at the Empress. All those interested in seeing O. R. F. U. games with Montreal, Sarnia and Toronto, are urged to be on deck and lend support to the Orfuns. They are undertaking an ambitious program and will put Peterborough on the gridiron map—and furthermore they are not likely to lose dough, or to give up the senior game for quite a few years. Yeah, they rate lots of support.

AFTER THE BANQUET Friday, officers will be elected and we hear quite an array of prominent local me nwill act. The grounds have been measured and a layout made, which will be shown at the session. And all suggestions will be welcome, including possible officers not mentioned by the nominating committee. There is need right away of committees to work on the grounds at the Exhibition Park, deal with tickets, equipment, etc. And much of this work must be started at once. The Orfuns are endeavoring to have present that night Secretary Bailey of the O. R. F. U., Prexy Muirhead and Coach Alex Ponton of Balmy Beach, and President Porter of the Montreal C. N. R. Club. It should be quite an affair.

It Comes Up Hockey

AN OPEN MEETING of the Peterborough Hockey Club will be held at 8.15 this Thursday twilight at the Chamber of Commerce and players and fans are invited. The nominating committee will present a prospective slate of officers and they will be voted upon. We hear they have many well-known sportsmen, manufacturers and business men, who are willing to work in an active sense—and that's fine news. We'd like to see R. M. Glover return again as no one in this man's town excels him in knowledge of hockey. He declined to run again at the last meeting, saying he might not have the necessary time next winter, but those interested have been trying to get him to change his mind. We need a strong executive this winter if there is a chance of getting artificial ice next year.

With Harry Low the promoter and Art Hunter match-maker. Will have all the dope on it in a day or two, but the show is slated for next Monday night.

YOUNG PETES play in Bowmanville tomorrow evening in a Junior Lakeshore Baseball League encounter. And Herb Ralph's hopefuls gang awa' to Oshawa on Saturday for a doubleheader 'gainst "High Pockets" McCabe and Co. These three games are important and will just about settle where the local junior ballsters will finish their schedule. The list winds up in less than two weeks and playoffs commence. The info that Oshawa and the Young Petes are tied on top of the heap was wrong the other day and we now discover that the locals lead the parade with five wins in seven starts, whereas the Motor City youths have won four and dropped three.

The Kingston Slant

SAYS BILL WALSHE of Kingston: "Credit or discredit the O. B. A. with the most inconsistent decision ever made in Canadian sport. Suspending Kingston Ponies from baseball may have been correct according to the laws of the O. B. A. but the same laws should govern Peterborough, a club that was guilty of the same offence which resulted in the blacklisting of the Ponies. . . . The Kingston club or this column have no objection to the Petes getting white-washed and remaining in ball. The objection is against the O. B. A. ruling. It is difficult to reason that Kingston did not get an unfair deal. The suspension of the Ponies also affects Kingston's softball league as several suspended ball players are also members of the big-ball loop. . . . Kingston only has two team sports for for boys and to have them shattered in midseason is a bad blow to sport here."

Oshawa And Petes Are Here Tonight

A senior baseball game will be staged here this evening (Tuesday) at 5.15 o'clock in Riverside Park between Oshawa GM-men and the Petes. It was originally scheduled for four o'clock but has been put back to 5.15 in order to oblige the many ball fans who will be in town for the July 12th celebration today. A big crowd is expected to see the fivture, provided the weather is suitable as these teams turn in some nifty baseball. The 1937 league champions and O.B.A. finalists are as tough as ever, while the Petes should be bolstered up to their strongest pitch for this tilt. It may be the best ball game seen here this year, and quite possibly will result in a local victory.

Lefty McNally will hurl for the locals to-night, and Jack Turner will draw the slab assignment for the visitors. McNally has not yet pitched against Oshawa and the hard-hitting GM-men will find his speedy slants hard to solve. Turner has proven a jinx to the Petes all season, as they can hit him but can't beat the lanky Toronto twirler. It is likely to result in a pitchers' battle with the smart southpaw of the Petes favored to cop the nod.

A few changes in the local line-up are possible in order to get more hitting strength in there.

Clubs Split Even In Tennis Tourney

Tennis clubs split the points 3-3 in an inter-club tourney played at Port Hope Saturday afternoon The matches, scheduled for Peterborough in place of a rained-out tourney at the liftlock city some weeks ago, were played at Port Hope because of wet courts at the Peterborough club.

Night Baseball Be Played In 4 Big Clubs

(By ALAN GOULD)
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP).—Despite bitter opposition from some irreconcilables, including both New York Clubs, night baseball will flourish in at least four major league cities by 1939. Phiadelphia and St. Louis will be added to the current list, comprising Cincinnati and Brooklyn.

"It's not baseball — it's freak stuff," cry opponents of lights, but the box-office payoff is the answer. Night baseball has been the salvation of many minor leagues, including the American Association and the International League. It will keep some major league clubs from folding up in the next few years. But so long as Colonel Will Terry has anything to say about it, his Giants will never perform under the lights.

Newark's domination of the International League again is all the more noteworthy because eight members of the 1937 club, which won the pennant by twenty-five and one-half games, have been graduated to majors. Besides the quartet now with New York Yankees (Gordon, Beggs, Sandra and Dahlgren), there's Seeds, bought for $35,000 cash by the Giants; McQuinn, first-sacker of St. Louis Browns; Vito Tamulis, southpaw with the Dodgers; and Hershberger, No. 2 shortstop of Cincinnati Reds. But for the playoff system, inaugurated by President Frank Shaughnessy, the International wouldn't have much chance to keep interest alive in the last half of pennant season. Up to to-day Newark's lead was eleven and one-half games.

"The lives of at least fifty ball players have been saved by quick remittances for emergency operations and necessities. The Giants range from $50 to $10,000," writes H. G. Salsinger of the Detroit News, commenting on uses of funds, including all-star game net proceeds handled by the National Ball Players' Association. Membership dues are $10 in majors, $5 in minors.

Kiwanis Win 8-6 In Lacrosse Tilt

Kiwanis copped an 8-6 midget lacrosse win from Rotary last night in the George St. arena. The winners had a 3- 2edge in the first quarter, were in front 4-2 at halftime and had a 6-3 margin at the end of the third. Doughty, Hallihan and Dyer scored for Kiwanis in the initial inning with Doughty having an assist; as Rotary tallied twice, one by Hudson and once when Stewart knocked the ball into his own net. Stewart got the lone marker in the second. Cavaraggie and Halihan tallied for the winners in the third, Doughty aiding in one; and Hudson scored for Rotary. In the fourth, Hudson got two for the losers and Horton one, while Kiwick and Cavaraggie tallied for Kiwanis. Penalties were drawn by Doughty, Hallihan (2) and O'Donnell. Stars for the winners were Hallihan, Doughty and Cavaraggie; while Hudson, Horton, O'Donnell and Weaver were best for the losers. Rotary back-checked badly and Kiwanis cashed in on chances. The teams:

Kiwanis—Goal, Lemon; defence, Doughty, Stewart; centre, Cavaraggie; wings, Bernardi, Dyer; rover, Hallihan.

Rotary —Goal, Miller; defence, Horton, O'Donnell; centre, McBain; wings, Mosely, Hudson; rover, Weaver.

Soccer League Standing

The first half of the local soccer league schedule has just been completed. The Brinton Athletic standing in first position with no losses and a goal record of 26 against 5, which gives C. Crennell and Harry Adams, custodians of the league leaders, a creditable percentage. There have been 44 goals scored in the league, with Ben McMaster and Newt Downer in top scoring list.

Two points for a win, one for a draw.

An unfortunate accident happened to David Leether in the Brinton vs. Canadian General game last Saturday, when he dislocated his shoulder. After examination by St. John Ambulance officer and Dr. Scott, they stated that no bones had been broken. Fans will wish him a speedy recovery.

The executive of the local association did not consider the resignation of Tom Foster as official referee, and it was unanimously agreed that the president and secretary interview him relative to his request. The board went on record that they did not desire him to play again, but still act as referee where his services were greatly appreciated. It takes a player to become a good official.

The Brinton club intimated to the association that they had postponed the field day to a later date, of which the club will notify the association. Game for Saturday was arranged with the C.C.F. and C.G. E., with T. Foster being referee.

To-night Tom Foster will handle the Deloro vs. C.C.F. match on King Edward Park. Kick-off at 6.45.

On Thursday night Canadian General meet the Brinton in the semi-final of the Injured Players' Cup. S. J. Hanlon will referee.

Arrangements have been completed by the Brinton Club to go to Deloro in search of league points. Referee Hanlon will travel with them.

Nationals Win Over Hawks

The Nationals won their first game of the season in the Southend Softball League last night with a 15-6 decision over Hawks at the Brinton Field. They collected an early lead and were never in danger. Wedlock hurled good ball to hold the losers to seven scattered hits, while the winners took to Cavanagh early and drove him out, also pounding McGregor hard and often. Collins and Pilling each had four hits for five, and Cameron clouted a homer and triple for the Nats. Board was the only real hitter for the losers. Loucks went best in the field to grab off several hard drives. The teams:

Nationals—Hunter, 1b; Loucks, ss; Collins, rf; Masters, c; McDonald, cf; Pilling, lf; Cameron, 2b; Wedlock, p; Adamson, 3b.

Hawks — McDougall, lf; Cavanagh, p, rf; Board, 1b; McGregor, 3b; p; Pryde, rf, 3b; Jay, 2b; Milliard, ss; Hallihan, ss; Busby, cf; Kearney, c.

A Living Torch

PALMERSTON, Ont., July 12—(CP)—Bruce Finlayson, 22, of Harriston is recovering in hospital here from serious burns received Sunday afternoon while his motorcycle was being filled at a service station. Gasoline spilled on to the hot motor and Finlayson was transformed into a living torch. He was wrapped in a blanket and the fire extinguished.

Basketball May Allow Pay For Lost Time

TORONTO, July 12 (C.P.). — Makeup of the Canadian basketball team in the 1940 Olympics at Tokyo and international aspects of the game insofar as Canada is concerned will be considered at to-day's session of the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association.

One proposal calls for seven members of the senior men's division winners of 1940 to be members of the Olympic team. Other resolutions from delegates in connection with these matters will be brought before the executive together with a committee report on a resolution which would allow players to receive compensation for their lost time from work to take part in playdowns.

The committee, headed by the association president, Walker Hardwick of Vancouver, was appointed yesterday. It proposed a definition of the word "amateur" which would allow "broken time" payment.

Other developments of last night's meeting provided for the setting up of a women's "Senior A" series in an attempt to build up "more serious competition" for Edmonton Grads, world champions. Grads enter the new series automatically and other clubs which feel they have sufficient strength will enter voluntarily.

Problems of referees will be investigated by a board which will als odecide on the possibility of allowing members of the provincial boards of the Canadian Basketball Referees' Association to take jurisdiction over playdowns.

Travel in Eastern Canada playdowns was dealt with in a resolution that provided the Maritimes must act as host to the Ontario-Quebec senior champions every second year. The Ontario-Quebec titleholders will be the host club in alternate years.

No runner-up may replace a winning team which has defaulted in Canadian playdowns, the executive decided in the provision that only teams finishing first in their sections may continue into the finals.

Brennan Rink Wins Jitney

HAVELOCK, July 12.—Six mixed rinks, composed of club members, competed last evening, the regular Monday evening jitney, on the Havelock Recreation Club greens.

PITTSBURGH PIRATES WIN THEIR TWELFTH STRAIGHT GAME

Longest Major League Victory Streak Of Present Season Climb From 4th To 2nd Place

NEW YORK, July 12 (C.P.). — Disregarding the fact that New York Giants and Cleveland Indians still are holding the lead in their respective leagues, it seems to be a good time now to keep close watch on the second and third place clubs of the two major baseball circuits.

For the past couple of weeks, the Pittsburgh Pirates, New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox have been playing, in general, much better baseball than the leaders. The time is at hand when they can make it count.

Starting to-day in the American League and to-morrow in the National, there's a round of intersectional games coming up. The Indians, whose mound department has been in danger of falling apart, have to venture into the east where the Yanks and Red Sox will be lying in wait. Their two-game lead over New York and 3½-game margin over Boston won't count for much unless they can beat those rivals.

Similarly, Pittsburgh has a great opportunity to smash its way into the National League lead and Chicago and Cincinnati can do considerable damage.

Game and Half Down.

All the Pirates have done recently has been to win 12 straight games, the longest major league victory streak of the season, climb from fourth place to second, and cut the Giants' lead to 1½ games. They did the latter trick yesterday by smashing down Chicago Cubs 5-3, in a brilliant ninth-inning rally.

Cincinnati, which recently passed Chicago to gain third, whipped St. Louis Cardinals 9-5 in the only major league game. The Giants and Brooklyn were rained out.

Starting to-morrow, the Giants face seven games against the Reds.

So far the Giants have won 12 out of 20 games in the West, but are due

It took Cincinnati just one inning 11 victories in 15 games against Eastern clubs.

Lefty Larry French of the Cubs threatened to subdue the Bucs yesterday, leading 3-2 as he went into the ninth after giving up only two hits in the first six frames.

Then Johnny Rizzo smacked his second double, Arky Vaughan walked, and Ray Berres beat out a hit to fill the sacks. A force-out sent Rizzo home and Pitcher Jim Tobin earned his sixth victory of the season by singling in the winning runs. Tobin couldn't finish, however, and Mace Brown had to retire the last two Cubs in the ninth.

It took Cincinati just ne inning to dispose of the Cards. Eight hits, including homers by Linus Frey and Billy Myers, off Roy Henshaw and Ray Harrell, accounted for eight runs in the first. Lew Riggs socked another homer in the third, and the rest of the afternoon was devoted to keeping the Cards from scoring too often.

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP).—Bill De Correvont, the Chicago football sensation, finally has caught up with his books and will be a sure starter for the Northwestern yearlings next fall . . . There'll be a September heavyweight fight all right, but don't ask who'll do the fighting . . . You're liable to see Baer, Pastor, Galento, Barlund and mebee two or three others in the same ring in the same night . . .

Oddities: A couple of guys named Maulder and Graves did the pitching and catching for Beatrice in the Nebraska state league the other night . . . You can blame this on Jimmy Doyle of the Cleveland Plain Dealer: "If the Brooklyn baseballers were still known as the Robins, G. Herman Ruth would qualify as the round Robin."

Today's tall one: The other night while Tom Sunkel was pitching his head off for Atlanta, thieves crashed his apartment and stole everything but the kitchen sink . . . Jack Troy, sports editor of the Atlanta Constitution, received a letter signed by a bird who said he was president of the Atlanta burglars' association, denying any of his boys had anything to do with it . . . "No reputable burglar would steal a ball player's clothes, especially with him pitching like I seen him pitch Tuesday night," wrote the head burglar . . . "If I thought a guy in my association done it I would throw him out on his ear.'

Billy Laval, scout for Boston Red Sox, has the blues . . . Best pitching prospect in Dixie is William Broome, 19, of Lockhart, S. C. . . . His fast ball breaks twice and his strikeout record is amazing . . . He's been signed to a Red Sox contract for a year but won't budge although they've offered him about everything except Tom Yawkey's yacht . . . The kid would rather stay at home, play semi-pro ball and make 12 bucks a week . . . When not pitching, he fills in a third base and leads the league in hitting . . . What are you going to do with a guy like that?

Odds and ends: Babe Ruth has shed 14 pounds yelling on the Dodger coaching lines and has parked more than a dozen balls in the stands in batting practice . . . When good shortstops get together: Arky Vaughan and old Honus Wagner are roommates on the Pirates.

Buffalo Bisons Beat Baltimore

NEW YORK, July 12—(CP).—Ask any Buffalo baseball fan, and he's probably tell you Ollie Carfnegie is as much a Buffalo landmark as Lake Erie; that he knows every board at the ball park by its first name and that, although he admits being 33 years old, he's still a handy man to have around in the clutches.

Some of these statements might be questioned as exaggerations, but Ollie left no doubt about the last when he simultaneously belted the Bisons out of a five-game slump and back into second place in the Internatonal League last night. He drove two homers, his 21st and 22nd of the season, over those familiar fences, to lead the way to an 8-4 victory over Baltimore Orioles.

As Rochetser and Jersey City played a 3-3, seven-inning tie in a game cut short to enable the Little Giants to catch a train, Buffalo moved into a virtual tie with the Red Wings and took over second by a few percentage points. The Jerseys got their deadlock in the seventh when Babe Herman's third hit drove in Myatt after two errors had put the shortstop on third.

Dean Ordered To Be Ready

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Owner Phil K. Wrigley of Chicago Cubs today ordered Dizzy Dean to "be ready to pitch within a week." Dean, who has been out of action for more than two months with an ailing arm, told his boss he was "ready to go."

Wrigley said he was calling Dean back to work for the Cubs regardless of any further reports of physicians who have been working on his ailing right arm.

"We didn't need Dean during the first part of the season, but we do now and I'm going on my own report of his condition and put him to work," Wrigley said.

Dean, purchased by the Cubs for $185,000 from the St. Louis Cardinals, assured Wrigley he "was ready to pitch right now."

Wreckers Down Deloro 13-10

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, July 12.—Winning last evening's game by a 13-10 score the Havelock "Wreckers" captured a one game lead in the finals with Deloro softball club. The first of the best two-out-of-three series resulted in a tie, and the third is scheduled to be played next Monday in Deloro.

Havelock went into the lead in the very first inning with five runs and were never seriously threatened till the fourth stanza when the visitors came within one counter of tieing the score.

The locals strengthened their position again in the last half of the fourth with a four-run rally giving them a five-run margin.

Best fielding play of the evening was in the fifth, a smartly executed double-play being pulled off by the Wreckers, Kennedy, McCutcheon and Puffer taking part.

Moore on the Havelock mound and O'Neill, Deloro's hurler provided steady pitching throughout the seven stanzas.

The teams:

Deloro: B. Simmons, 2b; B. Townson, 1b; S. Callery, cf; P. Gray, ss; C. O'Neill, p; J. Murphy, 3b; W. Loveless, rf; W. Richardson, c; Elliott, lf.

Will There Be a Fifth Meeting?

For the fourth time in their major league managerial careers, Joe McCarthy, boss of the New York Yankees, and Bill Terry, whip-snapper of Gotham's Giants, posed for the traditional picture of the team leaders shaking hands, when the annual major league all-star game was played in Cincinnati. The past two World Series have seen Marse Joe and Our Will as opposing leaders, and because of this, automatically leaders of this year's and last year's all-star squads. According to the mid-season pace, both New York teams are hitting, it looks very much as if the fifth handshake will take place in October. The insignia in Terry's sleeve is the perisphere and trylon, emblematic of New York's world fair of 1939. Yankees, Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers all wear the emblem.

Leafs, Bears Split Double With Shutouts

TORONTO, July 12 (CP).—Splitting the third and fourth shutouts of the five-game series at Maple Leaf Stadium, Johnny Neun and his Newark Bears left town last night with a three-two edge in games, but they left the Maple Leafs feeling a trifle proud of their achievements against the pace-setters.

It took a brilliant three-hit pitching job by Atley Donald, not only to give the visitors an even split on the night, but a winning margin on the series. Donald pitched superbly to a 6-0 triumph in the floodlight encounter after Johnny Berly had crossfired his way to a four-hit, 7-0 shutout in the seven-inning twilight affair.

The Burnsmen accomplished in one short series what the other six teams have done thus far in the campaign—blank the champions twice. Mike Meola did that little thing with a four-hit job Friday, and Berly performed the same difficult feat last night, although it was a shorter game.

Donald turned in a beautiful mound performance. He was fast all the way and had near-perfect control. Only one local player advanced past first, Burns travelling to third in the fourth on a walk, infield out and a wild pitch.

Sheerin, the first batter to face Donald, greeted him with a single to centre, but that was the last Toronto safety until Mayo Smith beat out a nicely executed drag-bunt with one out in the seventh. Flea Clifton secured the other safety, opening the eighth with a clean smash to right.

First Up Always Safe

Three hits and three passes placed six Toronto runners on base during the game, and on five occasions it was the first man up each inning. But it didn't do them any good. Three times the next batter struck out, another popped out and the fifth grounded into a double play.

Earl Caldwell pitched a neat game himself, giving up seven runs and four hits before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. Joe Mulligan yielded three hits good for two runs in the ninth.

Lee Stine, Phil Page and Norman Branch were pounded freely by the locals in the opener. Stine was touched for a double and walked a batter in the first, but escaped unscathed Walks to Porter and Reiber, Clifton's sacrifice, singles by Sheerin and Gantenbein and a two-bagger by Burns produced four runs in the second.

Page was tagged for a double by Clifton and successive singles by Sheerin, Gantenbein, Burns and Manush in the fourth for the final three counters.

Sheerin and Bantenbein had three hits each, including doubles, while Burns, who collected a double and single, drove home three runners Sheerin sent another trio scampering home and crossed the plate twice himself.

Berly scattered the four Newark safeties over as many innings. Keller lined out two clean singles and Branch laced a double to left, but Holm's single was an infield tap to Gantenbein, which was too deep to handle.

The Texan gave up only two passes and claimed five strike-out victims. In the fifth, he breezed third strikes past Holm, Schulte and Gleeson.

Poland will limit the number of fairs held through the country every year.

Schmeling's Homecoming Different From His 1936 Return

The contrast in the manner German citizens received Max Schmeling after losing to oJe Louis, as compared with his homecoming after his victory over the same boxer in 1936, is another portrayal of the fickleness of sports fandom.

NOW—

The Associated Press thus describes his homecoming of last Saturday:

"Max Schmeling's return home in defeat caused hardly a ripple of excitement to-day as the Bremerhaven boat train reached Berlin for a cheerless reception.

"Two dozen persons were on hand, but there was no official welcome for the German heavyweight who lost to Joe Louis.

"'I'll go to the hospital to-morrow to complete my cure," said Schmeling of his injuries in the title fight.

"Expected by friends to come home on a stretcher, Schmeling said: 'That would never have done. Naturally I insisted on walking off the boat and the train.'

"As he descended from the elevator platform Schmeling seized at a banister and clung to it. He drove off with Anny Ondra, his movie-actress wife."

THEN—

Contrast that with the following dispatch which appeared in The New York World-Telegram two years ago:

"BERLIN, June 26, 1936 — Max Schmeling, who was virtually in disgrace when he signed to fight a negro, came back to Germany today a national hero by virtue of his knockout victory over Joe Louis.

"Schmeling stepped from the airliner Hindenburg at Frankfort, to be greeted by a screaming throng of worshippers. His wife and mother had been flown to Frankfort in a plane provided by the Minstry of Propaganda, and the conquering hero was driven to the historic City Hall for an official reception.

"The crowds turned out again to pay him honor when he reached Berlin, among them a guard of honor made up of 500 amateur boxers clad in blue tights. To-night the boxer dined with Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda. To-morrow Schmeling will be the guest of Chancellor Hitler in the Reich Chancellery."

Bolt Kills 2 Horses For Lifford Farmer

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, July 12. — The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Weatherilt were sorry to learn that as a result of a severe electrical storm on Friday evening last their barn, which is a comparatively new structure, was struck by a bolt of lightning. Although the building was not fired, the bolt was instrumental in killing instantly two valuable horses which were tethered in the stable.

On Friday evening last a host of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Downey, Reaboro, motored to their newly-established home to shower them with miscellaneous gifts. Previous to her marriage a fortnight ago at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Ingram, Millbrook, the bride, Miss Thelma Davidson, Fleetwood, daughter of Mr. Tolbert Davidson, was an active participant in church and social activities in the Fleetwood community.

Guests were present from Fleetwood, Mount Horeb, Reaboro, Lifford and other points, numbering well over the hundred mark. When all had assembled, Mr. Bruce McNevan, M.P., acted in the capacity of chairman for a brief program, during which the sincere wishes of the many guests were conveyed in suitable manner to the happy young couple in various speeches. Appreciate thanks was extended by both the bride and groom for the many beautiful and useful gifts which unsparingly described in the shower.

Luncheon was served and a happy social time spent, during which dancing provided the most popular item of entertainment.

Haying has been completed in this locality and waving fields of golden wheat are awaiting the reaper. In a short time harvest will be well under way, and if similar progress of growth continues an unusually early completion of harvesting an abundant farm crop is expected. Intermittent showers of rain have been conducive to thrifty root crops and in general farm prospects are much more promising than for several seasons.

FAIRMOUNT

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Binks and Sidney Jr., from Tonawanda, N.Y., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnston. Mrs. Binks and Sidney Jr., are remaining for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Alfred Binks, formerly of Fairmount, is seriously ill at his home in Kenmore, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnston and Master Wendell Johnston of Toronto were week-end guests of Mrs. Jamima Johnston, Mr. Johnston's mother. Master Wendell Johnston will spend his vacation among his friends here.

Mr and Mrs. Charles Thorn of Tonawanda spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnston.

Miss Muriel Hooton of Peterborough spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Hooton.

Mrs. L. A. Hooton, and Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hooton motored to Toronto and spent the week-end with friends.

WARSAW

Mrs. Latta, accompanied by Mrs. R. W. Payne and James Moore, motored to Greenhurst on Friday to visit Mrs. Payne's daughter, Mrs. Thurston.

Charles Calder's burnt arms and chest are healing nicely. He has been able to go to the factory for some days.

KOHAT, India—(CP).—An unidentified Wazirl youth was killed when a bomb he was carrying fell and exploded to the highway near here.

George Street Decorated For the Twelfth in 1891

This photograph of Peterborough's main street taken 41 years ago today will bring back memories to the older residents. On the LEFT is China Hall, Matthews' meat store, and down near the arch is the Review printing and bookbinding shop and next to it the offices of the Daily Times. The name on the tower over Bradburn's Opera House is W. J. Morrow, grocer, importer of teas, wines and liquors. The town clock may be seen in the distance. On the RIGHT, the west side of the street, in the old block from Simcoe to Charlotte Street, looking south, appears the name of Thomas Kelly, staple and fancy drygoods, father of the Rev. Dr. P. J. Kelly, present rector of St. Peter's Cathedral. Upstairs is the sign of Timothy Hurley, real estate office, and letters on the brick wall of the third floor disclose the name of Dolan, probably Tom Dolan, a well-known dry goods merchant in the olden days. Stapleton and Elcombe's store is next to the south, and beyond the buggy beside the telegraph post is Kidd's store. An old gas lamp bears the name "Palace grocery." The building with the broad white awning is perhaps the Caisse House. Down near the Charlotte Street corner is the City Hotel, with balconies off the second and third floors. On the lower one there is a group of two women and a man. Beyond Charlotte Street is the store that was occupied by John Giles, grocer. On the arch of evergreens, typical of street decorations in those days, are the historic names, Boyne, Derry and Enniskillen.

Bolt Hurls Bricks Through Preston Roof

PRESTON, Ont., July 12—(CP).—Bricks hurtled through the roof of a terrace apartment, smashing beams in the attic, when an apartment building was struck by lightning today during one of the heaviest thunder and lightning displays here this year.

Hurled off the terrace when the high chimney, shattered by the lightning bolt, bricks also smashed a trapdoor at the rear of the house, and were picked up 100 feet from the building. Occupants in the building were uninjured.

A telephone cable serving that section of the town was severed while a heavy porcelain conduit on the hydro wires leading into the building was shattered. No fires followed.

BOY DIES FROM BURNS RECEIVED WHEN HE FALLS INTO ASHES

New Union Jack Presented To Orange Lodges

Probably the youngest child to sport the colors of the Orange Order today is 13-months-old Barbara Mann, 717 George Street, shown at LEFT with her aunt, Elsie Foster, Euclid Avenue. Opening gun in the celebration was fired at nine o'clock when Mrs. William Wilson, Worthy Mistress, and Mrs. E. Delong, veteran treasurer, of Vimy Ridge Lodge, presented a new Union Jack to the Peterborough Orange Order and raised the flag from the mast at the Lodge quarters on Brock Street after a dedication ceremony by Adjutant Neil Warrander of the Salvation Army. Child Mistakes Hot Ashes For Sand-Pile

As a result of fatal burns received on Sunday when he mistook the hot ashes of a bonfire for a sand-pile, little Jimmie Leonard Weldon, age two years seven months, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke J. Weldon, 222 Wolfe street, died about seven o'clock this morning at the home of his parents.

Jimmie, who was playing in the orchard with his four-year-old brother Roy, thinking the innocent looking ashes of a bonfire which had been used for burning orchard refuse the previous evening was a sand-pile, ran into the middle of the ashes, receiving terrible burns on his feet and body.

His parents, who were visiting at the time with Mr. Weldon's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Swain of Valentia, near Scugog Lake, rushed the boy to Dr. G. W. Hall of Little Britain, where his burns were dressed before bringing him home.

Jimmie is survived by his brother Roy, and his parents. Mr. Weldon is an employee of Hood and Cummings Motors, George street.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon, July 14, at 3.30 p.m. D.S.T., from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox Church will be the officiating minister.

Orange demonstrations may be a holiday to some folks, but for the police department they mean only considerable work. Every member of the local force was on the job during the parade period to-day, the night staff being detailed for special traffic duty.

OLDEST ORANGEMAN.

Probably the oldest Orangeman on parade to-day is Isaac Lean of Apsley, 93 years of age, and a charter member of his lodge, having joined the branch when it was formed in 1896. He has been a member of the Orange Lodge for more than 70 years.

Kingston Convicts Being Thinned Out

KINGSTON, Ont., July 12 (C.P.). —Under charge of officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 130 convicts of the Kingston Penitentiary are scheduled to leave here to-day for Western Canada, to be distributed among the penitentiaries here. Removal of the convicts is necessitated through the overcrowded condition of the penitentiary, to which attention was recently drawn by the Royal Commission on the penal system in Canada.

Several officers of the Kingston Penitentiary will accompany the convicts. Most of the convicts are long termers.

A Royal Commission recently found Kingston overcrowded and facilities inadequate for the roughly 900 prisoners there.

There are three penitentiaries on the Prairies. Stony Mountain in Manitoba, 20 miles north-west of Winnipeg; Prince Albert Penitentiary, just outside of Prince Albert, Sask., and Fort Saskatchewan, 20 miles north-east of Edmonton.

Claim Duce Will Move Only Sick From Spain

LONDON, July 12 (A.P.). — The Spanish government claims that Premier Mussolini had no intention of carrying out his side of the bargain to withdraw foreign fighters from Spain came as a new worry to the non-intervention committee which already has worked 23 months on an evacuation scheme.

The Foreign Office had a note from the Barcelona government asserting Italy had sent 6,666 soldiers and 334 aviators into insurgent Spain since the signing of the Anglo-Italian agreement on April 16.

Further, the note charged, Italy would take home 10,000 soldiers, most of them ill, from Spain if the non-intervention committee's plan went into effect and incorporate the rest of the Italian troops in Spain int the Spanish Foreign Legion.

These contentions were made upon the British Government's publication of a 164-day evacuation program suggested by the non-intervention committee and providing that at least 2,000 soldiers be presented daily for evacualton from Spain.

The Anglo-Italian pact has the proviso that the problem of foreign fighters in Spain must be settled before it becomes operative.

The Daily Herald (Labor) said to-day, however, that Premier Mussolini was planning a "new plea" to Prime Minister Chamberlain that unless the agreement "becomes effective immediately, public opinion in Italy will compel Il Duce to resume full freedom of action"—meaning abrogation of the pact.

Cannington Fight Gets Four Arrested

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, July 12.—Provincial officer Wm. Kennedy, town and procincial Constable Yule of Beaverton, Monday laid charges of drunk driving, driving without a license and disorderly conduct against a Peterborough man named James Ross following a fight in which he and three other residents of the Electric city figured near Cannington, over the week-end. Charges of disorderly conduct have also been laid against a man and a woman named Adams and a man named O'Neill. Traffic officer Kennedy had been tipped off that a boisterous party was in progress on the highway close to the village, and on proceeding to the scene came across the party. Ross asked permission to go to a booth for a drink and made a break for liberty, hiding in a swamp, where he was located by the officers. The quartette were blood bespattered, their faces being covered with bruises and scartches. The woman declared that she had hit one of the men with a hammer, which the police have in their possession.

Rev. J. J. Black, of Cambridge United church, again flayed those who were responsible for the recent Sunday regatta, in the pulpit Sunday. The speaker said he was not an unreasonable Sabbatarian, yet he did not think the decalogue should be disregarded. The committee in charge of the event had said that Sunday was the only day for the event ,the speaker remarked. This was clearly the speech of an adult infant, he declared. There was no logic in it, and it smacked of immaturity, being childish. A generation that will sacrifice a sacred institution for material reasons is a childish generation, he declared, living in a world of make-believe.

door he crashed into a woman shopper. Then quickly running across the yards at the rear, he made his way through the kitchen of King's hotel and went up a back stairway into the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Martin, over the Massey-Harris store on Simcoe Street. Here he asked Mrs. Martin who knew him because she had worked at the same hotel with the fugitive at one time, to telephone for a taxi.

Jumps From Window

Meanwhile Reid had traced the man to the Martin apartment and telephoned to the police station. He and Inspector Reid started up the backstairs of the building and Detective Piercy entered the place by the front stairway. On entering the Martin apartment he was just in time to see Cameron jump feet first from the wash room window to a wooden door over a cellarway 20 feet below. He crashed through the platform but was apparently unhurt and by the time the officers could reach the street by the stairs he had ran across Simcoe Street and disappeared in the direction of Charlotte Street and no further trace could be found of him.

Boy Is Injured Climbing On Monument

An unusual accident sent Neil McTeague, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McTeague, 200 London street, to St. Joseph's Hospital Monday night suffering from head and facial injuries and abrasions of the knee.

Young McTeague in company with his brother Joseph, and Bob and Billy Dormer, were playing around the monument in Confederation Square, erected to the memory of Captain Edward Brown, who was killed at Batoche during the Northwest rebellion, and climbing up the stone structure grabbed one of the four sand-stone pinnacles which adorn the top of the monument. These pinacles are sitting on short pins and are quite loose and when the boy seized one of them it toppled down with him to the ground, a drop of some six feet and the heavy ornament which weighs around 50 pounds, struck the lad.

He sustained a painful gash at the back of the head and his lip was severly lacerated, while there were bruises and abraisions on his leg. He was taken in a taxi to the hospital to receive medical attention.

Flag Presented Orange Order By Ladies' Lodge

The Glorious Twelfth brought sweltering heat for all loyal Orangemen to-day as a brilliant sun beat down with terrific force on city streets.

With the city garbed en fete, Orange activities commenced sharp at nine in the morning with the dedication and raising of a flag at the Orange Lodge on Brock street. Ladies of Vimy Ridge Lodge presented the order with a new union jack which they hoisted to the top of the flagpole after it had been dedicated by Adjutant Neil Warrander of the Salvation Army.

Ernest F. Reid, Past Grand Master of Ontario East, addressed the throng of lodge members from the steps of the hall, paying tribute to the aid of the Vimy Ridge Lodge, declaring his gratitude for the splendour of the day. Mrs. William Wilson, Worthy Mistress of Vimy Ridge Lodge, and Mrs. E. Delong, veteran treasurer, raised the flag as a fife band played the national anthem.

Mrs. Wilson was presented with a bouquet of flowers by George Carter, Past Grand Master and Chairman of the Hall Board.

Veteran Resident Well Remembers The 12th Of July

GEORGE STEVENS, veteran of Ashburnham, has every reason to remember July 12th.

Fifty years ago yesterday on July 11, 1888 he was married and fifty years ago this morning he and his bride of the day before landed in Peterborough to commence their wedded life here.

"They staged quite a celebration for us" Mr. Stevens said yesterday. "The Orange walk was being held here and there were thousands of folk in town and then the new Salvation Army hall was also opened that day and there was more fuss over that. Altogether it was a noisy and exciting Peterborough put on for us."

Daring Cyclists To Be Seen Here

The program of the Kawartha Motorcycle Club for Civic Holiday, Monday, August 1, promises plenty of thrills for those who remain in the city that afternoon. It is being sponsored by the Lions Club, largely because of the fact that Peterborough's holidays are usually blanks for the home folks and also for people of the district who would prefer to come into the city on those days. The card of races includes a three mile novice race in qualifying heats, another for Class C experts, three mile professional matched race and a consolatation race. That is an outline of the day's events which are expected to attract a flock of daring cyclists. The entries close July 27 at midnight.

Two Vags Given 30 Days In Jail

Pleading guilty to charges of vagrancy, Ernest Topliss, 20, and Raoul Pepine, 19, both of Toronto, were sentenced by Magistrate Campbell in police court this morning to thirty days imprisonment.

The two youths who came down from Toronto some days ago and were arrested by the local police were found to have bad records, including a term in Kingston penitentiary each. Both had been in the Ontario Reformatory as well, Topliss being sentenced under the name of James Stone while Pepine, going under the name of James Thompson had been given two and a half years at Iroquois Falls for stealing an automobile while armed.

Magistrate Campbell remarking that both had been consistently in trouble since they were fifteen years of age, said that a month in jail would give them time to think things over.

Restaurant Men Do Big Business

While business men in general found visiting Orangemen too busy with parades and speeches and games to do much shopping, restaurant owners in the city had a field day today.

At noon every eating place in Peterborough was jammed with hungry festive crowds. In some places people were crowding the aisles, waiting for their turn to occupy a booth. Children were crying, dishes were clattering, waiters were rushing about at top speed. Most popular dishes on the menus were salads and cold meat plates and two or three restaurants ran out of cold meats befor the dinner hour was over.

And in all the city parks and along the roadsides leading into the city, score of families were holding picnics in preparation for the day's fun.

The blast from accumulated gas wrecked the house.

Clifford jumped from a window and died several hours later from burns.

CHAPTER 36

THE GUITAR and song held that ethereal, floating quality that music can have only at night and at a distance.

"Must be her radio or phonograph," Bill decided. Then instantly he knew it wasn't. Something about the singing voice was too natural. Moreover, it was familiar.

Anyhow it couldn't be dangerous, or important. Or indeed, any of his business. Bill turned over determinedly and shut his eyes.

That seemed to amplify the music a little, and it floated to him more clearly now." . . . love comes, again, on wings of morning . . . bringing, for me, a new life's dawning . . ." he unconsciously translated the Spanish words of the song. Something in the melody and the strumming was haunted. "Gripe!" muttered Bill, and got up.

He slipped on trousers and shoes, walked out a ways toward Ellen's house. The girl slept, he knew, in the main second-story bedroom. Her abode home was a Spanish adaptation of pueblo style, suggesting those which the prehistoric peoples had built in this region centuries ago; but to her windows had been affixed balconies with iron grills. Her side window was lighted, and he could see the form of Ellen herself silhouetted in it. He walked a ways farther, still listening, and saw the man underneath.

"Well, I'll be eternally doggoned damned!" growled Bill Baron to himself. "That mug has come all the way up here just to serenade her!"

He quietly sat down on a nearby rock, oblivious of the midnight chill, and watched the romantic scene there 50 yards or so from him. He had it all straight now. Felix Montoya had done what any good Mexican boy or man is likely to do when smitten by love—he had come a-singing in the light of the stars.

The devil of it was, Felix really could sing. He had a tenor that was almost velvety, and for which a guitar was the perfect accompaniment. Bill thought some of heaving a stone at the Mexican, then running. Then he decided it would be better to lift his own voice and bray as much like a mountaineer's burro as he could, a real jackass bray. He thought of getting a lasso and dragging Felix around some in darkness He considered walking up to him and cracking him one with a hard fist.

But of course he actually did none of these things. Instead, the big Texan sat on the rock there in the darkness and scowled. When Ellen laughed and applauded at the end of the first song, he could see Felix bow courteously. When she then played her part a bit farther, went inside and returned with a blossom which was one of a bouquet always kept in her room, and tossed it to Felix, Bill felt as if somebody were jabbing at him with a pitchfork.

He slunk on back to his room then, feeling like a teen-age kid and mad at himself for feeling so. He got back in bed, but in a minute he came to his senses and got up again, dressed hurriedly and went to Ellen's house.

"Hi, there, Felix, glad to see you!" Bill greeted the late caller. "Heard your music. Say, boy, you can sing! I envy you."

The last statement at any rate was true. And if Bill really wasn't glad to see Felix, he did not let the guest know it. Together the two men and Ellen sat up until two o'clock, talking as if they were old schoolmates. Ellen cooked up some coffee, found assorted cakes and other things to eat. Stories and jokes and music and laughter made it a gay party, and in spite of his original reactions Doctor Bill Baron had a tip-top time.

When it seemed the tactful moment to do so, Bill volunteered his own bed and apartment for the guest, and Felix accepted. The two men bade Ellen good night, went together to retire. In the darkness again—and in his double bed beside Felix—Biyll grinned broadly, at himself. Anyhow, he thought as he felt sleep coming, she can't elope with him tonight!

Ellen was up with the sun and had sent the lad Pablo Rivera down to invite both Bill and Felix to breakfast. They accepted, of course.

"It is an honor to have you visit Casa Hermosa," Ellen repeated, over their grapefruit. "And to be serenaded like that—marvelous! You will stay at least a week, Felix? Say you will!"

Bill could have kicked her. But he didn't. He squelched his honesty again.

"Sure, sure!" he boomed. "You must stay, Felix. We've been building Ellen a real rancho here. Want to show you my feed experiments, and the weight tests. Wish you could have brought your parents. And your sister. We need more company here. You'll have to stay!"

Whether he meant it, or not, he sounded sincere. Felix glowed under the welcome—and promptly accepted!

It wasn't so terrible, at first, Bill admitted. Felix brought a change in the routine of hard work. Bill could delegate his immediate duties to some of the other cowboys while he rode with Felix and Ellen out to see the main herd and to inspect the smaller groups of test cattle.

They dismounted in one pasture, some two miles from the house, when they came onto a tiny calf lying alone in the grass. The mother was nowhere in sight. Ellen petted the calf and talked baby-talk to it. Bill promised she should have it at home for a personal pet. He carried it home for her then, in his arms as he rode.

They inspected a site which Bill had tentatively chosen near the house for a swimming pool, to be excavated and made of natural rock in the mountain sream by next summer. Then Bill tactfully pleaded a duty with the cowboys, and left Felix and Ellen to themselves.

The two stayed together practically all the time during the ensuing days. Buckshot Brown turned positively sullen about it. Bill had to pay a diplomatic call on the old man, and suggest quietly that Felix ought to have a lot of figurative rope. Maybe, thereby, he would hang himself, Bill hoped. The guest was a little too perfect, and Ellen was bound to see a light, the two men decided.

If Ellen ever saw a light, though she didn't indicate as much.

Felix had come in his car and miraculously brought several changes of clothing with him. For daytime wear he had the relatively simple costume of the gentleman rancher in Mexico, but at night he sartorially "went to town", as the DD cowboys expressed it.

Ellen invited the whole ranch personnel, save for the actual house servants, in for one evening of sociability in her great living room. There were half a dozen shy Mexican women, wives of cowboys, all ill at ease. But the assembly managed to make it a merry occasion. Felix turned out for that in a gold costume which he said was for special dances. It was a shimmery golden satin, with red flares in the bottoms of the breeches, and a red lining for the bolero jacket. He was a handsome fellow, by anybody's standards, even though Buckshot Brown confided privately to Bill that he looked like a peacock with a harem of 12 peahens.

Felix played his guitar and sang for them. Some of the other Mexicans could sing and do folk dances. Ellen seemed especially to enjoy it. Felix and others taught her a few Mexican dance steps, and she showed them a few of the routines that had made her popular on American movie screens. All impromptu, it totaled a good time.

During the two days after that, Felix seemed constantly at Ellen's side. Bill stayed clear of them, but saw them often at a distance. He had a hunch that Felix was pressing his case and he prayed that Ellen wouldn't do anything impulsive. All told, the week was a thoroughly miserable one for Bill Baron, made more miserable because he went to lengths to conceal his misery.

He worked like a fanatic, doing the tasks of two ordinary men. A new drove of 200 cattle had been brought in from a ranch near Tucson, and Bill labored to inject them with blackleg serum, brand those that required it, weigh and measure the ones to be tested, dehorn a few, establish feeder zones, fence off measured pasturage.

Toward the end of the week one of his own cowboys who had been helping and watching him for the past few days came up to him when he was perspiring freely one mid-afternoon.

"Listen, Doc," the cowboy counseled, seriously, "you don't have to work yorseself to death just because some slick guy is setting up to yore gal. Hell, if you say the word, we'll ride the son-of-a-gun out of here on a rail!"

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of 19, the oldest of four children. My mother is the victim of self-pity. She cannot adjust herself to living more humbly than she did previous to the depression, and she spends her time bemoaning her lot. The doctors can find nothing the matter with her, but she refuses to do any work and has placed the responsibility of running the family on my shoulders. The question I wish to ask you is how should I act toward her? When she is needlessly imposing upon me by staying in bed while I do all the housework and by making me take care of the younger children, should I submit quietly or stand up for my own rights? I want to do everything that is necessary for my mother's comfort and happiness, but I do not see why I should sacrifice all of my youth to her imaginary ills.

A WILLING DAUGHTER.

ANSWER:

The only way in which you can help your mother to snap out of the morbid state into which she has got is by being firm with her. As long as you sympathize with her, coddle her, pet her and "poor Mother" her you are encouraging her to sink deeper and deeper into her mood of depression. If you keep this up she will soon be unable to struggle out of it.

Of course, you are sorry for her, but you must recognize that she is having the time of her life. She is just wallowing in an orgy of woe and enjoying every minute of it. She is drunk on her own tears. If you think that she is going to cheer up and sover up and accept the responsibilities of life again of her own accord you are very much mistaken. Somebody has to reform her and brace her up and make her behave herself just as they do any other sort. For the time being she has ost the power to do it herself and she needs outside help.

The reason that physicians advocate sending neurotic cases to sanatoriums is to get them away from their parents, for their families simply aggravate their trouble by weeping over them, spoiling them, giving in to all of their whims and caprices, whereas in a sanatorium they are dealt with firmly but kindly. Nobody listens to their tales of woe or weeps over them, but on the contrary they are made to control themselves and thus get a grip again on their emotions.

I am firmly convinced that half of the invalid women in the world are made invalids by their families kowtowing before them and pitying them, and that they could be cured by their families having backbone enough to refuse to submit to their impositions. A woman is vain and wants the spotlight turned on her. She finds that the easiest way to do this is to "enjoy poor health" and have everybody pitying her and waiting on her hand and foot.

Or a woman is lazy and so she develops a poor heart or nerves or a weak back. Her unfortunate husband and children have to scuffle for themselves, pack up trays to her and walk on tiptoe to keep from disturbing her. But let something come up that these invalids want to do and they miraculously recover.

That invalidism can be made a graft, no one will deny. The sensible way to deal with it is to have a competent physician examine the patient, and if he can find nothing the matter then the family should refuse to sacrifice itself to him or her. If nobody came to sit by the imaginary sufferer's bed and hold her hand and sympathize with her, and especially if nobody took up her meals to her, there would be a marked dimunition in bedridden invalids.

I certainly recommend that you try that remedy on your mother. If she is really sick, you want to do everything possible for her. If she is just a malingerer, you are silly to be a victim to her selfishness. Don't let her crush the youth out of you. Make her bear her own burdens. Work is the best all-around remedy in the world for what ails you, and there is no such cure for depression as being so busy you haven't time to think about your troubles.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—What age girl makes the best wife?

BACHELOR.

ANSWER:

You can't pick out a wife by her age, because the number of birthdays a girl has had is no indication of what kind of a wife she will make.

Of course, there are exceptions to every rule. Some girls mature early and are ready for marriage when they are very young; but, generally speaking, a man takes a great risk who marries a girl in her teens. This is the case not only because she is a child, with a child's passing fancies, so that the man she thinks she is in love with today she is tired of tomorrow, and because her character is still unformed so that she does not know even herself what she will be when she grows up.

But because she has not had her playtime and she is not ready to settle down to the business of life. She still wants to dance and play and flirt and have good times like the other girls, and she rebels at domesticity and baby-tending.

Among the thousands of letters from discontented wives that I get most of them begin by saying: "I married too young." These women missed the pleasures of youth and at middle age they are craving them.

On the other hand, it is dangerous to marry a woman well in her thirties, especially if she has been a business woman. She is likely to be set in her ways and not likely to adapt them to her husband's. She is also used to being financially independent and she is no wife for the man who expects his wife to rattle a tincup before him and ask for a quarter to go to the movies.

Nor is the woman who has spent most of her life in an office likely to be a good cook and housekeeper. There are exceptions also to this rule and I have known women to come out of the office into the kitchen and work wonders on a gas range. And sometimes the woman who marries late in life is the greatest husband-spoiler in the world.

The safest bet, however, is to marry a girl somewhere in the middle 20's. She is old enough to be capable of a great love. She knows her own mind and what she wants in a husband. She has had her fling and home looks better to her than a night club. She is still young enough to adjust herself to her husband and develop along with him.

Stunning Slip Covers Trans form Dull Rooms

Easy Directions for Trim Fit

Give shabby chairs a break. Modernize them with year-round slip covers. Your tape measure shows how little it costs to bring your living-room up to date with fresh gay color.

The average chair takes about seven yards of 50-inch material. To measure follow the dotted lines in our diagram. Start at A, allowing three inches for seam at top back, at B for tuck-in where back and seat join, at C where top of flounce joins apron.

Allow another three-inch tuck-in between arm and seat at D. Double the measurement from D to E is needed for both arms. Box-pleated flounce takes two to three times the measurement around the chair.

If material has pattern, allow full width for both sides of separate seat cushion.

Shop for one of the lovely new fabrics. Our sketch shows a stunning cretonne in lemon-yellow, gray, eggplant, and green.

And you'll find making your slip cover almost as easy as measuring for it if you follow the clear step-by-step directions and diagrams in our 32-page booklet. All styles of chairs and sofas.

The Stars Say . . .

For Wednesday, July 13.

Some rather fair prospects, presaged to materialize on this day, may require the utmost tact and discretion, as well as watchfulness for intrigue, confusion or a possible sinister phase. Yet, business and work should prosper and speculation may bring fortunate results.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of much definite progress and prosperity, with finances increasing and speculation offering some prospect of gain. But there is need for alertness to a doubtful, confused or treacherous situation, which might be baneful or sinister.

A child born on this day may be capable and ambitious, with the prospect of important projects and large profits, in which there might be the element of subtlety, diplomacy or stratagem best furthering its expansive ideas.

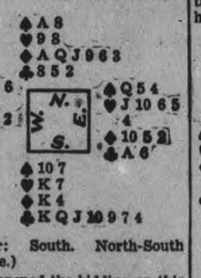
"The Authority on Authorities"

ENTRIES NOT NEEDED

WHEN YOU can see that a simple finesse would set up the dummy's suit, even if your partner had the king, what is the use of trying to knock a side entry out of the dummy? You would only waste opportunity by doing so. The declarer could win the trick, drop the rest of the trumps and then sail on with the long suit. In a spot like this, your sole chance is to whack at the one remaining suit, in the hope that your partner can get the setting tricks there.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

North opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Diamond, East passed and South called 2-Clubs. West put in a bid of 2-Spades and North and East passed. When South continued the bidding with 4-Clubs, North went to 4-Diamonds and South to 5-Clubs.

Against this contract, West led the club 3, which East won with the A. Having heard that the important thing to do with a long suit in dummy was to knock out the entry, he failed to realise that he had a more important mission in this particular case. His partner had put in an overcall and as he didn't have the A or Q of the suit, wasn't it likely that he held some strength in hearts? Had he shifted to that suit, instead of attacking spades, the contract would have been immediately set one.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Mary Jane, the rag doll, was very surprised at the presents the three little squirrels had just brought her. The first present wa sa little seed. The second present was a little root, and the third present was a little stem from the edge of the pond.

"Eat them," the three squirrels said.

"But what are they for?" she asked.

"You'll see."

Mary Jane hesitated for a moment. "All right," she said. So she nibbled the seed. The first little squirrel had got it from the grasshopper. Hardly had she taken the first nibble and swallowed it, than—my goodness!—Mary Jane sprang to her feet and began jumping up and down.

"Oh, this is wonderful. It's the first time in my whole life that I've ever jumped!"

"And now eat the little root, Mary Jane," the second squirrel said. So Mary Jane ate the little root. The squirrel had got it from the robin who lived on the other side of the road.

And what do you suppose happened when she ate the root? She began walking and hopping just like the robin did. "No other rag doll can do this!" she cried.

Made Her Dance.

"And now eat the little stem which the whirligig down at the pond gave me to give to you," the third little squirrel said.

This time Mary Jane needed no more urging. She swallowed the stem right down—gulp!

Do you know what it made her do? If you've ever watched a whirligig, you'll be able to guess at once. Yes, it made her dance round and round.

"When the morning comes," Mary Jane said at last, when she sat down to rest. "I'll show my mistress what wonderful things I can do."

At last, just before the dawn came, Mary Jane, quite happy, fell asleep. And the squirrels quietly carried her back to the garden and laid her, still sleeping, on a soft bed of leaves. And there she slept until her mistress found her again.

And she couldn't really remember whether she had really done all those things or just dreamt about them. But she felt happy just the same.

Travel Coat

The small traveler this year has a wide choice of smart little coats to wear on her journeys. And small girls, like big ones, need a lightweight but stylish coat that is soft and warm, no matter where they sojourn.

Small girls, too, must look "feminine" in a season that stresses that note. The chic little plaid coat pictured is made of soft wool in swagger styling. The colors are green, navy, yellow and white. The straight-cut front of the coat has a high-buttoned closing with small coin buttons and two flapped breast pockets. The back fullness flares widely from nicely fitted shoulders.

For added fashion interest the plaid is used diagonally for the cuffs of the long, straight sleeves, for the flaps of the pockets and for the brim of the matching hat.

A round white pique collar and a navy taffeta bow finish the neck of this smart little coat.

Grandma Had It Easy

Grandmother had it easy. When she was married she was set for life. Grandfather might not turn her life into a perpetual honeymoon, but she was pretty sure that he would stick by her.

Once married, the man problem was taken care of. It wasn't necessary for her to go on being a girl past her fortieth birthday.

Grandmother worked hard, of course. Housework wasn't simplified by gadgets then, and families fitted rambling houses, instead of small apartments.

But day in and day out there was no real pressure behind the work. If she found herself tired after lunch, she could lie down for a catnap. Or sit down in the kitchen rocker to shell peas. And she had the peace of mind that comes from knowing one's life is going to move on in the same familiar channels.

Marriage brought her an enviable security. At least it is enviable to the young woman who marries today, with her fingers crossed against the threat of divorce, and the havoc that a job can play with marriage. Ofttimes after a year or two of marriage she finds herself playing both ends against the middle, trying to hold the place she won in her profession and trying to hold her husband's love. And in addition, she may possibly, be trying to be a part-time mother.

By the time she has reached the place where she could give up her job, she and her husband have become so used to the luxuries that two salaries can provide she hesitates to quit working. Then, too, she doubts if she could ever become a suburban wife, waiting eagerly for a husband's six o'clock return. She has grown used to being a person in the same busy world that holds her husband from nine until five-thirty—and she doesn't want to enjoy that world by proxy.

Besides, if she does give up her career, who knows but what her marriage may go on the rocks—a thing that she has watched happen for no good reason to the marriages of several of her friends. Then where would she be—without a job to fall back on?

Maybe she thinks as she looks back on her own marriage that woman were short-sighted in demanding men's rights and privileges, especially their right to combine marriage and work. When they knew full well there was no way they could lighten the load by pushing some of women's traditional burdens off on the men.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"A spiteful word cuts both ways. A slander hurts the man or woman who spreads it in a more deadly, though unseen way, than it hurts its intended victim. Victor Hugo nobly said, "Every sword has two edges; and the man who wounds with one edge, wounds himself with the other."—O. S. M.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes, when someone says nasty things about us, we feel like making them prove it. And what good does it do us to go to law, for then there will be hundreds or thousands who will hear this, to the few who have heard it now.

If the thing is against your character, go to that person, don't fight, but have it out with them. Then let the matter rest. Your own character will prove itself, you will have no need to go out on the housetops and shout to the world that these things are not true.

For we show to the whole world the stuff we are made of. We may deceive ourselves, but we do not fool others, neither do we fool the almighty. You might think you are not so much in the scale of life, but your virtue or your vice will be evident.

Let old Father Time do some of his work for you. Truly I cannot think of one person who is my enemy, nor can I think of one that I am enemy to. And I am by no means a milk-and-water sort of person, for I have decided opinions on many things.

But, spitefulness generates out of jealousy, and it cuts the one who uses it. Manys the one has cut off his nose to spite his face. Many's the spite fence which has been erected, in fact I saw one the other day.

And it is a monument to someone's stupidity, it is an eyesore, it advertises to the world that you can't take it. It shows that you have put too high a value on yourself and your possessions, and it declares for all to see, that you want to see, but not to be seen.

Personally, I do not care who looks at me, who comments on me. We all discuss each other, in friendliness, in annoyance, in disgust. But and if, other people do not infringe on my life, I do not infringe on theirs.

Yes, I have had funny neighbors, just as you have. But, if I did not like them I kept my distance, and saw to it by my manner that they kept theirs. Everybody cannot approve of you, any more than you approve of them.

But, being spiteful, talking slanderously of them, not for me. Too much bother, and besides I have too many other thoughts to occupy my mind to trouble what this one says, or that one does.

And that is the main cause of spite and slander I think. Not enough to occupy their minds, and so they must get busy poking their noses into other people's affairs, putting the wrong construction on their actions, and generally playing merry havoc.

It is also the sign of an empty mind, a lack of intelligence, an envy of something the other fellow has. It is the hall-mark of a cowardly person, who will say behind their hand what they would not dare say to the one involved.

Remember also, the more attention you pay to what they say, the more fuel you add to their fire of nastiness. They think they have the power to take some of your pleasure away, and when you acknowledge that, you are giving them just what they want.

Ignore them. Put no importance on what they say. Tell the one who repeats these things that you do not want to hear them. "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise" applies also to what others may say of you, for if you do not know, it will not bother you. Knowing you are not that despicable type of person, I sign myself again,

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Gay Plaid Trims Tiny Coat

Smooth woollens and soft finishes share the honors in this season's delightful little travel coats. Fine wool flannel is a favorite, so are tweeds.

If the little coat is in a solid shade, as the one shown here, it will have bright little touches of color for trimming, such as plaid silk taffeta facing on the revers and pockets. Or it may have stitched leather piping in contrasting color.

The taffeta used to trim this little navy wood cheviot coat is in bright red, green and yellow, and is used as facing for the collar and pocket flaps. Broad-shouldered and flared through the brief skirt, this model has four mannish little buttons at the double-breasted front closing and becoming wide lapels.

Remember "She had rings on her fingers, bells on her toes?" The girls now are wearing the bells on their hats. There is a model that is called "eight bells," and it has nine diminutive bells strung along the front of the brim.

The young as well as the old and middle-aged travel in summertime. And the sub-sub-debs are just as fussy about having smart clothes that make them look better dressed than their little friends—just as their mothers and big, grown-up sisters.

There is always a delightful air about small girls' coats, a sort of chic that even the cleverest of grown-ups' coats somehow lack.

Handle Delicate Hose With Care

Silk stockings may easily be damaged if they are pegged out on a line, put through a wringer, or pressed with a warm iron after washing. They should be gently squeezed, but not wrung by hand, and then spread out carefully on a clean newspaper. Another sheet should be laid over them, and both sheets folded lengthwise so that the stockings lie flat between the folds. If the stockings are left overnight in the folded paper it will absorb most of the moisture from them. By morning they will be almost dry and free from creases. This method of pressing and drying is especially useful when stockings have to be washed during a holiday.

Movie Swindle For $30,000 Gets 2 Jailed

LOS ANGELES, July 12 (AP).—A get-rich-quick scheme, by which move producer Louis B. Mayer's name was forged to $50,000 in promissory notes, led to jail cells today for two of his employees at Metro Goldwyn Mayer Studio.

George Donald Smart, obscure sound recorder ,and Layne Britton, makeup artist described by officers as Smart's unwitting tool in a fantastic two-year swindle were held on suspicion of forgery, grand theft and conspiracy.

Names of film celebrities such as Nelson Eddy, Jeanette Macdonald and Charles Laughton were "sucker bait" in Smart's confessed career of frenzied finance, the district attorney's office reported.

As related in the confession, Smart set himself up in 1936 as "Mr. Mayer's confidential representative." His front was a forged letter, saying he was to negotiate special contracts with M.G.M. stars.

For getting them to agree to quit M.G.M. if Mayer should resign, Smart claimed he was to receive 10 per cent of their salaries as commission.

To forestall inquiries, the sound man told prospective victims that "Mr. Mayer will positively deny any connection with the matter" if approached.

The First Forgery

The scheme paid its first dividends investigators said, when Smart obtained $10,000 from the Santa Monica Commercial and Savings bank on a note forged so skillfully that even experts identified the signature as Mayer's.

The bank was informed the loan was to pay "bonuses" to certain stars for signing the special contracts.

Cashing a $15,000 30-day note with a second client, Smart repaid the first note. While dickering on a third not for $25,000, he paid back $10,000 of the second note.

The third client, Attorney Gail Burck, asked the advice of investment counsellors. They mailed the note, filed out but unsigned to Mayer's Santa Monica home. A few days later it was returned to a post-office box they had rented. Smart, investigators said, admitted he obtained Burck's letter from Mayer's chauffeur on a pretext.

Still cautious, Burck demanded to talk with Mayer on the telephone. Smart arranged for the call at the studio to be taken by Britton, who was told to answer "yes" to all questions.

When the Burck note fell due last month and was unpaid, the attorney finally reached Mayer and the case was turned over to the district attorney.

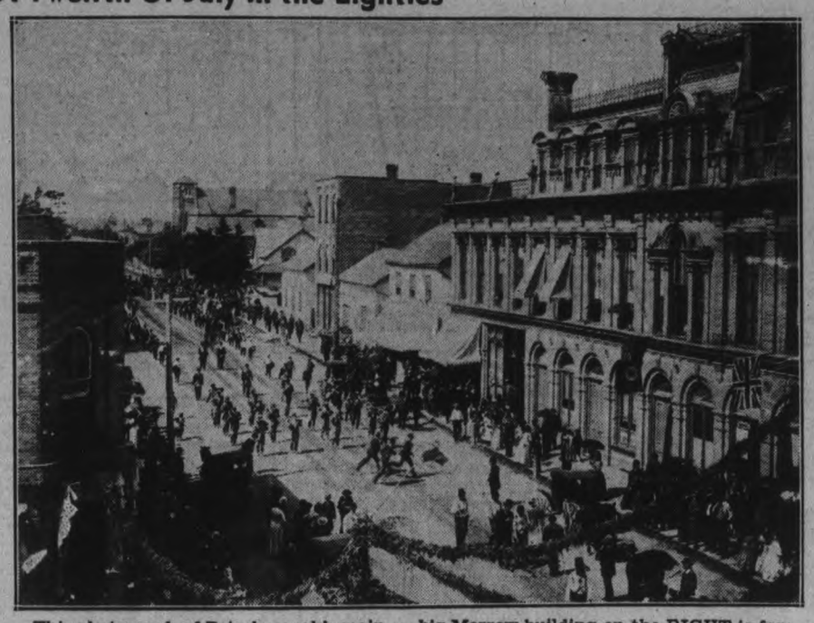
A Twelfth Of July in the Eighties



This photograph of Peterborough's main street reminiscent of the days when sidewalks were made of board planks and streets were unpaved. The picture taken, it is believed, in 1888, shows an L. O. L. parade from Central Park and passing under an arch of evergreens at the intersection of George and Brock Streets. The big Morrow building on the RIGHT is familiar and on the LEFT was J. D. Craig's furniture store. Several of the old buildings on the east side of the street have disappeared. Note the abbreviated tower on George Street Church in the background. New Zinc Tactics May Prove Paralysis Cure

By W. Howard Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor.)

PALTO ALTO, Calif., July 12. — (AP). — This summer's infantile paralysis outbreaks may prove whether science has at last discovered a prevention in nasal sprays.

The prospects were described today at Stanford University where the spray, zinc sulphat, was dicovered. The new development is elimination of spraying and substitution of a simple method of dropping and preventitive into the nose.

The place which was to be touched by the zinc sulphate is the olfactory nerve-ending area in the upper nose. This area is the gateway by which infantile paralysis enters.

Only a long-tipped spray, and a specialist or an expert physician to apply it, have been able to reach the "gate" with sufficient zinc. For children, even this was not altogether safe, because sudden movement of the head while the tip was inserted might damage nasal mucous membranes

Under these circumstances, about 2,000,000 persons have been sprayed in epidemic regions in the last three summers without giving the preventitive a real test. It is now known that in most instances the zinc never reached the infantile paralysis "gage."

Solution Runs to sot

By the new drop method, a person lies on his back with head tipped downward so that the solution runs vertically down to the olfactory area.

Any public health nurse can learn the technique.

The zinc sulphate temporarily destroys the sense of smell. Practically all persons have recovered this sense. But there have not been enough trials to learn whether zinc sulphate would prevent infantile paralysis only at the risk of losing one of the five senses. If there is that risk medical men doubt the practicability of zinc.

Experiments to settle this point are under way, directed by Dr. E. W. Schultz, whose expediments on monkeys first uncovered the protective power of the solution. Children Dr. Shultz said, recover smell in about two weeks. But as complete loss of smell is at present necessary to assure protection, children might have to be treated repeatedly during an epidemic. Whether they would still recover the olfactory sense is not yet known.

Japs List 6 Cities For Raids Tell Foreigners To Move

SHANGHAI, July 12 — (AP). — Foreign powers were handed new notes by the Japanese today urging them to evacuate their citizens from a half dozen Yangtse valley cities listed as probable targets for further widespread bombings.

Two previous notes, one a month ago and the other last Saturday, had asked that all foreign vessels and foreigners along the Yangtse River in the path of the Japanese advance on Hankow be removed.

The new memorandum informed foreign diplomats that concentration of Chinese troops and military establishments in Hankow and other key cities nearby necessitated a bombing campaign.

A spokesman for the Japanese air force said the areas likely to be bombed included:

Hankow, the provisional capital and objective of the Yangtse drive.

Nanchang, General Chiang Kai-Shek's chief air base in Central China.

Sinyang, on the Peiping-Hankow railways 100 miles north of Hankow.

Yochow and Changsha, on the Canton-Hankow railway south of the provisional capital.

Kiukiang, Yangtse River city where Chinese have constructed a boom 135 miles below Hankow to block the Japanese advance.

The spokesman said the neutrality of the French concession in Hankow would be reseptced, but that he had no knowledge of any refugee zone in that area for Chinese civilians. He did not say when the threatened aerial campaign would begin.

Nanchang Bombed

Japanese planes already were active in the Yangtse valley, bombing Nanchang and Hangyang airfields and the boom across the river 30 miles upstream from Kiukiang. A Japanese report said five buildings were set afire at Nanchang and that four Chinese planes were destroyed and two damaged at Hangyang.

The British gunboat Cockchafer and the United States gunboat Monocacy were reported to have moved three miles up the Yangtse from their stations at Kiukiang as Japanese warships shelled Chinese defences of the city.

British authorities confirmed reports that the gunboat Cockchafer had moved up the river three miles, taking a load of British citizens—mostly shipping and oil company employees. They said the withdrawal was only a temporary measure and the vessel would return to Kiukiang as soon as possible.

Advices from Hankow said Chinese planes bombed Japanese vessels near Kiukiang, sinking two which were believed to have been gunboats. The Chinese also reported one of their air squadrons had bombed a Japanese warship concentration off Anking, 80 miles downriver from Kiukiang, sinking one ship and damaging another.

CORK, Eire, July 12 — (CP). — Eamon De Valera, Prime Minister of Eire, hoisted the National Tricolor today over the Cork Harbor Forts and Spike Island.

The green, white and orange flag fluttered aloft as a symbol to the world that Eire had regained sovereignty over the treaty ports.

Cork Harbor Forts are the first to be vacated by British forces under terms of the Anglo-Eire agreement under which Britain handed over control to Dublin. The other treaty ports are Berehaven and Lough Swilly.

The small remnant of the British Garrison left here was piped to the pier by an Eire army band. The main section of the British Garrison left some days ago.

Accompanying Mr. De Valera from Dublin was Frank Aiken, Minister for Defence. Troops from Cork came to take over the forts from the British.

Britain Calling On Canada For Manufacture Of Big Bombing Planes

Air Mission Group Leaves Immediately To See Canadian Heads; Means Revising Industry Top To Bottom

LONDON, July 13 (CP).—Sir Kingsley Wood, Secretary of State for Air, today announced a new air mission to Canada under Sir Hardman Lever would be dispatched immediately.

Sir Kingsley told the House of Commons the mission would be "for the purpose of entering into negotiations with the Canadian aircraft industry for the manufacture of large bomber aircraft in Canada."

Sir Hardman Lever has had previous experience with business on the other side of the Atlantic, having been an assistant commissioner for finance in the United States during the last months of the Great War.

Lady Lever is the former Miss Edythe Gault of Montreal, a daughter of Matthew Hamilton Gault. They married in 1900.

Other members of the commission will be Marshal of the Royal Air Force Sir Edward Ellington, Inspector-General of the R.A.F., F. Handley Page, chairman of the Society of British Aircraft Constructors, and A. M. Seaf, second deputy secretary at the Air Ministry, who was a member of the first mission to Canada and the United States several weeks ago.

Means Shakeup in Industry

TORONTO, July 13 — (CP). — Manufacture of large bombers in Canada for the British Government would mean reorganization of the aircraft industry from top to bottom, since none of the present plants are equipped for such work, Phillip C. Garratt, managing director of DeHaviland Aircraft of Canada Limited, said to-day, in commenting on word of a new British air mission to Canada.

New manufacturing equipment and raw materials both would have to be provided, he said. It would probably be two years before delivery could be made of large machines even though work of reorganizing factories might start in a few months.

The last British air mission here a few months ago lacked specific details of the type of airplanes they wanted made, but the new mission would probably have definite ideas on that point, he thought.

See Capable Production

OTTAWA, July 13—(CP)—Announcement of the personnel of the British Air Mission which will visit Canada to negotiate for the production of bomber aircraft in this country, made in the British House of Commons today, is taken here to indicate that the report of the former mission under J. R. Weir which was here in May has convinced the British Air Ministry of the ability of Canadian firms to construct such aircraft.

When the former mission was in Canada Defence Minister Mackenzie and officers of his department co-operated to bring the mission into touch with representatives of 10 manufacturing plants. At that time it was estimated if the British Air Ministry decided to place orders for bombers in Canada it would mean an expenditure in this country by the British Government of about $250,000,000 extended over a period of four or five years.

Declining to discuss the details of the proposals the former mission had made, Col. L. R. LaFleche, Deputy Minister of Defence, today said the announcement of the further mission was in keeping with his understanding when the former mission left Canada in May.

The Fleet Aircraft, Limited, of Fort Erie and the Club Aircraft Corporation of Hamilton are two of the factories concerned.

Hughes 53 Hours Up On Post; Fairbanks Next

Racing World Flier Now Over Wildest District Of Siberia

YAKUTSK, Siberia, July 13.—Howard Hughes took off for Fairbanks, Alaska, at 9.01 p.m. last night (8.01 E.D.T.) on the fifth leg of his attempt to set a new record for a flight round the world.

The United States airman and his four companions had remained at Yakutsk only two hours, 53 minutes after completing their 2,177-mile hop from Omsk, western Siberia.

Hughes planned to make Yakutsk his last stop in Russian territory. He plotted a course of 2,456 miles to Fairbanks, across the northeastern tip of Siberia and the Bering Sea.

53 Hour Lead

Leaving Yakutsk just 60 hours, 41 minutes after their take-off from New York and with two-thirds of the flight completed, Hughes and his companions were far ahead of the time of the late Wiley Post, who girdled the globe alone in seven days, 18 hours, 49 minutes in 1933.

(Post flew a different course across Siberia, but his takeoff from Khabarovsk, approximately the same distance from new York as Yakutsk, came 113 hours 56 minutes after his New York take-off. He stopped over two hours, 13 minutes, at Kharbarovsk.

Hughes had landed his big monoplane at Yakutsk at 6:08 p.m. (5:08 a.m. E.D.T.), ending the fourth leg of his flight.

Omsk Half Way

The take-off from Omsk started the fliers into the second half of their 14,729-mile trip back to New York, which they left Sunday night. Four hours after they left there they passed over Krasnoyarsk, 800 miles out.

Seven hours out, Hughes reported his position north of Lake Baikal, 1,500 miles from Omsk. His top speed had been 210 miles an hour, and his altitude was 11,600 feet.

The fliers spent about 4½ hours at Omsk, Hughes drinking tea while the ship was filled with gas. Their flight from Moscow required seven hours, 35 minutes; added to 16 hours and 35 minutes, New York to Paris; seven hours, 49 minutes, Paris to Moscow.

En route to Omsk they crossed the Volga River at Kazan, 400 miles out of Moscow; passed Sverdlovsk on the west side of the Ural Mountains, also in Asia, and were sighted next when they landed.

114 Million More Asked For R.A.F.

LONDON, July 13.—(AP). —The government to-day issued a supplementary estimate to continue expansion of the Royal Air Force, asking £22,901,000 ($114,505,000) to provide for an increase in personnel from 83,000 to 96,000 and other requirements.

The revised total for the air force this year thereby was increased to £126,401,000, of which £52,900,000 is being provided under the Defence Loan Act.

A statement by the Air Council said that to implement the new defence program, aiming at a first line home strength of approximately 2,370 aircraft by March 31, 1940, it was necessary to enter the extra personnel for training, to construct additional stations, to extend existing ones and to place further large orders for aircraft and other equipment and to increase the capacity for aerial production.

Find Rosneath Cow Down Cistern

Hopper Army Strips Crops On Dozen Ontario Farms

16 Square Miles In Prescott Ravaged, Only Corn Left—$40,000 Damage

PENDLETON, Ont., July 13 (CP).—Millions of grasshoppers covering more than 16 square miles of farm lands northwest of here have caused damage estimated at $40,000 and have left more than a dozen farmers without any crops or pasture for their cattle.

More than 10,000 acres of land are in the affected area in North Plantagenet Township in Prescott County. Between 15 and 20 farmers have lost everything except some corn, which may yet fall prey to the pests. The present plague is the worst in more than 75 years, according to John McAllister, 81, who has lived in the district all his life.

Scores of cattle have been moved from the area to rented pasture lands because they were starving from lack of food. At least a half dozen of farmers, when they saw the ravages of the grasshoppers in their grain fields, turned their cattle and horses into the fields and let them eat what remained rather than leave it to the pests. These farmers now are faced with the problem of buying feed until the pastures come in next spring.

Gardens as well as other crops have suffered and only in a few homes were there any flowers, all having been eaten off to the roots.

Barrels of poisoned mash have been spread on the edges of fields during the past few weeks but to no avail. In the district there are about half a dozen vacant farms, which, according to other farmers, provide breeding grounds for the grasshoppers. This, together with the fact there was practically no frost last winter to kill eggs laid the previous August, has resulted in the serious outbreak this year.

Appeal For College

LONDON, July 13—(CP Cable).—The Archbishop of Canterbury to-day joined with two former Governors General of Canada, the Marquess of Willingdon and the Earl of Bessborough, in writing to the Times an appeal for £30,000 ($147,900) on behalf of St. John's College, Winnipeg.

Women Friends Of Fugitive Held By Police

No trace has yet been found of Arnold Cameron, the youth who made a successful brakaway from the police station Tuesday, but this morning two girls, whom Chief Constable Newhall described to the court as women friends of the fugitive were arraigned before Magistrate E. A. Gee, charged with vagrancy.

The two were arrested Tuesday afternoon when they were said to have been trying to hitch-hike to Toronto.

Both pleaded not guilty to the charge and one of the girls told the magistrate that they were being kept in custody because of Cameron.

"We have nothing to do with that," she exclaimed. "If they want to know where Cameron is I can tell them. I tried to tell them last night but they wouldn't listen to me because they thought I was stringing a line."

Chief Newhall said the older of the two, a married woman, had been living with Cameron and that he had become interested in the younger one, a sixteen year old girl whose parents could do nothing with her.

The two girls were remanded until Monday next.

London Is Taking Firm Tone With Franco

Refuse Explanation Of Ship Bombings, May Ask House Act

LONDON, July 13.—(CP Cable.)—"His Majesty's Government have made it plain that they cannot accept as legitimate the bombing of merchant ships by aircraft."

Prime Minister Chamberlain's voice took a sharper note as he told the House of Commons to-day of protests made to General Franco against the bombing of British ships in Spanish waters.

Answering a previous question, the Prime Minister broadly hinted that during the summer recess Members of Parliament may be recalled from their holidays to discuss bringing the Anglo-Italian agreement into effect.

"It might," he said, "be necessary to call the House together again."

General Franco, Mr. Chamberlain told the House, held that the attack on British ships were not deliberate. The Burgos authorities took the ground the air attacks were designed to prevent traffic in arms and munitions with the government forces in Spain. It was not possible for aircraft to distinguish. Ships entering such dangerous zones exposed themselves to the consequences of their own temerity.

Mr. Chamberlain: "We said that it does not seem to us the disclaimer of deliberate intention can be reconciled in certain cases with the facts as known to us."

Frederick Bellenger, Labor: "As the Prime Minister says, the government are not prepared to acquiesce in attacks on merchant ships. Will he tell us how it is proposed to prevent them?"

Mr. Chamberlain: "That is the subject of our communications with Burgos."

Lost Surveyor's Tracks Located

SHERRIDON, Man., July 13 (CP).—An Indian has picked up tracks of 75-year-old W. T. Thompson, Manitoba Government land surveyor missing since Friday, when he left here on a survey trip to Cold Lake.

The Indian member of the search party reported the tracks led in the direction of this town, 80 miles north of The Pas. He found bits of torn sock and said the footprints were quite fresh and becoming firmer as he followed the trail. A Manitoba forestry plane participating in the search failed to sight the elderly surveyor during several flight yesterday.

Fishermen and trappers took part in the intensive hunt for the surveyor, concentrating largely in the area around a portage where Thompson was to have met two men assisting him in a survey. The Indian's discovery of the missing man's tracks revived fading hopes he would be found alive.

Peeresses Blocked In Court Racket

LONDON, July 13—(CP Cable).—The Earl of Clarendon, Lord Chamberlain, to-day struck out at the practice of some Peeresses of "sponsoring" women at court presentations, by informing these Peeresses their presence at further functions this season "will not be required."

The action resulted from the efforts of impoverished Peeresses to capitalize on their privileged positions by introducing women to court circles for heavy fees.

Such advertisements as this have appeared in London newspapers: "Peeress will chaperon girl for Autumn season in London or would sponsor married woman. Very enjoyable time assured. Write Lady B, Box 9014."

Fees are said to run as much as £1,000 ($5,000) for "social guidance" during the three months of the season. Women wanting only a court presentation are sometimes charged 100 guineas ($525) for that service.

The King is said to have ordered the practice stopped. He has strong views against private exploitation of royalty.

Aged Havelock Man Is Robbed Of $350

Provincial police scoured the district yesterday afternoon and are carrying on the hunt to-day for four gypsies, two men and two women, who are accused of stealing $350 from Frank Davidson, an aged resident of Havelock, Tuesday. The authorities have as yet no information as to how the 80-year-old Havelock man was robbed. The gypsies were travelling in a maroon car when they visited Havelock and so far the police have been unsuccessful in tracing the machine.

The Philippines will have a Bureau of Printing.

Convict Train Is Halted Twice In District To Give Men Medical Aid

Men Throw Playing Card From Window On Which Is Written Complaint About No Medical Officer Being Aboard

Some of the most desperate criminals in Canada were visitors in Peterborough for over half an hour last evening when a special C.N.R. train carrying 150 convicts from Kingston Penitentiary to Western Canada penitentaries stopped here while medical attention was given one of the prisoners who had taken ill on the train. This was the second stop for that purpose, the train having previously been delayed at Hastings, where a doctor was called.

Apparently the failure on the part of the authorities to provide medical service on the train for the prisoners during their long ride is causing dissatisfaction among the convicts because as the train pulled out of Peterborough last night, a playing card was tossed out of a car window by one of the men, and on it was written this message:

"150 inmates being transferred from K. penitentiary to Stoney Mt. and P. Albert, without examination. No doctor on the train. Arrived in Peterborough 2 men already having to have doctor's attention."—A Convict.

Famous Criminals.

While no information was given out as to the identity of the convicts who filled three coaches of the special train it is authoritively stated that the men, many of them young, are long-termers, some of them sentenced to life imprisonment and that a list of their names would sound like a "Who's Who" of the famous criminals of recent years. They are being transferred to Stoney Mountain Penitentiary, Manitoba and to the Prince Albert Penitentiary, to relieve the congestion in the Kingston institution, this removal of long-termers to the west being an old established custom.

Second Note.

The second note, written on a piece of shoe box, fluttered to the ground beside the train while it was standing here.

"There are 150 men on this train from Kingston penitentiary going to Stonie Mount. We have the N.W.M.P. with us. The shipment is because there is going to be a riot at Kingston pen. The boys are all ready to go any day now."

Elaborate precautions were taken during the sojourn in Peterborough to keep the public away from the train and to prevent any communication with the prisoners. The train ran past the station, and was stopped between Charlotte and Simcoe streets and immediately the Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers in charge of the convicts, assisted by Chief Constable Newhall, Detectives Meagher and Piercey and Constable Murphy of the local department kept a curious crowd from approaching.

Dr. J. M. McCulloch was called and treated the convict whose illness caused the long stop and meanwhile the prisoners who seemed to be in good spirits, entertained themselves by singing and waving their arms at the crowd. The men were handcuffed together in pairs and were guarded by 21 Mounties, all of whom had made the long trip down from the west for the purpose of guarding the convict train off its way to the prairie provinces.

Barbara Drops Charges, Count Freed

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—The former Barbara Hutton suddenly withdrew today the charge against her husband that he had threatened her and he was freed by the Bow street court magistrate.

The action followed a conference between attorneys for both parties who agreed to a dismissal of the charge.

The husband, Count Haugwitz-Reventlow, promised not to approach Winfield House, the palatial London home of the American-born Woolworth heiress, or try to communicate either directly or indirectly with her.

The sudden turn of events—sequel to his arraignment July 1 on the charge of threatening the Countess so she feared for her life and his hearing July 5, when he attorneys testified he called her obscene names and demanded $5,000,000 and their son Lance in return for divorce—occurred at the opening of the Bow Street court session.

It had been expected he would take the stand.

Sir Patrick Hastings, the heiress' attorney, told the Magistrate he realized the Count's alleged threats against his wife and a "gentleman in London society" (whom the Danish nobleman allegedly had threatened to "shoot like a dog") might have been made "under stress of emotion."

He added he was prepared to take the assurances of the count's attorney, Herman Birkett and had advised Countess Barbara that "whatever was said by the Count at a particular moment it was not his intention to threaten the safety of his wife or do her any bodily harm."

No Reconciliation?

Counsel, announcing an agreement under which the Count promised to stay away from his wife's London house and not to communicate with her, indicated no reconciliation was in prospect.

Sir Patrick hinted at a shift of the marital dispute to Danish courts in telling the magistrate that any separation proceedings would be subject to Danish law.

The sudden ending of the case disappointed a crowd jamming the tiny court room in the hope of finding out the name of the "London society gentleman."

But Sir aPtrick said the Countess already had quarrelled with her husband before she met this "mysterious person."

The Countess, who sat through last week's hearing, stayed at her house to-day with her two-year-old

Orangemen Hit At Quebec For Rule Of Tory Rally

TORONTO, July 13 — (CP). — The Battle of the Boyne shared with political developments in the attentions of Ontario Orangemen yesterday as they walked and talked in celebration of the "Glorious 12th."

Denunciation of the "Quebec domination" of the recent National Conservative convention was heard in numerous speeches across the province, while in Toronto Orange leaders declared the order was now definitely out of politics and not interested in that convention.

A. R. Hassard of Toronto took the middle position before a Georgetown gathering. While noting Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, new Conservative leader, was a Roman Catholic, he hoped he would be as impartial as Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Premier King Under Fire.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and the Conservative convention were simultaneously attacked by Cecil Armstrong, Toronto, Deputy Grand Master of Ontario West, at St. Catharines.

"When we get through with Prime Minister King at the next election his anti-Imperial policy will be shattered to the dust," Armstrong declared. "We send the word across the sea to Premier Chamberlain and the British people that Canada is as much British soil to-day as it ever was."

He asserted the Protestants of this country were "not going to swallow Manion."

Leslie Saunders, Supervisor of Organization of Ontario West, told a Burk's Falls audience "a Quebec-controlled Tory Party is no different from a Quebec-controlled Liberal Party."

At Brockville, Lieut.-Col. T. A. Kidd, former Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, claimed "under-the-table" methods were being used to aid the Separate Schools of Ontario with new grants. That issue was as vital to-day as it was a year ago ,he said.

Col. Kidd took exception to "too much French" in Ontario, to, especially radio notices printed in French.

Police Very Polite In Prohibiting Quebec Parking

Quebec, July 13.

GOING their rounds, Quebec police are carrying bundles of small rectangular cards notifying motorists that overnight parking on the city's narrow streets has been prohibited.

The pasteboards which the constables place on every parked automobile read:

"Welcome to Quebec. Owing to heavy traffic in our narrow streets, for your own protection against damage to your car and to facilitate circulation to the Fire Department, overnight parking is forbidden.

"Hoping that you will enjoy your visit in our city, we remain.

Jews As Bait For Ambushes Trap Arab Terrorists

JERUSALEM, July 13 (CP-Havas)—"Mouse-trap" tactics, with Jewish groups for "bait," are being used by the authorities in tracking down Arab terrorists, it was reported today.

The method, which was said to be proving successful, consists in sending small groups of armed Jews out into country districts where Arab terrorists are believed at large. Regarded as easy prey by the Arabs, they are often attacked, but defend themselves with their firearms.

The gunfire acts as a signal for the police, stationed nearby, who immediately swoop down on the Arabs.

More Shootings.

JERUSALEM, July 13 (A.P.).—An undetermined number of persons were wounded to-day in a clash between Arabs and Jews in the mixed quarter of Haifa.

Rifle fire echoed through the streets as the two groups hurled stones and other missiles at each other, but no deaths were reported. Many Jews were evacuating the district.

A mid-day recapitulation of casualties since July 5 showed: 66 Arabs and 26 Jews killed; 146 Arabs, 95 Jews and 5 British soldiers wounded. Many others, whose number could not be determined, were wounded in guerilla fighting.

1936 Kidnap Murder Confessed

Tale Of Mattson Job Contradictory; U.S. Police Checking

TACOMA, Wash, July 13.—(AP).—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents joined William Cole, state patrol chief, to-day in checking a maze of contradictory statements, oral and written, of Frank Oslon, 32, that he kidnapped and killed 10-year-old Charles Mattson Dec. 27, 1936.

Cole, who announced Olson's confession last night, said the prisoner's description tallied closely with that of a man sought for the abduction but that many portions of his story did not check with known facts of the case. He refused to outline them.

Olson was arrested last Friday near Ritzville in Eastern Washington. He is irrational about a third of the time, Cole said.

Officers indicated an effort would be made to-day to have Muriel and William Mattson, sister and brother of the slain boy, who were in the Mattson home at the time of the kidnapping, identify Olson's picture. The children now are at a summer camp.

Olson first said four men were involved in the kidnapping. Later he said only three and finally cut the number to two. The second man he named was arrested and released last night when Olson again contradicted his story and said that man was not involved.

Cole described Olson as rather slender with sharp, dark features. He shuffled as he walked his head thrust forward and his eyes darting from side to side nervously. This description is similar to that given by the Mattson children of the kidnapper.

The Kidnapping.

Cole quoted Olson as saying he broke into the Mattson house, stole the boy and dashed down the precipitous cliff behind the home and reached the beach in pitch darkness. A rowboat was moored there and he rowed with the boy for several hours across Commencement Bay to Dash Point, where he had parked his car, the confession said.

He then drove to Everett.

Cole said Olson denied he put the body where it was found 15 days later in newly-fallen snow in a thicket near Everett.

"I wrapped the body up and buried it." Cole quoted him as saying. "One other man knew where the body was buried and he must have dug it up and moved it."

Cole said Olson said he strangled the boy, then beat him on the head and stabbed him. The condition of the body at the time it was discovered indicated the stab wounds were inflicted after death.

Unwin Threatens To Corral Money

TORONTO, July 13 (C.P.). — Any further disallowance of Alberta legislation by the Dominion Government will be met with new legislation, Joseph Unwin, Social Credit member of the Alberta Legislature for Edson, told an audience in Queen's Park last night, as he began an Ontario speaking tour.

"The Federal Government may disallow all our legislation and we will carry on and go ahead," he declared.

And if the Dominion should continue to disallow the province's laws, "we will pass one that on one will be allowed to take money out of the Province," Mr. Unwin said. "We will pay all our debts in goods and produce."

Democracy does not exist under the present monetary system, and, while "we people in Alberta believe in democracy," the East has never known democracy, he alleged. The Western member charged that in the recent Saskatchewan provincial election Liberal "heelers" told the people on relief the Federal Government would stop sending money into Saskatchewan if they voted for Social Credit."

"If the people are going to be so weak as to believe that, they deserve the sort of Government they get," Mr. Unwin said.

Plan To Unionize Rubber Industry

TORONTO, July 13 — (CP). — Plans for a drive to unionize the rubber industry in Canada will be drafted by the executive of the United Rubber Workers of America in sessions July 16, 17 and 18 in Kitchener and here July 19 and 20.

Joe MacKenzie, of Toronto, international organizer in Canada for the union announced plans of the meeting to-day, and said it was the first meeting in Canada of the international executive.

The union was the first organized by the Committee for Industrial Organization when it was formed in 1935. They claim near 85,000 members in the United States and Canada. Akron, Ohio, is national headquarters.

MacKenzie said about 3,200 of the 3,500 rubber workers in Kitchener are organized, but only 400 or 500 of the 5,000 in the Toronto district were union members. Woodstock, Galt and Guelph are other rubber centres in Ontario.

Public meetings will be held at night in Kitchener and Toronto. Speakers wil linclude S. H. Dalrymple, international president; T. F. Burns, international vice-president, and Frank Grillo, general secretary. All are located at Akron.

The decision to organize in Canada was reached at the annual convention a year ago, but this is the first move by the national organization to speed the campaign.

Able To Go On.

Dr. J. A. MacDonald of Hastings, denied to the Examiner this morning that one of the convicts aboard the convict train to the west, is in no condition to continue to continue the journey. Dr. MacDonald examined the man when the train stopped at Hastings, and performed a minor operation.

"He obtained complete relief," Dr. MacDonald said to-day. He said the man is not in a serious condition but will require medical attention along the route to the west. He is in good enough condition to continue the journey and it is not essential he be taken off the train and shipped back to Kingston, he belived.

NO WORD FROM OTTAWA

OTTAWA, July 13—(CP).—In the absence of Justice Minister Lapointe officials of the penitentiary branch refused to comment on reports of sickness among convicts being transferred from Kingston to Stony Mountain and Prince Albert.

Acting Justice Minister Cardin said he had no knowledge of any difficulties arising from the transfer and would not comment on statements made by convicts in notes dropped from the train taking them west.

Stop at Hastings.

HASTINGS, July 13. — The special train conveying prisoners from Kingston Penitentiary to Western Canada was delayed at the railway station here last evening for about three-quarters of an hour about 7 o'clock.

Dr. J. A. McDonald of Hastings was summoned to attend one of the prisoners who had taken ill en route.

Dozens of spectators, who had sensed it was the special train, congregated but were kept a distance back from the cars by armed guards who stood on either side of the train.

Two Test Plots Of Grain Are Inspected

Test plots of grain on the farms of Clarence Mann and Gordon Hancock in Smith Township, planted under the supervision of the Ontario and Dominion Departments of Agriculture for the purpose of experiments in regional suitability, resistance to rust, and other desired qualities, were inspected by departmental representatives accompanied by only a small group of local farmers Tuesday evening.

L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist, and his assistant, Carl Fraser of Ottawa; R. Keegan of the Ontario Agricultural College; Frank C. Paterson, County Representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and G. H. Hills and L. R. Webber of the Chemistry Department of the O.A.C., who are engaged in a soil survey of Peterborough County, comprised the group who visited both farms, and discussed features of the test plots and the hundreds of specimens of winter wheat, barley, oats and flax that will soon be ready for cutting.

J. J. Duffus, M.P., who was one of the small but interested company present at the field meetings on both farms, said he regarded them as jointly one of the most important developments in local agriculture in many years. He expressed the wish that more farmers might have been present to see the two long rows of grain, some of them not yet named, possibly even to be discarded, other exhibiting qualities that are being sought by cerealist experts of both departments, probably for this and other sections of Eastern Ontario. There are five rows, 16 feet long, of each specimen of grain, varieties of oats in one section, wheat in another, and so on, and including a division of flax.

The areas assumed by the two departments for their separate experiments, from which information is to be pooled, meet at Peterborough, and for that reason there was an adventitious but fortunate overlapping resulting in two Peterborough County farms having been chosen for test work that was broadly similar.

Objective Lesson.

Both fields with nearly all the grain in head, and some of it ripening, afford a splendid object lesson in agronomy, practical demonstrations which farmers can see for themselves, especially the differences in physical features of the different varieties of each group of grain, strength of stock, fullness of heads, height and vigor, indications of resistance to rust in many of the samples, and so on down the list of

Golfers See Deer Kawartha Greens

Eight members of the Kawartha Golf Club report having seen a deer on the greens Monday night. It leaped a fence on the north side of the spacious property, ambled around the driveways and the tee-off spots, and circled off toward the wood again, and disappeared in the general direction from which it had come.

Deer that close to Peterborough is extraordinary news, and it is vouched for by Tom Glover, Ed Rigby and others of the octette of club members who could hardly believe their eyes. And their visual experience confirmed suspicions that something strange was happening to the green of late. The sward was chewed up in many places, not the divots of dubs, if there are any at the Kawartha, but seemingly as if some animal was grazing on the well watered and clipped grass of the greens. Several farmers have also reported within recent weeks that one or two deer have been seen in the woods and frields west of the city out as far as Scott's Corners. Probably these visitors from remote woods are still in the neighborhood and may be seen again.

A traveller for a Toronto tire company who covers the Sudbury-North Bay district told the Examiner the other evening that one of the most interesting sights in his travels is the appearance of deer along the highways of the north. Possibly Percy Lancaster's ideal of deer and other wild life along Peterborough roads, seen occasionally at least, as a major attraction for tourists may yet be realized, if the animals are not shivvied back to the wilds by the kind of people who believe for example that rarely appearing eagles and the commoner owls should be shot.

Here is how Henry Ford plans to suspend the rear motor over the axle in his new "saddle" motor for which he has obtained a patent. The idea of a rear motor is not a new one; Ford says, but the motor itself is a new development in that it can be placed in the rear of passenger cars without upsetting their delicate balance. The new motor, Ford claims, will be quieter, more efficient and will reduce repair bills. There will be no immediate production, as experiments will be continued.

No '38 Election Says Duplessis

QUEBEC, July 13.—(CP).—Quebec's political horizon cleared today with announcement from Premier Maurice Duplessis there would be no provincial elections this year and no immediate change in the cabinet.

Cabinet ministers were scheduled to gather with the Premier in Executive Council to-day, but at a press conference yesterday Mr. Duplessis refused to say whether the Cabinet situation would be discussed.

Last week Roads Minister Francois J. Leduc was ousted from the cabinet in a manner that set a parliamentary precedent in Canada. After a difference with the Premier, Mr. Leduc refused to resign his portfolio. Mr. Duplessis explained at yesterday's press conference the only constitutional means of expelling Mr. Leduc from the cabinet was for the whole government to resign.

Lieutenant-Governor E. L. Patenaude then invited Mr. Duplessis to form a new government and the ministers were re-sworn with exception of Mr. Leduc.

Seen Plot to Aid Tories.

The Premier's declaration there would be no elections this year settled rumors his government would seek electors' approval of the outing of Mr. Leduc. Another motive ascribed for the elections was a strategy to aid the Dominion Conservatives by forestalling a possible Dominion election campaign in the autumn and give the Conservatives a chance to organize after their week's convention at Ottawa.

The Union Nationale Government will never be the catspaw of any Dominion party," Mr. Duplessis said. Quebec will never hold provincial elections to halt Dominion elections."

The Premier, on behalf of Quebec, denied a report there would be simultaneous elections in Quebec and Ontario with provincial autonomy, especially regarding Hydro-Electric power export, as the main issue. "That's silly as far as Quebec is concerned," he continued, "as far as Ontario is concerned, we will respect their autonomy."

Roadside Battle Costs Drunk 20 Days

LINDSAY, July 13.—At a session of the police court held at Cannington Monday afternoon, Colonel Bick presiding, James Ross, of Peterborough, was sentenced to twenty days in jail on a charge of drunk driving and a fine of $10 and costs on a charge of disorderly conduct. He also faced a further charge of driving without a license. Joseph O'Neill and a Mr. Adams, also of Peterborough, paid fines of $5.00 and costs and $25 and costs respectively. In an alleged attempt to escape, the police charge that O'Neill wrecked the interior of the police cell. Mrs. Adams was allowed to go without paying a fine.

Cecil Holder, of Victoria Road, who was arrested a week ago on the charge of having liquor illegally and awaiting trial on that charge, was arrested again on Sunday by Chief Constable Dixon, of Kirkfield. The accused now faces two charges of having liquor illegally.

During the electrical storm on the week-end lightning struck the turkey house on the farm of W. J. Patrick, North Verulam, destroying the building and burning sixty turkeys.

The Orange lodges of North Victoria joined with the brethren of Haliburton county Tuesday in celebrating the Twelfth at Haliburton village. Some forty lodges participated in the event, and the procession was the largest ever held in the northland. The village was gaily decorated for the occasion. The procession ended up at the fair grounds, where addresses were delivered by L. M. Frost, M.L.A., Bruce McNevin, M.P., Clayton Hodgson, of Haliburton, a member of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East, and the resident clergymen. A program of sports was also run off during the afternoon.

A Haliburton man was charged in the local police court Tuesday with false prtences arising from the alleged passing of a worthless cheque at McLennan's hardware store, town. He was remanded for trial until Friday.

The Indian youth who was arrested a few days ago by Provincial Constable Taylor, of Minden, while asleep in a church in that village, appeared before Magistrate Gee. The accused was described as a victim of unfortunate circumstances and was allowed to go. The Magistrate donated money to the young fellow to help him on his way.

son, whom she has made a ward-in-chancery to keep him out of the Count's hands.

Norman Birkett, K.C., appearing for the Count to-day, said that "in the present proceedings the only object of the Count was to refute the allegations against him and, indeed, he made a special journey from France to do so."

The defendant stood at strict military attention in the dock facing the magistrate throughout the brief proceedings. At their conclusion, he stepped down into the crowd. A policeman cleared a way for him.

The Count Is Silent.

"I have nothing to say," said the Count. "I have already said everything I intended to say."

Sir Patrick Hastings asserted at the outset that "although I took a very grave view of this case at the begining, and I venture to think justifiably, I am glad to think that the position is very much changed as a result of a very frank discussion between my learned friend, (Birkett) and myself."

Sir Patrick then asked permission to refer to statements at the earlier hearing July 5.

'You may remember,' he said, "that at the last hearing my learned friend asked some questions that may have given the impression the Count was expressing some view that Winfield House was not the proper house for the child to be brought up in, and some reference was made to a mysterious person."

"My learned friend tells me that nothing was further from his intention. What the Count wished to suggest was that the only thing he has in mind was that the wealthy surroundings were not suitable for the child and nothing else.

"With regard to the mysterious person, the only reference between the parties in the case took place before those parties met.

"Any additional dispute between the parties cannot be subject to this law. They are Danish, and British law cannot affect them in any way."

Sir Rollo then dismissed the charge that the Count made threats against his wife "whereb yshe apprehends she goes in danger of her life or some bodily harm."

"It is not necessary for me to say anything more," Sir Rollo said.

Port Hope Woman Is Hurt In Crash

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, July 13 — (CP). — Dull, featureless operations marked trade on the Winnipeg market today. Futures moved irregularly through the entire session and clung closely to yesterday's closing prices. Final quotations were 1½ to ¾ lower July at 102b, October 80½ to ¾, November 80b and December 78½.

Fluctuations in prices were attributed to scattered outside buying and local selling. Hesitancy panding release of the United States farm loan announcement, was noted and operations were decidedly light.

Hold Street Dance On Lodge's Return

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 13.—Officials of the Campbellford L. O. L. 526 claimed a larger turnout this year than last when about fifty members of the local lodge took part in the parade held in Castleton. The group was headed by their fife and drum band and in the evening returned to town where a street dance was sponsored. Music for the affair which was held on Bridge Street, was supplied by Walter Doxsee and his Bar X Rangers together with assisting artists.

With the weather being ideal a large crowd milled through the streets till the small hours of the morning and Lodge members expressed themselves as being more than pleased with the support they were given by the public.

Alberta Will Utilize Tax Arrears For Road Building

Calgary, July 13.

AN ALBERTA Government-sponsored roadwork program with tax arrears and tax remission slips for payment will go into effect immediately, it was learned here today.

W. R. King, M.L.A. for Cochrane, a constituency twenty-five miles west of here, has advised his constituents of the new plan, which provides for establishment of credit houses or treasury branches "as soon as possible" to facilitate exchange of the slips and open transfer accounts.

Under the plan the portion of roadwork usually paid for in cash will be settled for in tax remission slips which may be used to trade with merchants.

Wheat Harvesting Ready In Ontario

TORONTO, July 13 (CP).—Wheat in southern Ontario is rapidly ripening and will be ready to cut within the next week, due to the intense heat and lack of rain, the Ontario Department of Agriculture reports in a bulletin issued yesterday. Wheat is being cut now in Lincoln county.

Pastures and root crops are suffering from the same lack of rain, badly in some areas. The eastern part of the province, normally slower in ripening, reports greater moisture and crops progressing well, although more rain is needed there in some districts, too.

A serious grasshopper outbreak is reported from the Chard area on the line between Russell and Prescott counties. Ten or 12 square miles of crops have been completely destroyed.

Haying is nearing completion in southern Ontario where the crop has not been heavy but of good quality. Spring grains are drying up in Halton and corn and root crops do not look promising, because of the serious lack of rain. In Wentworth late cabbage and cauliflower are a complete loss for the same reason.

Oats are turning in Lincoln and will be cut early next week, a week or 10 days earlier than usual. Oxford reports promising spring grain and corn and root crops are coming along under ideal weather conditions. Lambton and Haldimand barley is beginning to turn.

Dundas, Frontenac and Glengarry in eastern Ontario report grains lengthening after recent rains and good crops are expected. Apples in Dundas county are likely to be a good crop, too. More rain is needed, however, in Grenville and Leeds. Wheat is almost ready to cut in Lennox and Addington. Pastures generally over Eastern Ontario are up to average.

In the north, haying is well under way. Spring grains are promising. Fall wheat and oats are turning in Manitoulin. Up to Cochrane, hay is beginning to be cut.

Authorities of St. Maur's convent school at Weybridge, England, looked askance, when 13-year-old Mirabelle Muller appeared at a charity fete as Lady Godiva. Miss Muller was immediately expelled from the school. Recently winning a Venus figure competition at a Teddington, Eng., theatre, she obtained [illegible] parents' permission to appear at the fete in the Godiva [illegible]rb.

Motorists themselves learned the truth about gasolines!

920 out of 1069 motorists proved in their own cars the superiority of a mystery gasoline known to them only as "Canada's New Gasoline". This mystery motor fuel was the New, Improved BLUE SUNOCO.

Each car had its gasoline tank drained, then refilled with "Canada's New Gasoline" . . . today's New, Improved Blue Sunoco.

MIGHT DIRECTORIES LIMITED

TORONTO 2, ONT.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN—

Sealed drums of an unidentified water-white gasoline were received by our local representatives in Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, Toronto, Hamilton and London. Our representatives broke the seals, and gave ten gallons of this gasoline to approximately eleven hundred motorists in these cities, after having drained out the gas in their tanks.

Later, our representatives called upon these motorists and obtained their unbiased answers. We tabulated the reports and certify to the correctness of the figures in this advertisement.

This Study was conducted during May, 1938.

MIGHT DIRECTORIES, LTD.

J. T. DONALD & CO. LIMITED

MONTREAL

Sun Oil Company, Limited,
Toronto, Ontario.

Gentlemen:—

This will advise you that our representative was present during the filling of drums of gasoline, in both Montreal and Toronto, used in the tests which you are making on gasoline named by you "Canada's New Gasoline". These drums were sealed with our marks with tamperproof seals.

Samples of this new gasoline were compared in our laboratory with samples of the New Blue Sunoco taken at random from retail dealers' tanks. Our analyses show that the gasoline used in these tests was the same in every respect as the New Blue Sunoco now on sale to the public except for the blue coloring which, we understand, was omitted to avoid identification by motorists in the tests.

In our opinion the coloring does not affect the performance of this gasoline in any way.

Yours very truly,
J. T. DONALD & COMPANY, Limited.
Vice-President.

JRM: LMcM.

Think of it! Eighty-six out of every hundred motorists who made this test found that the Improved Blue Sunoco gave a better performance than the 30 gasolines they had been using, including 13 premium priced fuels.

These are facts collected by Might Directories, Ltd., a well-known, independent fact-finding organization. They asked more than a thousand motorists to test a "mystery gasoline" in their own cars. More than eight out of every ten of these motorists reported that this gasoline improved the performance of their cars.

TEST GAS CERTIFIED TO BE THE NEW BLUE SUNOCO

An independent research laboratory analyzed samples from the drums of gasoline used in these tests and certified it to be the Improved Blue Sunoco in every respect, except for the blue color (omitted to prevent identification), which has no effect on performance.

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN TO YOU?

It means that these independent tests in the cars of over a thousand motorists bring you a story of gasoline superiority that ranks today's New, Improved Blue Sunoco as an outstanding motor fuel.

WHERE CAN YOU BUY THIS GASOLINE?

At any Blue Sunoco pump—and at regular gas price. Do as these motorists did. Get a tankful. Test it in your own car against any gasoline at any price. Convince yourself that here is the motor fuel which offers you the most in performance for your gasoline dollar!

Something To Admire

A Hamilton clergyman appeared in court when two youths who had been attached to his congregation were charged with the theft of cars. He was not there to give character evidence or to plead for them. Quite different was his mission. When they were sentenced the clergyman addressed the bench and asked if he might be permitted to share part of the sentence with them. The gentleman of the cloth had not participated in the crime, but he felt there was something he had neglected doing on behalf of the boys; he was convinced that he had failed in directing their lives in proper channels and therefore he was partly responsible for their present plight and should pay part of the penalty.

There was no likelihood of the court sending the clergyman off to jail to serve any portion of the term as things are not done that way. But for all that we admire the man; there was something human and wholesome about the motive which caused him to make the request. Not a mere bystander was that clergyman, but one to whom his calling and life work is a deep and serious thing. He was not satisfied that he had done all he could, and to that extent he was willing to go to a public place like a court and admit his failure. We only wish the sentiment which gripped him would grow and expand.

His Advice Is Sensible

Traffic officers are reported to have ad considerable trouble recently with ar drivers stopping where there has een an accident on the highway. They ay such drivers are becoming a nuisnce. There is nothing they can do, ut when they keep on parking their ars along the side of the road they do reate a problem which the traffic man ften enough has to straighten out hen he has other matters which need ttention.

One officer, although admitting it as not his business to give directions, ut rather to enforce regulations which xisted, said: "When a car comes to the cene of an accident it is easy enough o see whether any help is needed. If here are several cars there already it an be taken for granted that no more elp is needed, and after making that bservation the driver should go on. There is nothing he can do to help and here is much he can do to hinder by persisting in stopping to become just nother spectator."

The custom is particularly bad after usk or at night. There was a plain nough example of this near New Hamburg, which is on No. 7 highway. The riginal trouble car had not been seriously damaged and two ladies in it had een hurt hardly at all, but when seven ars lined up along the side of the highway trouble started. Oncoming cars started cracking into the rear of those already stopped because they came upon the scene hurriedly. There was more damage done to cars and occupants after the first accident than was inflicted in the original mishap.

The warning of the traffic officer seems right enough. If your help is needed by all means offer it, but if there is no need for assistance, then the best thing is to get out of the road.

They Did It First

Howard Hughes, described as a millionaire sportsman from New York, has a twin-motor monoplane, each engine developing 1,100 horse-power. In this machine he has everything which science says is helpful; likewise he has three travelling companions, all experts in aviation. He made the crossing from New York to Paris in 16 1-2 hours, and the distance is about 3,600 miles, and that of course was a remarkable demonstration of what the modern machine can do.

Reports mentioned at once that he had cut in two the time needed for Col. Charles Lindbergh who made the trip in 33 1-2 hours in 1927. Comparisons may be necessary in such cases, but Lindbergh had a single engine and he was alone.

For a performance of daring and skill, working with equipment which today would be looked upon as obsolete and unsafe, we prefer for the moment to think of the trip made in 1919 by John Alcock (afterward Sir John) and Lieut. A. W. Brown, two British pilots who wanted to win the £10,000 prize offered by the London Daily Mail for the first flight across the Atlantic. These two fliers left Newfoundland on June 14, 1919, and some time next day they landed in Ireland. No radio, no weather reports then, no delicate machines to register movements and such. They just struck out in the general direction of the Old Land and kept on going until they arrived. Those two British officers were the first to show it could be done. Those who have crossed since have demonstrated that it can be done in shorter time with improved equipment.

Bare Feet And Cool Dust

Some person with a kind disposition has forwarded a little booklet about the care of the feet, and we found even by casual reading that a good many cases of bad feet start when people are young things. They wear shoes which cramp the feet and at times soles which are so thin that they provide no protection.

There used to be a sort of theory on the Tenth Concession that going barefoot was the proper way to attend to the feet. Whether there was any scientific backing for the belief we do not know, but the custom generally got under way around the 24th of May, and the theory was that by the time early fall arrived the feet would be in good condition to stand the cold of winter.

As we recall it the sensation of walking along the Tenth toward the store and postoffice down at the crossroads in the cool of the evening was pleasant. Generally there was dust on the road and it was deep dust. When it cooled off in the evening the dust did the same thing. It had a way of coming up between the toes that was pleasing, and it was easier walking there than over at the side of the road where there was apt to be gravel.

The real test for bare feet used to come after they had cut the grain and left stubble in the fields. By the time that season arrived a boy was supposed to have passed through the days when he would limp from a stone bruise on the heel. There was one sure way of getting across a field of stubble, and that was by running. Going slow and picking the best spots was sissy stuff. Also it was the poor way. It was much better to run the whole distance and then sit on the rail fence for a little inspection to see what—if any—damage had been done.

No person worried much then about what was going to become of their feet in after years. They left that apparently for those of today who get out and distribute little booklets on the subject.

They Adore Statistics

There are some people who are so steeped and stewed in statistics that everything must be reduced to figures and fractions. There was some rain in Toronto a day or so ago and the Toronto Star stated that 198,000,000 gallons had fallen in the course of the precipitation. From that point the process of calculation arrived at the conclusion that the rainfall was equal to the supply of water needed for two days when served through the waterworks system of that great city.

There are always people who seem to take keen delight in measuring and counting and computing everything under the sun. When there is a snowfall in winter they must go out and measure with the handle of the broomstick; when the frost is coming out of the ground in spring they must investigate and know exactly the depth to which it penetrated. If they get a box of matches they begin to wonder how far the matches placed end to end would reach.

When a pleasant and needed rain comes in summer they are not content to sit on the porch and rejoice in the benefit that is coming to the earth in general; they must hasten away and find a pen and a bottle of ink and a desk and a piece of paper and begin computing how many gallons have fallen on a given area. There are so many competent people keeping statistics that it is not worth while for the average man to both with it. When it rains it is better to employ the time making certain the windows are closed in the spare bedroom and checking up to see that the rainbarrel is sitting square under the spout at the back of the shed.

When Law Hurts People

All countries have immigration laws, and they are probably necessary things in the complex way in which the world is constituted; but they do hit people hard. They break up families, take the foundations from homes and cause individuals to face a new and a bleak method of plan of existence.

Joseph Courtney, a middle-aged native of Huron county, arrived in Goderich on the night train along with four of his children. There was no person at the train to meet them because he has no relatives there. He hadn't seen Goderich for over 20 years. He had no place to go and he had no money. He arrived there because the immigration laws of United States said he had to leave that country.

We learn that Joseph Courtney left Huron county 20 years ago and worked as a farm and factory hand in United States, but he never took out his citizenship papers. He was married and two of his children were born in Michigan. After his wife died Mr. Courtney had to leave some of his children in a home, but within recent times he had secured a place on a good farm where he was supplied with a house and farm produce and was being paid $40 a month, and there he had gathered his children around him and was happy and contented.

Looking at the situation from the standpoint of what was and is best for the man and his family he should have remained where he was right on that farm. He was doing something there which needed doing; he was contented and happy in a place which was giving him opportunity to have his children united once more under the same roof with their father. We do not believe United States would have suffered a particle had Joseph Courtney and his children remained in the house which had been provided for them on that farm. That little family would have caused no trouble at all. But right there is where the laws of the country enter the situation. Joseph Courtney years ago should have signed some papers, but he didn't. Some officer found out about this neglect, so the Courtney family was shipped across the border to the place from which the father came.

Once more the immigration laws have been satisfied; they have shoved out of the country a man and his children. That's how Joseph Courtney and his family happened to be standing on the station platform at Goderich after the night train had pulled in. No friends or relatives there and no money and nothing to do. We are not blaming United States particularly, because all countries have laws which are somewhat similar, but the operation of these laws does cut a wide and a sorry swath through the family life of a good many adults and children. Perhaps something like that may have come to the mind of Joseph Courtney as he stood with his little folk on the station platform at Goderich the other night.

NOTE AND COMMENT

By the number of Toronto cars seen in this district over the summer weekends there are a lot of folk who do not care what is open in the Queen City on Sundays.

Hon. Dr. Manion says the press reports of the Conservative convention were eminently fair. Shucks! We could have told him that before the thing started.

Federal revenues dropped several millions in June as compared with the same month last year. The optimist will see in that only the fact that we had to pay several millions less taxes.

Toronto folk are having a tough time finding enough clean water anywhere in which to take a swim. We would suggest that they take a look at the Kawartha Lakes.

Deer living near Sault Ste. Marie are said to have become so tame that residents will not have the heart to shoot them when the hunting season arrives. If they do not wish to shoot them no person is going to force them to do so.

Japan built six cruisers but now it is reported tests have shown they are not seaworthy. The Japs attended to the building themselves so there is not even the satisfaction of blaming some other nation.

We learn that people in Barrow, Alaska, are perspiring freely with the thermometer at 67 degrees. We have a feeling that their perspiring apparatus would operate more freely on one of our 92 days.

The C.P.R. station at St. Marys was robbed and 9 cents was taken away. Now when the C.P.R. talks more about unification with the C.N.R. it will be plain they are not going to bring much cash to the new deal.

An actor in a play at Coventry was actually stabbed during one scene but managed to continue until the show was over before going to hospital. The stage probably needs realism, but how many actors are willing to have it placed on that basis?

In England the Malden district council has warned civic tenants they must keep their dogs under control when the rent collector calls. Without knowing much of the case he would surmise that the dogs exhibited a commendable degree of intelligence in selecting their victims.

TANNED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I longed to have a coat of tan, and look much like an outdoor man, who started work at dawn; if I could gather tan enough, 'twould make me look hard-boiled and rough, and knit with heavy brawn.

¶ Then folk would gaze on me with awe, nor would they whack me on the jaw, nor would they hound me then; no plans of mine would be mislaid, and I could walk forth unafraid, and march with braver men.

¶ I drove off eighty miles away, where I would greet the sun all day, the thing looked simply grand; I'd swim a bit out in the lake, and then I'd lie around and bake, and roll upon the sand.

¶ The sunshine would descend on me, and make me brown as man could be, I'd scoop three coats of tan; when I passed folk when going my way, they'd point me out and then they'd say, there is a stalwart man.

¶ But flies and beetles joined in too, when they found what I planned to do, upon my frame they'd ride; the sun beat hard upon my skin, it baked me from the dome to shin, made blisters on my hide.

¶ I could not lie in bed or turn, for each square inch would itch and burn, I couldn't sleep enough; so I'm content to let it go, nor saunter forth and try to show—that I am tanned and tough.

Camper Writes Of Happy Hours

(Sault Ste. Marie Star)

"YES, WE ARE GOING camping," I said enthusiastically last week to my friends, and tried to appear nonchalant when they replied, "Why, how simply wonderful. How grand! You'll be going in swimming and getting a suntan. How I envy you!" Yes, but they don't know the half of it. I didn't either, until a few days ago.

The wide open spaces. Roughing it. At least roughing it with a semblance of comfort, I thought. The cottage was small, but it had a sink, and (We also thought) good beds. Alas, alack. How soon were we to be disillusioned.

We arrived, full of vim, vigor and vitality, rather late one evening, and set about making up the beds. Beds? Bunks rather, with canvas stretched out where springs should have been. It was like sleeping in a hammock. Once you got in bed, you were there to stay. Move not to right or left. Not one quarter of an inch.

Of course, we knew there were such things as mosquitoes: They had bothered us in a mild way before. But never, never had we seen such large mosquitoes. One would think that at some time or other during the night they would take a rest. Go to sleep, or something. But no. They concentrated on keeping us awake. And they succeeded admirably.

Ho-hum. It was soon morning, and we woke from our mosquito infested sleep to a lovely bright clear morning. This was the life! Now for breakfast and so in to town. (We had planned to commute, going in to town after breakfast, and out again to our "haven of rest" later in the afternoon). We decided to use the oil stove, as it would be quicker. Ha! ha! After burning up the better part of a box of matches, we decided we might as well set the matches alight and cook our breakfast over them.

But no. There was a wood stove. We would build a fire in that. The paper burned up nobly, but that was about all. We pulled this and turned that, but all that happened was clouds of smoke.

Oh well, a glass of milk and a piece of bread was all we wanted for breakfast, anyway.

That afternoon it rained. In fact it teemed. When we got out to the camp, the bedding was soaked, the floors were running rivulets. Yes, we had left the windows open. And yes, the roof leaked. It was with an effort that we managed to decide we would not become irritated. We would rise above such trifling matters.

Things such as these are among the major delights of camping out. We have no ice box, so food has to be brought from the city daily. We plan to have a hot meal at night, and it turns out to be a stifling hot day. I slave over the wood stove. We plan a cold salad, and the weather turns cold. We have to have the stove on anyway. The butter melts into liquid. We have ants. We have holes in the screens. And at nights we have friends who drop in for a "quiet" evening.

As I say, it's certainly a lot of fun camping. Oh, yes, didn't I mention it We've taken the cottage for the rest of the summer!

To The Editor

CAN'T WE HOPE FOR UNITY?

Editor Examiner:

Sir: An Orange grandmaster declares that Orangemen cannot and will not vote for either King or Manion. I will not refer to his charge against Mr. King but his denunciation of a soldier who fought for the empire (which is more than Cecil S. Armstrong did) is a disgrace to Protestantism. How can we call for unity if we are doing all we can to prevent it?

If a Catholic calls me what some of these alleged Protestar is call Catholics I'll hit him if I can and how can any decent sensible people ever help to develop a nation a family or an empire by fighting and using wild language. No doubt both sides are justified in much that they feel like saying and do say, but restraint is the motto of a sensible civilized man not going wild every time he gets a chance.

MONTH OF ACCIDENTS.

(Metropolitan Life Bulletin)

THE LOSS of life through accidents in this peak month (July) is truly appalling. Over the entire United States no fewer than 381 persons were killed daily, on the average throughout July, in accidents of one kind or another, according to mortality records covering the years 1934-1936. This is approximately 97 deaths each day more than the daily average for the three years as a whole; it is 78 deaths daily more than in August, the second highest month of the year, and 133 daily more than in March, which has the minimum of all months.

JUST A SITTING AND A THINKING

Just a sitting and a thinking
On this sunny summer day
About things that mould and change us
As we pass along the way.

Just a sitting and a thinking
Many many thoughts brush by.
Like clouds that form and gather,
And then race across the sky.

Just a sitting and a thinking
How years so swiftly go,
We are young, middle aged, and old
Almost before we really know.

Just a sitting and a thinking
Of just what is best to do.
We know right is always right
And truth is always true.

Just a sitting and a thinking
About our world so very grand
If each one did love each other,
We would have the promised land.

Just a sitting and a thinking
How all wars would swiftly end
If a man was all men's brother
And a friend was all men's friend.

• They Just Pick Up And Go Away

WINGHAM, Ont.—District police are making a search for two boys and a man. The man, Robert Dockett, of Ethel, left his home driving a horse and buggy, in an effort to sell oil over a week ago and since that time has not returned home. His wife was stricken seriously ill, and no trace can be found of him. No description was given out other than that he was an elderly man driving a bay horse and selling oil.

A search also pressed in the district for two Durham boys, John Alexander Murdock and Alvin Manto, who were believed to be searching for work in and around Wingham. The boys were described as:

John Alexander Murdock, height five feet 10 inches, weight 150 pounds, medium complexion. Hair parted on side and combed back in waves. Small scar over left eyebrow. Wearing a dark coat with stripe and check. May be wearing fawn cap. Dark gray trousers. Would be 16 in August.

Alvin Manto, of German descent. Height five feet six inches. Very dark complexion. Curly dark hair. Heavy build. Weight 150 pounds. He was wearing a dark blue shirt with zipper front. Dark colored pants. He had no coat when he left home and was carrying a small parcel of clothing. Will be 16 in August but looks a great deal older.

Information is requested from anyone who has seen the boys by one of the parents, Frank R. Murdock, of Durham, or Chief Constable Meyers, of Hanover. It is believed that if the boys find that anyone is looking for them they may head for the London district, because they had been overheard discussing the probability of work in the Lambton area.

• Helping A Man Build A Home

IT IS POSSIBLE if the full advantage is taken of the new Housing Act of the Dominion government to provide an impetus to the construction industry of Canada in residential building alone between $106,000,000 and $121,000,000. Time only will tell if the act meets such widespread approval as to give it the maximum working effect. The Alexander Hamilton Institute of New York gives, in its monthly letter, an analysis of the act, which certainly is attractive to the borrower, but there remains a skepticism among contractors, investment houses, and certainly among municipal authorities with whom municipal participation in new housing has not been a success in the past.

But the highlights of the Housing Act are worth recapitulating:

1. The government will make loans to municipalities or to municipally sponsored housing bodies for the purpose of constructing low rent houses. The loans may be as high as 90 per cent. of the cost, will bear 2 per cent. interest and 2 per cent. annual amortization which will be spread over a period of thirty-five years.

2. The Dominion Government will subsidize municipalities in order to permit remission of local taxes on owner-occupied houses built before 1940, and whose total cost does not exceed $4,000.

3. The Dominion will extend loans to limited dividend corporations up to 80 per cent. of the appraised value of the cost. Interest will be charged at the rate of 1.75 per cent. and the 2 per cent. annual amortization is to be spread over thirty-five years. It is contemplated that only families with an income not exceeding five times the calculated economic rental per dwelling unit will be admitted as tenants. For families with low income, the municipalities and provincial governments are providing for the establishment of rent reduction funds.

4. The government will protect companies against loss up to 20 per cent. of the amount of the loans made by such companies to home owners, provided the loans do not exceed 80 per cent. of the cost of the home and the cost of the property is not over $4,000. In cases of homes with a value of $2,500 where companies are permitted to extend loans up to 90 per cent., the government will guarantee the loss up to 25 per cent.

5. On dwelling units whose lending value is not over $2,500 the government and private lending agencies may make loans up to 90 per cent. of the cost of the property, the government lending 22.5 per cent. and the private companies 67.5 per cent.

• An End Of Devil's Island

(From the Cleveland Plain Dealer)

NOVELISTS AND scenario writers lose one of their most picturesque locales by degree of the French government. Devil's Island, which is the popular name applied to all the penal colonies in French Guiana, will receive no more recruits. This step will receive the sanction of humanitarians everywhere, for the French penal system was a remnant of a bygone age that had no place in the twentieth century.

A year ago Marc Rucart, minister of justice, announced that no more convicts would be sent to the colony, which he called "a blot on the honor of France." Now Premier Daladier, exercising his decree power, has amended the penal code to conform. In the future, criminals who would have gone to Guiana will be sentenced to hard labor in French prisons or to solitary confinement.

Convicts already in the colony will serve out their time. Many of them cannot go back home under the terms of their sentences. Most of the "settlers" in Guiana are freed convicts under a ban against their return to France.

One commendable motive for the abolition was the failure of the system to train men for return to normal life after they had been in the colony. In this respect it was like the old prison system employed by England when convicts were exiled to Australia or like the Russian system under which Siberia was largely colonized under the czars.

Thus the colony which won an unwanted fame when the late Col. Alfred Dreyfus was unjustly sentenced there will live only in stories and memoirs of escaped convicts. It is a tribute to the Salvation Army that its organization in France led in the fight to abolish this equatorial Siberia.

• Making A Fortune Out Of War

(Toronto Telegram)

IN THE LONDON Sunday Express is told the story of a young shipowner who has made millions out of the Spanish war. His name is John Albert Billmeir. A few years ago he was a minor clerk in a London financial office. Then he became director of the Stanhope Steamship Company, which owned two cargo ships. When the Spanish war broke out his company went into the market for more ships, till it had a fleet of 23 freighters. These carry dangerous cargoes to dangerous waters. Their method is to pick up goods left at neutral ports by boats that would not venture on the final voyage to Spanish cities. Rates are high for running the gauntlet and the Billmeir Company makes money.

Mr. Billmeir is said to have built a fortune of $5,000,000 in three years. The Stanwold, captured by the Insurgents and released on protest of the British Government, was one of his vessels. His enterprise is part of the business that is causing international complications. Opponents of the British Government are denouncing Mr. Chamberlain because he will not give protection to vessels engaged in this trade when they enter Spanish territorial waters. He holds that while attacks on neutral ships are unjustified, the measure proposed for their protection might bring war, and he prefers the peace of Europe to the profits of shipowners. The latter have been warned that when they send their boats within the three-mile limit they do so at their own risk. On the high seas they are protected by the British Navy.

LEST WE FORGET.

(London cor. Ottawa Journal)

LONDON READS with subdued indignation how populous Spanish and Chinese towns are almost daily bombed from the air. Who would guess, viewing London's cheerful streets today, that just 21 years ago London was undergoing much the same ordeal.

The only difference—an important one — is that the planes were fewer and the bombs smaller. On a sultry June [illegible] in 1917—the ill-omened date [illegible] the 130—15 German taub[illegible] zoomed over at a height of about 18,000 feet. All they saw was an occasional flash of a silver wing.

West Enders took taxis to get down to the East End where the bombs were falling thickest. After the raid King George V motored round to inspect the damage to his ca[illegible] was given a rousing welc[illegible] raid killed nearly a [illegible] and injured over 400.

Greater Loyalty To Church Is Urged By Speakers In Twelfth Of July Addresses

Orangemen and women from five counties jammed the main streets of Peterobrough Tuesday in a colorful celebration that attracted a crowd estimated at ten thousand people. Following the parade of 51 lodges, the crowd listened to addresses by prominent members of the Order at Victoria Park where an amplifying system was used to broadcast the speeches.

Ernie N. Mitchell, Grand Master of Ontario East from Lindsay was the chief speaker, with Ernie F. Reid, Past Grand Master doing a splendid job as chairman of the celebration committee. Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, minister of Knox United church was the first on the list to address the gathering which thronged the park on all sides of the grandstand, and said in part. "The great weakness today is the lack of unity among the Protestant churches. I urge you to carry the fine spirit of loyalty and unity which exists in your Order into the churches. We should show strength on all moral questions, one of the most evident being the beer parlor nuisance. The recently enacted and unjust legislation concerning the Separate Schools should convince you of the need for strength and unity."

Welcomed by Mayor

Mayor James Hamilton spoke briefly tendering a cordial welcome to the visitors. "Any city feels especially privileged when the Orangemen hold their celebration there, and Peterborough is no exception. We commend you on the fine work being done by the Order and extend to you best wishes for the great success to which you are entitled."

Alderman R. S. Cotton, County Master Roland Darling, who was responsible for the working out of all details concerning the celebration, and E. W. Rowland, minister of Mark Street United church, all spoke briefly during the afternoon.

Mrs. C. Wright, Past Grand Mistress of Ontario East introduced Mrs. Moore, R.W.P.G.M., of Ontario East from Lindsay. Mrs. Moore brought greetings from the Provincial Grand Lodge, and pleaded with the Orange men and women for a greater loyalty to the church. "Teach your children the dangers of mixed marriages and explain to them the grave religious complications which are bound to develop in family life if each belongs to a different faith." She urged all members of the Order to do their duty as citizens by voting in elections.

"Ours is the call of duty and service. We have no easy road ahead. Anyone who can be easy going about the Protestant faith is not a Protestant and certainly has little or no faith. Let us then be loyal to the noble principles of our association and our religion," she stated in closing.

Grand Master Speaks

Mr. Mitchell, the chief speaker in addressing the crowd said:

'It is a pleasure and a great privilege to stand on this platform this afternoon and greet this large audience and convey to you all the kindly and most sincere wishes of the Grand Lodge of Eastern Ontario. It is a privilege to stand on any platform at any time in support of the principals for which the Orange Order as a great British Society stands and while the order in Canada is still in its infancy as the lives of nations go.

It has in its 108 years of growth more than justified its existence as a strong and veril body representing approximately 60,000 members and an equally large number of ladies and boys and girls in other branches.

It has always stood for the brotherhood of man and if there was no other reason that alone would justify its existence. In addition to this it has always stood for British principles, British traditions and the ideals of Protestantism in all its highest form. It has as unswervingly defended the volume of the sacred law, the open Bible; has done its full share in support and defence of our Public School system. sometimes against great odds; has defended our marriage laws at great cost: has always encouraged our Canadian people to keep on singing the National Anthem, God Save the King, and has had and still has for its slogan "Hands off that Emblem of Britain's Power. The glory of the past, the hope of the future of this great Dominion. The Old Union Jack.'

To qualify for membership one should be loyal in thought, word and act to the Soverign and the British Empire. Protestant seeking their prosperity and integrity strengthening their ties and supporting the principals which have been the foundation of the nation's greatness; ever ready to promote civil and religious liberty; to maintain the Protestant faith as the purest form of Christianity and the basis of constitutional government for all peoples, and to build up the empire in unity and true godliness.

True it is that its principles have been misunderstood, misrepresented and even lied about. But I say to you that if it had been operating according to standards set by critics since 1830, it would have perished miserably long ago and deserved to. But such is not the case and the Orange Order was never more popular in the minds of the liberty loving peoples of the great British Empire than it is, starting its second century in Canada; and if you doubt my word look into the kindly and good-natured faces of this company of people, representing many such groups throughout Canada and the British Isles this day.

This Order was never made up of narrow-minded bigots as some would hav you think and anyone who knows anything at all of the work of the association would have to have a particular type of a corkscrew soul to make any such accusation.

True it is that bigots occasionally get into such organizations as the Protestant church, the Orange Order and other associations. But the bigot in a church does not represent the Christian religion, and a bigot in the Orange Order does not know the meaning of Orangeism and consequently does not in any sense present a true picture of the association or what it stands for; and let me tell you that for every bigot you show me in the church or the Orange Lodge I will show you 25 that have never belonged to either one.

The Order has always granted a square deal to the minority and will continue to do so. And if you can show me another organization that has done more to raise the moral standard of living and keep this country British and done it with less noise, the Protestant churches excepted, it would be worthwhile society of which to be a member. We have no personal quarrel with our Roman Catholic friends. We do not always agree with them, neither do they always agree with us. But we grant to them the right to worship God as they choose and we demand the same. So let's spend none of our precious moments bickering over racial and political differences.

This is the great challenge to the Christian church and the Orange Order to establish a greater Brotherhood among men and if that is to be accomplished it will fully occupy your time and mine between here and the end of life's journey."

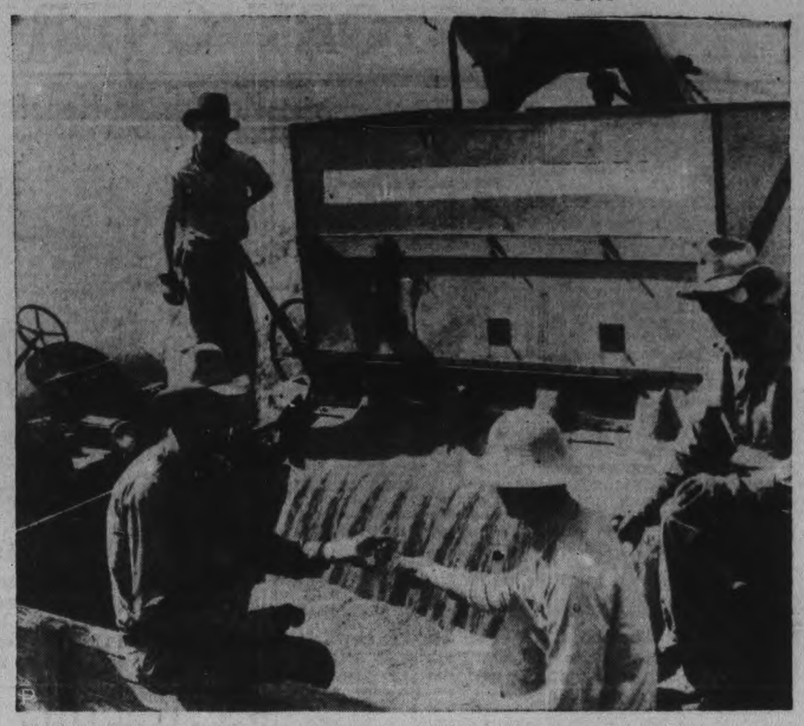
Golden Harvest Pours From Former Dust Bowl



It is hard to believe that this stream of golden wheat is pouring from a spot where last year the only harvest was dust. L. H. Lookinghill, LEFT, is smiling with satisfaction as he watches the grain combine working on his bread wheat fields near Amarillo, Texas, dump a load of grain for transportation to nearby elevators. For several seasons past Amarillo has been in the centre of a grainless dust bowl.' This year due to copious rainfall, a bumper crop is being harvested. The dust bowls of western Canada are also looking hopefully toward the first harvest since the drought cycle struck.

Cavan Girls Hold Achievement Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, July 13.—On Saturday Le Sentier du Lait held a picnic—"achievement day"—under the supervision of their leaders, Mrs. D. Tinney and Mrs. O. Carley, at Pritchard's Creek, near the village. A number of visitors were present to watch the demonstrations: "Milk the child's delight,' by Bea and Nan Fallis and Jean Gillis; 'Play safe with milk,' by Helen Braithwaite, Gwenyth Staples and Dorothy Armstrong; and 'Milk on the invalid's tray,' by Jean Trumpour, Audrey Nill, Bernice Richards and Norma Gillis. All were well done, but since only one junior team and one senior team may demonstrate at County Achievement Day on July 30 at Millbrook, the juniors (on the team demonstrating 'milk the child's delight') and the leaders voted on three senior girls to be sent. Those named were Helen Braitwaite, Jean Trumpour and Gwenyth Staples.

After the demonstrations the girls judged two baked custards. Those who cared to, then took advantage of the good-sized swimming hole while the rest enjoyed a social time on the banks.

At around 5 o'clock the girls returned to the village and ate their picnic lunch on Mrs. Keegan's verandah, kindly offered because of rain.

After lunch the girls left, pronouncing their novel Achievement Day a success.

His $100 Gratitude May Cost Employee Job

Montreal, July 13

A COLORFULLY wrapped package found today on the desk of Labor Minister Tremblay may be directly responsible for dismissal of a Provincial Government employee.

When newspapermen visited Tremblay at local Government offices the package was on his desk. Joking with the reporters the Minister unfolded the wrappings to reveal a box of cigars and a sealed envelope containing a crisp $100 bill.

"One fellow is going to be out of a job Wednesday," Tremblay declared. "He may think he's repaying a favor, but if he has $100 bills to give away he certainly has no business holding down his position in these days when thousands are starving."

Valencia Drive Sees Franco Take Control

HENDAYE, July 13—(AP)—Insurgent General Franco was reported today to have taken personal command of a unified army of 200,000 men for a grand offensive against Valencia from three directions.

During a comparative lull in the fighting yesterday he was said to have effected coordination between General Miguel Aranda's corps on the eastern flank near the Mediterranean coast, General Garcia Valino's central corps in the Espadan mountains and General Jose Varela's western-flank corps south and north of Teruel.

Opposing these, Government General Jose Miaja was said to have massed more than 250,000 men, with 200,000 concentrated along the strategic highway and railroad from more De Rubielos to Sagunto, junction of the Castellon-Valencia Teruel-Mediterranean highways 14 miles north of Valencia.

With Insurgents within sight of Sagunto, the "key to Valencia," government resistance forced them to halt for reorganization. Valencia dispatches said sharp counter-attacks regained some positions.

During the night dispatches gave this picture of the fighting:

General Valino was within sight of Segorbe, 15 miles northeast of Valencia, and locked in deadly combat for the triangle formed by the junction of the two main roads; Miaja's men fought stubbornly to defend the northern base of the triangle in the Espadan mountains about 16 miles north of the Teruel highway; Aranda's guns battered defences at Chilches, nine miles north and east of Sagunto ;two Insurgent bombing raids on the government naval base at Cartagena were said to have caused 165 casualties.

Woman's Screams Save Bank Cash

DETROIT, Mich., July 13 (AP).—Grey-haired, slight, and 75, Mrs. Ida Jimeyfield nonetheless can put bank robbers in their place.

Two gunmen in overalls, each wearing dark glasses, entered the State Bank of suburban Farmington yesterday commanding: "Everybody lie down."

Two employees in the bank complied, but not Mrs. Jimeyfield.

One robber approached her, and she screamed: "Don't touch me." He seized her wrist, twisting it, but she fought him off.

With Mrs. Jimeyfield in pursuit, the robber darted to the cashier's cage and scooped up loose cash—lated found to have totalled $1,650.

While Mrs. Jimeyfield screamed at him, the robber called to his companion, on guard at the door, "Let's get out of here."

The two fled. Bank officials said the action of Mrs. Jimeyfield, a bank patron, prevented the robbers from stealing any more. State police took up a search for them.

Mrs. Jimeyfield, a widow, was reported suffering from shock at her home today.

Borga, Bengal, will add special traffic police to help the regular ones.

Find DuPont, Raskob Evaded On $1,600,000

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP).—The United States board of tax appeals found today that Pierre S. Du Pont and John J. Raskob had attempted to evade more than $1,000,000 of income taxes by "paper transactions" in securities.

The exact amount of additional taxes due on their 1929 incomes was left by the board to be determined later, but attorneys estimated Raskob might be held to owe about $1,000,000 and Du Pont about $5020,000.

After the 1929 stock market crash, Du Pon and Raskob sold about $4,500,000 of securities to each other at prices far below what they had paid for them. Eventually they resold the securities to each other so each wound up with his original holdings. The claimed deductions from their income tax for the losses indicted by the difference between the original value of the securities and the prices at which the securities were sold.

LOCAL LACROSSERS GAIN A 10-6 VICTORY OVER MT. HAMILTON

Win O.L.A. Tilt By Early Lead In Neat Tussle

The Petes celebrated the Glorious Twelfth in Hamilton last evening by grabbing off a 10-6 O.L.A. senior "B" victory over the Mount Hamilton outfit in a neat tussle. The East York gang and the Peterborough crew tangle this Friday night at nine o'clock in another Ontario Lacrosse Association contest.

Last night's fixture was a fast clean one with the visiting squad shading the homesters a trifle. The Petes piled up an early lead and then withstood a last-half drive by Mount Hamilton to emerge victorious. Play was quite speedy and hot most of the route with nifty lacrosse shown and some rugged checking, but little rough stuff which called for penalties at any time. E. Creighton drew the only penalty of the first period. Chute, Magee and Tinstead got it next frame and Whitton and Challan were chased in the third.

Petes Start It

The score was 3-1 for Peterborough in the initial inning. The Liftlockers had an edge of 6 to 2 on the game at halftime, and they took a 9-4 margin into the fourth. Mount Hamilton held them on practically even terms in the third and outplayed and outscored them in the fourth to threaten to whittle down that early lead and make it most interesting. But they were checked closely and held to two goals. The fans enjoyed a lively, close lacrosse contest throughout.

All the visitors looked good in this game, with Goalie Bill Rogers having plenty to do in the local cage and doing it well. His defence aided considerably especially in the last half of the fray. All the forwards worked hard throughout. The work of Whitton, Vitarelli, Magee, Chute and Dundas deserves especial mention, but the whole team looked neat in this victory. For the losers, with most o fthe squad turning in a hard effective tilt, Wilson McAvella, Tinstead and Dockstader appeared the best.

Frame Half Shot

The first quarter was half over before there was a score, Dockstader tallying for the home team. Dundas rammed in two quick ones for the Petes and Vitarelli got another. In the second heat, Whitton tallied twice with Magee getting another on Vitarelli's pass. Hutchison scored one for the Hamilton aggregation. Whitton notched two more in the third, aided once by Chute, and Loucks blazed one home. Wilson and McAvella hung up counters in this period for the Mounts. Wilson scored two in the fourth as Worthy got one for the winners. The teams

Petes — Goal, Rogers; defence, Chute and J. Creighton; centre, Dundas; wings, Worthy and Puffer; rover, Whitton; alternates, Magee, E. Creighton, Vitarelli, Loucks and Sloane.

Mount Hamilton — Goal, Harley; defence, Jamieson and Tinstead; centre, Green; wings, McAvella and Wilson; rover, Bomburg; alternates, Waterman, Mellon, Moore, Dockstader, Love, Borrow and Skitchenson.

Referee—Paddy Gow.

Hines To Meet Denny Shute For Golf Title

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Pa., July 13 (A.P.). — They threw Jimmy Hines at defending champion Denny Shute, winner of 14 straight United States Professional Golfers' Association matches, in to-day's 36-hole third round of the American pros' own championship. But Jimmy wouldn't concede that they were throwing him to the lions.

"Somebody's got to beat Denny some day," said the big blond from Great Neck, N.Y., who dropped a 4 and 3 decision to Shute in the 1937 quarter-finals, "and there's no reason wh yit shouldn't be me."

For that matter, each of the 16 survivors on to-day's program had the same thing—"a match on his hands." Going right down the line, there were Byron Nelson against Harry Bassler, a Californian who's a consistent campaigner in his own territory; Marvin Stahl, the tournament's prize discovery from Lansing, Mich., against Jim Foulis, who knocked off Gene Sarazen a year ago; Sam Snead against Felix Serafin, surprise conqueror of Harry Cooper, Canadian open champion, and Ky Laffoon yesterday; Billy Burke and Orton Smith, Ray Mangrum, and former champion Paul Runyan, Sarazen and square-shouldered Jimmy Demaret, and Henry Picard and Dick Metz, who put out United States open champion Ralph Guldahl in the second round.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

YEP, THAT WAS A close one but it's just as good as an 18-1 win. The Petes pulled out a 4-3 win over Oshawa GM-men here last eve to help send the July 12th crowd home happy, but to tell the truth we only felt happy in one inning of the whole game—the last of the ninth! It wasn't a good game for the home crowd to watch, not until the locals staged a three-run rally in the ninth to tie it up and win out. Otherwise, it was a case of Oshawa almost having it in the old gunny sack early in the fray and apparently winners till the grand finale. Still, baseball is a funny game and you never know how it'll end. A few were leaving the park in the ninth but nearly all stayed to see the finish. And they went away quite tickled. The homesters won in spectacular fashion late, so all was well.

* * * *

LEFTY McNALLY'S long layoff didn't do him any good and he was rather wild. Afraid to cut loose with his smoke ball very often as he walked three men who scored in the first four frames. But he pitched a nice game anyway, keeping eight hits spread apart, no two to a frame, fanning five but walking five. Turner looked a lot better all through but the ninth saw him weaken and his pitching summary turned out not as good as that of the local lefthander. He gave up 10 safe hits and six walks and fanned but two. His support was better than the Petes till the last inning but a bad two-base error by McGarry paved the way for the local win. That's baseball.

* * * * * *

A Trifle Tiresome

ON ACCOUNT of it wasn't so good, we'll brush gently over the first eight frames. They got three runs, one at a time, and threatened often. We didn't do a thing till we scored one in the eighth. Threatened often but lacked the punch. Got a couple of hits with two out and left a couple of corpses stranded on the sacks. Did that several times but that didn't help any. Oshawa players were chuckling and doing a bit of swaggering. "It gets monotonous coming down here and winning," one player cracked. And then the payoff came in the ninth. Down 3-1 in the last half of the ninth, the Petes proved opportunists and went on to win. With a few heroics tossed in.

* * * * * *

WHATLEY WALKED and stole second. McNally's grounder was scooped up by the shortstop but he threw wild to score Whatley and send Lefty to second. There it was. Kearns scratched an infield hit as they stood around dazed, McNally going to third and Chuck promptly stealing second. McNally expected a squeeze play and broke for home. He saw it wasn't working and made a lovely slide under the catcher to tie it up. And did the crowd cheer! Clark had walked and then Murphy sacrificed them along. Calladine was walked deliberately to load the bases. And Cadd laid down a beautiful bunt to squeeze Kearns home with the winning run. They didn't even make a play for him. That part of it was good baseball, though a couple of previous steals were risky business. But it all turned out oke and there were no more cracks about "it being monotonous coming down here and winning," nossuh! A swell finish and the Petes, with Doll back, will hold their own henceforth.

Burton Blasts Ball

LES BURTON clicked for three hits and we're glad to see him back in his old hitting form .And Eddie Starr returned to the lineup and played right field. He hit safely twice in three times and should be a big help once more. Our gang need plenty of hitting help as they still aren't conking the apple around in the clutches. And those GM-men haven't slipped any after winning the C. O. B. L. twice and the Ontario title once in the past two years. Some sparkling catches were pulled off by Murphy, Clark and Hurst. Wallace continues to hit and got three for four, while Foley hit two doubles. It was quite a game and drew a big crowd.

* * * * * *

IN HAMILTON LAST p.m., the Petes helped themselves to a 10-6 O. L. A. senior "B" win over the Mount Hamilton bunch in a tidy tussle. Got an early lead and hung grimly onto it in a fast clean scrap. The losers made it a hard battle the last half and were always within a few markers of tying it up. Another Norwood boy saw action with the locals, C. Puffer playing a good game. This Friday eve sees East York and the Petes tangle at nine bells in the George St. arena in a senior fixture, and unless the East Yorkers have slipped a lot they should hustle the homesters like all getout to grab off a nod. A midget melee will precede the O. L. A. affair, Rotary and Lions mixing it up at 8.15 o'clock and in the half time rest period.

The Feminine Gender

MARILYN McCARTHY was in rare mound form at the Bowl last night and twirled the C. G. E. girl softballers to a 6-4 win over Keene and top place in the second half standing. The Electrics' speedballer was touched for but four hits and one walk as she blazed the third strike by eight. Bea McDowell also hurled a nice game for the losers but her fielding support was decidedly uh-uh. Keene has an exhibition game with Danforth Aces today in Toronto, and a return joust may be arranged here later. Second half of the gals' schedule is in tonight, showing the next game is Friday with with C. G. E. at Keene. First half playoffs commence late next week.

Babe Ruth Held Only For Show General Belief

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—The best information is that Babe Ruth, for all the excitement occasioned by his recent signing as a Brooklyn coach, is no nearer to realizing his ambition to become a big league manager than before Larry MacPhail pulled him out of retirement.

Ruths admirers felt certain for a time that their hero would succeed Burleigh Grimes at the Dodger helm in due time, but they are having their doubts now.

It seems that MacPhail, the showman, simply paid $15,000 for the privilege of exhibiting the great Bambino the remainder of the season, in the same spirit that P. T. Barnum once intrigued the public with the "missing link." The Babe missed out somewhere.

MacPhail, after first maintaining mysterious silence as to his plans for Ruth, has let it be known lately that he is satisfied with Grimes as manager and intends to sign him again for 1939, no matter where the Dodgers wind up in the current campaign.

The Babe has got a bang out of coming back to the game, however briefly, and has made himslf popular with the young Brooklyn players. He has drained off more than 10 pounds and is down to a trim 235.

The Babe has demonstrated that he still can wallop the ball, but admits his legs are gone.

There are conflicting opinions on the Babe's value as a base coach, but he still is a remarkable drawing card. He packed the parks at Syracuse and Elmira, and MacPhail is busy now arranging five or six more exhibition games.

Hardwick Coaches Basketball Team

TORONTO, July 13 — (CP) — Canada's basketball entry in the Olympic games at Tokyo, Japan, will be handled by a committee under direction of Walter Hardwick, president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association.

The C. A. B. A. at the concluding session of its two-day annual meeting here last night, named the committee, including also T. Douglas Robertson of Montreal, first vice-president and Howard Campbell of Windsor. It was decided the same committee would attempt to have basketball included on the British Empire Games program in 1942.

No election of officers was held and no city has been selected yet for next year's meeting. Officials said the election will be held in 1939.

The C. A. B. A. will stage Dominion basketball finals rather than under auspices of the Provincial governing bodies in whose jurisdictions they are held, the executive decided. The series will be held at Winnipeg, Vancouver or Victoria next spring and the Dominion body will bear travelling and other expenses of the players, it was determined.

All senior men players must be registered with the C. A. B. A., the Association decided, and cards of each player will be charged two cents for that purpose.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

In answering our query of the other evening "Can a losing rink, win?" In reporting the result of any sporting event the first thing the public does is to look at the head lines and expect to see in big block type the names of the winners and what prize was given to them for their efforts.

They expect to read how the winning team mowed their opponents down one after the other and will be looking for any high lights that would feature the winning team. They expect to see the winning team, individually and collectively, praised to the skies, and sometimes expect to see a life sized picture of each member, but what about the losers, for after all if there are no losers there cannot be any winners, so today we will deal with the "forgotten" opponents—the losers.

"It's easy enough to look pleasant
When the world goes along with a song,
But the player worth while, is the one who will smile
When everything goes dead wrong."

The ladies rink schedule for this season has just concluded and at this time we wish to pay tribute to one rink, who, in our humble opinion, has set an example, not only to the different rinks in connection with the ladies section, but one that might be adopted by the rinks in the men's section as well.

It is a rink that has gone through the entire schedule of 12 games and has lost them all. Game after game they have come out to the greens, played their games, asked no favors, expected none, not one note of discord was heard, offered no alibis, took it all standing up and right on the chin, and just to make sure that they would be keeping faith with their opponents, played two games in one day, one in the afternoon and the other in the evening and just so they would not be late for the evening game brought their tea along with them, and then to cap it all motored down to Cobourg on Friday to enter into open competition with other clubs. Not once did the element of defeat enter into their minds although they knew that the only place they could finish would be last.

To our mind these four ladies have done more for lawn bowling than anything that we have read or heard about in many months. To accomplish such a feat as these ladies have done you have to have "what it takes" and we don't mean maybe.

We only wish that it were within our power, that when the ladies annual banquet comes around in the fall, to recognize this rink with something more than the applause of the audience.

The rink we refer to is: Mrs. P. James, Mrs. N. Routley, Mrs. S. Kingdon, Mrs. C. Wright, skip.

1,041 Marksmen Start Shoot For King's Cup

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 13 (CP Cable).—Marksmen at Bisley at last got a break from the weatherman today as the classic King's prize started. For the first time since the Empire meeting of the National Rifle Association opened July 4, perfect weather prevailed today, coincident with the first stage of the King's prize. There was brilliant sunshine and a light warm breeze.

The classic of the meeting, the King's prize, first stage, today brought a large crowd of spectators to Bisley. They massed about the butts to watch the drama as 1,041 crack military marksmen and women started the gruelling grind leading towards the final Saturday. The first stage called for seven shots at the 200, 500 and 600-yard ranges. Today 300 best scorers go into Friday's second stage; Friday's best 100 enter the final Saturday.

For the first time in the 79 years of the great event the veterans had a double-barrelled interest in the shoot, for this year the King's veterans' match is being fired concurrently with the King's prize. This is a separate cash prize list for King's prize competitors over 65 years of age, carrying a first prize of $25.

Prize Worth $1,250.

The King's prize itself consists of $1,250 in cash to which the National Rifle Association adds, for the winner, its gold medal and gold badge. Leader in the second stage is the silver medallist, and in today's first stage, the bronze medallist. Altogether the match carries cash prizes of $6,050.

Qualifiers for the veterans' list of the King's prize numbered 60, including Lord Cottesloe, long a power in the N.R.A., who is 76, and several others approaching the 80 mark.

Before the ranges were swept clear and 1,041 entrants started firing in the King's prize, Sgt. C. W. Harvey of the Hertfordshire Yeomanry won the tie shoot for the Times Cup.

Fort William Four Very Much To Fore

Come July 15, there will be much splashing of water in the vicinity of Fort William. That's the day the 39th renewal of the Northwestern International Rowing Association's annual regatta and competing in the tough struggles expected for various honors will be the four lads above, from LEFT to RIGHT, Murray Teeple, Jimmy Miller, Ray Lankinen and George Moore. They form both a senior four and the stroke end of a senior eight for the Fort William Rowing Club. As a four they won the senior crown at last year's regatta, held at St. Paul and at the same event played a prominent part in bringing the Sir Thomas Lipton Trophy, emblematic of the aggregate championship, to their club. If their immediate battles turn out the right way they may journey to the Canadian Henley later this month.

PETES RALLY IN NINTH TO COP 4-3 NOD OVER OSHAWA GM-MEN

Winning Marker Squeezed Home To End Contest

A three-run rally in the last half of the ninth inning gave the Petes a 4-3 senior ball victory over Oshawa last night before a thousand excited fans in Riverside Park. After trailing from the first frame, the locals tied the count up at 3-all in the ninth and squeezed over the winning run to send a big July 12th crowd home happy.

It was a wild finish to a game that seemed lost to the locals most of the way. They suddenly got to Jack Turner as he weakened to walk three and give one hit, with a two-base error, two sacrifices and three stolen bases figuring in the rout. McNally stole home with the tying marker and Cadd squeezed in Kearns with the winner on a sweet sacrifice bunt. The score was 3-1 for Oshawa when the ninth rolled around and some of the fans had started to leave the park.

Oshawa GM-men got a run in the first inning, another in the third and their final counter in the fourth. They were threatening all the time and appeared sure winners as the game progressed. The Petes made several dangerous attempts but could not cross the plate till one run came over in the eighth. A walk, stolen base and a bad error by McGarry gave them one to open the ninth and then McNally, who got to third on a scratch hit electrified the fans by stealing home with the tying marker. It was just a matter of time then till the winning run was shoved across.

Weakens In 9th

Jack Turner twirled good ball till the ninth for Oshawa. Till then he had allowed nine hits, mostly scattered and two walks while fanning two. He was going well in the pinches and getting fine backing from his buddies. But he weakened in the ninth and lost out. Lefty McNally started slowly, hitting several wild streaks to put men on the sacks and then getting nicked for timely blows to have runs scored against him. But he tightened up as the game progressed and only one man reached third after the fourth frame. He fanned five, walked five and allowed eight hits. His support was good except for a couple of innings.

Les Burton led the locals at bat with three for four, while Starr and Kearns got two safe blows each, and Cadd drove in two runs. Wallace led the losers at the plate with a double and two singles in four. Foley hit two doubles for Oshawa. There were eight sacrifice bunts in the contest. Fielding features were supplied by Clark, Murphy and Hurst. A big argument arose in the ninth when a pitched ball hit either Whatley's arm or his bat. He started for first but Umpire Thomas called him back and then ruled it a ball. Both sides argued bitterly with the umpire but he stuck to his ruling.

Oshawa Scores

The GM-men got a run in the first with one out. Dalton drew a walk, was sacrificed by Hurst and scored on Matthews' single. Clark's hit was wasted. Wallace singled in the second and McGarry was safe on McNally's error but they died on base. With two out in the Petes' half, Starr and Whatley singled and McNally walked to load the sacks but Kearns flied out. Oshawa got a run in the third when Dalton walked, moved up on Hurst's hit and tore home when Murphy missed Clark's throw on a double-play ball. A walk to Calladine came to nothing.

The final Oshawa run tallied in the fourth when Normoyle drew a free ticket ,was sacrificed by Turner and scored on Foley's double. Burton singled in the fourth, was sacrificed by Starr and got as far as third on Turner's throw over second but stopped there. Jubenville was safe on an error at second and Wallace singled to short but they got no further. In the Petes' fifth, Kearns singled to open it but was forced by Clark and Murphy hit into a double-play to end that.

Rally Near Finish

A walk to Foley was wasted in the sixth and hits by Burton and Starr came to naught for the locals. With two out in the seventh, Wallace walked, took second on a wild pitch and got to third on an infield hit by McGarry, but Normoyle rolled out. Clark walked for the homesters but was out stealing. Foley's double did no damage in Oshawa's eighth. The Petes got a run in their half when Murphy singled, stole second, moved up on an infield out and scored on Cadd's fly to deep short. Wallace hit a double in the ninth but died on second. The Petes won it in their part of the frame. Whatley walked and stole second, coming home when McNally got to second on McGarry's bad throw of a grounder. McNally took third on Kearns' infield hit, the latter stealing second. Clark walked to load the bases and then McNally stole home safely with the tying run. Murphy's sacrifice put Kearns on third and Clark on second. Calladine was walked deliberately but Cadd laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt to the pitcher and Kearns slid home with the winning run, no play being made on him.

Syracuse Beats Leafs 12-3 To Pass Bisons

TORONTO, July 13 — (CP). — For the third successive day the International League has a new tenant in second place, and the race, which looked like it was going to be a drab, monotonous affair the rest of the way, is being turned into a sparkling battle by the runner-up clubs.

While Newark Bears kept moving away from the rest of the teams last night by walloping Buffalo 11-5, Syracuse Chiefs moved past the Bisons and Rochester Red Wings into the runner-up shot by clubbing Toronto Maple Leafs, 12-3. The Red Wings, who had taken a one-day hold on second place Sunday, only to hand it back to the Bisons the next night, dropped back to fourth by losing 4-3 to Baltimore.

Led by slugging Jimmy Outlaw, the Chiefs lashed out 18 hits to score their third win in a row and the 14th in the last 18 stars. Outlaw connected for five successive singles and drove in as many runs.

The Bears, who stretched their league lead to 12 full games, slammed four Bison hurlers for 16 hits, eight of which were good for extra bases and three of which were homers.

The Wings lost a chance to grade back second place when they "booted" three runs to the Orioles in the ninth inning.

The fifth-place Jersey City Giants kept skidding further behind the leaders when they took a 6-4 beating from Montreal Royals. It was the Giants' six defeat and dropped them 7½ games back of the Red Wings.

Pirates Return From Road In First Place

NEW YORK, July 13 (C.P.). — Back home in first place!

That has a comfortable sound for any ball club, especially for one which hasn't had a taste of world series glory for more than a decade and hasn't finished as high as second since 1933. It's just the position the Pittsburgh Pirates are in to-day.

They finished up their road chores in Chicago yesterday by pounding out a 14-6 victory over the hapless Cubs. It was their 13th straight victory—the longest streak since 1922 when they also won 13—and it put them in the lead by a hair's breadth or two. To-day they return home to face the National League's eastern clubs, starting with Brooklyn Dodgers, who knocked New York Giants out of the lead by beating them 13-5.

By one way of counting, the Giants have a half-game bulge, but since they have played more games, their percentage is lower, .635 to Pittsburgh's .638. And that's what they pay off on.

Indians Beat Senators.

The American League came close to having a shift in leadership as well, for Cleveland Indians took a 9-8 setback at Washington in the first game of their eastern tour while the fast-stepping New York Yankees knocked off St. Louis Browns twice ,7-3 and 10-5. The Tribe managed to hold the top by a half-game margin, but the Yanks and their backers figure it's just a matter of time before they cut that down.

Brooklyn explored the heights of sixth place for the first time since the middle of May as they gained their first triumph over the Giants in 11 clashes. Cincinnati Reds beat out St. Louis 6-5 in the other National League game and dropped the Cards to seventh.

The remaining major league contest saw Chicago White Sox, scoring five runs on homers by Mike Kreevich and Joe Kuhel, hand the Athletics their eighth straight defeat, 8-6. Detroit and Boston Red Sox were rained out, while the Phillies and Boston Bees had an open date.

17-Hit Attack.

Al Todd and Paul Waner paced the 17-hit Pirate attack that produced one of the Bucs' most impressive triumphs and gave the Cubs their sixth straight setback. Todd drove in five runs with a homer, double and single while Waner made four singles.

The Giants didn't exactly throw away their game, but four errors were an important factor in Brooklyn's eight-run first inning and so were four passes.

The Yankees made it 12 victories and a tie in their last 14 games as Lou Gehrig and Joe DiMaggio contributed homers, the 14th for each, and Red Ruffing batted in three runs with a pair of doubles in the opener to help win his 12th game.

That was a typical Yankee steamrollering, and the Indians played one of their regular "staggering" games. They rallied twice to take the lead, gained an 8-8 tie in the ninth when "Bad News" Hale belted a homer, then went down when Bill Zuber and Johnny Humphries loaded the sacks in the ninth and Sam West's fly scored Ossie Bluege from third.

STRIKE HINDERS BUSINESS

Colombia's students' strike, which threatened to cause disturbances in many important cities, upset the work of the legislature and seriously handicapped business.

Deloro Defeats Politicians In League Game

Deloro increased their standing in the league on Tuesday night when they defeated the C.C.F. at King Edward Park by the score of 4 goals to 1. The losers lost many scoring opportunities through lack of first time shooting. The standing now reads:

	W.	L.	D.	F.	A.	Pt.
Brinton Ath.	5	0	0	26	5	10
Can. General	3	2	0	10	7	6
Deloro	3	3	0	9	13	6
C.C.F.	0	6	0	4	24	0

Two points for a win, one for a draw.

Opening Very Slow.

The spin of the coin fell in favor of Deloro. The visitors introduced the cup style of play to test Chamberlain, C.C.F. goalie, with shots at close range. Henwood, C.C.F. outside right, repeatedly broke away on the wing to send beautiful efforts across the goal where opportunities went abegging. After 20 minutes of play, close combination by the left wing of the visitors found Brooks unmarked. He had no difficulty in registering the first counter. While at the other end, the Politicians did everything but score as they confined the ball to the Deloro territory, with Hart and Cousins working overtime to offset the efforts of Smelt. Then Deloro custodian saved a rocket drive from the foot of Dyer. Exchanges continued ever up until the interval—Deloro 1, C.C.F. 0.

Poor Marksmanship.

On resuming, the Politicians opened up a steady attack upon O'Neill, who made some smart saves from the foot of Dyer and Henwood. The pace was fast for a while, with the Brown-Bradley-Brooks combination working to perfection which resulted in the latter sending a rising shot into the rigging. Smelt headed a beautiful counter from a Henwood cross into goal. All of a sudden the Deloro aggregation re-arranged their team to bring in Townson at centre-half, while W. Hart went to outside right. It was from a pass by Hart that Brown was able to score the third counter. Five minutes from the end Hart made the count read—Deloro 4, C.C.F. 1.

The teams:

C.C.F. — J. Chamberlain, goal; W. Denisin and E. Jobe, backs; F. Lawrence, W. Beggs, and F. Mayette, halves; S. Henwood, F. Dyer, G. McDonald, R. Smelt, and H. Lapham, forwards.

Deloro — C. O'Neill, goal; T. Cousins and J. Hart, backs; N. O'Neill, W. Hart, and J. Sproul, halves; R. E. Elliott, E. Bradley, G. Brooks, W. Brown, and P. Gray, forwards; sub., J. Townson.

Referee—Tom Foster.

In a recent exhibition softball game, George St. Majors, church loop senior champions, took a 9-6 win over Cogs of the Southend League. Ron. It was a neat exhibition tussle most of the route. The teams:

Cogs: A. Heal, 2b; Watkins, c; Todd, p; Mackness, lf; Jamieson, 1b; Mowry ss; Murduff, rf; Callahan, cf; C. Heal, 3b.

C.G.E. Lasses Defeat Keene

C.G.E. took the lead in the second half schedule of the Girls' Softball League last night with a 6-4 victory over Keene before a good crowd at the Bowl. In a tidy twirlers' duel, the local squad had two good frames to tally three runs each time and cop the nod. Marilyn McCarthy held the losers to four scattered hits while fanning eight and walking but one in a nifty performance, and Bea McDowell allowed but five hits and four walks as she fanned three in a good chore. C.G.E. gave their pitcher good support but Keene kicked in with eight fielding errors.

T. Mills of Keene hit a homer and a double while M. Belle got the other two hits. For C.G.E., I. McCrank, A. DeCarlo, P. Bigelow, A. Clark and E. Craig hit a single each. Nifty fielding features were turned in by T. Mills and M. Miller of the losers and A. Clark and P. Bigelow of the victors. The Keene team has an exhibition tilt against Danforth Aces at Earlscourt Park, Toronto, today, return game being here later. The teams:

Keene: H. Nelson, ss; R. Wood, 3b; T. Mills, lf; G. Nelson, cf; D. Cocks, c; B. McDowell, p; M. Miller, 2b; M. Belle, 1b; V. Patterson, rf.

Scrappy Chinese Force Japs Near Crack-Up

NEW YORK, July 12 — (AP). — The Chino-Japanese conflict is entering a critical stage which may determine the ultimate outcome and it is a far cry from victory yet, for badly battered China's chances have improved.

A crack-up in the morale of the suffering civilian population of either country would mean the begining of the end. That is what Japan is playing for—a Chinese collapse—in Nippon's eager drive along the Yangtse river against China's provisional capital, Hankow.

And that is why Japan has been so insistent on this campaign that she has sent a third note to other nations asking that they evacuate their citizens from Yangtse Valley cities which may be bombed in the Japanese advance.

Loss of it Capital naturally is a grievous blow to the morale of any country. And by the same token, the capture of Hankow would give the Japanese a big leg-up back home.

Army Needs Boost With Citizens

The Japanese Government needs exactly that, for the country's economic structure has been shaken in the first year of war, and the hand of hardship is heavy on the nation.

Japan likely will capture Hankow. There is much doubt however, whether the Chinese morale will crack under this blow. They may merely pull back as they did when they lost their Capital of Nanking, and keep on harrassing the Japanese.

This question was answered indirectly the other day by Japanese War Minister Seishiro Itagaki, when he declared Japan must be prepared to fight "at least 10 years." The censensus of experts of the western world, however, is that Japan couldn't possibly carry on such a war for 10 years, because her economic structure would crack before that time expired.

This gets us back to the original assertion of the Chinese when the war started: "If we can only hang on for a couple of years, the Japanese will beat themselves."

Assuming, however, that Japan can crush the Chinese military resistance, she still has to compel or persuade the Chinese to cooperate with her administration. That is the crux of the thing, and students of the Orient say it will be a cold day when John Chinaman takes in the laundry of his Japanese conqueror.

MORE ABOUT—

Two Test Plots

particulads reviewed by Mr. Newman and Mr. Keegan in his discussion. Stakes bearing the name of each variety enable any visitor to distinguish them and not for himself their distinctive qualities.

Mr. Keegan, speaking at the Clarence Mann farm, said he had visited three other test locations that are under the supervision of the Ontario Agricultural College, two in York County and one in Ontario County, and the samples on Mr. Mann's farm rated best in his inspection, partly as a result of a better seasonal distribution of rainfall, and also because the soil seemed to be better. Mr. Newman did not make any comparisons in his talk at the Gordon Hancock farm, but he said he was greatly impressed with the results which will be made available for farmers generally when the plots have been carefull harvested and their grain examined.

Both speakers explained that the Governments have undertaken a new policy, at least throughout Ontario, of planting samples of many varieties of grain on selected farms both in Eastern and Western Ontario, in confining all the experiments to the O.A.C. on the one hand and the Dominion's farm at Ottawa on the other. They expect to obtain definite knowledge about the suitability of varieties to particular regions, and thereby to be in position to afford farmers exact information and advice as to what grains would likely return them the best results.

Quaker Oats Interested.

Mr. Newman said that a great deal of effective work had already been accomplished in the Peterborough district as the result of A. D. Runions' initiative when he was the agricultural representative in this county.

"Mr. Cutting of the Quaker Oats Company spoke to us about the wheat mixtures that were grown in this section." Mr. Newman said, "and inquired whether something could be done to improve the standard of locally grown grain for the purpose of making it suitable for use by his company. So we tried the club testing plan, we got elite Dawson's Golden Chaff winter wheat, and the result is that you now have a lot of excellent Dawson wheat in this area. But, the seasons have diffirent effects in the gluten content of the grain, and last year it was a little too high, and the Quaker Oats Cmpany had to bring in other wheat of lower gluten content. This year there may be less gluten. I understand that is the expectation Mr. Cutting has expressed."

Mr. Newman said that although Junior No. 6 wheat "runs a little lower in gluten than Dawson's, it is not so winter hardy, and we feel it would be unwise for the farmers to jump from their good Dawson to any other variety without having complete data to advise that change. The logical thing to do is to test both of them and three or four other varieties in representaitve places for such qualities as yield, strength of straw, ripening, and so on. Junior No. 6 may not be better than Dawson when grown here, and that is what we are trying to find out. We shall get some information this year, but the data we need cannot be collected in a short time. It will take more than one year to find that out, to duplicate our tests, for milling and baking purposes, and see how they compare. I would say, go on with Dawson's Golden Chaff until it can be proved to the farmers that some other variety will pay them better."

To Extend Experiments

Mr. Patterson said the arrangements were being made now to extend the experiments by planting larger areas in specimen seed. Mr. Hancock has agreed to co-operate by putting in some varieties, but other farms are needed, probably in the Rice Lake section, and elsewhere in the district, as a plan for eventually developing a soft white wheat low in protein.

Some of the Barleys

One of the varieties of barley that stood out in that section on the Hancock experimental row was Pentland. Mr. Newman said it is especially resistant to rust, it is strong in the straw, and although it is a little on the small side in the kernel, "it will yield with the best of them and produce a lot of grain."

"Pentland is well worth watching. I don't know any barley that looks nicer. However, if you are growing for the malting trade, I don't think I'd be too serious about Pentland. One thing about it is that I know it was standing when other varieties were flat last year."

Velvet No. 2 makes excellent feed barley because its straw remains greener than nearly all the others. "You want to watch the results we get from this variety," Mr. Newman said.

O.A.C. 21—"It may take a long time to beat it, and I'm not sure that we will."

Mensury—"Maltsters like this variety as good as O.A.C. 21. We have been growing it on our main farm at Ottawa because we find it a little better in some respects than O.A.C. 21."

Newal—"A good yielder."

Byng—Not so long in the straw as the others.

Trebi—Not wanted by maltsters. Has a great reputation as feed barley, but is not doing well in the east as in the west.

Hanchan—Inclined to lodge in heavy soil. This was the only variety of grain in the Hancock field that had lodged or fallen.

Peatland, Mr. Newman said was good to mix with buckwheat in planting. It was also strongly resistant to rust.

Oat Rust Problem

The standard variety of oats, Mr. Newman went on, include Victory, Alaska, Banner, O.A.C. and others. The Department is trying to eliminate rust in stem and leaf. Some varieties are susceptible to rust in the stem, others in the leaf. By selection and culture, the object is to produce a variety that will withstand rust entirely.

Erban and Lanark, comparatively new varieties, don't take rust in the leaf, and Vanguard resists rust in the stem. Crossing these varieities, Erban and Vanguard, have produced other varieties that are being experimented with in forty-four plots in eastern Ontario, and at as many more in the western section of the province "to see how they react to rust, especially whether they resist in both stem and leaf."

Mr. Newman said there were 45 forms of leaf rust and more than 100 forms of stem rust, indicating the problem that has to be overcome. His discussion continued along the row of oats, dealing with each specimen plot containing varieties that as yet are only experiments. They have not yet been named:

At Clarence Mann's farm, Mr. Keegan discussed the varieties of grain reveiewed by Mr. Newman, and also others planted only in the O.A.C. experiments on that farm.

Find Body, Seek Rest After Launch Upsets

VAL D'OR, Que., July 13 (CP).—Dragging was resumed early today in an effort to establish the death toll at least one life when the M. S. Jean of a boating accident which claimed overturned with 32 passengers a short distance from the shore of Blouin Lake.

Only the body of Edward Atchison, 23, was recovered late last night after six hours of dragging and police said they doubted if there were any other victims. Reports, however, said two or three others had disappeared with Atchison and further dragging was ordered.

Fellow passengers of Atchison expressed the belief he had been injured when the 30-foot launch aptparently fouled the line of a moored boat and capsized before righting itself late yesterday afternoon. Atchison and about a dozen others riding on the roof were thrown into the water but the others remained within the glass-enclosed cabin, though the launch filled with water to the gunwales.

Persons on shore and other holidayers reached the scene almost immediately, removing the cabin passengers, many of whom were small children taking advantage of Capt. E. E. Marcou's offer of a free ride.

The accident occurred only a short distance from shallow water and most of those within the cabin were guided to safety with little difficulty.

Capt. Marcou had pulled alongside the wharf and had offered a ride to a few persons standing there. More than 30 took advantage of the offer, however, and Atchison and about a dozen others were sitting on the cabin roof when the boat upset. He disappeared immediately

Mrs. Horlick Dies

Hastened, it is believed, by grieving over the loss of her daughter, the death occurred at Racine, Wis., of Mrs. William Horlick, Sr., ABOVE, widow of the founder of the $20,000,000 malted milk fortune. Toronto police were still investigating the death of Mrs. Horlick's daughter, Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, who died in Toronto at the house where she had been a guest for almost a year.

BOARD OF HEALTH WILL SPONSOR WELL BABIES' CLINIC IN CITY

M.O.H. Report Favorable On The Project

The Well Babies' Clinic will continue in the future as an activity of the board of health, it was decided at a meeting Tuesday when the board followed a recommendation made by Dr. G. Murray Fraser, M.O.H.

The clinic, which gave notice it would be forced to cease operations due to lack of funds, has been operated since 1919 as a unit separate from the board of health. Volunteer workers have done much of the work of the organization, Dr. Fraser conducting examinations. In his report the M.O.H. paid tribute to the voluntary workers, said he hoped the assistance of such workers would be given in future. He suggested that possibly some club might take over the work as a project, under the supervision of the board of health.

Ald. James Dutton and Ald. Herbert McCannan has moved the resolution by which the board will carry on the work of the clinic, and expressed appreciation to those voluntary workers who have given their services in the past. Ald. Dutton said as he hoped the work would continue. The assistance of voluntary workers should be welcomed at all times, he said.

Lily Display Is Open To Public

Peterborough's flower lovers are reminded of the showing of lilies and other flowers at the home of John A. Smith, 150 Benson avenue, Thursday and Friday evening. Several varieties seldom seen by most people are Sunset, which attains a height of 6 to 8 feet, its petals a brilliant red recurved, yellow centre and deep spotted, and Shuksan. This latter lily is a hybrid developed by the late Dr. Griffiths. The ground color is capucine yellow and spots are claret-brown, shading to Morocco red. Other lilies in bloom are Regale, Creelman, Wilsoni, Davidi, Willmottiea, Princeps and Shelbourne hybrid. Other flowers to be shown will include a fine display of roses.

Mr. Smith has arranged this show Thursday and Friday evening as a means of obtaining funds for the exhibition of flowers by the Peterborough Horticultural Society, of which he is president, in August. A silver collection will be taken up.

Threshing Wheat On Otonabee Farm

Threshing of fall wheat on Dave McIntyre's farm near Mather's Corner in Otonabee was reported to the Examiner today and is believed to be the first work in this advanced stage of harvesting in Peterborough county.

From various sources the consensus of information indicates that Peterborough farmers are generally beginning to cut an exceptionally fine crop of fall wheat. Robert Scott of the Chemong Road spoke a few days ago about a field of wheat on his farm which he considered to be one of the best he had seen on his land. Cliff Hancock on the second concession has eighty-five acres of wheat, and his reference to it was "just come out and see it for yourself". These are samples of the news coming from the country. The grain looks splendid, the wheat is brown and has stood up well, and the spring crop fills out an agricultural picture that extends all through the Peterborough district.

Harry Kester Is Holding His Own

Harry Kester, the young man who was rescued from drowning in the Trent Canal on Sunday night and resuscitated by the members of the Peterborough Fire Department, is still in a very serious condition in St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was taken soon after the rescue. On Tuesday double pneumonia set in, and Dr. Bob Young, who has been attending him, states that he has a 50-50 chance to live. This afternoon it was stated at the hospital that he was holding his own.

The Rambling REPORTERS

LOSING RESPECT FOR WOMEN.

Ald. Walter Stocker is fast losing his high regard for the feminine sex in its entirety. Most usual remark for Walter to make during council meetings in the past when the name of any girl or woman was brought up, has been "She's a fine girl, I know her well."

But at yesterday's board of health meeting Walter reported in shocked tones that he had learned from the caretaker of the women's rest room on the market square that last Saturday night she found there four empty whiskey bottles and two empty beer bottles.—P.

Ald. Gordon Is Inconsistent Board Is Told

"I am writing you this letter so that I may have an opportunity of appearing before the board and discussing some of the things that the Medical Officer of Health has not done, while he is pursuing these poor people who cannot afford to put in sanitary connections," a letter from Hon. G. N. Gordon to the board of health stated yesterday. The board instructed the secretary to invite Ald. Gordon to appear before them to state his complaints.

The letter was written in connection with a complaint to Ald. Gordon by a woman who claimed she is being persecuted by the city. She has been forced to make change after change on her property and now the medical officer is insisting she put in a sewer connection, which she cannot afford, she wrote to Ald. Gordon.

In his letter to the board, Ald. Gordon complained that the woman has been forced to tear down one building to satisfy a milk company while at the same time the Canada Packers has been permitted by the M.O.H. to pervade an entire area with a high stench, causing hundreds of thousands of dollars loss in property values. No attempt has been made by the M.O.H. to alter this commission, he charged.

"At the last council meeting Mr. Gordon was insistent the regulations of the board be enforced and this is a case in point," declared Ald. Dutton in reply to Ald. Gordon's letter. "He should be consistent."

Another letter from Ald. Gordon resulted in the board instructing Sanitary Inspector Ronald MacPherson to examine the Auburn Mill for evidence of stream pollution. Ald. Gordon said it had been brought to his attention that the Otonabee River is being seriously polluted by the woollen mill and asked for the investigation.

Traffic Court Has Heavy List

When it was announced in traffic court this morning that the crown was not ready to proceed with a reckless driving charge against Fergus Condin, arising out of an accident on the Lakefield road in which J. Moynihan also figured W. J. Arthur Fair protested vigorously. His client, Condin, he said was taking a course in commercial radio in Toronto, he was all ready to go on with the case and was losing time and money over the delay.

On the other hand W. B. Gordon who represented Moynihan wanted an adjournment.

The suggestion was made that the whole thing was a civil matter but Traffic Officer McClure declared that both drivers had been guilty of reckless driving and the charges would be pressed.

The cases were finally fixed for Saturday and will have to go on then.

There was a long list of traffic charges this morning. J. F. Reid, 577 Water Street was fined $5 and $3 costs for speeding on Highway No. 7, and Henry Campbell was assessed $5 and $2.50 costs for not producing a license. Roy Marks, Parnell Street was nicked $2 and 75 cents costs for carrying a passenger on his bicycle. It costs Arthur Little of Dummer $5 and $2.50 costs for not having license markers on a trailer and Wilson Webb of Norwood paid $10 and $2.50 costs on a reckless driving charge to which he pleaded guilty, his offence consisting of having four persons on the driver's seat.

Howard Karr, Toledo, O., was fined $5 and $3.00 costs for not stopping at a stop street and B. Bell of Garden Hill $4 and $1 costs for not obeying traffic lights at Charlotte and Park Streets.

COMPLAINS OF INSECTS.

There were a number of drunk charges in Police Court this morning, but apparently none of them were linked up with the celebration of the Glorious Twelfth. There were several pleas of guilty, but in one case it took the evidence of Chief Constable Newhall and Constables Puffer and McGillen to get a conviction, the accused putting up a strenuous argument that he had not been drunk. Incidentally he took advantage of the occasion to complain that he had been badly bitten by insects while in the cells during the night.

Scenes As Glorious Twelfth Is Celebrated In Peterborough

Happiest youngster in the entire hour-long Orange parade on Tuesday afternoon was 5-year-old Jackie Thompson, 176 Charlotte Street. Shown at TOP LEFT, Jackie was drum major of the J. W. Bell Memorial Chapter No. 1175's crack band. At TOP RIGHT are two of the oldest ladies to watch the parade go by. At LEFT is Mrs. A. E. Scott, 114 Maria Street, 80 years of age. At RIGHT is Mrs. Lydia Long, 799 George Street, 92 years of age. One of the oldest lodges in Ontario was that from Bewdley. Organized 104 years ago, the unit has never missed a celebration of the Glorious Twelfth. Leading light in the strong order today is Worshipful Master William Dickson, shown at LOWER LEFT, who attended his 48th celebration on Tuesday. The Argyle Highlander from Belleville, shown captive at LOWER RIGHT, is Don Grant. The two girls shown with him said that any man in kilts is fair game and that they succeeded in capturing him. One of them got his cap. His buddy eluded capture but lost his cap too. The girls are Dot McCallum (LEFT) and Ted Coombes, both of Peterborough. (Examiner Staff Photos.)

Accused Is Given Benefit Of Doubt

"I may be going a little out of my way to give you the benefit of the doubt in this case," said Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning in dismissing a charge of illegal possession of liquor against Sherman Godfrey of Young's Point.

Provincial Constable D. M. Carruthers told of seeing Godfrey and his uncle in Young's Point and said that when he called to the uncle to stop, Godfrey had gone up a side road for some distance and witness heard a sound of glass, as if bottles had struck a stone or clinked together. Godfrey then came back to the police car and when asked what he had dropped up the road said he had dropped nothing. The officer went up the road to where the accused had been and found two bottles of beer which were put in as an exhibit.

County Constable Harry McLachlan who was with the provincial officer at the time corroborated his evidence. One of the bottles put in as an exhibit was opened and the officer swore it smelt like beer.

W. B. Gordon, who defended Godfrey, asked for a dismissal of the case but Magistrate Gee said the accused should be put on his defence.

In the witness box Godfrey said he had gone up the road to deliver a note and knew nothing about the bottles of beer the officer had found. He declared he did not have them.

Magistrate Gee, in dismissing the case, said the circumstances were very suspicious, but he had decided to give the accused the benefit of the doubt.

Girl Is Suffering Slight Concussio

Viola Edwards, 16 whose home is at Lock 19, suffered a slight concussion and sustained a number of cuts, and abraisions last night when she fell from the rear of a truck driven by Charlie Willis, 217 Princess Street. The girl was standing at the rear of the vehicle in company with Tom McCarthy and as the truck which was driving south on George Street turned east at Lake Street, she fell off and struck the road heavily. Dr. Gordon rendered first aid and the girl was taken to her home

Make Attendance Compulsory At Chest Clinics

Compulsory attendance at free chest clinics or examination by their own physicians for all tubercular contacts, is being sought by the Board of Health here. Tuesday the board passed a resolution asking the Department of Health to take such steps as would make examination compulsory

The move was brought about by lack of response by tubercular contacts, all of whom may some day be confined to sanataria at the city's expense, on the occasion of the travelling chest clinic's last visit here. Ald. James Dutton expressed himself concerned about the lack of response and pointed out that the government is spending large sums of money to provide such a service. Attendance at such a clinic or examination by a physician is essential because either course might bring about an early diagnosis of tuberculosis or might even prevent the disease's obtaining a foothold.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, M.O.H., said that a number of people had been informed about the clinic and had failed to put in an appearance. He cited the case of one woman who has been notified before each clinic, who promises to come for examination, and who never yet has been present.

3 False Alarms During Celebration

If Fire Chief George Gimblett had just caught a glimpse of the prankster whose faulty sense of humor led him on to ring in false alarms while the city was crowded with visitors on Tuesday, there would have been no more Orange celebration for him.

Three different times at the height of the festivities alarm boxes were pulled and the Department went roaring through crowded streets only to find all were false alarms. Driving the huge trucks in the middle of the traffic jams that Peterborough experienced on Tuesday is a hazardous enterprise and the Fire Chief was more than justified in his anger when he discovered the Department had been called out just because someone thought it would be a joke to watch the fire fighters roar down the streets.

WON DUFFUS CUP

Robert Armstrong of Ida, winner of the Duffus Cup in the field crop competition in white winter wheat, carried on by the Peterborough Exhibition, was presented with the silver trophy at the farm of Gordon Hancock in Smith Tuesday night. Mr. Hancock was himself the winner in 1936, and Mr. Armstrong captured it last year. Mr. Duffus congratulated him not only as the winner against strong competition but also for his generally progressive attitude toward his work of farming.

Nashua Factory Is Operating Full Capacity

Operating at full capacity of its production, the Nashua Paper Company is one of the brightest spots in Peterborough's framework of manufacturing industries.

The plant has been working around the clock in night and day shifts for the last two months, filling orders that have been augmented by increased export business. The present peak of activity is likely to continue for another month at least. Although the outlook for August is not as rosy as it has been since late Spring and the first part of summer, improving general conditions throughout the country may maintain the plant in its booming conditions.

Several of the employees report that overtime is general with them, bringing bulkier envelopes, and they are hoping the current peak output will continue all summer. And these men say the average wage throughout the year down at the south Aylmer Street factory ranks with the highest in the city for what may be roughly called the same kind of work.

The Nashua Paper Company is one of Peterborough's diversified industries as a whole help to carry the city even through depressions without a generally serious dislocation of employment as is likely to occur where all the manufacturing eggs are in one basket, that is in communities dependent largely upon one central and predominant industry.

John R. Marshall, general manager, confirmed the information today that the plant is operating at capacity, speeding up to the limit several months ago and likely to continue at that rate for the next month at least.

Milk Refused On Account Of Temperature

Hot weather is keeping the sanitary inspector running from one milk company to the next checking on the temperatures of incoming raw milk, a report to the board of health Tuesday indicated.

Sanitary Inspector Ronald MacPherson reported he had turned back 2,480 pounds of raw milk during the past month, most of it because the temperature was too high. In his six months as sanitary inspector, MacPherson has only turned down 480 pounds of milk previous to this date.

"The Milk Control Board, realizing the rapidity of bacterial growth in milk of high temperature, have legislated that the temperature of milk arriving at a pasteurizing plant shall not exceed 60 degrees F," he reported. "In order that this might be, the milk on the farm must be cooled to 50 degrees F. or lower. It was necessary to reject a large quantity of milk arriving at the plants at temperatures ranging from 70 degrees to 85 degrees F."

The excessively high temperatures revealed their effects in the results of the bacterial counts estimated by the Methylene Blue reduction test, he said. In January there was only one sample graded as No. 3—milk having bacterial content of over four million—while in the past month ten samples were graded as No. 3. Similarly, in January 80 per cent was graded No. 1, while this month only 60 per cent graded so high.

"Clean, cool milk is a credit to any producer and of inestimable value to the consumer," his report stated. "In our desire to obtain such, notices have been sent to all producers that henceforth milk arriving at pasteurizing plants must conform more closely to the standards set out in the Milk Control Act."

"Milk is Cleaner."

Mr. MacPherson said he had found an improvement in the cleanliness of the milk, as revealed by the sediment tests. "These tests have been made from time to time first were made in January and over a period of six months. The 11 per cent. of the supply was found 'very dirty.' This month the amount of such milk was just four per cent."

A cross-examination between city water supply and a contaminated private well was discovered by the inspector when he visited a plant where a fruit beverage is prepared and bottled. Its removal resulted in the disappearance of colon bacilli which he had previously found to be present in the beverage.

A continued gradual improvement in the dairy farms of the district was reported. "Such improvements as properly constructed cooling vats, adequate protection of milk houses from flies, dust and dirt, whitewashing of stables, etc., were noticed on a number of farms. However, it was found necessary in several instances to exclude the milk from the city until such time as certain objectionable conditions were remedied."

About ninety per cent. of restaurants are now using the chlorine sterilizer in washing dishes and utensils, he said. All tourist homes in the city were inspected and all but one found in satisfactory condition. "Exception was taken to this one because it lacked sanitary conveniences and running water although it was within the city limits," he reported.

All Around the Fountain But No Water To Be Had

It was so hot on Tuesday afternoon that doubtless a good number of these people shown here were wishing at the time the picture was taken that some careless worker would turn on the fountain towering above them. They found this a shady spot at least, while they listened to speeches in Victoria Park. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

CHAPTER 37

NATURE OR fate or whatever it is that controls human affairs seems a trifle diabolical at times. By months of smooth sailing it lulls us into unwariness, into expecting too much; then all at once—a storm breaks.

Sometimes there are harbingers; sometimes it just starts raining, then pours. Bill Baron, foreman of the Dale-Durango ranch, was meditating on these things there at daybreak, waiting for his breakfast.

One of the cowpunchers had just ridden up out of the dawn with bad news.

"Doc, somebody slipped into that back field last night and took all th' cows."

"Hunh?" Bill was astounded.

"Fact. Th' whole 20 of 'em. Cut th' wire and drove 'em through. I followed their trail a ways, then headed back here to tell you."

It was not tragic news, but it was bad. The Dale-Durango could stand losing 20 head of cattle, but it seemed somehow a bad precedent to Bill. Things had been running smoothly since the day he and Ellen decided to buy and restore the old Durango property. Too smoothly. The law of averages usually brings some trouble when you have a long spell without worry it usually means trouble is just stacking up.

Bill ate solemnly. The ranch hands, stealing glances at him, knew the boss was deeply concerned. The usual morning jokes fell flat on him; he did not respond in kind.

"Ed, you and Shorty take some grub and water and see how far you can follow that trail," he directed when eating was done. "Come back or phone back tonight, if you can. Don't try any heroics. Just gather any news you can."

A new bunch of bulls and cows was due to arrive this morning—huge hump-backed Brahmas, wildest cow-critters ever brought to America. They had been used mostly as show animals for dangerous bareback riding in rodeos. Bill knew. He had bought two dozen of them for tests, on the theory that their hardiness and size might be bred into an American strain to produce a more profitable beef animal than was ordinarily raised in the west now. He had to receive these coming Brahmas; that's why he couldn't go after the stolen cattle himself.

He went immediately to the main ranch house to report the theft to Ellen Dale.

"Sorry to tell you, Skipper, that the bandits have raided us," he tried to make it sound light and bantering. "I don't think it's Jesse James, or Billy the Kid, but some new robber gang. I aim to hire Buffalo Bill to trail them."

Ellen gazed down at him from her front porch. Felix Montoya stood there.

"Whatever are you talking about, Bill Baron?"

"I'm saying that thieves broke into that newest test pasture last night, and lifted 20 of your choicest cows, ma'am."

"No! Really?"

"Yes. Nothing alarming, probably. But I wanted you to know."

Ellen was incredulous. "But Bill, how can anyone steal a thing as big as a cow? And 20 of them. This isn't last century. This is 1938!"

"Yeah, I know. But this part of Arizona is just about as wild as it was last century, let me remind you. I mean there aren't very many people out here, except in some of the towns. And there are thousands of square miles. Canyons and mountains and valleys without a human or even a trail of any kind. Isn't it so, Felix?"

"Si, senor!" Felix lapsed into Spanish unconsciously. He appeared interested.

"Ellen, did you know more cattle were rustled in 1937 than in any other year in history? Fact! The American Cattlemen's association reported it. A lot of it's done nowadays by motor truck—slip into a herd at night and get off with six or eight fine animals. No trail. But ours were stolen by horsemen. Driven away. I haven't been over there yet. Sent Ed and Shorty. They'll report pretty soon. I got to take over the Brahmas this morning, remember. You'll want to see them, Both of you."

"Certainly," Ellen nodded.

"Don't want to alarm you, of course. We'll report the theft to the sheriff. And go after the steers ourselves. We've been lucky. No trouble at all to date. We had some coming, I guess."

The Brahmas were there by 10 o'clock and Bill had a half dozen mounted men on hand to receive them. These 24 animals had come by motor truck. Cooped up for several hours, they were excited, angry, bellowing. Everyone not tied down at the moment with another task came to see the huge new animals. One bull was positively mountainous. Ellen Dale, who had been walking with Felix, saw the trucks drive up, and they walked across the front area there toward the main corrals.

Then all at once it happened.

When the first truck backed up to the corral gate, the huge bull became impatient.

B A R-A F-R-R-R-R-R " he roared deeply, and leaped up onto the side stanchion that had held him in the truck. It was more than head high, but he made it—crashed his front hooves over, breaking the timbers, tumbling out, bellowing onto the ground.

"LOOK OUT!" yelled Bill. "That brute's dangerous.

The natives all knew it. Brahma bulls have a reputation in the southwest.

But Ellen Dale was a newcomer there. And she and Felix Montoya had approached on foot! The furious bull saw them instantly, and charged.

Ellen shrieked—stumbled and fell prone. The fall most likely saved her life.

In the instant of his charge, then, the bull saw Felix, who was attired as usual in bright clothing. This diverted the charge toward the man.

Felix did the only sensible thing, however unheroic it may have appeared. He ran. He knew his danger, and he sped as best he could.

Bill Baron had seen it all and instantly spurred his horse. The three now formed a speeding parade which held the spectators spellbound—Felix with a fortunate lead on the bull whose head was lowered.

In all his life before, Bill Baron had never bulldogged a half dozen steers. He didn't go in for rodeo competition, and bulldogging hasn't much routine place in handling cows. But he did a spectacular thing now.

He drove his horse along side the Brahma and leaped from the saddle to the bull's horns, grasping them as he would the handle bars of a bicycle He had seen it done many times.

But even the best bulldoggers do not tackle Brahmas, and Bill had to be lucky. He was, partially so. He made the flying tackle, swung his body under the bull's neck in the correct twist. Ellen Dale screamed.

The shock of it windmilled the great animal—heels over head, then a loud PLOWP and a bellowing. For a moment the bull was stunned, and staggered slowly to its feet. That moment was enough for other mounted cowboys to dash up and drop ropes on the animal. Felix got away unscathed.

But Bill Baron lay motionless in the dust.

Montreal Orangemen Hold No Walk But Stage Picnics

Montreal, July 13.

THE "GLORIOUS TWELFTH" passed without celebration here yesterday, although many members of lodges of the Loyal Orange Association travelled to Ontario towns to take part in demonstrations there.

Celebrations have not been held here since 1877, when gunplay, killings and arrests marked the end of Montreal Orange turnouts. Most lodges confined their commemoration to picnics and special church services last week-end.

Love That Blossoms During Courtship May Not Be as Sweet in Older Age, But It Is Far More Lasting Than the World Generally Recognizes

A YOUNG couple ask me if marriage kills love. They say they have seen so many of their friends, who were so beautifully and romantically in love before marriage, apparently lose all interest and even liking for each other as soon as they were married that it has made them wonder if there is something poisonous in marriage that slays love; if the mere fact of two people being bound together does not automatically make them hate their fellow prisoners and long to break their fetters.

So they are afraid to marry. They don't want the gilt rubbed off of their gingerbread. They can't bear to think of their glamorous courtship turning into snarling, fault-finding and nagging. They don't want the thrill to go out of their kisses, the joy they have in being together turn into boredom. They don't want their marriage to turn into the sordid endurance test that so many marriages become. And so they ask: Is marriage the death of love?

To which I would reply: No. A thousand times no. Marriage is not the enemy of love. It is its best friend, its staunchest supporter, its strongest bulwark, its greatest promoter and protector.

It is true that married love does not always survive the treatment it gets. Sometimes it is killed by neglect, or it is starved to death, or it is slain by brutal manhandling, but it will stand more punishment than anything else on earth and still live. On every hand we see husbands and wives who have grown old and ugly, fat and dull; who have been grouchy, peevish and hard to live with; who have fought like cats and dogs during all of their married life, but in whose hearts still burns the sacred flame they lit in their youth.

There is no more mischievous and untrue propaganda than that which teaches that there is something peculiarly beautiful and enduring about free love. No theory could be falser. The acid test of love comes in dairly association; when a man and woman undertake to live together and are dependent upon each other; when personality clashes against personality; when selfishness meets selfishness; when tastes differ and habits conflict.

It is no easier to get along with a mistress than it is with a wife. Lovers can be just as grouchy and tight-fisted as husbands. A lovenest can hold just as much strife as a bungalow in a respectable family neighborhood . And, as a matter of fact, illicit love does not last as long as the lawful variety. Plenty of married couples celebrate their golden weddings, but a liaison seldom lasts more than a very few years. Generally its life is measured by months.

There are a thousand ways in which marriage promotes love instead of destroying it. One is that the mere sense of being bound to another; having made their choice that they must abide by; having entered into a contract that they are in honor bound to fulfill, settles men and women and does much to keep their fancies from roaming. They feel that they must make the best of their bargains and so they set in to build up Mary and John in their affections until most of them become immune to sirens and sheiks.

Add to this the natural human vanity involved in the sense of possession that makes each of us think that our own car, our house, our dog are better than other people's and you have another love motive. Just because a man's wife IS his wife enhances her value and charm in his eyes. Just because a woman's husband IS her husband puts a halo around his head and a blanket over his faults. "A poor thing," says Audrey, "but mine own," and that feeling makes millions of husbands and wives dear to the men and women to whom they are married.

Most of all, husbands and wives have the strongest tie that can bind any two human beings together, and that is a mutual interest. Their destinies are one. They rise or fall together. They must fight the battle of life shoulder to shoulder. Everything that concerns one is of vital importance to the other. And so if there is one spark of love in their breasts this keeps it burning. Every circumstance of their lives, the people they know, the gossip they hear, the places they go are ties that bind and that keeps them more interested in each other than they are in strangers and brings them closer together than they are to any other human being.

And, above all, there are the children whose little hands work the miracle of love that keeps even uncongenial husbands and wives together and makes antagonistic ones forget their differences in their devotion to the little creatures they have brought into the world. Of course, many married people do cease to care for each other. But it isn't marriage that kills love. It is just human weakness and frailty and dumbness.

DEAR MISS DIX—Should schoolgirls use lipstick?
THE ROXBY CLUB.

ANSWER:

If they do it in moderation. A little rouge on pale lips improves a girl's looks wonderfully, but if she daubs up her mouth with it until it looks like a cut of butcher's meat it makes her look hideous and digusting.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, July 14.

Rather conflicting planetary directions are predominant on this day. While there may be definite benefit from diligence, industry and close application to dependable matters in hand, yet there may be lures of a rather speculative nature that will have surprising and devastating angles. Fraud or duplicity seem imminent, particularly in connection with writings, publishing or untried fanance. The old rut and beaten path are safer.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look fr success and some measure of recognition if they will be content with the old order, involving meritorious labor, application and attention to details and system, rather than flights into untried fields or speculative enterprises. Writings, publishing and correspondence are in jeopardy. Definite change, adventure or romance might prove devastating.

A child born on this day, although having definite talents, ingenuity, skill and versatility, may have certain mental quirks, temperamental proclivities or eccentricities which might prove detrimental to its success unless such tokens of "genius" be bent in the proper direction.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

LEADING TO WEAKNESS

THERE IS one advantage possessed alone by the player who sits at the right of the declarer. He is the only one of the four who ever can be sure he is leading up to weakness on the part of the last enemy play to a trick. When he looks at the dummy, he can see what is the weakest suit. A lead of that has a chance to find his partner with a winning honor with no risk of putting it "under the hammer" of a higher hostile one.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Three different types of play and defense were used on this deal in a duplicate, all playing a 3-No Trumps contract by South and all receiving the spade 9 as the opening lead, because of East's spade bid.

At table 1, declarer played the 4 from dummy, East the 7 and South won with the K. He then tried the diamond finesse, which held, and cashed five clubs and the diamond A, making one short of game.

At table 2, declarer played the Q of spades from dummy and East won with the A. Fearing to give declarer two spade tricks if he continued the suit, he switched to a diamond, which North won with the A. With two sure spade tricks, two diamonds and five clubs, game was made.

At table 3, good defense set good play. Declarer covered the spade 9 with the Q and East took with the A. He then led the heart 5, which West won with the K. The return of the spade 2 now limited South to one spade trick. Whether he played the 10 or 4 did not matter, as East could top either.

How should South play for 3-No Trumps after the lead of the diamond 4, East playing the 7?

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

There was a great deal of excitement down at the frog pond behind the garden wall. The frogs splashed into the water and splashed out again. They made loud noises which sounded like someone beating a big bass drum.

"The frogs are having a picnic," Mother explained to the children.

The children laughed when they heard this. But Knarf (he was the shadow of little Frank) wanted to go down to the pond at once. "I've never seen a frog's picnic," he told Hanid, the shadow girl.

So the two shadows slipped away and hurried down the little grassy

They heard the voices of the frogs slope to the frog pond.

As they came near, the noise made by the frogs sounded louder and louder. They heard the splashing. They heard the voices of the frogs which sounded like someone beating a big bass drum. Because they understood frog language (which not many children do), they knew exactly what the frogs were saying.

"They're certainly having a wonderful picnic." Knarf exclaimed.

Just then they heard a deep voice —it was the grandfather of all the frogs speaking. He said:

"Frogs can sit
And frogs can sing,
But no one but a frog
Can—"

And the chorus of frogs answered: Time for Lunch.

"Spring! Spring! SPRING!"

Then they all splashed into the water.

The next moment they were all back on their rocks again, laughing in their deep voices.

Knarf and Hanid crept up close to the shrubs which grew around the pond. They peered through them. They saw the grandfather of all the frogs sitting on the biggest and highest rock of all.

"And now, children," he boomed, "it's time fr lunch."

"Lunch! Lunch! It's time f lunch!" all the smaller frogs shouted joyfully.

Knarf turned to Hanid with a smile. "We just got here in time. I'm pretty hungry, aren't you? We'll eat lunch with them. We've never had lunch at a frog's picnic before. Oh, this is going to be wonderful! Let's tell them we're here!"

And he dashed out.

Old Jewelry Now Fashionable

Now is the time to utilize any bits of old jewelry which were given to you by aunts and grandmas, for the smartest women are busy searching in little second-hand shops for the odd bits of Victorian jewelry which is now so fashionable.

Do you remember the little enamelled watches with bows of enamel? If you have one, wear it on the lapel of your tailored suit.

Another decoration for your buttonhole is one of those gold, heart-shaped lockets, or a fob. The former can be tied to the buttonhole with a bow of ribbon. Lucky charms of all kinds are still extremely popular.

Heavy silver clasps and buckles can be used as clips for the neck of a frock or in a hat, and a single earring sometimes has possibilities.

Christine Rivard Becomes Bride Of Martin Guerin

The Church of the Sacred Heart was the scene of a quiet but very lovely wedding at eight o'clock Monday morning, when Christine Rivard, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rivard, 197 Perry Street, was united in marriage to Martin Guerin, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James Guerin, 70 Park Street, at a ceremony performed by Rev. J. C. Maloney.

The bride, charming in a gown of pink chiffon and French lace, with veil and accessories to match, and carrying a bouquet of butterfly roses and lily-of-the-valley, entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Mr. John Armstrong.

The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Kerr, was gowned in forget-me-not blue net over taffeta, with azure blue accessories, and carried a bouquet of briarcliffe roses and baby's breath. Mr. Ovila Rivard acted as groomsman, and during the ceremony and signing of the register, Mrs. John Cairns sang very sweetly.

Immediately following the marriage a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to about thirty guests.

Later the young couple left on a motor trip to Hamilton, the bride travelling in a shark-skin suit of turquoise blue with pink accessories.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Guerin will live at 229 Perry Street.

Vacation Do's and Don'ts

For the benefit of those people who have jobs to take vacations from this summer, authorities have issued a list of hints for the preservation of health away from the office.

They advise:

Wear light clothing, but watch out for the sun.

Be careful of the food you eat and the water you drink.

Protect your eyes.

Avoid mosquitoes, flies and wood ticks.

Drink salty water in hot weather.

Which is all right as far as it goes. But also, vacationists, if you want to keep your health:

Don't give lifts. Don't accept them.

Don't use tree stumps as ashtrays.

Don't tell the cop the traffic rules in your town make more sense.

Deep Rose Gored Skirt

For town or country wear here is the stunning little two-piece tailored suit of men's wear flannel in rose and white. Stitched seams outline the many gores of the rose-colored skirt, and the short-sleeved white jacket is sleekly tailored with classic one-buttoned closing. A shirtwaist or sweater in harmonizing shade is smart to wear under the jacket, and white accessories are the correct complements to such a costume.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

—Dear Friends:

Sometimes we are annoyed with a person, for their manner which may seem distant, for their sadness, which makes us gloomy, for numbers of things in them which we do not understand, and we wish they would shake themselves together and be more like other people.

Not long ago, I met a person like that, and to tell you the truth she was not comfortable to be with. (You asked me to write on this, "Sparrow," so here it is.)

And in the course of our conversation, and over a cup of coffee, she told me some of her troubles, and honestly my heart bled for her. She said it had made her fearful, timid, turned in on herself. She didn't want to be like that, she would much rather be lighthearted and merry, but the tragedy that came into her life had made too deep an impression.

She said, "Roberta, I know I have been misjudged, misunderstood, but my grief was too deep for me to try to correct this. I was too busy carrying my burden to care what anyone thought of me, too fearful of being hurt again.

I tried to pick up the pieces of of my life and put them together again, but there were some pieces missing, and it didn't make a clear pattern any more."

And aren't there some pieces missing in many of our lives, altering us so that we cannot conform to what others expect, so we are misjudged and not understood. We are too bewildered, too grief stricken, too hurt inside to be carefree and natural as we would like to be.

So, if there are people whom you resent, someone whose distant manner may make you think them "stuck-up", maybe they are like that because of their sorrows. Maybe if you knew what they had had to bear, your heart would go out in deepest sympathy for them, and you would not be scornful.

It is easy to laugh, easy to make fun when deep sorrow and loss has never come near you. It is easy to stride down the street if you are healthy and strong, but if sickness has weakened your body, you must suit your pace to your strength.

And it is the same with mental sickness. Your brain cannot be so alert, because this that you have suffered slows you down. You are not interested in making friends or pleasing those you have, your soul and heart is reaching out for what you have lost.

If you have never had anything happen you which makes you feel as if a piece were etaken out of your living flesh. If you have not gone around feeling as if there were a gaping wound in your body which a word or a song, or a memory starts bleeding again, thank God on your bended knees. You do not know what true sorrow is.

I hope you never do, for when this happens it does something to you, you are not truly yourself, you are in a daze of pain and bewilderment. You cannot adjust yourself as you like, for this thing is uppermost and will not let you forget.

So whether it has happened to you or not, be a little more understanding and sympathetic. Maybe if you knew a little more, you would not condemn so readily. We are all inclined to think these sorrows will not come to us, but they do, and we must bear them. Sometimes it needs just a little kindness to break the barriers down, and then you are shocked at your own unkindness. Remember, the same thing can come to you.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

We Noticed

....Dancing to the skirl of the bag pipes yesterday for a delighted audience was a tiny tot in a white dress. An orange pill-box hat perched atop black curls was securely held in place by narrow purple ribbons.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Two little sisters on George street wearing brown pique shorts and yellow jackets trimmed with brown bands. Their short socks were yellow too, and their hair-bows matched their jackets.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Someone in a stunning ensemble of black and white. The dress had a charcoal pattern on white, and over it was worn a black woollen redingote, short-sleeved and collarless, with metal clasps. The hat was a black mohair cartwheel.

✧ ✧ ✧

....A beautiful evening dress in one of the shops with billowy, bouffant skirt. It was made of navy cotton splattered with white coin dots.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Another gown of lovely distinction was of cloud-like tulle in a soft lavender shade. A garland of deeper-hued flowers defined the waistline, and the neck was demurely squared.

Queen To Sleep In Bed of Marie Antoinette

M. Guillaume Janneau, who is responsible to the Foreign Office for the interior decorations of the apartments which the King and Queen will use during their stay in Paris, is slightly under medium height, a native of Brittany, dark, slim and vivacious.

On period furniture and tapestries he is one of the world's greatest experts, and, unlike many who are interested in antiques, he has a great sense of humor.

He is a director of the manufacture "Des Gobelins" and has a permanent fear of fire, in case the priceless historic furniture dating from the reign of Louis XIV. should be destroyed.

The Mobilier National, of which he is a director, also keeps in good condition all the wonderful national treasures of furniture. Mr. Janneau has a staff of 200 workmen under his charge, constantly repairing and restoring.

He has chosen a pale grey-blue for the rooms of the Mistress of the Robes and the ladies-in-waiting.

It is interesting to note that he selected this color as the most becoming to women of every type.

The furniture will be of Louis XVI. design, and the bed in which the Queen will sleep is the one used by Queen Marie Antoinette at the Chateau de Saint-Cloud.

It will be covered by a bedspread of Lyons brocade specially woven in a pale biscuit shade chosen by the Queen herself.

The ostrich capelet is the choice vacation evening wrap recommended by some of the leading stylists.

HOW YOU CAN ATTRACT MEN

Don't let love and romance pass you by. Men like girls with lots of pep and energy.

So start taking time-proven Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and note the difference. Pinkham's Compound, made especially for women from wholesome herbs and roots, helps Nature tone up your system and thus calms irritable nerves and gives you more pep to really enjoy life.

For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" distress from female functional disorders with Pinkham's Compound. Let it help YOU!

False Teeth Wearers Are Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities... Recommend Polident

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath" —probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, the powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. Long-lasting can costs only 40¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic

Put plate or bridge in ½ glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes—rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use!

Bumper Crop In Sight For Ontario

Wheat Barley Ripe, Hoppers, Cutworms Active In Districts

TORONTO, July 14 (C.P.).—The best crop prospects in many years were reported across Ontario in a survey by the Canadian Press today.

A bumper wheat yield was indicated throughout the southern part of the province, spring grains were promising and vegetable and root crops were coming along well. The Kitchener area alone reported crop conditions below average, crops there burning up in high temperatures while lacking rain.

Some widely scattered areas reported serious infestation of army cutworms and one district suffered from grasshoppers, but the province as a whole was experiencing no more than usual pest damage.

From Brant and Lambton Counties, where wheat cutting is well under way, came reports of the best yield in years, estimates ranging around 40 bushels to the acre.

Crop conditions in Welland County were above the average of recent years, described as "more like the good old-fashioned years of more than a decade ago." Vegetables and some fruits, as well as grains, were above average in the Niagara Peninsular area.

Lambton Barley Ready

Oats and barley were generally heading out in the southern section. In Lambton, barley was already ripe for cutting and promised an excellent yield. While Kitchener was suffering from a drought, the nearby Galt area was optimistic and spring grains there, as elsewhere, looked good.

Peterborough county in the east reported an "exceptionally heavy" wheat crop and spring grains, now filling out, were headed for a bumper yield.

Lack of timely rain was blamed for a short strawberry crop. The same failing made market gardeners in Lambton doubtful of the tomato and other vegetable crops.

The cutworm invasion, the worst in years, was confined to half a dozen distinct areas. It was especially serious around Whitby but also threatened substantial acreage in South Wentworth, in Markham township of North York, and around Port Hope.

Affected crops were being ploughed under and surrounding fields applied with a "poison bait" prescribed by members of the staff of Ontario Agricultural College. Farmers in the affected areas pooled their efforts to stem the attack.

Grasshoppers were doing extensive damage in the Chard area on the Prescott-Russell county line and today were spreading further into Russell county in the vicinity of St. Pascal Baylon. Fields there are being surrounded by poison bait, too, of another kind.

A slight attack of grasshoppers was also reported from North Bay district but no serious damage had been done or seemed in prospect.

Cost of road building was met by private subscription by Loyalist settlers before the end of the 18th century and many routes were undertaken.

Plan Parasite Raid Upon Sawflies By Parachute Route

Augusta, Me., July 14.

PARASITES making parachute jumps from an airplane may become a reality in Maine.

Forest Commissioner Waldo N. Seavey and Dr. H. B. Pierson, State Entomologist, said today they had "tried out this experiment" in connection with the battle against a European spruce sawfly infestation. Seavey said several million parasites, which attack the sawfly, might be deposited by the parachute method in sections difficult to reach by other means.

Find Girl Stabbed Then Run Over In English Lane

WIMBLEDON, England, July 14—(CP).—The body of a pretty, smartly dressed young woman was found in a welter of blood, barely 100 yards from the famed Centre Court from the famed centre court of the all-England Tennis Club today.

Sir Bernard Spilsbury, pathologist to the home office, and police officers went to the scene where two weeks ago crowds watched the Wimbledon finals. Preliminary investigation showed the black-clad victim was stabbed about the head and then run over with a motorcar from which apparently she had been thrown.

Scotland Yard ordered an intensive search for a blood-stained motorcar, tire-marks of which were found on the girls clothing.

Investigators believed the victim first was beaten to death with a bottle. Then, they said, a broken segment of glass was used to carve deep wounds in the girl's face and neck.

The body was found by a motorist in a private lane called Somerset road, directly opposite Wimbledon centre court. A thin trail of blood and the tire marks have evidence that the killer had taken the body from the car and then driven over it.

Question Girl Friend

During the morning police questioned at length a girl believed to have known the victim.

The dead woman was about 36, slim, dark-haired, with scarlet finger nails and stencilled eyebrows. She wore a black dress trimmed with fur andblack net gloves. On her finger was a wedding ring.

A curious angle entered the case when a watchman told of seeing a "man in brown Trilby hat," racing across Wimbledon Common about midnight.

"His eyes seemed to be popping from his head," the watchman said. Residents near the lane told of hearing the roar of a car's motor about midnight.

Ribs Fractured

HAMILTON, Ont., July 14 (CP).—Charles Levy, 57, had several ribs fractured and severe shock when he was rolled over and over in front of a railway yard engine in the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway yards here today.

Levy, who is a car inspector, was walking in front of an engine driven by engineer Patrick Gant when the accident happened. The engineer stopped the train as soon as possible.

Levy was taken to hospital where his condition was reported fair.

Japs Give Up Host Role For Olympics

Nation Is Surprised; Officials Lay Blame On War Cost

By Relman Morin
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

TOKYO, July 14.—(CP).— The Japanese government suddenly abandoned plans to-day to be host to the 1940 Olympics because of the costs and probable duration of the Chinese war.

The announcement of the cancellation by Marquis Koichi Kido, Public Welfare Minister, through Domei (Japanese News Agency), surprised the entire nation, including the Jaus organizing committee, whose members declared the 12th Olympiad would be conducted "whether or not the government supports it.

Various athletic organization and newspapers in several countries have agitated for a boycott of the games if held in Japan, but monetary reasons and military leaders' opposition to a growth of internationalism among Japanese were cited to explain the suspension.

Despite several previous indications that Japan did not fully support the 1940 events, the government had prepared to contributed 4,300,000 yen(about $1,250,000) toward the cost and build a $2,000,000 stadium near Tokyo for them.

Football Squad Chosen.

Just three days ago a squad of 40 was selected for the Japanese football team and sent to the mountains to begin training for 1940.

(London and Helsingfors, Finland, had been mentioned as possible sites for the coming Olympiad if Japan found it impossible to be host.)

The cancellation was taken to indicate Japan is convinced the year-old conflict in China will continue until 1940 and Japan lacks money and actual materials for the necessary sports structures.

Plans had been completed for 1940. Some smaller buildings were under construction. Foreign technicians have been working for months on plans. Many athletes had started training, although soldiers were forbidden to enter the contests.

Count Michimasa Soyeshima, member of the International Olympic Committee, said Japan might bid for the 1948 Games.

"I hope Japan can bid then," he said. "Apparently it is impossible to bid even for the 1944 Games. The cancellation was inevitable under the present circumstances."

Games in Finland?

LONDON, July 14 (A.P.).— Lord Aberdare, member of the executive International Olympics Committee, predicted to-day that Finland would be offered the 1940 Olympics, should the Japanese Government's reported withdrawal of its invitation be presented in formal statement.

He said the procedure would be for the International Olympics Committee to meet immediately upon receiving the official notice of cancellation. The Games would then be offered to some other country.

Lord Aberdare said it was a "pity" the trouble occurred the first time the Games were to have been held in Asia.

"But one realizes the difficulty of holding the games if the war is still on in 1940," he added. "It is far better if Tokyo in a sporting way gives up the Games."

Convict Train Splits At Winnipeg Station

WINNIPEG, July 14 (CP).—A train carrying 130 convicts from Kingston penitentiary to Western Canada prison, arrived here today, and was split into two sections, one headed for Stony Mountain, north of here, and the other continuing on to Prince Albert, Sask.

The five-car train was heavily guarded while it remained in Winnipeg. Royal Canadian and railway police kept all spectators far from platforms near the train.

One car with 54 convicts aboard, was turned over to the Canadian Pacific Railway here, for transport to Stony Mountain, while the remaining four continued on via Canadian National to Prince Albert.

The convicts are being transferred to the western prisons in accordance with plans to relieve congestion at the Kingston institution.

Crater Widow Rewed

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP).—Mrs. Stella Crater, whose State Supreme Court Justice husband disappeared in 1930, was revealed today as having married Carl Kunz, an electrical engineer, April 23. Jonas Ellis, an attorney, said they were married at Elkton, Md., and that although the jurist — Joseph Force Crater—had not been declared legally dead, this did not affect her remarriage.

Shoulder High

C. J. Hancock of the second concession of Smith in one of his fields of Dawson's Golden Chaff winter wheat ripening in the July sun and soon to be cut for threshing. He has eighty-five acres of wheat, and only an expert could indicate any one as being superior in quality and appearance to the others. The heads are heavy with grain, the stalks are straight and tall, and a big crop is just about ready for harvesting. The picture BELOW of Mr. Hancock in a field near his house lacks the striking color of the wheat fields these days, glowing like burnished gold, the reddish golden color lighting up the whole countryside as a splendid growing season approaches its fruition and climax.

Police, Posse Of 150 Friends Seek Cripple Lost In Bush

Shannonville Resident Vanishes While Hunting His Cows

SHANNONVILLE, Ont., July 14 (CP).—Provincial police and a posse of 150 residents of this Eastern Ontario village searched today for Robert Soxstator, 33-year-old cripple, missing from his home since late Wednesday night.

The marshlands and dense woods two miles southeast of Shannonville and 10 miles east of Belleville are being combed. The missing man was last seen with his horse going for the cows. Later Enoch Fuller went into the woods and called for the man but received no answer. He notified police and the search was continued till early today, when heavy fog hindered the progress.

The man lives with his parents.

Canadians Win Kolapore Cup

BSLEY CAMP, England, July 14.—(CP Cable)—A picked team of Canadian riflemen today won the Rajah of Kolapore's Imperial Challenge Cup, defeating the Mother Country, India, Rhodesia, Jersey and Guernsey to score the 16th Canadian triumph since the great match opened in 1871.

The Canadian team of eight military marksmen wound up the big shoot with a total of 1,110 points out of a possible 1,200, firing at 300, 500 and 600 yard ranges. The Mother Country team finished second with 1,105.

India was third with 1,100, and Rhodesia had 1,098, Guernsey 1,096 and Jersey 1,094.

The match was fired under ideal conditions. Captain W. Worsick of Winnipeg coaching the Canadian team. Tomorrow the Canadians go into the shoot for the other great Imperial team trophy of the National Rifle Association's Empire meeting, the MacKinnon Cup.

Lumberjack Dies For Ross' Kidnap-Murder

CHICAGO, uly 14.—(AP).—John Henry Seadlund paid with his life to-day for the crime of kidnapping.

The 27 year old lumberjack, confessed abductor of Charles S. Ross, confesed killer of the man who helped him commit the crime, was electrocuted at 2:08 a.m. E.D.T., in the Cook county jail.

Shaved and masked, Seadlund walked tensely into the execution chamber almost unaided. "You don't have to hold my arms," he told the guards on each side of him. "I can get there alone." After seating himself he made a visible effort to relax and held his arms out for the clamps.

He was the second man to be executed by the Federal Government under the Lindbergh kidnap law. The first was Arthur Gooch, 27, hanged at McAlester, Okla., June 19, 1936, for kidnapping two peace officers at Paris, Texas, while attempting to avoid arrest.

Killed Pal in Fight.

Seadlund and James Atwood Gray, his 19 year old accomplice, kidnapped Ross in Northern Illinois last Sept. 25. They took the 72-year-old retired manufacturer of greeting cards to a hideout in Wisconsin's north woods, near Spooner. There, Seadlund confessed to agents of the Federal Bureau of Statistics, he killed Gray during a quarrel. Ross was fatally injured in the struggle, Seadlund said, so he shot him, too.

Mrs. Mae C. Ross of Chicago, the kidnap victim's widow, paid a $50,000 ransom. Most of this money, traced across sthe United States, was recovered after several agents arrested Seadlund at the Santa Anita race track in California.

Sentenced To Die

CAMBRIDGE, Md., July 14. (AP).——Fred L. Brown, 48-year-old Canadian war veteran, was sentenced today to be hanged for the strangling of his 17-year-old wife, an expectant mother.

A jury found him guilty of first degree murder last night after he had told how he threw his wife's weighted body in the Nanticoke river. The jury did not commend mercy.

Defence counsel pleaded Brown was insane when he killed his wife on June 14. Brown had confessed he strangled her when she threatened to leave him and take their 13-month-old son.

Two psychiatrists testified he was sane and intelligent but sadistic.

Fliers Back In New York In Three Days 19 Hours After 15,000-Mile Dash

Millionaire Sportsman Cuts 4 Days Off Wiley Post's Time; As He Lands At Packed Field

FLOYD BENNETT AIRPORT, New York, July 14 (CP).—The flying quintet headed by Howard Hughes ended their history-making round-the-world flight at 2.36 p.m., E.D.T., today when they brought their silver monoplane down at this airport.

The monoplane circled the field twice before coming down to an easy landing before a wildly cheering crowd.

The total elapsed time for the dash around the globe was set unofficially at three days, 19 hours and 16 minutes.

The sportsman-millionaire's feat, cutting in half the previous record time of seven days, 18 hours, 49 minutes, established by the late Wily Post in July, 1933, marked the fourth complete world - circling flight in a heavier - than - air machine.

The first is now almost forgotten. It was achieved in 1924 by a group of United States army planes led by Lieut. Lowell H. Smith. Flying in leisurely hops, the army pilots soared west to east from Seattle, Wash., taking 175 days, with an actual flying time of 14 days, six hours.

The Second Dash

Then came Post and Harold Gatty's spectacular dash in 1931, setting a mark of 8 days, 15 hours, 51 minutes.

Two years later, flying alone, Post clipped nearly a full day from his record performance with Gatty. The flight was so near "perfection" that the famous one-eyed pilot, noted for his modesty, said it would take "a heap of figuring and flying" to beat his record.

Hughes figured—and flew.

Cries Of Injured Fill Canton After Jap Raid

CANTON, China, July 14 (A.P.).—Japanese aerial bombs killed probably 150 persons and injured 500 others in this South China city today, the third successive day in which Japanese warplanes have attacked.

Eighty-three dead were counted between th East Bund and Honam Island alone as rescue squads pulled mangled bodies of men, women, and children from wrecked houses.

Gruesome scenes resembled those of last month's bombings in which hundreds were killed.

One bomb struck the centre of a crowded vegetable market, and 34 shattered corpses were county there. The only living thing appeared to be a pet monkey, chained to a tree.

Crossing the bridge to Honam, one saw 49 bodies laid out on the sidewalk.

Trucks carried wounded to hospitals.

Two 500-pound bombs landed on Honam Island near the shore line, creating havoc among the residents of flimsy dwellings and boats.

In Canton Hospital, where Dr. Sun Yat-Sen studied medicine in his youth, surgeons were covered to the elbows with blood. Some victims were lifted to the operating table, only to be pronounced dead before a surgeon could pick up his scalpel

The Associated Press correspondent had to tie a handkerchief across his face to keep out sickening smells of bombed areas.

Along the East Bund dismembered bodies were scattered among the fruits and vegetables of the wrecked stands. A hand lay in the middle of the road. There also were arms and legs.

Sampans floated near the Pearl River bridge, some of them spotted with blood. Groans of the wounded could be heard everywhere in the bombed area.

Blue Law Goes

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 14.—(AP)—Citizens of this city can now fish, play cards, shoot or bowl on Sundays without danger of arrest. The city council has repealed the city's 25-year-old blue law.

Year's Worst Storm Sweeps Over City

The worst storm of the year strafed this district for more than an hour about 2.15 E.D.T. today doing damage that will possibly run into many thousands of dollars.

Lightning was followed by a downpour resembling a cloudburst, the sheet of water being so heavy that storm drains could not carry it away and streats resembled rivers, with water running over the curbs and limbs of trees were blown down.

As the storm developed there came hail with the stone of ice as big as marbles. Fields of grain and gardens were beaten to the ground. It is believed lightning struck near the city and officials are busy checking up.

Cars became stalled in flooded streets. Two storms seemed to meet over the city, one from the north and the other from the west and a strong breeze carried the rain into homes.

Britain Finds Nazi Rivalry In Portugal, Balkans

LONDON, July 14—(CP Cable)—Great Britain plans important moves in both Portugal and the Balkans. At either end of the European continent there are evidences of an increase in Anglo-German rivalry.

Germany is using her Austrian conquest as a base to strike further down the Danube towards the wheat fields of Hungary and the oil wells of Rumania. In the event of war she would need both.

A bill is now passing through the British Parliament to authorize a British loan of £6,000,000 ($30,000,000) to Turkey, the proceeds of which will be used by Turkey to buy armaments in Britain.

Portugal, in the event of a European war, occupies a strategic position of the greatest consequence. Aircraft and submarines operating from Portuguese bases could strike at both the Mediterranean and Cape of Good Hope sea routes from Britain to the Far East and Australia.

Ally of Long Standing

Portugal is Britain's oldest ally. Their treaty of alliance dates back a couple of centuries. Since February a British military mission has been in Portugal negotiating a new agreement.

Reports occasionally sift through that Britain herself is leasing a base from the Portuguese, but the reports lack confirmation.

On the other hand the Germans, from the position they have established in Spanish insurgent territory, are understood to be endeavoring to counter the British moves in Portugal.

The British Government, it is intimated, is not prepared to guarantee either a loan or a credit to China. The proposal of a British loan of $20,000,000 to China, therefore, falls to the ground.

Hunter Riles Bear Up With Shotgun And Gets Mauled

St. John's Nfld., July 14.

ENRAGED when Aaron Stone of Cook shore, Nfld., attacked it with a 16-gauge shotgun, a huge bear climbed over the side of the hunters boat and mauled him so badly he had to be rushed to the hospital for treatment. The bear tore away the gunwhale of the boat and flung Stone's axe fifty feet away in the scuffle. Arrival of several men drove the bear away.

FORT ERIE, Ont., July 14 (CP).—Jack Whybra, 14, was in hospital today seriously wounded in the abdomen.

While his parents were out last night, the lad and a companion took the gun from over the family fireplace and were playing with it when it was accidentally discharged. The boy's condition was reported as fair.

Glass Prism Lets Camera See Like Human Eye

HOLLYWOOD, July 14 (AP).—A fragile prism of glass, thin as paper and smaller than a half dollar, is enabling a movie camera today to see like the human eye.

The camera, a standard type, had been limited to two dimensions. Now the prism helps it to preceive a third dimension—depth and solidity—which had escaped it heretofore.

It is almost like looking through a stereoscope. The flat likenesses of actors become rounded figures. Backgrounds are distinctly separated from nearer objects. A new reality of space is recorded on film.

The "human-eye" camera is the result of six years' experiments by Joseph Valentine, Universal studio cinematographer. The idea occurred to him one night in New York when he left a theatre and noticed that the images in a lobby mirror had more clarity than those he had just seen on the screen.

If a mirror had this effect, why not put one in his camera? Valentine did.

He designed a prism 1/100 of an inch thick and slightly less than an inch in length and width. It was so fragile that more than a dozen models were broken before it was finally perfected. One surface was coated with mercury.

Simple Adjustment

Valentine installed the prism in his camera between the lens and the aperture where individual frames of film are exposed. An image captured by the lens became two when it passed through the prism. Then a "beam-splitter" combined the two images again into one.

"It was such a simple development—like putting an eraser on the end of a pencil—that I wonder someone hadn't thought of it before," the photographer said today.

"Theatre owners won't have to buy any additional equipment for their projectors in order to retain the third dimensional quality in the film. Patrons will be able to see clear, rounded, undistorted pictures on the screen even when they sit far to one side.

"Since it costs only about $200 to equip a camera with the prism, I anticipate general use of the development in the industry."

Rowe 'Shocked' At King's R.A.F. Attitude

Sees No Reason Why Billion Dollars Should Not Be Spent

BRANTFORD, Ont., July 14 (CP). —Hon. Earl Rowe, "shocked" at the attitude of Prime Minister Mackenzie King toward the projected establishment of Royal Air Force flying schools in Canada, sees no reasons why $1,000,000,000 should not be spent here for establishment of the schools in Canada. The provincial Conservative leader spoke at a picnic rally here last night in support of Reg. Welsh, Conservative candidate in the Brantford by-election July 20.

(Mr. King told the House of Commons two weeks ago any flying schools in Canada must be controlled directly by the Department of National Defence.)

Mr. Rowe charged the provincial government with threatening to withhold road grants from Brantford riding unless electors voted Liberal. "That's the kind of Tammany politics that threatens to ruin the taxpayers," he said.

He accused Hon. Colin Campbell with "dictatorship" in his alleged threat to hold up the grants. "I am convinced you can't buy Brantford votes with the money of Brantford taxpayers," he added.

Mr. Welsh was nominated yesterday along with Lou Hagey, Liberal, Walter Dowden, Labor-Progressive, and Paul Debragh, Socialist Labor.

Other speakers at the rally included W. J. Stewart of Toronto, and Mark Senn, M.O. for Haldimand.

Pasteurizing Hits Only Milk Sales

TORONTO, July 14.— Farmers living in areas in which the milk pasteurizing legislation has been applied by an Order-in-Council, just announced by the Department of Health under Dr. Harold J. Kirby, are not required to pasteurize their domestic supplies.

Fears that the Government was going to invade the privacy of the farm homes with the compulsory order were described yesterday by department officials as a "tempest in a milk pail."

And after the froth had been cleared away it was discovered reports which had stirred the anger of many farmers in the southern section of York County wer founded on the reported attempt of a dairy to persuade milk producers to sell all their milk to it and to buy back their domestic supplies at the regular 12 cents a quart price.

"A fine thing," said one bitter farmer's wife, "if the Government can step in and make us pasteurize the milk we use on our own table."

Order Explained.

At the time the legislation was passed it was stated clearly that compulsion would not be exerted upon the producer. Dr. H. T. McGhie, Deputy Minister of Health, pointed out again yesterday the order applied only to milk that is sold to the public.

The order is divided into two sections and makes applicable the legislation in certain designated areas surrounding cities and towns on Oct. 1 and in designated villages on Dec. 31.

Teacher Resigns After 26 Years Lakefield Staff

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, July 14.—Miss Emma V. Kennedy, for twenty-six and a half years a member of the teaching staff of Lakefield Public school, has resigned from the staff, her resignation being received at the July meeting of the Lakefield Public School Board.

Miss Kennedy has been in the teaching profession for thirty-nine years, and during the twenty-six and one-half years she taught in Lakefield, has explained the rudiments of reading, writing, and 'rithmetic to a very large number of Lakefield scholars, all of whom learn with regret of her decision to leave the profession.

Miss Kennedy commenced teaching at S.S. No. 4, Douro, in 1899, after attending the County Model school at Norwood, under the principalship of Frank Perney, who is now superintendent of Public schools in Hamilton.

Later, Miss Kennedy taught at S.S. No. 8, and S.S. No. 3, Douro under the inspectorship of Jas. Coyle Brown and Richard Lees, and then attended Ottawa Normal school, where the late Dr. McCabe was principal, with Dr. Putman acting as vice-principal in the absence of Dr. Sinclair, who was then on sick leave.

Taught in Renfrew County.

After attending Normal, Miss Kennedy taught in Renfrew county and in Glengarry under the inspectorship of Mr. Scott and Dr. McDermott, both of whom are now dead, before coming to Lakefield in 1911.

Miss Kennedy's entire teaching service was in Public schools, with the exception of six months spent at Cobourg, where she supplied for Mother Loyola of the Community of St. Joseph's Separate school staff.

Miss Kennedy has proven herself a most capable teacher—as a teaching record of over twenty-six years in one school indicates. She is gifted with the art of imparting knowledge to others in a concise and logical form and many of the pupils who first learned history and geography from Miss Kennedy some years ago, still remember it as she taught it to them, then, and recognize their debt to her. She has always taken a keen interest in her pupils' welfare and earned their respect as well as the high regard of their parents and friends. Miss Kennedy's resignation will leave a vacancy which will not be easy to fill.

It was moved by Trustees Northey and Millage that "Miss Kennedy's resignation be accepted and a letter written expressing the Board's appreciation of her splendid services rendered."

The report of the Finance committee recommended payment of the following accounts: L.H.E.C., light, $14.27; Bell Tel. Co., phone, $2.90; Lakefield Canoe and Boat Co., machine work, $4.27; C.N.R., cartage, $1.80; C. C. Snowden, soap, $54.50; F. L. Erskine, hardware, $13.32. Total $91.06.

It was moved by Trustees Lake and Northey, that the report of the Finance committee be received and adopted.

It was moved by Trustees Millage and Bullock, that the principal be granted the sum of $25 to be used for sports during the year 1938.—Carried.

It was moved by Trustees Northey and Lake, that the council be asked for $7,000 for expenditures for the year 1938.—Carried.

It was moved by Trustee Northey, seconded by Trustee Bailey, that Miss Comrie be advanced to Miss Kennedy's class commencing Sept. 1st, 1938.—Carried.

It was moved by Trustees Northey and Bullock, that applications be advertised for teacher, female, for Grade III in Lakefield Public school. First class certificate with agriculture preferred. — Carried.

Besides Miss Kennedy's letter of resignation, the correspondence included applications from Miss M. Webster, Miss M. Walsh and Miss M. Wilkens.

The full board was in attendance.

Rebels Gain 8 Miles Using Bayonets

HENDAYE, July 14 — (AP) — A sudden Insurgent advance down the Teruel highway past Sarrion endangered strong government positions about Mora De Rubielos today, and threatened to trap thousands of militiamen holding that spearhead of resistance.

After a night of fighting, the Insurgents reported they had passed the village of Albentosa, junction of the main Teruel-Valencia highway with the military supply road leading north to Mora De Ruelelos.

Sarrion was captured last night, Insurgents reported. It is 23 miles southeast of Teruel. Mora is to the north and Albentosa a short distance south of Sarrion.

Although the smashing Insurgent attack in the Tersel sector surprised government defenders of the highway, they quickly reformed their lines.

Advices from Insurgent General Franco's headquarters admitted the advance of about eight miles was made only by fighting hand-to-hand for most of the distance.

On the other two fronts of Franco's triple-head drive against Valencia, however, the government held its positions and assumed the offensive.

Violence Flares Anew in Holy Land

Terror once again gripped Palestine as British troops were forced to fire on Arab and Jewish terrorists who have commenced grave rioting. This young Jew, his head badly injured, was arrested during the demonstration that followed the execution of Ben Joseph, an 18-year-old Jewish youth, for firing on an Arab bus. The execution of Joseph was the spark that lit the smouldering hatred which exists between the Arabs and Jews in the Holy Land.

Killer Suicides On Shooting Simcoe Widow

SIMCOE, Ont., July 14 (C.P.). — Gordon Stewart is dead and Mrs. Mabel Immel, a widow, is in serious condition in Simcoe Hospital following a shooting to-day at the Immel farm home west of here.

Provincial Police said their information was Stewart shot Mrs. Immel, the bullet striking her body in the left side, and then committed suicide. Mrs. Immel was the mother of several children. Her husband died 18 months ago.

Details of the shooting were not available immediately as Provincial Police Constable R. J. Taggart left Simcoe for the farm home.

Bert Taylor, a neighbor, said Mrs. Immel was drawing water from a well when Stewart came from nearby woods and walked towards her. They walked together for a ways and then Stewart shot her. He left her and fled to the woods.

Provincial police found his body in the forest, a bullet wound through his forehead, and the .22 rifle beside him. They said they doubted if an inquest would be held.

Neighbors said Mrs. Immel rented part of Stewart's house until last Monday, when she moved to another house in the same district. Neighbors said Stewart was angry at her for moving and attributed the shooting to this.

Propose Drink, Cards For Detroiters 21

Detroit, July 14—(CP)—A plan of suburban Ferndale to provide youthful-appearing adults with identification cards showing they have reached the age of drink—their 21st year—is an excellent method of keeping juveniles out of liquor establishments, according to Eleanore Hutzel, Chief of the Detroit Police Women's Division.

Miss Hutzel said keeping minors out of drinking establishments was one of the biggest problems of her division and operators of such establishments have said they could not tell ages for certain "because of present fashions."

Present Detroit ordinance makes it illegal to permit any under 21 to be present where there is dancing and where liquor is sold. The Liquor Control Act also forbids sale of drinks to minors.

MORE ABOUT—

Fliers Land

strides had its germ in Jules Verne's fantastic novel, "Around the World in Eighty Days," first published in 1872.

Earlier voyages around world, included those of Magellan, Francis Drake and Thomas Cavendish, were inspired more by a lust for rich cargoes of spices and new lands to claim than by a zest for competitive adventure.

Seventeen years after Jules Verne's fictitious character, Phileas Fogg, sped around the world in 80 days and while critics still jeered at Verne's "impossible" dream, a woman newspaper reporter vindicated the great French writer.

In 1869 Elizabeth Cochrane, who wrote for Joseph Pulitizer's old New York World under the pseydonym of "Nelly Bly," hustled around the globe in 72 days, 6 hours and 11 minutes — New York to London across the Indian ocean to Hong Kong, thence tto San Francisco and back to New York by rail.

Georges Francis train broke the dashing Nell's mark by five days the next year. Then at least six other globe-trotting junkets shaved the record down to half Nelly's time in the next two decades, until, in 1913, John Henry Mears made the final boat-rail assault on the record before the airplane entered competition to knock all previous marks galley-west. Mears made it in days, 21 hours, 36 minutes.

Prophets said his mark would stand forever.

But with the introduction of the plane, globe-circling became a changed sport—as different as Howard Hughes' 4-day rocket across the Northern Hemisphere and the legendary exploit of the ancient Greek Icarus, who soared from a high cliff with wings attached to his shoulders by wax....until the wax melted and he plummeted to his death.

Icarus .. Magellan .. Nelly Bly.. Howard Hughes....

Seemingly only the stratosphere holds the answer to the question, "What next?"

Price Of Hogs In Peterboro Is Highest Since 1930

Hogs in Peterborough have this week reached their highest selling price since 1930, according to Graham Eastwood of Canada Packers. They are now bringing $11.65 a hundred pounds live weight delivered, and $15.40 dressed.

"The Canadian farmer to-day is receiving more for his hogs than any other farmer in the world," he said. The price of hogs in Canada is $2.50 a hundred pounds higher in Canada than in the United States, he said.

He attributed the rise in price chiefly to a shortage in the number of hogs offered for sale, and to a better British export market. He believed that high cost of feed two years ago contributed to the fact that many farmers stopped raising hogs, bringing about this year's shortage.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, July 14 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures crashed nearly four cents down to-day when late-session flurries of liberal buying found disappointing support. Quotations closed 3⅞ to 2¼ lower with July 98¾, October 78¼ to ½, November 71⅞, and December 76¼ cents.

Most of the selling came from Southern interests. Traders were of the opinion the United States farm loan price, released to-day, stabilized U.S. markets at their present levels. Consequently spreading involved selling of Winnipeg futures against purchases of Chicago.

Yesterday's Quotations.

Bolt Fires Trolley On Hamilton Corner

HAMILTON, Ont., July 14.—(CP) —"I didn't expect a show like this on my visit,' 'declared Mrs. J. M. McNaughton of Orangeville this afternoon after she, her daughter and another woman and man had fled from a flame-seared street car that was struck by lightning at a street intersection.

The car was descending the King street west slope at the height of a storm when lightning struck.

Motorman Peter Moore succeeded in bringing the car to a quick stop although the controls were put out of commission by the bolt.

Passengers sought safety from the storm on nearby verandahs. Firemen prevented further damage.

"The blaze burst in the front and centre of the car," said James Campbell, whose trousers were singed. "I never saw anything travel as fast and we followed its example as soon as the motorman stopped the car.

Other passengers were Mrs. McNaughton's daughter, Miss Barbara McNaughton of Orangeville, and Mrs. J. M. Cunningham of this city.

United Empire Loyalists as early as 1785, blazed a road from Niagara as far inland as Ancaster.

Fell From Sixth Storey Window

Muriel Strong, daughter of a prominent Sacramento, Calif., family looks cheerfully from her bed as she tells a friend about her accidental fall from the sixth floor of a New York hotel. Reports from New York state Miss Strong was educated in Saskatoon, Sask., and went to New York to seek employment as a model. She fell from her seat on the window sill while visiting a friend's room. Firemen caught her in a net and aside from bruises and shock she was not injured.

A Pertinent Question

There have been some rather pertinent questions asked regarding the raid carried on recently at the Brown Derby gambling joint, a short distance from Toronto. At the time of the raid much was made in the report of the fact that complete secrecy prevailed. Very few of the police in Toronto knew anything about it.

Provincial police were brought from points outside of Toronto, coming from as far distant as Palmerston and Fort Erie, and it was that special arrangement which apparently has prompted most of the questions which have been asked.

And the questions all settle down to this idea: Why were officers in the Toronto district not used for the purpose? Was it because those in charge of the raid had reason to believe that keepers of the Brown Derby would be tipped off in advance?

We admit it is a pointed question to ask, but the manner in which the raid was carried through by officers from outside Toronto suggests the question should be asked.

They Had Forgotten Him

For six years there had been hanging in the county court house of Wentworth at Hamilton the picture of a man labelled as Matthew S. Wilson, warden of the county in 1890. Some time ago the sheriff of the county took a long look at the picture and decided there had been some mistake. Then he conferred with members of the Wilson family and it was discovered the picture was not that of Matthew Wilson. The error has been corrected and a picture of the former warden has been secured.

If that picture were placed on the court house wall six years ago that would have been in 1932, thus leaving a period of 42 years before having the former warden's picture placed in position and that of course was a long wait. But even so it seems strange enough that a man's picture—and a wrong one at that—could have been hanging for six years before the error was detected. The warden of a county is generally pretty well known, and especially in the county buildings, and as a rule the county council would be composed of men who had spent years in the community, and yet it seems none of them knew anything about the man who was warden in 1890. It seems to indicate that even a man who has taken a prominent part in the affairs of his community is not long remembered. Younger people and a coming generation keep on forging their way to the front and the problems and affairs of today become more pressing and urgent than the memories and faithful services of yesterday.

Better Not Try It

From St. Thomas there comes one of the most unusual stories of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Darden Bassett of Rodney were driving in their car and were about to cross the railway track at the same time the New York Central flier, the Wolverine, was coming along at 80 miles an hour.

The front part of the auto was on the track just as the engine arrived. Something had to happen and it was a very neat operation for a locomotive to perform. The front wheels of the car and the engine were cut off as clean as though a big knife had been used. The glass in the car was not broken and Mr. and Mrs. Bassett sat there while it was going on and were not injured.

We consider that the most unusual accident reported this year. Trainmen say that had the locomotive been going at forty miles an hour it would have dragged the auto, but at eighty miles it just cut clean through and went on its way. It is indeed a nice trick with a happy ending, but an experiment which we would hesitate to recommend for general use.

What Men Talk About

An Examiner representative happened to be a rather silent partner in a conversation between two men the other day. We will call them Mr. A. and Mr. B. Mr. A. is a resident of a Canadian city of considerable size and is the executive head of a substantial manufacturing plant. Mr. B. is from Baltimore, Ohio, and is in this province for a month's holidays. When they were young chaps Mr. A. and Mr. B. attended the same school, but that was many years ago. Today they are both taken up with business affairs in a rather large way. They have to worry about sales and wages, about tariffs and finances, about raw materials and export trade and so on.

What do such men talk about? They had not met for some time and there would have been opportunity to exchange experiences and talk shop—but they didn't.

The conversation did not take long to get under way. It began with those familiar words "Do you remember when . . ." Do you remember the day when some person put the board over the chimney at the school house? Do you remember the Hallowe'en night when we went and did so and so? Do you remember the afternoon we skipped school and tried to smoke the bees out of the hollow tree?

Of course each one remembered all about such things as though they had taken place yesterday. The third party in such a conversation never is called upon to say a word and it wouldn't seem right if he did.

And yet Mr. A. and Mr. B. have advanced quite a distance in their respective business worlds—but they didn't say a word about that. They were away back close to the spot where they had started. They had for the moment returned in spirit to the old home town and business and factories and figures and finances were not in their minds at all. The constitutional issues of the day were overlooked, and the wars which are raging in parts of the world had no chance whatever to get a hearing or an airing. And we are inclined to believe that any two men thrown together similarly would engage in the same kind of conversation.

It Does Not Work

As opportunity has afforded in recent years United States has taken occasion to emphasize the desire for a policy which would allow that nation to go its own way; the idea of becoming involved in international entanglements was not pleasant and found little ground in which to grow. The ocean was in between United States and Europe—and still is. That seemed to provide a wide corridor so a nation could work out its own destiny.

The trouble with that plan is that it will not work, and apart from that it seems to be right enough. There has been in session at Riverhead, L. I., a Suffolk County Court Jury. For days it has been listening to evidence dealing with the German-American Settlement League, Incorporated, which has been operating the camp at Yaphank for American Nazi sympathizers. The finding of the jury is that the incorporators of the society are guilty of having violated the State Civil Rights Laws. There were fines of $13,000 imposed and the president of this Nazi society has been ordered to stay in prison for a year.

It was found this camp was not in accord with the laws of United States, but was a meeting place where German citizens gathered to see what could be done for organizing a strong Nazi feeling in the States. It was closely in touch with Berlin at all times.

United States has no such plans for operating in Germany, but the Nazis do not consider that as any reason why they should not push their cause in United States, and that of course makes it impossible for United States to pursue indefinitely that policy of not participating in the affairs of the world for the simple reason that other nations show themselves anxious enough to participate and meddle in the policies of United States.

Grasshoppers In Ontario

Grasshoppers are working in Prescott county, and reports state that in a 16-mile area only corn has been left. So far 20 farmers report they have lost everything in the way of crops.

In the attempt to stave off the grasshoppers quantities of poisoned bran are being employed, but it is likely the farmers might as well save their bran, for it is too late for it to be effective. In districts of the West where the grasshopper has been a menace and a plague they have studied the situation closely, and they know that just at the time when the larva is emerging from the egg in the ground is when the poison system is effective. Once there is time for growth and development and the grasshopper has wings then poison bait is not very effective. In many cases it has produced no results at all. Admittedly it is a delicate operation to have the bait spread just at the right season.

Reports from Prescott say there are a number of vacant farms which have provided ideal breeding grounds as the land has not been disturbed, neither was there sufficient frost last winter to kill the eggs. It may seem incredible but it is a fact that as many as 30,000 eggs have been found in a square foot of ground and they have been known under close observation to hatch as high as 98 per cent.

An invasion of fully developed grasshoppers is something which cannot be successfully combatted. That may sound helpless, but it is too close to the truth to permit of argument or contradiction. Prescott would not be anticipating an attack and would have made no plans to meet one at the time when such plans might have been effective.

A Good And a Bad Day

A day which may be ideal for the plans of one person are apt to be correspondingly poor for the plans and purposes of others. On the 12th of July there was a crowd in Peterborough such as we seldom see as members of the Orange order from five counties had gathered here for the day.

On that day Arnold Cameron, evidently a very active individual of 24 years, escaped from the police when plans were being made to return him to the Reformatory at Guelph. Once out of the police station Cameron ran up lanes and down lanes, into stores and through stores, up stairs and down stairs and finally was swallowed up in the crowd on the streets. Possibly a crowd is a better place to hide than crawling under a barn. So it is fair enough to say that the 12th of July was a favorable moment for a man to try for an escape in this city.

That department of the Federal government which attends to penitentiaries was not so successful in selecting the 12th of July as the time for moving a train loaded with prisoners from Kingston to a penitentiary in Western Canada. The train was routed via Belleville to Campbellford, Hastings, Peterborough, Lindsay and so on. But the train pulled into Peterborough just about the time the specials were being made ready to take visiting members of Orange lodges on the trip home. The train did not stop at the regular place in front of the station, but went farther up the yard, and that of course would draw attention to it.

Then it seems the prisoners on the train were also anxious to make their presence known. One of them wrote a note on the back of a playing card and dropped it out of the window. It told how many men were being moved and stated also that several had been sick and that no medical attendant was on the train. When a note like that is dropped in Peterborough it seems to be just a matter of time before it reaches the Examiner office. Then it was necessary to call a doctor to the train in Hastings and again in Peterborough, so the unheralded train was getting plenty of notice when it travelled through this section of the country on the 12th of July. That's why we contend such a day was a good one for a man who wanted to escape from the police in a crowd, and a poor day on which to run a prisoner special about which the officials desired to maintain secrecy.

NOTE AND COMMENT

People laughed at the efforts to enforce a bathing suit bylaw in Orillia, and now that the law is dead they still have plenty at which to laugh.

We still believe that the man who beats upon the big drum in a 12th of July parade works harder and has a better time than all others.

When a politician refers to the judiciary as "old political heelers" it is difficult to figure how he hopes to improve the administration of justice by such language.

The annual Calgary stampede is under way and those who think the horse is passing out of the picture should note that 700 riders have entered the competition.

Eskimos at Moosonee have presented Mr. Hepburn with a sled. Conservatives will say that is a sign the Premier is sliding while Liberals will argue it shows he is only coasting.

Over 3,000 children have been patronizing Oshawa's supervised playgrounds. Here in Peterborough we have stopped providing safe recreation for children and many parents regret the fact.

Suggestion is made that drivers be allowed to go 10 miles faster in daytime than at night. The trouble is that if some of our drivers tried to add ten miles to their present speed they would have bolts, nuts, screws and gadgets in general flying out along the road.

There was reference in these columns some days ago to sows eating a litter of pigs, hens eating eggs and foxes eating their young. Now there is information showing that mink do the same thing when frightened. On a mink farm at Astoria, Ore., a plane flew several times over the premises and was flying low. The mother mink were so terrified that they dashed about and in short order devoured 250 of the mink kittens. Owners of the farm are now suing for $6,000 damages.

MISTAKE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ John Henry always liked to write, he'd sit and work near all the night, he longed for a career; he didn't care how long it took, some day he'd write a famous book, to him the thing was clear.

¶ He started most six months ago, he labored careful like and slow, most nights he worked till one; I met him on the street today, he said he'd put the thing away, he couldn't get it done.

¶ John Henry told me of the plot, on which he'd placed long weeks of thought, it sounded fair enough; he had a villain in the yarn, all black of heart and strong of arm, and he was very tough.

¶ The heroine had flaxen hair, and eyes of blue and cheeks so fair, she owned a vast estate; the villain plotted day and night, to get the damsel in his might, he chanted songs of hate.

¶ The hero was a handsome youth, but bred on poverty and truth, he loved the damsel fair; he caught the villain as he drank, and whacked him firmly with a plank, and never turned a hair.

¶ That's where John Henry's book went wrong, up to that point 'twas fine and strong, John Henry softly swore; he found where he had wrecked his plan, he should have let his villain man—live for eight chapters more.

Attacking A Man On His Religion

(Toronto Globe and Mail)

THE ATTITUDE toward the new Leader of the National Conservative Party expressed by the Deputy Grand Master of the Orange Order for Ontario West, or a similar attitude by other Conservative Orangemen, will do the Orange Order no good. The original aims of the Order are described as the support of Protestantism, and, as it originated in Ireland, the maintenance of relations between that country and Britain and the security of the Protestant succession to the Throne. Assuredly it is a far-fetched interpretation of these principles to say that an ardent Conservative in Canada cannot agree with his party because a Roman Catholic is at its head. If it was desirable in the first place to ensure a cordial understanding between Catholic Ireland and Protestant England, it is a betrayal of the Order to declare a man's politics cannot be tolerated because of his religion.

This is the sort of thing that makes men cynical about religious professions. Hon. Dr. Manion is neither better nor worse as a party Leader because he was brought up in the Catholic faith instead of the Protestant. He is to be judged in this capacity by his public record, his administrative capacity, his ability as a public speaker, his knowledge of affairs, and his ardor in promoting the welfare of the people. If religious affiliations were to enter into consideration at all it should be with the view that the Catholic portion of the population is entitled to recognition of the kind. But what has religion to do with politics, anyway

There is no way to condone the petty, bigoted idea that a man in any position in life should be ostracized because of his Church. Such an attitude is far from being a demonstration of Christian feeling toward fellow-men. It makes for neighborhood dissension and destroys nobility of character. Promoting faith in one's own beliefs does not require embittered condemnation of others.

In public life the dangers are enlarged. There religious hatreds can be made to flourish on a grand scale, to the grave detriment of national unity and progress. Doubtless such unnecessary evils as bigotry keep many able men from giving the service to the country of which they are capable. They are unwilling to submit to unjust attacks.

Officials of the Orange Order, Conservative or Liberal, have ample scope for public usefulness by standing up for sound British principles without injecting religion into politics. There is no reason why a Catholic should be less loyal to the British Crown than a Protestant, or less loyal to democratic Canadian institutions. Throwing prejudice aside, no one can find a reason. How Mr. Cecil G. Armstrong votes is his own business. But when as Deputy Grand Master of the Orange Lodge of Ontario West he avers it will take more than Dr. Manion or Cardinal Villeneuve to drive him out of the Conservative Party he sets up a mischievous and demoralizing suspicion. Organization leaders have to be broader gauged if this country is to be sure of good government.

DROUGHT IS BROKEN.

(Regina Leader-Post)

IT IS APPARENT that hardly anyone in at least the southern part of Saskatchewan can grumble about the rains of recent days and nights. They have been spanking rains, real old-fashioned rains of the type we got almost regularly up to about 10 years ago.

When you get an inch of rainfall at one time you get a firstclass rain. Many Southern Saskatchewan areas have got an inch of rain over the past two or three days, and many of them have got a good deal more than that. Some of them have had close to three inches.

It is regrettable that a number of Dominion Day celebrations were spoiled because of the rain; it is not nice to see roads rendered impassable; it is regrettable to note that here and there in Southern Saskatchewan over the past few days railway lines have been washed away in places. Yet Saskatchewan people, considering all the drought experiences they have had of recent years, are ready to smile at such things. Rain, when it is needed, is more important than celebrations or roads or even railway tracks.

It is quite evident that the drought period in Saskatchewan has been definitely broken.

THE NEWEST HORROR.

(New York Times)

THE TRUTH IS that the world shudders before a kind of war to which the old rules do not apply. In the words of Mr. Chamberlain, unhappily replying to the critics demanding reprisals for the raids on British merchantmen, the problem created by the bomber is "without presedent in previous experience." The bomber is the latest version of the scriptural wild beast, "the raging lion seeking whom it may devour." Of all instruments of war, it is the most indiscriminating, the most pitiless, the least subject to traffic laws and the conventions governing the use of other weapons. We may as well face the dreadful fact that in the next war the utmost possible use will be made of these monstrous engines of destruction, which every nation is now mass-producing. We may as well recognize that there is only one way to limit bombing and curb the bomber, and that is to outlaw it completely.

ANOTHER DIES YOUNG.

(Windsor Star)

The death of Suzanne Lenglen at 39 is another case of a woman athlete succumbing at an early age. And the fact that the former queen of tennis died in her native France of pernicious anaemia emphasizes the strain which strenuous sports put on women.

So many girls lose their health after taking an active part in athletics. Their physiques seem unable to stand the strain to which they put their bodies. It leads to the belief that women were not made for strenuous games.

• What To Do With the Single Men

(Sault Ste. Marie Star)

"I AM sick of this continual passing the buck. I don't care what you do. I'm going to work," Alderman E. Dinsmore told the City Council last night when it failed to reach a clear-cut decision in the matter of whether or not the city would continue to care for single men on relief.

Alderman Dinsmore, chairman of the Indigent Committee, explained that almost nine months ago the Ontario Government decided that it would no longer give any money toward the maintenance of single men on relief. The Government had now become insistent that this ruling be enforced. Where single men were carried on relief the municipalities would have to bear the entire burden.

Four in Sault

In the case of single men now on Sault relief rolls all except four had been certified as medically unfit for work. He asked the Council for a ruling on the four men concerned whose ages ranged from 45 to 50. Should they be cut off relief or should they be continued?

He explained that the Welfare Board and the Indigent Committee both wanted the Council to outline its policy not only for the guidance of both but also for the guidance of the relief officer who must, under present rulings, declare single men cut from the relief rolls.

"I have called meetings of the Indigent Committee to discuss this and other matters," said Alderman Dinsmore. "Very few attend them. When men are cut off relief it's Dinsmore they blame for it. When they are put on someone else gets the credit. I'm not going to have any more of it."

Two Motions Defeated

Two motions were voted on by Council, one to cut the single men off relief and the other to keep them on, but both were defeated as too sweeping in their scope.

"I shall bring every one of my cases direct to the City Council and let them be decided here," Alderman Dinsmore said. "It's time this buck-passing stopped."

Alderman Nicolson put forward a resolution that no action should be taken, but withdrew it. When the other two motions were defeated he mourned: "I should have let my resolution stay."

"Why bother about that," said the mayor. "It was to the effect that this Council take no action. That's exactly what has been done. This is a serious matter, gentlemen, and should be taken care of one way or the other."

Fears "Dumping"

"If we give relief to single men then the whole north country will dump their single men on us," objected Alderman Gibson.

City Clerk H. Tolley explained that the matter of caring for single men was deeper than it seemed. It included all persons over 21 in a relief family. Where there were one or two young men over that age they were cut off relief and the family received a relief order of size only to care for those under 21. "The Government evidently feels that young men, or single able-bodied men, should be able to care for themselves."

Alderman W. Harry said that in the summer months at least single men who were not physically incapable should care for themselves.

Aldermen W. Hill, J. D. MacDonald, A. Nino and Curtis favored the single men being cared for. It was suggested that berry-picking might be a solution.

"It's a slim living picking berries," said Alderman Curtis.

"How long can a man fast?" asked Alderman MacDonald.

Council finally asked the Welfare Board to continue as in the past to deal with all cases coming before it on their individual merits. The Council expressed its confidence in the Welfare Board's ability to handle the various cases coming before it.

"Buck passing," said Alderman Dinsmore.

"I wish to be recorded as against that resolution," said Alderman A. R. Hugill. "It is far too indefinite."

• Is Mr. Oakes Actually A Martyr

(Timmins Daily Press)

SOUTHERN Ontario papers persist in presenting Harry Oakes, newly elected member of the Bahamas Legislature and given to self-imposed exile in that delightful tropical group as a martyr, driven from his adopted homeland of Canada by taxation. They do not seem to quite have the Oakes case in focus, probably owing to lack of knowledge of the North Country—the source of Mr. Oakes fabulous wealth.

Speaking about his election and his many generous gifts for public purposes, the Windsor Star says:

"What makes many Canadians unhappy, however, is the fact that Mr. Oakes is living in Nassau and not in this country. He is too valuable a citizen for Canada to lose. And yet, according to report, we have lost him because of the excessiveness of our taxation system. Mr. Oakes is a wealthy man and willing to pay his share and more, all the time. He seems to have the old-fashioned idea, however, that he should have the privilege of picking his own beneficiaries instead of handing all his money to the Government to spend—or waste—as it sees fit."

What should make many Canadians still more unhappy, is that Mr. Oakes should not have seen fit to bestow some of the benefactions he has given to more favored spots on Kirkland Lake, the source of his vast wealth.

In Kirkland Lake are the men who work in the mines which continue to produce great wealth for Mr. Oakes. These miners are the fathers of thousands of new Canadians, but Mr. Oakes has not seen fit to take part in any movement which might produce more and better homes in which these new Canadians could be brought up or to give the families of his employees swimming pools, recreation halls and some of the amenities of living so naturally enjoyed by people of Niagara Falls, for instance, which has been the object of some of Mr. Oakes' benefactions.

Mr. Oakes may have tried to do something for Kirkland Lake in earlier days and been discouraged. But he should hardly visit his displeasure on the children of those who did not meet any advances he may have made whole-heartedly.

Mr. Oakes may be a martyr in a certain sense, but it seems also that many children in Kirkland Lake may be martyrs to unhealthy living conditions which it would seem are more of a responsibility of Mr. Oakes than are sick people in far off England who may benefit from his benefactions to hospitals there.

Or could it be possible that money given to charity in England might be a more direct route to a knighthood than a comparatively trifling sum spent in Kirkland Lake?

• More People Go To Hospitals Now

(By The Ontario Hospital Association)

COMPARATIVE figures for public and private hospitals in Canada during the years 1935 to 1936 inclusive, issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, show that an annually increasing number of Canadian people are availing themselves of hospital facilities at times of sickness and emergency.

For instance, in 1933, the number of patients admitted totalled 647,874, as compared with 821,978 in 1936, representing an increase of 174,104, or approximately 27%, while the number of women admitted for childbirth increased by 12,348, or nearly 20%.

There is little doubt that this growing popularity of Canadian hospitals find its source in large part in the rapid advancement which has been made in recent years in medical science and hospital equipment, resulting, on the one hand, in a higher percentage of cures and, on the other, in a shortening of hospital treatment and hence a lowering of patients' hospital expense.

The trend towards shorter hospitalization is shown in the fact that the average days' stay of patients in these hospitals decreased from 19.6 in 1933 to 18.1 in 1936.

Looking back to the early part of the 19th century when patients, upon entering hospital, practically gave up hope of life and when mortality from surgical operation was as high as 90 and even 100 per cent., it is interesting to note, as a comparison to these conditions, that, during the year 1936, discharges from Canadian hospitals totalled 788,189, which represented 91.5 per cent. of the total number under care during the year, and that the total deaths in hospital formed only 3.9 per cent.

MAY COME TOO LATE

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

(From the Authorized Version)

To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven: a time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted. . . . A time to get, and a time to lose: a time to keep, and a time to cast away. . . .

I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before Him. That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth that which is past.—Eccl. iii: 1, 2, 6, 14, 15.

And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth lifted up his hand to heaven, and sware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer.—Rev. x: 5, 6.

ONE FOR RIPLEY.

(Hamilton Spectator)

Every one knows how confused people get about sunsets and sunrises when they go from the Atlantic to the Pacific via the Panama Canal by coming out (running north to south) at a point some 30 miles east of the point where they came in. All good Canadians realize that Windsor is south of Detroit, that Churchill on the Hudson Bay is nearly as close to Liverpool as Montreal can boast, just as a good imperialist knows, or should know, that by the genius of British law, Gibraltar is in the county of Kent.

But the best of the Ripleys on hand for Canadians is this: The southernmost point of Canada, Pelee Island in Lake Erie, is south of the northernmost point of California. Go south to Canada with the birds! Let tourist offices take note.

RAILROADS OF TOMORROW

(Pullmann Advertisement)

The tomorrow of railroading will open up a new world. For not only will high speed, high-powered, bullet-nosed, streamlined trains be cutting through time on every line, but the merchandise of the world will also be carried at a speed far greater than the ordinary passenger train is travelling today. For your freight trains, too, will be lightweight, modern carriers, travelling with the speed of the wind.

Nazis Arms Race Brings New French Warning

PARIS, July 14 (AP).—A French warning to Germany to keep hands off Czechoslovakia coincided to-day with the opening of an arms loan campaign.

At the same time, Premier Edouard Daladier ordered publication in the official Journal of a law detailing general organization for the nation in time of war.

Daladier, who as National Defence Minister and Premier guided the French rearmament program which in six months used up a 5,000,000,000 franc ($138,500,000) loan issued only two months ago, declared the nation was ready to take strong action to prevent any German-Czechoslovak conflict.

The Premier in an address last night held out an olive branch in one hand with a tribute to German "good-will" in the face of strong French-British representations in May when trouble threatened between the Reich and Czechoslovakia.

Treaty Stands Good

But Daladier also swore to uphold France's treaty with Czechoslovakia pledging aid to the central European democracy should it be attacked.

Insistent reports in Paris of an acceleration of the pace of German military preparations caused ominous feelings in some quarters here.

The new French rearmament loan, in 3½ per cent bonds to go on sale Monday, will be negotiable with the bank of France for 90 per cent of their value from the date of issue and for 95 per cent after six months. It was announced the previous loan, offered May 16 and bought up in one day, covered armament expenses from Jan. 1 to June 30.

No limit was set on the amount of the issue although the issuance of individual bonds were denominations as high as 1,000,000 francs ($27,758) indicated the government expected it to be heavy.

"What was possible once must always remain possible until a final settlement of the point at issue," Premier Daladier said, referring to the Anglo-French pressure in Berlin May 21 regarding reported German intention to invade Czechoslovakia.

He said France hoped she would never have to fulfill her pledge to the Czechs but was determined never to go back on her word if such hopes proved vain.

Making Planes In Hurry.

PARIS, July 13 (CP-Havas). — Two Paris newspapers today published accounts of reported German military preparations along the western frontier and expressed belief the Reich may be preparing a coup to take place before the September Nazi congress at Nuremberg.

Le Figaro, Rightist newspaper, said airplane production in Germany had been stepped up to a wartime basis, while the Radical Socialist L'Oeuvre asserted important new fortification lines were being built in the Saar region.

"Information obtained here," said Le Figaro, "has aroused the fear that the Reich is preparing some surprise for this summer before the Nuremberg congress September 5.

"We learn that fortification work on the western front and covering troops along the Siegfried line have been increased recently to the point that in the very near future they will form an impregnable barrier.

Harvesting Set Ahead.

"New plans permitting doubling of aviation strength in less than six months instead of 10 have been put into effect and factories are already producing 400 planes a month. It is hoped that in three months that figure can be doubled. But the figure of 400 is already a war-production figure.

"Harvesting in the German countryside has been advanced and must be over by a fixed date."

Reporting similar rumors, Genevieve Tabouis, commentator of L'Oeuvre, said that from Speyer to Trier the Oberstein line has been reinforced by new fortifications. In the Saar region 220,000 men have been concentrated to intensify work along fortifications traversing the area from east to west passing by Hamburg, Nuenkirchen, Saarwellingen and Merztig, she declared.

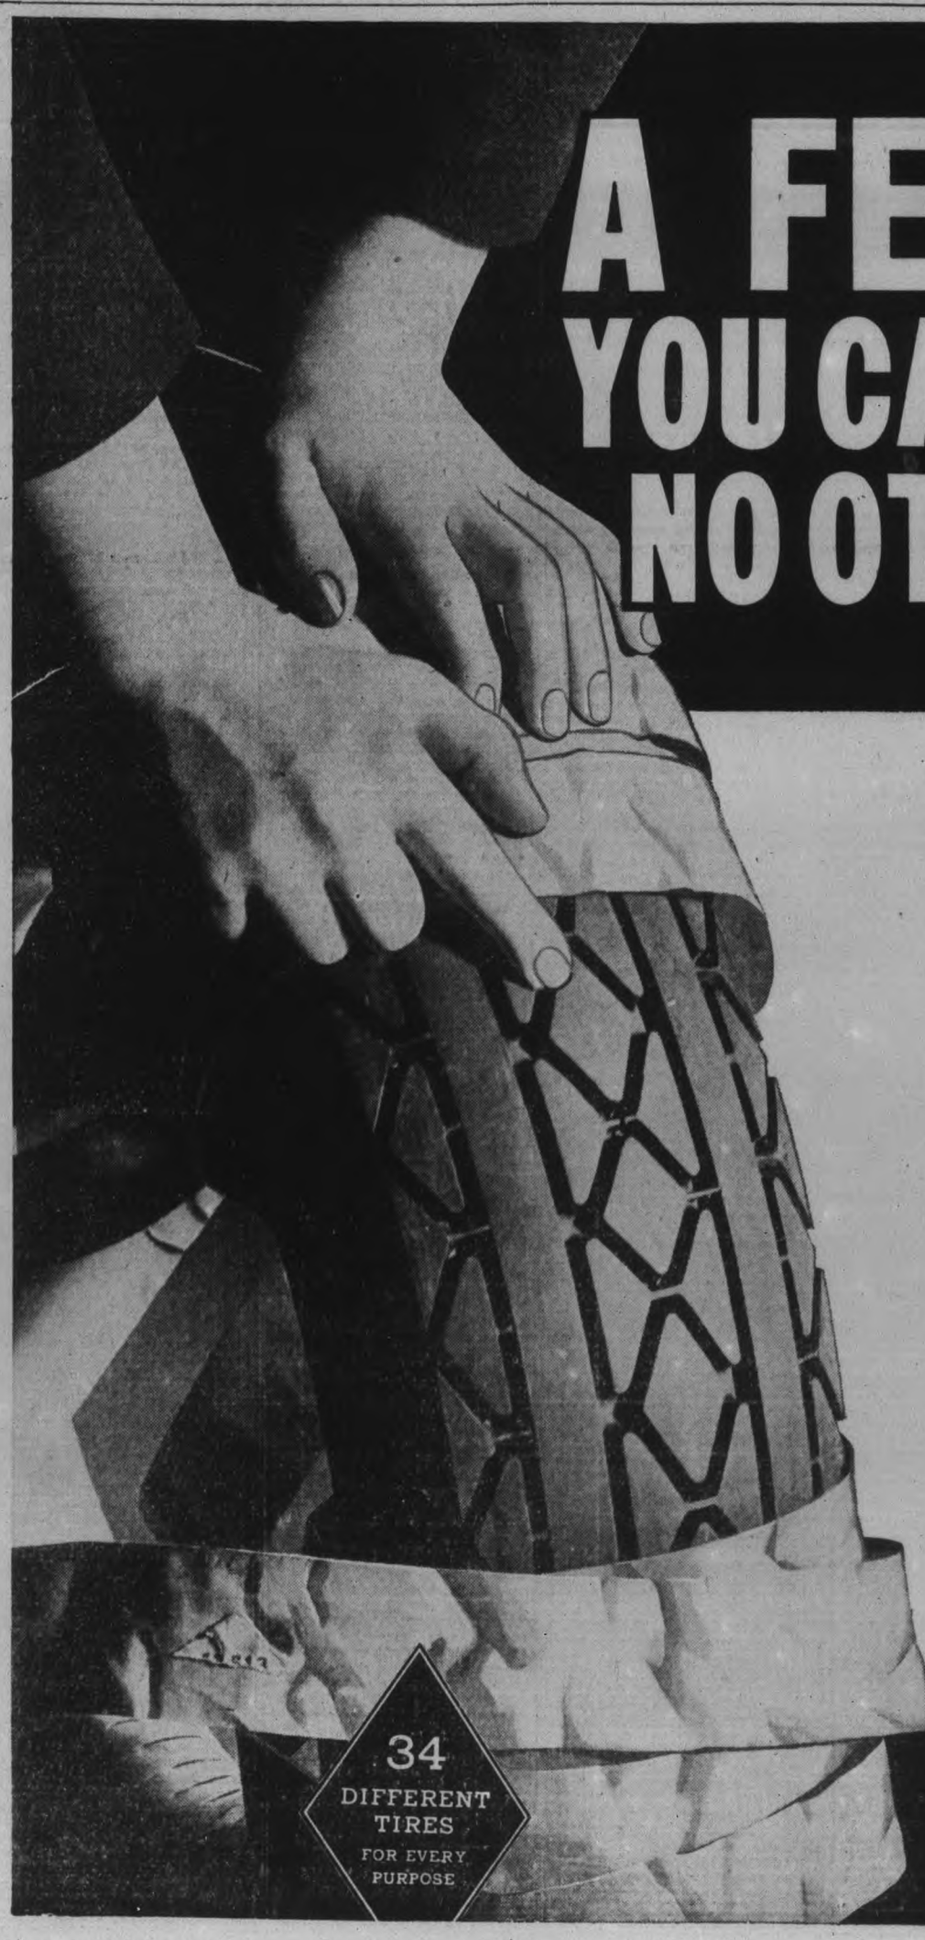
Newspaper ads are like that. You can rush them into print anywhere, anytime. You can use them in specific communities to bolster up weak markets, or meet local situations, economically. You can tie them in at the last moment, even, with new promotion plans and sales campaigns. Right up to press-time, almost, you can change or replace (and even cancel!) them.

No other medium in the whole advertising world is so flexible, so adaptable to the needs of everybody's business as the newspaper. That's why the big leaders in advertising tip you off—by their own "majoring" in this medium—to newspaper advertising as the sturdy backbone for your own campaign.

This advertisement was prepared for the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association, by MacLaren Advertising Company Limited.



A FEATURE YOU CAN FIND IN NO OTHER TIRE

● Look at this four-pointed diamond — it is the secret of Goodyear's exclusive four-way traction.

See how these keen-edged, sharp-angled, husky blocks of rubber are placed right in the centre of the tread. They grip any road like a vise — brace against skidding in any direction — provide safe, sure traction straight ahead, in reverse, right and left! They stop your car — quick! — in an emergency.

Look at the broad, thick, Goodyear tread, with its high, wide, load-sharing shoulders. It has more rubber contact with the road, wears down slowly, provides longer life — for many extra miles of safe, dependable service. Under this tight-gripping, slow-wearing tread you get the shock resisting protection of patented Supertwist cords . . . they are livelier, more resilient, longer-lasting than all others!

For all their extra value, Goodyears cost you not one penny more than standard tires. Why be satisfied with less than a Goodyear? Don't wait; drive in and see the tires you need — at your Goodyear dealer's. He is ready to serve you TODAY!

You get extra value in Goodyear's heavy duty tires. They provide 50% greater body thickness at only 25% higher cost than standard tires. Both Goodyear's famous "G-3" (illustrated) and the lower-priced "R-1" are made in heavy duty 6-ply as well as standard 4-ply.

ONTARIO SOFTBALL REFUSES TO SUSPEND KINGSTON PLAYERS

Feels Dispute Is Matter Of O.B.A. Only

Some friction apparently is developing in sports circles over the recent suspension of the Kingston Ponies by the Ontario Baseball Association. The O.B.A. threw the Ponies out of organized baseball for using ineligible players and so informed the O.S.A., as being a fellow member with the O.B.A. of the Ontario Sports Federation. This move was expected to bar automatically any of the suspended Ponies from playing softball as well as baseball. But the O.S.A. has refused to do this.

A despatch to-day from the softball secretary's office in Guelph states: "Taking the stand that a a dispute between the Ontario Baseball Association and the Kingston Baseball Club is a matter solely for the O.B.A., the Ontario Softball Association has declined to accede to the request of the provincial body to bar Kingston players from softball. The Kingston team was suspended from O.B.A. competition recently when certain players were used who had not applied for transfers."

A few days ago the Kingston Ponies applied to the O.B.A. for reinstatement to organized ball, it being felt that the club might still return to finish out its schedule in the C.O.B.L. with Oshawa and Peterborough. But the application for reinstatement was rejected, and the following letter sent to Secretary Howard Byron of the Ponies by Secretary William Snyder of the Ontario Baseball Association:

O.B.A. Refuses.

"The Ontario Baseball Association cannot at this time consider reinstatement of the players to play softball or any other sport, the suspension has been recorded with the Ontario Sports Federation, Ontario Softball Association, and other branches of sport in order that the suspension involved becomes general and affects the players' activities in all branches of sport. The players concerned, if they so desire, may apply individually to the Ontario Baseball Association, but their requests will not be considered until the next meeting of the executive or sub-committee which will be held during the month of August."

There is considerable hard feeling evident in Kingston and directed toward the O.B.A., and the announcement to-day by the O.S.A. is likely to stir up trouble within the Sports Federation. Following are some of the Kingston Whig-Standard columnist's comments yesterday:

Kingston Objects.

The O.B.A. may be justified in its action regarding the Ponies, who admittedly played pitcher Ed. Poller without a certificate but the exonerating or rewarding the Peterborough club for a worse offence is beyond all reason.

The O.B.A. official report to the Kingston Ponies of the joint meeting with the Central League when the Kingston suspension was upheld is as follows:

"The Kingston Senior Club still stands suspended. They have made no effort to secure change of residence for their players who require the same. The Kingston officials know the O.B.A. rules and regulations regarding transfers and did not need to be notified. They have had a club in the transfers. The O.B.A. for a number of years, and, as stated above, knew the rule governing transfers. The O.B.A. are advised the Ontario Sports Federation relative to the suspension of the Kingston Club and players.

"Francis McNally was granted a change of residence from Hudson, Mass., to Peterborough.

"Robert Doll of Peterborough was granted reinstatment. He has not played professional baseball for over a period of one year and therefore eligible for reinstatement.

"Robert Doll was granted a change of residence from Akron, Ohio, to Peterborough. He was granted the right to sign an O.B.A. certificate before July 15, but must remain out of the next three consecutive league games with Oshawa. This penalty was placed on Mr. Doll for advising the O.B.A. he was formerly employed at the Quaker Oats Limited in Akron, Ohio, which was not correct. After hearing the evidence on Doll's former employment in Akron we felt his statement was made innocently. However, some penalty had to be inflicted; therefore he was suspended for three league games.

"The Kingston club will not be allowed to play league or exhibition games with or against O.B.A. clubs or players."

Must Miss Games to Play.

The explanation of the Doll case is the worst drivel ever handed out by any supposed intelligent group of men in charge of sports. The O.B.A. did not make any announcement of Doll playing for Peterborough after he was refused a certificate. There is not any punishment in keeping him out of league games as Oshawa and Peterborough are left to play for the Central Ontario senior championship, and Doll will be eligible for the finals, if three league games are held so that he can qualify by remaining out of them. It means the C.O.B.L. will have to play three C.O.B.L. will have to play three games so that Doll can miss them in order that he can join the Petes in the playoffs.

The O.B.A. claim that Kingston did not apply for transfers is incorrect in every case, except Ed. Poller, according to a letter received on May 2 from W. J. Snyder, which said in part:

"Regarding the Napanee players, it would be necessary for the said players to secure their releases from Napanee and any other O.B.A. club that is closer to Napanee than Kingston. If these releases are secured by the players from Napanee I do not think the O.B.A. will have any objection to their playing with the Kingston Club."

Ernie Gibbard granted Kingston Ponies permission to use all senior players in Napanee district and in a recent conversation with officials of the Ponies he said he planned a strong protest against the O.B.A. suspension.

"Say It Ain't So," Says Rickey

For almost 10 years, while St. Louis Cardinals were clamoring for pitching help, Bob Klinger, ABOVE, was treading the minor league trail, a member of the famed "chain gang." But, as in so many similar cases, no call came from the majors. This year Pittsburg Pirates drafted Robert from Sacramento, and all he's done since is win games regularly for them, allow just over two earned runs per game, and beat the Cards four times! He's one of the Smoky City team's best investments and 'tis said a certain Branch Rickey loses his appetite when the word Klinger is mentioned.

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP).—Hank Greenberg, Tiger slugger, would like to learn the identity of the feminine admirer who sends him a four leaf clover in a 'scented envelope two or three times a week . . . This one is almost too good to be true, but Arch Ward reports via the Chicago Tribune that Cincinnati scouts are looking over a minor league pitcher named Ketcher and a catcher named Pitcher.

Over in Brooklyn-the-other day Babe Ruth pointed to Bob Seeds of the Giants and exclaimed: "There's one guy who is really uglier than I am." . . . Babe is parking half a dozen balls daily and autographing more than 100 score cards before each game, but his chances of becoming manager of the Dodgers are fading for the simple reason the club is losing about as regularly as it ever did—which is plenty if you count the last two days . . .

The Yanks are turning on the old power but you can't count those Injuns out yet . . . Those pictures of Tony Galento quaffing beer are getting a bit tiresome. . . . Paul Dean says his arm is coming around and that he'll be pitching major league ball again before long . . . Pittsburgh promoters are offering real dough for a Baby Arizmendi-Jackie Wilson scrap.

If Max Baer lets them trick him into fighting anybody less than Joe Louis, he's plumb crazy . . . This talk about him fighting Barlund, Pastor or some other guy in a "tune-up" is apple sauce . . . Maxie earned the right to fight Louis by trimming Tommy Farr and if we know Ancil Hoffman, they're not going to kid him out of it . . . Farr, who collected almost $175,000 for losing three fights here, isn't in the current picture . . . Gunnar Barlund of Finland is in a class by himself among the younger heavyweights and he's at least a year away . . . His manager, Paul Damski, admits that.

Note to Frank G. Chisholm, Hamilton, Ont.; Dexter Teed, c/o Colgate University, Hamilton, N.Y., will be tickled to death to fix you up . . . If you listen to "Old Sarge" Gabby Street of the St. Louis Browns, the Yankees are just about "in" . . . Important tennis note: Frankie Parker has his forenand back again.

Stung For Bees

MONTREAL, July 14.—(CP)— J. Georges Sylvestre, 35, was remanded yesterday by Judge Maurice Tetreau to further hearing July 20 on charges of defrauding farmers of approximately $400 for bees which were never delivered.

After paying sums ranging from $5.15 to $267 when offered the bees at greatly reduced prices, farmers in outlying Montreal districts told the court they were "stung" when Sylvestre failed to deliver.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

EAST YORK IS THE name of the gutted-stick squad which will take issue here tomorrow night with the Petes in an O. L. A. senior "B" squabble. A rugged band of lacrossers, the East Yorkers do not hesitate to apply the gad with wim, wigor and witality—but the Petes do a bit of pitching and not all the catching, too. Ought to be another lively fixture and should again draw a good crowd of customers. Always lots of action and some neat play down at the George St. arena of a Friday in the gloaming. A midget fray will be run off at 8.15 o'clock by the Lions and Rotarians, and we hope the lads are wearing their new club sweaters.

* * * * * *

HOCKEY CLUB meets tonight at 8.15 in the Chamber of Commerce to elect a strong slate of officers for the 1938-39 puck season. Nominating committee has been working like Trojans and a bunch of prominent local sportsmen have promised to take office if elected. It is up to the gathering tonight to name the men they want. Not only must the high standard of hockey entertainment set here last winter be maintained, but the local club must keep working toward an artificial ice arena in Peter'sborough for the following winter. A Big project it is. The meeting tonight is open to all those interested.

Pugno Pugnas, Pugnat

AND AS THE LATINS SAY: "Pugnant." If we recall rightly that hammering we took daily in school when it rolled around Latin time, the word means "They fight." Anyway, the Riverview A. C. is back again with another outdoor mitt card, to be staged next Monday e'en in the lacrosse arena. Eight boxing bouts, top four being five-rounders ,and three between Toronto and local pugilists. And fans here well know that these club fighters "pugnant" in a big way from bell to bell in every round. Lots of fistic action on tap and we are informed the bouts will be run off rapidly, no delays in between as in the past. The Peterborough boxers are reported in the pink of condish now, and the Toronto gees are prominent ringmen. Oliver of Toronto is a lightweight champ and holds a decision over Bev. Carter. Potter and Pratt of Toronto are also smart amateur mitt-slingers.

* * * * * *

NICK ORLANDO fights Russ Oliver in the headliner and it'll be a sweet scrap. And the hard-hitting Dutch McIlmoyle is in the semi-final slot with Bill Potter. Eddie Pratt of Toronto meets Joe Taman. Watch the latter go this time. He fought here before, hailing from Ottawa, but wasn't in shape— and he tells us personally he will show fans here this time. He is a human windmill, throwing punches fast and often from all directions like the late Harry Greb. Norm Bowler and Ward Wright have a grudge fight and if ya don't believe us just try to buy a ticket in the pool their stablemates made up! Other boys on the card include Mal Packenham against Milt Greenley, Art Nokes in with Joe Hobbins. Dan McGregor vs. Gord Riel, Will Hays 'gainst Jerry Lester, and Buddy Redmond fighting Frank Vasey. Keep Monday night open.

Some Gridiron Grub

TOMORROW IN THE twilight we expect to grind the molars into some gridiron grub. At the big booster banquet of the Orfuns' Rugby Club at seven in the Empress Hotel. Should be a notable gathering of officers, players, coaches, visitors and fans on hand. Ducats at 75c may be obtained at the hotel. Following the feed, a general outline of senior football plans will be presented, the gridiron layout shown, various grid angles discussed and officers elected. Some of the big shots of the Montreal C. N. R. Club and the Balmy Beach crowd are expected to attend as well as Secretary Bailey of the O. R. F. U. After this affair, folks here will have a good idea of how things are shaping up for the ambitious autumn project planned this year for Peterborough.

* * * * * *

ONCE AGAIN WE bring you an item on ball from Kingston: "A bag of bats hanging on a garage wall, a catcher's mask tossed among some tires, a glove, body protector and other paraphernalia heaped in a corner is all that remains of the Kingston Ponies, the once proud club that was respected in senior ball. The players, black-listed out of sport by a ruling of the O. B. A., even from other games they want to play, are wondering what to do next and how to get some activity before the summer ends, innocent victims of somebody's mistakes. With an application for re-instatement in the hands of the O. B. A., most of the suspended players are waiting to join other clubs although all but two are lost to Ontario baseball this year. Seven will devote their future athletic activities this summer to softball when they are re-instated. The suspension affects three softball teams." We are mighty sorry about this mess, as the players themselves were not at fault.

And The Oshawa Oracle

AFTER RAPPING McGarry and Turner for their ninth-frame lapses here Tuesday, the Oshawa scribe says: "While McNally was inclined to be wild Tuesday he showed that his is a classy hurler. Considering that he has not pitched a game for three weeks, The GM-men would be making a big mistake to judge McNally's ability merely on his display in this game. It looks to us as if he can be much better than he showed Tuesday evening. He has all kinds of speed, a tricky curve ball and best of all he keeps his pitches out of the centre, trying for the corners at all times. Lefty Wallace and Tommy Foley, both lefthand hitters, were the big guns for Oshawa, Wallace getting three safeties and Foley two doubles." Yeah, the only sure way of getting rid of Foley at the plate is to kidnap him, we'd say.

* * * * * *

HERB RALPH'S Young Petes ran into a real surprise last p.m. in Bowmanville and a guy named Slemon gave 'em the lemony side of an 8-3 count. It pulled the Petes back into a first-place tie with Oshawa, who were winning from Cobourg, and kept the Rubbertown roisterers in the Lakeshore Junior Ball Loop race. Herb's gang go to Oshawa for a twin bill on Saturday and they are hoping to at least split even. A few shifts in the lineup may be made as some of the boys aren't hitting. Fielding wasn't so hot either for 'em last night. Only bright spot was Todd's relief flinging when Clark got into trouble and the hitting of Castle and Stanley. Earl McNabb may be out of Saturday's struggles as he suffered a cracked rib when a home player slid into him at second last eve. Won't be long till the playoffs.

* * * * * *

PICKING 'EM OFF the grapevine: O. S. A. declines to suspend the Kingston softballers just 'cause the O. B. A. has the clamps on the Ponies. . . . A Tokyo flash today says Japan has suspended the 1940 Olympics. . . . Shorty Reid is expected to play lacrosse here tomorrow eve; Westonfelt may be kept out with a mild case of poison ivy. . . . Meikle, ace Cobourg grid hoofer last year, says the Oshawa writer, has moved to Regina and will try out with the Rough Riders. . . . Kingston ball men are organizing a boys' loop, so as to develop their own players in future. . . . C. G. E. Girl softballers are in Keene this Friday. . . . Hot On Trail For Home-Run Record But Odds Are 100 To 1 Against Them

NEW YORK, July 14.—The old race after Babe Ruth's home run record, analmost futile chase now in its eleventh year, is getting hot again, with the hopeful baseball multitudes depending upon either of Detroit's two big muscle men, Hank Greenberg or Rudy York, to perform the miracle.

If it took brute strength alone, Hank and Rudy would be a cinch. Yet the odds against either of them tying or eclipsing the famous sixty home run record should be 100 to 1 or more. Because the more you look at the Babe's record the farther away it seems.

Of the two Tiger sluggers, Greenberg has the better chance. Up to to-day the Bronx Bomber has belted twenty-six homers. If he gets four more by July 24, he will be tied with the pace set by Ruth in 1927. York is three behind Hank, requiring seven four-ply smacks to draw even with the schedule. Rudy beat the record schedule for September last year by getting eighteen homers, one more than Ruth got, but he wound up the season with 35 in 104 games.

The record books show Babe's full season schedule as follows:

April, four homers; May, twelve; June, nine; July, nine; August, nine; September, seventeen.

All told he played in 151 games, hammering out 27 home runs at Yankee Stadium, and 33 on the road. Jimmy Foxx of Boston Red Sox, came closest to tying the record in 1932, when he pasted a lively ball for 58 home runs in 154 games —31 at home and 27 on the road. Next closest was Hack Wilson of the Cubs, who hit 32 at home and 24 away for the Cubs back in 1930.

Somehow, even if Greenberg or York gets far ahead of the schedule it will be hard to believe they can do it. Next to his great power, splendid eyesight, and a jackrabbit ball, Ruth had an attribute Greenberg or York never will have. That was his power to relax. He could come to the ball yard all in and depressed, but forget his troubles as soon as he picked up a bat.

Canadian Congratulates Conqueror

Two Canadians distinguished themselves at the International motor boat regatta, held at Torquay, England, but they didn't have quite enough to win. Driving his Shadow II., Charles Wheaton, of Toronto, finished second to S. Mortimer Auerbach, famed American racer, in the competition for the Duke of York gold challenge trophy, and the picture shows Wheaton, RIGHT, congratulating Auerbach seated in his four litre hydroplane, Emancipator VII. after the race. R. J. McInnis, of Quebec City, was third with his Miss Quebec.

Paper Publishes Again

NEW YORK, July 14 — (AP). — Publication of the Long Island Daily Star, suspended three weeks ago when it changed ownership, was resumed yesterday under an agreement with the American Newspaper Guild. The paper had ceased publication when Samuel I. Newhouse, the new owner, declined to promise there would be no staff dismissals during a "trial period." The agreement provided there would be no dismissals for three months.

Back To Work

The truculent gent striding in from the pitching mound, as anyone would recognize, is the great J. H. Dean, of Chicago Cubs. Diz has been ordered to be ready for work in a week or so by Owner Wrigley of the Cubs, who apparently has grown a trifle tired of waiting for his $185,000 worth of ivory on the hoof to produce in his former customary manner.

Louis To Meet Max Baer In September

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—The hot weather and even hotter comments in the public prints were thought to have taken Mike Jacobs mind off a Joe Louis-Max Baer fight in September, but it appears to have been a false hope.

The sixth Avenue impresario is dogged and determined about the matter, and besides, he explains, Baer has a contract.

In Mike's behalf, it must be admitted that up to two days ago he was willing to be reasonable. But then Louis flew in on him unexpectedly from Chicago and said he wanted to fight in September, and out the window went Mike's good resolutions.

Now he's back in his office under the elevated, his sleeves rolled up and a telephone in either hand.

"What can I do?" Mike protested. "Louis says he wants to defend his championship in September. Says he doesn't care if the government does take 75 per cent of his purse—he wants to fight. So now it's up to his managers.

"I don't know where I'll hold it yet. All I know is that Baer gets the fight, and that he'll put up a lot better fight than Schmeling did. I promised the winner of the Baer-Tommy Farr bout a shot at the title, and Max won it. If Farr wants another chance he'll have to lick somebody first. Maybe I'll match him with Bob Pastor."

In recent inter-club tennis matches in Port Hope, it was stated that Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Storey of the Peterborough "A" club had lost to a Port Hope pair in mixed doubles. However, the Peterborough pair won their match, the news item from Port Hope being incorrect.

YANKEES TAKE THE LEAD IN THE AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE

Pirates Winning Streak Brought To An End When Dodgers Win 10 To 5

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Every once in a while, without rhyme or reason, one of those daffy days pops up right plumb in the middle of the pennant races and it doesn't make any kind of sense no matter how you add it up.

Maybe because it was the 13th of the month, or the heat or something, the pennant parade on both sides of the big league picture had one of those days yesterday.

In the confusion, there were such solid developments as (1) the arrival of the Yankees in undisputed possession of first place in the American League for the first time since May 11, and (2) the end of Pittsburgh Pirates '13-game winning streak, longest victory run in the majors this year.

But the manner in which even these two things came about was just part of as silly a set of situations as the big time has seen on any one day this year.

Take the Yankees. They tangled with St. Louis Browns in a game that left 3,671 fans wondering just what sport was played. Joe DiMaggio broke up the game with his second homer of the day to give the Yanks a 15-12 decision in the 10th inning.

Since Cleveland Indians took a 4-3 drubbing from Washington, the Yankees went into first place by half a game.

No whacky day, of course, would be complete without those dafiness boys from way back, the Dodgers of Brooklyn. They took a hand by knocking over the Pirates, 10-5, with a seven-run splurge in the ninth inning, to end the Bucs' long winning run.

Johnny Mize, of the Cardinals hit three homers in successive times at bat, and then saw Boston Bees beat the gas house gang, 10-5, anyway.

Despite the Pirates' defeat, the Bucs retained their slim hold on first place in the National League since the Giants dropped a 6-1 decision to Cincinnati Reds.

George Caster pitched a six-hitter and paced the Athletics to a 5-2 win over Chicago White Sox. The Tigers and Boston Red Sox broke even in a double-header, the Sox taking the opener 7-4 and Detroit coming back 9-5 in the nightcap.

Brilliant Array Golfers Line Up

TORONTO, July 14 (CP).—Slim Bobby Alston brought his polished game and his Ontario open golf championship to Toronto's Summit Club today for defence against a brilliant array of shotmakers.

The Ottawa Scot who won the title last year in a playoff with Bill MacWilliam of Toronto will face, among more than 100 other amateurs and professionals, C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., who has just won two straight major tournaments along the Niagara border, and R. T. Gray, Jr., who beat a big field of Toronto players Sunday in a special event with a sparkling 67.

In the field, too, will be Stan Horne of Ottawa Chaudiere Club, Canadian Professional Golfers Association champion the past two years; Jules Huot of Kent Club, Quebec, winner of the $3,000 General Brock tournament at Fonthill, Ont., last year; and Bobby Reith, sensational Winnipeg amateur who recently became professional at Windsor's Essex club. Eight former winners of the tournament have entered.

All in all, it looks like the hardest task for a repeat victory in recent Canadian golf tournament play.

Old working war horses are being brought and put to pasture in England.

Cleveland's Johnny Allen Easy To Rile But Sets A Torrid Winning Pace

It Took a One-Hitter to Prevent Temperamental Tosser From Equalling Record Last Year — May Do It This Year

Johnny Allen pitching

The fast one . . . notice how high the ball leaves his hand

By BILL BRAUCHER
(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.)

CLEVELAND(July 14. — Unless something is done about getting Johnny Allen's goat, one of these days we're all going to discover that the Indians' big right-hander has cracked that American League record of 16 straight victories wide open.

The fiery Clevelander, who, more than any other pitcher, has become the target for professional upsetters and harassers, lost the first game of the season to, of all people, the Brownies. He has won his next 12 in a row, and is fighting with Master Bob Feller not only for the top billing as a game winner, but as a striker-outer as well. And as he goes along, Johnny seems to be getting better, his fast ones faster, that sliding curve more deceptive.

Two Losses in Two Years.

Since starting th season of 1937 with Cleveland, Allen has lost just two games, one at the end of last season, the other the first game of 1938. Though he took time out for an appendicitis operation last summer, he won 15 straight games. In an effort to tie the league mark held by Lefty Grove, Walter Johnson, Joe Wood, and Schoolboy Rowe, he pitched the last game of the 1937 season after only two days of rest. He lost, 1 to 0, a game in which Jake Wade of the Tigers allowed the Indians just one hit.

Though Allen's strikeouts have not received the attention that Feller's fanning achievements have, Johnny has been averaging about six and a half per game, against seven and a half by the fireball kid, and Allen's strikeouts have been increasing in the last few weeks, whereas Feller's have been about stationary. The battle between the two may continue right down to the wire in September.

Yankees' Mistake.

If the Yankees had Allen now, instead of Monte Pearson for whom they traded him three years ago, the Bronx Bombers would be in front of the American League parade again. Pearson has started unsteadily, and lost more games than he has won.

Allen's hot North Carolina disposition has cost him many ball games in the past, and that happens to be one of the reasons why Joe McCarthy sent him to Cleveland. Rival managers have gone out of their way to rile him time after time. Last summer the attack took the form of a suspicion he was using the spitball. Johnny burned up as hitter after hitter demanded inspection of the ball by the umpire. He flung the ball at batters, once fired a fast one at an umpire asking for the ball, once walked over to punch a third base coach.

It was only when the Cleveland management wrote to President Harridge, threatening to have the ball examined after every pitch made by a rival hurler, that the attack abated.

Two Outbursts This Season.

This year Allen has boiled over only twice. In St. Louis he had a run-in with Umpire Bill McGowan over a strike, was chased off the field and fined $25. The second outburst came in Boston when Joe Cronin of the Red Sox demanded that he change his undershirt, declaring the batters were confused by the slit sleeve which flapped as he pitched. Allen, declaring he had perforated the sleeve only ventilating purposes, refused to take off the shirt. He was chased, again by Umpire McGowan.

Allen was fined $250, but a Cleveland department store offered him that amount for the shirt, and placed it on display as an advertisement. Thousands saw it. The fine caused no rift between Allen and Manager Oscar Vitt of the Indians. Allen has been pitching better ball since the occurrence.

Noting his increased effectiveness, the boys in the press box have been wondering what new form the campaign to capture his goat will take. And whether or not Johny will fall for it as he has in the past.

Maybe one of these days he'll decide to fool them, and laugh these things off.

Two Veterans Give Bisons Win Over Bears

TORONTO, July 14 (CP).—Along about this time of the season when the pressure begins to tell and the rookies start to fade, the managers really appreciate the services of the hardy veterans who "put out" when the going is toughest. In this respect Steve O'Neill of Buffalo Bisons can give double thanks for Bill Harris and Ollie Carnegie.

Harris, a 38-year-old flinger in his 18th year of organized ball, and walloping Ollie, a 33-year-old outfielder, have been playing bang-up ball right along and last night they collaborated to put the Bisons back in second place behind Newark with a 7-3 victory over the champion Bears.

Ole Ollie belted out a pair of home runs to run his season total to 24 and drove in four runs that proved to be the margin of victory. Harris came through with his second straight triumph over the Bears and hung up his ninth win of the season against three deefats.

Chiefs beaten by Toronto

Though they moved a half-game in front of Syracuse Chiefs, who took a 2-1 trimming from Toronto Maple Leafs, the Bisons were but two percentage points in front of Rochester Red Wings, who passed the Chiefs with an 8-6 victory over Baltimore.

Outhit 11 to 8 by the Orioles, the Red Wings followed six of the eight passes issued by three bird flingers with timely hits to compile their total. They held a 6-0 lead until the sixth when Gene Corbett, formerly of Winnipeg Maroons, homered with the bases loaded to feature a five-run uprising.

Ted Kleinhans set the Leafs back with four hits but he followed two of them in the sixth inning with three walks to force in all Toronto's runs to lose out in a pitching duel with Mike Meola. Meola held the Chiefs, his former mates to six hits.

The final contest of the night, Montreal Royals handed Jersey City Giants their seventh straight setback, 10-1. The Royals smashed out 13 hits, including a four-bagger by Paul Dulap, to take their second in a row from the Giants.

Lacrosse Contest Here On Friday

East York and the Petes have an O.L.A. senior "B" scheduled game here tomorrow (Friday) night at 9 o'clock under the lights in the George St. arena. The East York crew, while not around the top of the standing, are known as a tough team of experienced lacrossers who play a rugged game and can hand out the bumps. The Petes are always willing to mix it up and a good exciting tussle should result. Efforts are being made to have the visitors here on time for this tilt and the game should start at nine o'clock. It will be preceded by a Midget Lacrosse League encounter at 8.15 o'clock between Rotarians and the Lions Club.

It is expected that the local lineup will be intact with a full turnout of players. The Petes are playing good lacrosse again and hope to chalk up another win before the home crowd. They look for a rugged battle with the East Yorkers tomorrow night but figure they can take them. Either Red Creighton or Bill Rogers will be in goal with Jerry Creighton, Westonfelt, Chute and Miller probably on defence. Forwards may include King, Dundas, Whitton, Worthy, Magee, Crowe, Pammett and Loucks. Or Sloane, Vitarelli or E. Creighton may see action. Another big crowd of fans will probably take in this number if the weather is right.

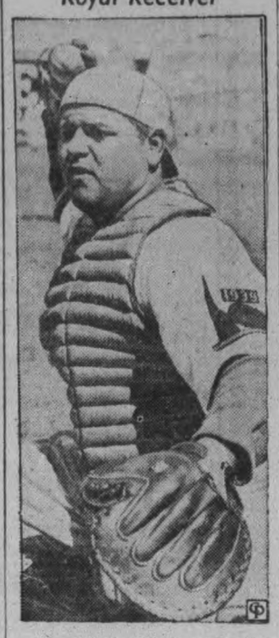
Royal Receiver



Montreal's International League Royals, have secured Catcher Paul Chervinko, ABOVE, from Brooklyn Dodgers, in a trade that sent Gilly Campbell to Burleigh Grimes' team. The Royals also got Outfielder Arthur Parks in the deal. Chervinko, an excellent receiver, but a weak hitter, was with Columbus in the American Association before joining the Dodgers during the 1937 season.

DeLaval Loses To Leafs 8-7

Maple Leafs last night defeated DeLaval by an 8-7 score in a tight Southend Softball League game at the Brinton Field. It was their fourth straight win. Butcher allowed 11 hits and fanned four as he walked five for the winners, being shaded by Wilson who struckout a dozen, walked six and gave 11 safe blows. Several costly errors early in the fray cost him the decision. The Leafs got four runs early but saw the score tied up later only to shove over the winning run in the eighth. J. Corbett, and Heffernan supplied the hitting punch for the winners, with Wright, Wilson and Abbott having two hits apiece for DeLaval. Connelly's catch of Jamieson's bid for a homer in the ninth and two sparkling double plays by the Leaf infield were defensive highlights. The teams:

DeLaval: Gatfield, 2b; Abbott, lf; Dallin, cf; Galbraith, rf; Naish, rf; Jamieson, 1b; Pearson, c; Griffin, 3b; Weart, ss; Wright, ss, 3b; Wilson, p.

Local Player Takes In Cubs' Games

The following letter from Chicago was sent to The Examiner Sports Editor yesterday by Denis Armstrong, manager of a team in the local Junior City Baseball League, who is visiting in the Illinois metropolis:

"Dear Scribe.—Have been here since Wednesday and the heat is bothering me plenty. Watched the Cubs in a couple of games and hope my Cubs are doing better than these Cubs are doing with the Red plague from Cincinnati. Can you imagine the Reds taking two straight and then on Sunday, with 30,792 fans and myself in atetndance, the Cubs losing the third game to allow the Reds to sweep the series?

In the first game, Derringer had them eating out of his hand, but when he got a bit shaky in the ninth they pulled him. I think myself they would have won in regulation time if they had left him in. Wally Berger sure was hitting in that game. Any pitcher who got him out was given four-star rating. I'm not a very good fielder, otherwise I would have caught at least one of those six homers. I missed the second game but not the third.

The Great Gabby.

Gabby Hartnett caught this game and was a show in himself. He was called out at first on a close one and did he ever howl! It was funny to see the umpire fold his arms and strut around with Gabby, Grimm and Corriden in hot pursuit. This Vander Meer really is fast. In one inning Demaree led off with a double and took third on a wild pitch. Then Vander Meer struck out Asbell, Cavaretta and Jurges in a row. Now and then he would throw one into the dirt. He's good, but I think Lombardi has a lot to do with it. He really makes some nice stops of wild pitches. Lee, although considered fast, looks slow in comparison with Johnny. He's a trifle fat around the waist. Old Charley Root has a wide sweeping curve which had the Reds swinging. Hack and Riggs had swell catches of liners and Myers handled a swell doubleplay. Asbell pulled off a fine catch in left and nipped Craft at the plate. Craft is about the fastest and nicest fielder of either team. He seems a little weak with the willow although he did have a triple on a ball which Les Burton would have caught. Demaree crowded Reynolds out of the way and then missed. Except for Hartnett the Cubs look as lifeless as the Reds look hot. Chicago fans boo them. Still I think I'd trade any of my players, no cash involved, for any of Grimm's boys.

I thought I might get some autographs but this idea was soon dispelled. As soon as the games were over, uniformed Cub Park men came out and formed a circle around the infield and the outfield. No possible way to get near the players. I might drop off at Cleveland on my way back and watch the Indians play. I suppose you'll be bored stiff as O.B.A. regulations by this note but I had to have someone to write to, so I nominated you as the fall guy. My pages are mixed up but unfortunately I got my signals crossed. May drop in and see you when I get back, in the meantime keep your notes clean.

P.S.—Charlie Grimm might think he has worries with his team in fourth place and losing six straight, but he at least has bats and balls."

Fascist Bigwigs Prove They're Tough For Il Duce

Physical perfection is not for the soldier and the peasant alone in the Italy of Benito Mussolini. Il Duce, a superb athlete himself, demands that the Fascist party leaders be equally agile and courageous. At a recent gymnastic exhibition in Rome, high civil and military chiefs were expected to take part in bayonet jumping and other hazardous exercises. Achille Starace, Fascist party secretary, passed with high honors in his leap through a fiery ring into the arms of the gymnasts. He was slightly scorched in the process.

Campbellford Wins Tennis Tourney

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 14.—Defeating Trenton 4 to 2, Campbellford netsters took their third straight tennis victory of the season on Wednesday afternoon in a Quinte League tournament played here. Evidence of the comparative strength of the two clubs was demonstrated by the fact that of Campbellofrd's four wins two were taken in the first two sets.

The visitors gained their victories in the men's singles and in the 2nd men's doubles. Ken Kingston fought a grueling contest with L. Goulet in the singles and after a long battle Kingston was beaten by a score of 5-7, 10-8, 6-4.

In the first men's doubles A. Jamieson and P. Mainguy exhibited a really fine game against the local clubs strongest team of H. Free and C. Weston. The event went to three sets and many of the spectators were surprised by ability of the Trenton pair to take a 3-6 victory in the second set, leaving the final score at 6-1, 3-6, 6-0.

J. Heptonstall and Art Orr carried the Campbellford colors in the second men's doubles which was lost to P. Townley and G. Moore 6-3, 2-6, 6-2. It was an interesting contest to watch with both teams demonstrating very fine form. Both of the mixed doubles events went to Campbellford with Don Meyers and Jerene Malcolm who have been playing together so successfully both this season and last, taking an easy victory from Eileen Filion and J. Morris of Trenton by a score of 6-0, 6-4 I. Hinds and G. Noble of Trenton lost the second to E. Ferris and Wib Kingston 1-6, 6-4, 6-3, while Campbellford took their fourth victory in the ladies doubles in which Verna Weston and Grace Cairns teamed up for the first time this season to win from E. Gray and J. Hill 6-3, 6-1.

Eight Are Left In Golf Tourney

By BILL BONI,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Pa., July 14.—(AP).—There was interest at all points to-day as eight survivors from a starting field of 108 crack professionals entered on quarter-round competition in the United States' Professional Golfers' Association championship over the broad, beetle-infested plains of the Shawnee Country Club.

There was interest in the top match of the draw because it sent Jimmy Hines, conqueror of two-year champion Denny Shute, against Byron Nelson, Texan who had a 15-under-par score for 96 holes at the start of this morning's first eighteen holes.

There was interest at Bracket No. 2 for that sent straight slugging Sam Snead against Jim Foulis, and in Bracket No. 4 since that matched Squire Gene Sarazen with Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa.

But there was more interest than usual at Bracket No. 3 where tall, rangy Horton Smith went up against small, compact, Paul Runyan, besides Sarazen the only former titleholder left in the field.

Horton and Paul, in all their years of big-time golf, never have met in match play.

The only comment on the result, in Runyan's own words, can be: "Anything that happens in the Smith-Runyan match won't be an upset."

Town Carved Virgin Forest Sees $6,000,000 Project

By ROYD E. BEAMISH
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

RED ROCK, Ont., July 14—A vision yesterday; a project today; an industry tomorrow. Such is the amazing record that is being created this new-born northwestern Ontario townsite as the province's newest industrial development moves swiftly toward the goal of production which its promoters expect to reach within a year of the company's organization.

Fifteen hundred men swarm over the townsite that has been carved out of virgin forest on the shores of Lake Superior six miles south of Nipigon, Ont., and under their concentrated efforts masses of steel and concrete are taking form with relentless persistence.

By December these gigantic piles of concrete and steel will have become the completed superstructures of a series of buildings which will eventually produce, for the first time in Thunder Bay district, a high-grade bleached sulphite pulp, ready for manufacture into cellulose products, including rayon and cellophane, or high-grade paper. By March, 1938, the Lake Sulphite Pulp Co. is scheduled to begin production.

Wood Cleared in 45 Days

Pouring of 25,000 yards of concrete, which will form the principal structure of the digester room and acid towers of the mill, is almost completed. Other sections of the 225-ton mill are in advanced stages of timber or structural steel construction, while development of the townsite itself is proceeding apace with the rest of the work.

A smooth-running synchronization of labor has made possible the remarkable progress in all phases of development at Red Rock—a progress that saw the first gang of men at work clearing a heavily wooded tract of land on March 15, 1937, and their job completed 45 days later.

Mill construction began the last week in July, and structural workers are expected to step out of the picture some time in December, their share in the $6,000,000 task ended. On their heels will come an army of experts to install the machinery, and three months of installation is scheduled to see the plant in production.

But if construction work has been rapid, organization developments have been literally breath-taking, for no company of such proportions has begun to function with the same smooth rapidity.

Order-in-Council Passed

On Feb. 7 of this year, R. O. Sweezey, promoter of the industry and executive of the company, flew over the Nipigon area on a business trip and saw below him vast stands of timber awaiting manufacture into commercial products. The idea of a sulphite mill had already taken shape in his mind, and in the Nipigon timber area he saw the field for which he had been looking.

Twenty days later he had interviewed provincial authorities, and an order-in-council had been passed, transferring the limits required to a company, then un-named, under condition that they be developed at once. The following day the Lake Sulphite Pulp company came into being, and the agreement was signed. A week after that, on March 8, underwriting of the company was completed and the new organization was ready to do business.

The entire set-up was completed exactly 29 days from the moment the idea was first conceived 10,000 feet above a Nipigon forest, and a week later the first gang of men was put to work as the project passed from the executive to the development stage.

Today, after less than nine months of operations, the picture is almost staggering. In addition to 1,500 men employed on the scene of construction, another 1,000 are engaged in woods operations, while the townsite itself continues to expand in preparation for its new industrial role.

Mr. Sweezey, himself an engineer of note, sees in his $6,000,000 project only the beginning of a program which will convert Red Rock from its brushland area of 1937 to an industrial centre of 10,000 or more population within the next decade. The sulphite mill is only a unit in the development program envisioned by the lumberman-engineer-financier who is the guiding genius behind it.

Three hundred and fifty men will be employed in the bleached sulphite mill when it begins its production of 225 tons per day early next spring. As soon as the market warrants, however, the company plans to double production. The present mill is being built with an eye to this expansion and equipment is being installed to permit the increase with a minimum expenditure.

"A few hundred thousand dollars spent now will save us quite literally millions when we want to increase production," Mr. Sweezey explains. "So we are building our mill with an eye to the future."

Third step on the program will be construction of a newsprint mill with a capacity of 400 tons a day, employing 250 men, and after that will come a mill to produce kraft pulp and paper from jackpine. Production of 200 tons per day is anticipated for this unit, which will make wrapping paper to be used, not only by other Lake Sulphite Co. mills, but by paper mills in Port Arthur and Fort William as well.

Final development on the lengthy project will consist of a small mill for the manufacture of soda pulp from poplar. This pulp, which will be produced at a rate of from 50 to 100 tons daily, is in demand for the manufacture of fine writing papers —another field scarcely touched in this part of Ontario.

When the entire project has been completed, more than 1,500 men will be employed at Red Rock and another 1,000 or more in the woodland operations providing the nucleus for a population which may reach 10,000 or more.

Mr. Sweezey sees in the development not only a new payroll for the district and a thriving community, but a great impetus to agriculture in the area. Farm lands at present under cultivation in Thunder Bay, he declares, will be totally inadequate be opened for agricultural produce as a result.

As the twig is bent

GOOD habits learned in youth are apt to stick throughout life—the daily newspaper habit for instance. Young Canada is interested in the daily newspaper almost from the time he can read, and he never outgrows the habit.

TRUE, his interests change. He graduates from the "funnies" to the features, to the sports page, the financial and world news, but the daily newspaper remains with him through life a reliable source of relaxation, information and news which influences his opinions and purchases.

AS population increases newspaper circulations grow. Today, 2,246,621 daily newspapers are read every day from coast to coast—an increase of more than 270,000 copies since 1929.

CONSEQUENTLY, the daily newspaper forms a link between the manufacturer or merchant and consumer which in its usefulness to the individual and industry alike is unparalleled by any other medium.

Army Worms Near Port Hope

The army worm, dread of all farmers, has been located in Durham county, with one severe infestation near Port Hope. As yet the scourge has not invaded Peterobrough county as far as is known to Frank Patterson, Peterobrough agricultural representative.

The department of agriculture is advising all farmers to examine their grain and corn crops for signs of the army worm and to report any sign of them to the agricultural representative.

The first indications in a grain field that the army worm has located there are to be seen on the leaves of the grain. These will be eaten about the edges, while the green droppings of the insect will be seen on the ground. By shaking the plants one often finds some of the worms on the ground. They resemble tent caterpillars somewhat.

Automatic Stooker

ETOBICOKE, Ont., July 13 (CP) Stooking of grain sheaves by hand will be eliminated, Harry Smith believes, if his invention of an automatic stooking attachment for binders proves practical.

The 85-year-old farmer claims the invention will save many bushels of grain, now lost when short stems are scattered over the field. It would release two men from the field where reaping is going on.

Car Outgasses Skunks Five Die In Garage

HAMILTON, Ont., July 14 (C.P.). —Five dead skunks were pulled yesterday from Mrs. H. R. Waring's garage, and residents of the West Mountain district of Hamilton settled back with a sigh.

The skunks had been a problem for nearly a week. Neighborhood dogs and cats became odorized shortly after the skunk family moved into the garage.

To-day Inspector Robert Inglis of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals backed his motor car up to the garage door, fitted a hose to the exhaust, and poured death-dealing carbon-monoxide into the building. That finished the skunks.

Tweed Youth Burned As Bolt Hits Barn

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, July 14.—As a result of an electrical storm which passed over the Kaladar district, Leek Parks, a youth of 14 years of age, was severely burned, when a bolt of lightning struck the barn of Oakley Parks, the young lad's father. The youngster was unconscious for some time. The lightning bolt struck the peak of the barn at one end splintering the siding right to the ground, then entered the stable and struck young Parks, who was milking at the time. His mother, who was milking the next cow, also suffered from shock but not severely. The young lad's hair was singed and the lower part of his back was badly burned. Medical attention was obtained from Tweed, and although the youth soon recovered consciousness, his condition is still grave. Beyond splintering some of the barn siding, no damage was done to the barn, as it did not take fire.

Millbrook Honors Mrs. Thomas Busby

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, July 14.—An enjoyable social gathering was held in the basement of Grace Presbyterian Church on Saturday at 8 p.m., in honor of a recent bride, Mrs. Thomas Busby (Gladys Bothwell), now of Peterborough, and formerly of Millbrook, when the Ladies' Aid Society presented her with a miscellaneous shower.

Mrs. J. R. Thompson presided, as head of the hostess society, and the large room was made attractive with baskets of hydrangea, tastefully arranged. Community singing opened the program, with Miss Ruth Thorndyke at the piano, and afterward Mr. and Mrs. Busby, who are just home from their wedding trip, were invited to seats on the platform. To the strains of the Wedding March, a dainty bridal party then entered; little Norma Ball in frilled green organdie, and carrying a basket of flowers, acted as flower girl, and behind her came the "bride and groom"—Elizabeth Williams, in long white dress, veil held in place with flowers, and carrying a bouquet of red roses and baby's breath; and Master Donald Thompson, in regulation black frock coat, long white trousers, and wearing a rose in his buttonhole; Velma Pritchard was the bride's attendant, also dainty in ruffled organdie, and with a nosegay frilled in lace.

When the party had marched round the room for the second time, as they approached the platform, they were joined by Lindsay Belch, drawing a nicely-trimmed wagon piled high with the gifts making up the shower.

Mr. Busby assisted his bride in opening the many parcels, and when all had been placed on the table nearby, appreciation was feelingly expressed by the guests of honor.

The singing of "For she's a jolly good fellow," and further social intercourse, brought to a close a most enjoyable occasion.

Ill-Health Charge Withdrawn

PRISONER: (Excitedly, undoing her handbag): I have a bottle with me now, sir!

(Sensation in Court.)

JUDGE: A bottle of what? Pass it up to me, please.

(The Judge examined the bottle and handed it on to the jury.)

JUDGE: (continuing): This is an amazing development. We have here an unopened bottle of Kruschen. (Turning to the Prisoner): When did you buy it?

PRISONER: This morning, my lord. I intended to take it with my coffee tomorrow and every day. I thought it might put me right.

JUDGE: Prisoner, your timely good sense has earned you your acquittal. You will leave this Court without a stain on your character. (At this juncture there was an outburst of clapping, which was rapidly suppressed.) You have yourself done precisely what I should have ordered you to do; you have adopted a good remedy for your present affliction, a splendid precaution against a recurrence of it. I am very glad. I have one word of advice to add: do not, on any account, miss the little daily dose of Kruschen—and then, indeed, you will be the happy possessor of good health for less than 1c a day.

PRISONER: Thank you, my lord. I shall never forget what you say.

KRUSCHEN SALTS

relieve constipation and rheumatism

Kruschen is a combination of several mineral salts which your body must get, in some way, to keep the blood pure, the inside clean, and the system generally toned up, but which you can't get in Nature's own way without abundant exercise and fresh air. You should have those salts every day; hence the importance of the "little daily dose". Every drug counter sells Kruschen in 25c, 45c and 75c bottles. It's the little daily dose that does it.

DEBENTURES WORTH $152,541.07 ARE RETIRED BY THE CITY TRUST

Citizens Made Last Payment On Many Of Paved Streets War Memorial Also Paid For

Pavement Debentures Total $115,041.07 Consolidated $25,000

It should be good news to the taxpayers of Peterborough that debentures to the amount of $152,541.07 have been retired by the ctiy trust commission and the public is relieved of obligations to that extent. The issues that were retired included consolidated debentures paying 6 per cent interest, to a total of $115,041.07, war memorial debentures at 4½ per cent amounting to $5000 and sundry small debentures to the value of $1000.

This means the war memorial in Confederation Square is now completely paid for.

The item in regard to paving debentures should be particularly interesting to the citizens living along the sections that have ben paid for by the retirement of these debentures.

The sections, the cost of which has now been finally met are George street from Charlotte street to the C.P.R., Aylmer street from Charlotte street to Hunter street, Water street from Hunter to Brock street, Weller street from Park street to Monaghan road, Water street from Dublin to Antrim, Smith street from George to Water, Hunter street from Belmont to Walton and Rubidge street from Charlotte to Brock.

THRESHED ALSIKE.

Report of the first threshing of wheat in Otonabee Wednesday afternoon should have been alsike. Farmers probably guessed the fact, but when a reporter heard of threshing he assumed it to be fall wheat forgetting that there are other grains and seeds in the fields and that alsike is one of the first to be ready for the threshing mill.

STONES RATTLE ON HOUSE.

A fusilade of stones smashed through the screen door of a house near the corner of Braidwood and Lock Streets in North Monaghan about three o'clock this morning. The whole household was awakened by the shattering noise. In reporting the depradation to the Examiner the property owner said "And say in the 'wilds of North Monaghan when you're at it'."

BUILDING WALL

Workers are busy erecting a cement retaining wall along the Jackson Park Creek north of Charlotte street preparatory to the building of the new Braund block of stores that is to be put up along Charlotte street. Today the old timbers of the cribwork that was put in many years ago are being taken out to make way for the new wall.

CUSTOM THRESHERS READY.

Two of the farms in Otonabee where wheat cutting was expected to be underway today are at Frank Elmhirst's and Ross McIntyre's. Custom threshers in the township are ready for work that should pick up in volume almost immediately. The mills are owned by Harry Elliott of Lang, Ralph Godfrey of Hiawatha. COUNTERFEIT COINS.

The report was received today that counterfeit 25-cent coins were being circulated in Central Ontario. The coins are dated 1937 and on one side is the head of King George while on the reverse side there appears a moose.

PAGE WALTER STOCKER.

There is a fine healthy tomato plant blooming among the French marigolds in the flower bed at the east end of Hunter street bridge. Many passers-by have noticed it and grinned while others remark that this may be a stunt by the veteran Packs committee chairman to raise some vegetables and help out the Relief Dept.

HUCKLEBERRIES PLENTIFUL.

Weather conditions this Spring have been ideal for the huckleberry crop, and many dwellers have obtained generous quantities on the rocks one mile north of Burleigh Falls. Yesterday a party of five, including Mrs. Wm. Ralph, Charles Doxsee, Arthur Ralph, Mrs. P. McGillen and Donald Ralph picked 52 quarts and were back home before four-thirty in the afternoon.

Cameron Sought In Jackson Park

Acting on a tip that Arnold Cameron, the Sunderland youth who escaped from police station here Tuesday morning as he was being locked in the cell block, had been seen along the Jackson Park Creek at Stewart street, police made an unsuccessful search in the neighborhood this morning without locating the fugitive. Inspector Reid, Sergt. John Thompson, Detectives Wm. Meagher and Wm. Piercey and Constable Clare McGillen took part in the hunt and the course of the creek was followed beyond Jackson Park without finding any trace of the missing man.

Gypsies Are Held By Toronto Police

Provincial Constable D. M. Carruthers received word from Toronto Wednesday afternoon that the four gypsies sought in connection with the theft of $350 from an eighty-year-old Havelock man had been arrested in the Queen City and were being held there. The police of this district scoured the country thoroughly for the quartet on Tuesday afternoon but had no success and the search was about to be resumed Wednesday when the arrest of the four in Toronto was learned. It is not known yet whether the gypsies will be brought here for trial at present as they are also wanted in the Belleville district and may be taken there first.

Did Adam Scott Make Mistake In Selecting Peterboro's Site?

Possibly if Adam Scott and his early associate settlers of Peterborough could come back to the city today and put in a few July afternoons along the main stem he might revise his judgment that led him to the banks of the Otonabee, and thereby alter the whole course in town planning which necessity and the main chance directed nearly one hundred and twenty years ago.

Scott wasn't thinking of all the hot summer afternoons that were to follow his day and generation. He was primarily concerned about a water power to turn the stones of the grist mill he had in mind; and so he laid the foundation of an industrial community in the bottom of the bowl of hills whose rims are blown by all the breezes that makes these summer afternoons a joy.

When you get out into the fields where farmers are bringing in hay and clover, and the wind balloons your shirt if you are wearing one, and the air is laden with the fragrance of grasses and exuding sweetness of the earth and trees and flowers, you are bound to wish that you were living and working on the heights, beyond the Smithtown ridge for instance.

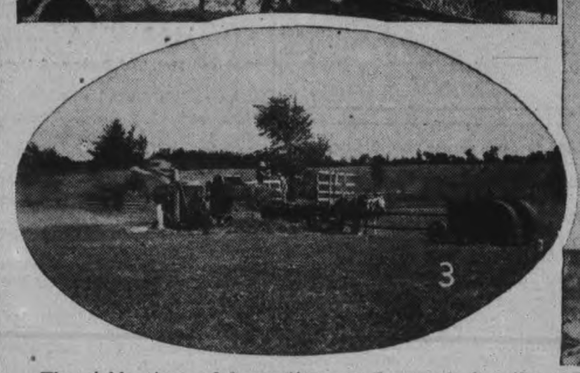
If farmers were assured of ample prices for this season's products they wouldn't envy even the miller of the little poem of school days; and even as things go right now the wisest of them have no hankering for city jobs in preference to toiling with stooks of grain and cocks of hay. In fact the more work ahead of them, the better they like it, and with nature fanning them with a brisk wind from across the meadows and grain fields it is a pleasant occupation compared with many an urban task in mid-July.

So, you feel that the followers of Adam Scott have got the worst of the deal he started, and the sons of the other pioneers who kept on going to the higher plateau in Smith or even halted down in the Otonabee countryside, got the best of that early shuffle and scramble for a livelihood.

That of course is a July opinion when you leave George and Charlotte streets behind you and amble into the country. Possibly one might revise the impression in mid-January or along in March when the snow tumbles into the sideroads, but Spring, Summer and Autumn along the concession lines can pile up a heavy score of attractions if, as the farmers say, the income is there as a solid foundation. And that is something else again as most country friends would assert, chaps like Anderson and Eason, Tully and Dawson, and scores of others who certainly don't scorn the beauty of the country and the somewhat poetic notions it inspires, but who know that on the farm as elsewhere the practical factor and circumstances and results come first in the long run and the last analysis.

So, probably Adam Scott didn't do badly after all for those who followed in the path he helped to break to the bank of the Otonabee between Charlotte and King streets.

"Oft Did the Harvest to Their Sickle Yield."



The sickle stage of harvesting was long ago, but the methods are essentially the same as when Gray penned his pastoral poem. The scenes above were photographed by the Examiner Wednesday afternoon on David McIntyre's farm in Otonabee, north of Mather's Corners. On the LEFT McIntyre brothers have put their threshing mill into operation for the first time this season. It was believed to be the first threshing in the county. And it is not fall wheat, but alsike clover Archie McIntyre, UPPER LEFT, and Ross McIntyre (wearing cap) are feeding into the machine. UPPER RIGHT is Billie McIntyre, son of David, and grandson of the late Fred McIntyre. Billie is only eleven, but he was doing a good job of building up the load down at the far end of the field. The LOWER LEFT shows the threshing mill and power tractor finishing the second last load in that field. Dave McIntyre is standing beside the separator. Typical of the farm work that will become general within the next few days is the loading (4) of wagon in the field. Billie is seen on top building the load which Ross McIntyre is pitching on. The yield of seed was ranging from 5 to 7 bushels to the acre. (Examiner Staff Photos.)

Practically No Winter Wheat Grown In County In 1900 Now One Farmer Has 85 Acres

Ton of Shelled Peas To Acre Reported By Cliff J. Hancock

"When I came here in 1900 there weren't fifteen acres of fall wheat grown around here as far as you could see, yes and farther," Cliff J. Hancock of the second concession of Smith recalled to an Examiner reporter Wednesday afternoon.

"Right around here there was only one farmer who had any of the winter wheat, and that was Jimmy Middleton on the place to the west of us. He had six or seven acres up on this side of the woods. I think farmers used to have the idea that the wheat had to be grown in the shelter of woods."

Mr. Hancock owns the old John Walton farm. Residents who can remember events prior to the turn of the century probably knew the Walton family, one of the pioneer families of Smith township, and for a long time prominent in the life of Peterborough county and town. In the early days of the county council John Walton was a Warden of this county, if memories of records of that period are correct, and later he was a Liberal candidate for parliament or the legislature. The first Waltons paid £25, or approximately $125, for the original title of each farm, making $250 for the whole property which they bought from the Crown. Mr. Hancock is the second owner.

Wasting His Time.

"When I came up here from Newcastle and planted out some wheat, farmers said I was wasting my time, that it wouldn't grow, where I was sowing it, and so on," Mr. Hancock said; "but I went ahead with it in a small way, got a good crop and gradually increased it. This year we have 85 acres in wheat on our farm. In the old days farmers used to grow a lot of hay. Everybody had horses, and there was a big demand for hay, but you know what it is now."

Mr. Hancock remarked that he put in a heavy planting of peas this year in spite of the comparative failure of last year's crop.

"When I bought one hundred bushels from John Dewart I know he thought I was going into them entirely too heavy, and it seemed he was cautioning me a bit especially after last year's poor returns. However, I said we hadn't had a real good pea year in quite a while, and I had a feeling that this might be the year. And the pea crop is extra good, one of the largest I have ever seen, not bothered by drought or aphids as it was last year. The area we sowed for the C. P. C. will yield at least one ton of shelled peas to the acre. That's my own estimate and I feel it is on the light side. The C. P .C. men say it will go 3,000 pounds to the acre, a ton and a half."

Some of Mr. Hancock's friends might decide for themselves whether he is simply lucky or shrewd, or just a plain gambler when he decided to plant a lot of peas this year. But, the farmers would probably reply that farming is more or les sa gamble at any time. And that statement isn't true because gambling over a stretch of years leaves the player broke, almost invariably, but farming, especially when the income is compensating, establishes an estate.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, July 14.—Murray Charles, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Airhart, died suddenly at the home of its parents here on Wednesday. The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon to Marmora Protestant cemetery, with Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth officiating.

MRS. A. D. ORMISTON.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 14.—The funeral of Lottie McKelvie, widow of the late A. D. Ormiston, was held in Campbellford on Wednesday afternoon. The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry McKelvie of Campbellford, and was well known to many in this district where she resided some years ago, living for some time both in Campbellford and in Havelock. Predeceased by her husband four years ago she is survived by one sister, Mrs. Carrie Maines of Toronto.

The funeral service was conducted from Bennett's Funeral Parlors at 2.30 by the Rev. B. Simpson Black of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church after which interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The pallbearers were Richard and Frank McKelvie, Herbert Spears, Fred Maines, Ernest McCook and George Nelson. Flower bearers were Gerald Nelson, Stewart Nelson, William McKelvie, Donald Keir and Ray Phillips.

Police Interupt Wine Party

One of those parties that the poet had in mind when he penned the famous lines about "a jug of wine" was in progress Wednesday evening in the vicinity of the old William Hamilton Company building when suddenly the festivities were interrupted by the arrival of a police squad consisting of Sergt. William Wigg and Constables John Rogers and Leo Murphy. As a result four of the guests were entertained with an automobile ride to the police station where they spent the balance of the night.

This morning they got a change of venue because none of the district magistrates were available today and the bench was occupied by Constable Gordon Puffer in his capacity of Justice of the Peace, and all he could do with the four, who were arraigned on a drink charge, was to remand them in custody until tomorrow morning, which means that their bedtime stories this evening will be told in the bastille on the hill, presided over by Lieut.-Col. T. D. Johnston.

Kester's Condition Greatly Improved

The condition of Harry Kester, who was rescued from drowning in the Trent Canal Sunday night and who has been in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from shock, followed by double pneumonia, is reported by Dr. Bob Young today as being very satisfactory and Dr. Young now believes that he will make a complete recovery. Kester is much better today than yesterday. He has recovered from the effects of the shock and has apparently made a successful fight against the pneumonia which Dr. Young explains was the aftermath of water in the lungs.

Tourist Tosses New Casting Rod Into Lake After Large Muskie

CHIEF DAN WHETUNG of Curve Lake was in town the other day with a brand new fish story, a narrative that the leader of the Chemong brand vouches to be authentic to the last detail.

As related by Dan the yarn is that recently an American visitor to the Whetung place was out fishing and he had just lifted his plug out of the water when a huge muskie that had evidently been following the bait, jumped into the air, grabbed the plug, broke the line and dived down into the depths of the lake. The tourist was so excited at this unexpected move on the part of the fish that he tossed his new and expensive casting rod into the lake after the muskie.

His only explanation after he reached shore was that the lunge "was so all-fired big that I thought that if I did not throw him something he would be grabbing the boat next."

Canada's Chances Look Good For Being Awarded 1940 Olympic Winter Games

Mulqueen Is Confident Britain Will Apply For the 1940 Games

TORONTO, July 14 — (CP) — Canada's hopes of being awarded the Winter Olympic Games soared today with announcement by the Japanese Government of suspension of the 1940 games at Tokyo. Japan was to have staged both the Winter and Summer games.

Chairman P. J. Mulqueen of the Canadian Olympic Committee said today he was confident Great Britain would apply for the 1940 games and, in the event of being successful, that the British Committee would "sub-let" the Winter games to Canada.

Since Japan was awarded both events two years ago, the Canadian Committee had intended applying for the 1944 Winter Games when Britain would seek the Summer games.

"I am not surprised that Japan has dropped the games," Mulqueen said. "What will happen now I can't say, but there is every possibility that Britain will make an application for the 1940 games and in that event I think Canada has a good chance of obtaining the Winter games.

Discussions Already Held.

"The Canadian Committee has held discussions with the British Committee on the question of staging the Winter sports in this country in the same year the Summer games are held in London. Something may develop from them before long."

Decision where the sports would be held in Canada would await definite award of the games, but the Canadian Committee was of the opinion two years ago that Montreal and the Laurentians provided an ideal setting for skating, hockey and skiing events.

Since skiing has been dropped from the Olympic program other cities without Montreal's natural skiing country might bid.

Would Stayed Away.

HAMILTON, July 14 (C.P.). — "Speaking personally, I think it's the best thing that could have happened," M. M. (Bobby) Robinson said to-day when he was told the Japanese Government had announced suspension of the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo.

If Japan had resolves to hold the Games despite her invasion of China, he indicated, none of the British Dominions or Colonies would have participated.

Mr. Robinson told of a recent meeting of the Canadian Olympic Committee here when members had been canvassed. "It was felt by all," he said, "that we should not participate in games held by a country at war."

Empire sentiment, he added, as evidenced during the British Empire Olympic Games at Sydney, Australia, was similar.

The 15 Empire countries represented there passed a resolution in which they said they were opposed to holding the 1940 Games in a country which was at war.

Finland Is Ready.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 14 (A.P.). — Urho Kekkonen, Home Minister and also president of Finland's Amateur Athletic Union, declared to-day that Finland was prepared to arrange for the 1940 Olympic Games if they were offered to her.

Kekkonen said he was confident Finland could stage "first-class Games devoid of any propaganda" in spite of difficulties about accommodations.

Call Meeting.

NEWMARKET, England, July 14 (A.P.). — The somewhat ponderous machinery of the International Olympic Committee will be set in motion immediately to provide a new site for the 1940 Olympic Games, Count Henri de Baillet Latour of Belgium, I.O.C. president, said to-day.

The Count was attending a race meeting here when told that Tokyo would relinquish the Games.

Kumming and Chungking, China, will be connected by a new air service.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A NOD TO CHARLIE

Charlie McCarthy of the Bergen and McCarthy team has caused another laugh. A well-known local man Wednesday night was walking down George street with a friend and, seing a figure in a downtown store window, nodded with a cheery "Good-night." He was much chagrined at his friend's laughter when he learned the figure was the ventriloquist's dummy, McCarthy!—P.

25 Young Men In Training For Air Service

At least twenty-five young Peterborough men are now members of the Peterobrough Air Service at Chemong Lake and are seriously training to become air pilots.

All are receiving instruction under Frank Armitage of Hamilton, a licensed instructor with more than 800 flying hours to his credit. Five of the students are already flying solo and will shortly be qualified to fly their own planes. The club also boasts a licensed engineer, Joseph Reid, who gives technical instruction on the ground as well as looking after the ship.

The financial success of the club is now assured, in the opinion of R. Braun, secretary-treasurer. He said today that business is so brisk purchase of a second plane is warranted.

The club's base at Lake Chemong is considered one of the finest for water landing in the entire province. Each week outside flyers drop down for a visit, and each has given the quarters his enthusiastic approval.

Not After Senatorship

FORT WORTH, July 14—(AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, used one short sentence here today to deny political rumors out of Washington, that he might be a candidate for United States Senator or Governor in 1940.

"I do not plan to run for any political office now, two years from now or four years hence," said Roosevelt.

Heavy traffic in the Niagara area during the early days of Upper Canada produced some of the better roads in the country.

Cannot Drink Bottle Of Milk In A Dairy In London Must Step Out On The Street

Life In City of London Is Vividly Described By Peterboro Young Man

By DONALD KENNEDY

LONDON, July 5.—This letter is being written in the writing room of Canada House, just by Trafalgar. The name itself makes one feel somewhat at home, and then the paper provided here is rather better than one would care to purchase himself.

This morning in a small dairy in Whitcombe street, a narrow one with overhanging shops which joins Leicester Square and Trafalgar, I ordered a pint of milk, and asked the girl for a straw as I intended to drink it right there and then.

"Oh, can't I?" I replied, thinking she was doubtful regarding my milk drinking ability.

"Oh no, sir, it's against the law to drink milk out of a bottle inside a shop. You'll have to step outside." Which I did.

Thus standing on the sidewalk I was outside the shop but inside the law. Just what the law is or why it is as it is I do not know, but thus we become English.

You cannot buy a newspaper at a tobacco shop because the man there hasn't a license to sell newspapers, and when you do get around to the newsdealer's shop he has no chocolate bars—you get them at the sweet shop around the corner and so on. Each place seems to have its own little monopoly on one trade or line. The druggist is called a chemist and a great many chemists do not even sell soap. A chemist is strictly in the business of selling drugs in this land. Nor is a dentist known by the title of "Doctor."

When One Buys Socks

The trouble with shopping in London is that you always pay about a third more for the article than you had planned to spend. If you ask to see some socks for about two bob (shillings) which means 48 cents, the salesman invariably starts by showing you a special line in which he thinks you will be interested, and they are worth four bob, but he never even offers the suggestion that you should purchase them. Then he explains all the good points and style and wearing qualities of a pair worth 3s 6d, and you wind up by getting a pair worth 3 shillings or just about one shilling more than you had planned to spend.

That happens so often that I have come to the conclusion that it is not by accident. That salesman has been trained to be a salesman and not merely a clerk in a store. He is now perhaps 30 years old and he may have been with the firm for 15 years, possibly having had to pay £25 a year to learn the business when he started. Very easily and very politely he sells you something which is just a little higher priced than you had in mind at the start.

Never Full—Never Hungry

In order to keep going in London you have to adopt the English system of eating. Their idea seems to be—never full, never hungry. If you eat three regular meals as they are served here you would be perpetually hungry because the meals are less in volume than we get at home. Now there I am talking about how we "do it at home," the very thing which Canadians criticize at times in the folks from England who live in Canada. Morning coffee comes about 10.30 and tea from 4 to 4.30 in the afternoon, and at those hours things seem to come to a stop.

In the restaurants you have to ask for a glass of water ,and if you don't ask for it you don't get it. If you are lucky you may get a paper napkin; if you ask for a serviette you probably get a very nice linen affair but you pay a penny for it. While the English do drink a great deal of tea and coffee you will probably get neither with your meals. Beverages are for the hours between meals. Ice water is a luxury and the people here are certain ice water is not good for the system.

I have a room just behind the National Art Gallery which costs one pound a week, and if one went out some distance a room would cost 3 shillings, so it pays to stay down town. Three other roomers and myself get toast and tea twice a day and we make it a shilling a week that way; other meals can be had for the day at about 3 shillings, so if one cuts it fine enough it is possible to live down town at two pounds per week.

Prepare For Air Raids

In London no matter where you look you can see A.R.P. (Air Raid Precaution) literature, and while one sees few visible signs of activity there is an awareness of the progress being made and one readily becomes conscious of the interest which is being taken in it. It works on the young and old, and it occasions no surprise to hear some young person say: "No, I cannot go to the dance on Tuesday evening because that is the time for our A.R.P. lecture." At present participation in this is voluntary, but the prediction is freely made that it will not be long before it is compulsory.

When we used to see an occasional plane flying over Peterborough we would think of it as being up there and that is all there would be to it. But somehow in the heart of London one feels different about this bombing business; there are 10,000,000 people living within an area of 140 square miles, and there are people in all corners of the place all the time. That is because there is no sharp division between the residential section and the business district.

The smart place to live is in Mayfair or Whitehall, both of which are in the centre of the city. The number of people who live within walking distance of their work is amazing. Nor would one district be any safer than another because each section is just about as densely populated as the next.

Take Cricket Seriously

It does look as though if war were to break out suddenly it would be between Australia and England and the cause would be those test cricket matches. Admittedly the Englishmen are the finest sports in the world, but they do not take kindly to the idea of being beaten at their own game by one of their own overseas dominions, and feeling though suppressed runs fairly high about it.

The cheapest and most entertaining evenings can be spent listening to the Hyde Park orators. Knowledge fairly oozes from these would be renovators of the world. Hecklers are numerous and they add so much spice to the gathering that it would be a blunder to suppress them. The heckling I heard the other evening ran like this:

Speaker: "If we want peace we must forget communism, Marxism and fascism...."

The Heckler: "I siy matey and don't forget rheumatism."

And then the crowd roars and the speak has to wait for the noise to abate before he picks up the tender threads of his address and proceeds until he is again interrupted. If the London crowd finds that a speaker can't "take it" then it is just too bad for the speaker.

Any one can speak at Hyde Park on almost any subject and he can keep on speaking as long as he can stand it. He can rent a bit of a stand on which to elevate himself above the crowd for 6d per hour, or if you feel like it you can bring along your own stand. The only thing prohibited is the taking up of a collection, and I don't suppose there would be much gathered if the hat were passed.

Not Much Accent

I have not noticed many people speaking with what might be called a distinctive English accent. It is not nearly as marked as that which one hears in New England States and Boston. I have heard the accent here nicknamed "La-di-da," and most of it comes from the public schools. The test is to say "Tha wah and the tah on tha tiahs of the cah." However if we wish to correct them and claim that butter is not pronounced "buttah" they can always retort with the question: "Well who started this language in the first place?"

The moving pictures are popularly referred to as "flicks," and ladies' compacts are "flapjacks"; what we call the hood of a car they refer to as the bonnet, and any big truck is always a lorry. Most marked is the fact that a man's vest is a waistcoat, and the pronunciation is strictly "westcoat."

Speaking of waistcoats I saw a smart checked tweed vest in a shop window which could be worn with slacks and a sports jacket. When I asked the doorman where I could find these vests he directed me to the left on the third floor. On arriving there I found I was in the underwear department. Yes sir, a vest is a "westcot" here and they will not change because I call it a vest.

Must Conform To Custom

No matter what one may think or prefer, if you want to have a good time in London you must adopt English customs or at least conform to them. You must walk slowly on the street, you must tip your waiter in a restaurant and it is not well to expect too much service, and you must not expect to find everything in one store. If you ask why they don't do this, that or something else in a different way you nearly always get the same answer "Because this is the way it is done in England."

One can hear a good deal of criticism about English customs and manner and habits, but in spite of all that there is something fascinating about the whole structure. There is in London the perpetual low roar or growl of many wheels, but somehow because it is continuous and not too loud it almost seems pleasant to the ear. Also there is something nice about the English manner and old London is historically interesting. (Right now the bells of St. Martins-in-the-Field are ringing.) The other day in a lunch room when there were no seats available one gentleman said to me "Here ,you may sit right here and I will stand to finish my ice." For the moment that almost rubbed out the feeling that I am a long way from home.

'Pick-A-Back' Airplane Ready For Flight

The British "Pick-a-Back" airplane Mercury, is expected to take off from Foynes, Ireland, this week on a flight to Canada across the North Atlantic. The Mercury shown here in the air, TOP, and on the water, has a flying range of 3,500 miles and a cruising speed of 165 miles per hour. It takes to the air from the back of its "mother ship" to enable it to carry the maximum load of gas. If winds are favorable the Mercury will land at Montreal, but if strong head winds are met during the Atlantic crossing the airplane will land at Shediac, N.B., where a special refueling base has been established. On its return flight the Azores route will be followed making use of the mother ship unnecessary.

Aberhart's Bank Tax Appeal Is Thrown Out

LONDON, July 14 (CP Cable).—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council today dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Alberta from a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada declaring ultra vires a measure to tax the chartered banks enacted by the Alberta Legislature.

The decision, upholding the court below on the third and last of the appeals of the province from judgments invalidating legislation sponsored by the Social Credit Government, was announced by Lord Atkin, who said the Privy Council would not make a costs order and would communicate Their Lordships' reasons for the judgment to the parties concerned in due course.

A week ago the Judicial Committee discontinued the hearing of appeals on the Alberta press bill and a measure to regulate credit, allowing the judgments of the Supreme Court at Ottawa, which declared the bills unconstitutional, to stand.

Their Lordships still have under consideration the question of costs in the press appeal.

Lawyer Wins Right To Read Paper In The Court Room

Montreal, July 14

NEWSPAPER-READING is reportedly on a boom at the local Court House these days—a defiant boom.

When a Provincial Police constable relieved a lawyer of his paper in court a few days ago the lawyer "appealed" and won his case. Addressing Judge C. E. Guerin on a question of privilege, he asked return of his property.

"Yes," said the Judge, "you can't do that, you know, officer Lawyers have the right to bring newpapers to court."

Now the newspapers crackle more than ever.

In 1800 the Danforth Road was completed from Kingston to Ancaster.

Princess Must Return To Stage

Following the Anschluss which nazified Austria, estates of the former vice-chancellor Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, were confiscated by the new government. The prince, scion of one of the most noble families in Europe and owner of vast properties in his native land was left virtually destitute and his princess, who was a famed actress, Nora Gregor, before their marriage, has announced that she will return to the stage to support her family. Here is a picture, made in Paris a few weeks ago, of the beautiful princess and her son, Heinrich.

8,000-Mile Airplane Trip Is Being Planned By Hepburn Into Far North

J. P. Bickell, Mining Magnate And Pilot Will Be Only Companions Of Premier

TORONTO, July 14.—Ontario's air-minded Prime Minister, Mitchell F. Hepburn, takes off next Sunday on a sky-jaunt of some 8,000 miles.

Before he returns to his Queen's Park office he expects to have twice crossed the Rockies, to have paid his respects to Aklavik and other almost inaccessible points around the mouth of the Mackenzie River, to have inspected the new Yellowknife mining country, and to have flown down the Pacific Coast line all the way from the Yukon to Vancouver—one of the riskiest hops charted on aerial navigation maps.

Mr. Hepburn will fly in the big twin-motored machine owned by J. P. Bickell, mining magnate, in which he recently hopped to Quebec and subsequently to Moosonee. Mr. Bickell will accompany him. The only other person on the plane during the long and eagerly anticipated trip to the Far North will be Pilot Towne.

Session With Cabinet.

The Prime Minister spent most of yesterday afternoon with his Cabinet, ironing out certain matters of policy, before completing arrangements for his from two to three weeks' absence from office. His last public duty, before taking off, will be an inspection of a Brantford Sanatorium, today. His last political gesture before the trip will be an address at Brantford, Saturday night, on behalf of the Liberal candidate in the coming Provincial by-election in that urban constituency.

The Bickell plane will proceed, via Winnipeg, to Regina, where Mr. Hepburn will confer with Premier Patterson and Hon. James Gardiner, on matters whose nature he declined yesterday to disclose. On the return half of the trip he plans to call, also, on Premier Bracken of Manitoba. From Edmonton they will fly, by long hops, up the great waterways route to the Artic, and from Aklavik, by comparatively easy stages, over the mountains to Dawson City. To the Dawson-Vancouver flight, along the ocean front, Mr. Hepburn is looking with possibly more pleasure than any other. The Vancouver-Toronto or homebound itinerary has not been definitely settled.

British Troops Are Rushed To Holy Land

British troops have been rushed from Egypt as rioting between Arabs and Jews breaks out anew in Palestine. Scenes similar to this one (TOP) are now taking place in the Holy Land as troops break up riots. Jerusalem and other cities of Palestine are being patrolled by British Tommies who are shown (LOWER LEFT) searching an Arab for concealed weapons. Arab agitators (LOWER RIGHT) are once more haranguing their fellow countrymen to rise and expel the Jews from the Holy Land.

Holy Land Is Embroiled Bitter Strife

By Maurice Merryfield
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 14. — Events now occurring in Palestine reflect a long series of events and troublesome incidents which have slowly but inevitably been moving toward a critical showdown.

A rising tide of bitterness between Jews and Arabs has developed during recent weeks when this corner of the world has been headlined because of street sniping, racial rioting and bombings. On both sides, at least among a considerable number, there is a determination to "see it through" to the bitter end—and the end promises to be bitter indeed.

Even this spring, when I was travelling through the Near East, it was apparent that the situation in Palestine was most critical. Members of our party were under constant surveillance by British troops for fear injury to one of our members would occur. I found that "we outside" had little conception of what a common occurrence bombings and murders were, and it was only on occasion of a serious outbreak that the world at large was reminded that Palestine might be the starting point of a "little world war" in the Near East.

Radical Minority Dangerous.

Not long ago there was some hope that a compromise might be effected. The British Partition Commission arrived with no little fanfare and a plan to divide the Holy Land into an exclusively Jewish section, and exclusively Arab section, and a third under British mandate. But they had been in Palestine but a short time when Arab opposition to the "solution" became so intense that it was virtually abandoned. Arabs in Egypt, Syria, and other countries of the Near East backed their brothers in Palestine in demanding expulsion of the Jews from Palestine, and reserving it for Arabs alone.

This Arab determination to make no concessions has been echoed by many of the Jews, particularly the younger ones who belong to the Revisionist Party, a group which comprises only 4,000 of the 450,000 Jewish residents of the Holy Land, but an active minority capable of stirring up no little trouble.

And since an "incident" which occurred on April 21, they have been even more resolute in their anti-Arab policy and its pursuit. It was on that date that three young members of their group ambushed an Arab bus near Rosh Pinah, in the vicinity of the Sea of Galilee, and raked it with gunfire.

One of the trio was sent to an asylum, another to prison for life, and a third, Solomon Ben Yosef, 18, was hanged in the prison of Acre the first of July. His execution was seized by extremists as a cause celebre and numerous demonstrations staged in sympathy to his "martyrdom."

Britain's Position Difficult.

All this stirred a new wave of nationalism and racial feeling in Jewish quarters, and fanned the flame which helped fire the recent riots and disorders in Haifa, Jerusalem, and Tel-Aviv. As a result, British hopes that a second attempt might be made to put over the partition plan appear doomed to disappointment, at least for the present.

In addition to racial differences and economic issues, the situation is made more difficult by religious complications. Some of the most revered temples and holy places of the Moslem religion are located in and around Jerusalem, as well as the sacred places of Christian worship.

Such makes the British situation a most unenviable one. With pressure on at other points around the Empire, and the danger ever imminent that a race war in Palestine might cause an even more serious crisis in Egypt, India or elsewhere, Palestine to-day is causing many a headache for No. 10 Downing Street.

U. S. Nazi Fined and Jailed

Nazism in the United States received a severe setback when Henry Hauck (wearing hat), manager of the Nazi Camp Siegfried at Yaphank, N.Y., was found guilty with four other defendants, of violation of the State civil rights law, and fined $500 and received suspended jail terms of one year. Ernest Muller, also shown, president of the German-American League, was sentenced to serve one year in prison and fined $500.

Young Petes Lose To Bowmanville

Bowmanville took an 8-3 Junior Lakeshore Baseball League win from the Young Petes last evening in Bowmanville, the loss letting Oshawa climb into a first-place tie with the locals. Bowmanville remains in the running. Lack of timely hitting and some costly errors spelt defeat for Herb Ralph's boys, while Bowmanville had good twirling in the clutches, fair fielding and timely hitting. Gee Clark failed to get going on the visitors' mound and was relieved early by Todd. The latter looked good in the five and two-third frames he pitched, allowing but three hits and no earned runs. His fielding support was shaky. Slemon scattered his eight hits and fanned six, issuing two walks. Castle and Stanley led the losers at bat with two safe blows each. McNabb suffered a cracked rib when a home player slid into him at second. The summary:

	R	H	E
Young Petes	3	8	5
Bowmanville	8	10	3

CHAPTER 38

TWO OF THE most efficient cowboys of the Dale-Durango rancho were Ed Carraway and "Shorty" Rogers, and Bill had picked them to trail the stolen cows.

"Whoever done it didn't have no wire cutters," Ed said, after examining the fence which had held the animals. "This here bob-wire, Shorty, is all broke uneven. Looky here—this strand's been twisted till it broke. And this'n. See here?"

Shorty nodded agreement.

"There was six men," he stated then.

They reinspected tracks. Tracks of horses that had fallen behind the driven cattle. Being men accustomed to studying outdoor "signs," they had no difficulty determining that six riders had committed the theft. The hoof depressions were not uniform, not conventional, although the average American citizen would never suspect that horses' tracks can vary appreciably.

"One horse had three shoes," Shorty declared. "Th' left front shoe had been throwed off."

"None of the others was shod a tall."

"No. Thet means just one thing, seems to me, Ed."

"Yump."

They mounted then and started following the trail. Following was not difficult. Twenty cows and six horses break down a lot of brush; leave tracks, scars, scratches, on rocks and sand.

The trail led southward. Ed figured the thieves had about a 10-hour start. Knowing they might be pursued, they would push on hard. And Ed and Shorty would have to travel relatively slowly, due to necessity of picking out the exact route on areas that had been crossed subsequently by groups of other cattle.

The two punchers rode on, however, until nearly sundown, pausing once at a water hole. It was a day of hard work for their two horses. The men were in country strange to them but they had good sense of direction and knew what lay ahead.

"Might's well turn back," Ed ruled, at last. "Ain't nothing more we can do, Shorty. Them rustlers have gone into Mexico by this time."

"Yeah."

They themselves could not cross the line without violating international law. And even if they did cross, they would be just two men with a six shooter each. They headed for a grassy spot near a highway and Ed staked out the two horses to graze.

"You come on in tomorrer," Shorty said. "I'll bum a ride and give Doc th' news."

Shorty sat on the highway for an hour, and finally a car came along. It was going the wrong way, but when Shorty explained his situation the driver turned around and took him all the way back to the DD ranch. Night had set in, but a light shone in Bill Baron's rooms and Shorty went directly there.

"What's yore head wropped up for?" Shorty demanded at once. A bandage was tied around Bill.

"A bull bulldogged me. Knocked the wind out of me, left a few scratches up here. I'm wearing this to get sympathy. How about the stolen cows?"

Shorty had to have full details of Bill's accident first. The Brahma bull had thrown Bill hard, but fortunately had done no serious damage. Bill admitted he was luckier than he deserved. Shorty wanted to go whip Felix Montoya for causing such an accident, but Bill explained that it was nobody's fault. The bull had just broke out of the truck.

"Them other steers was stolen," Shorty said, at last. "And whoever done it took them on into Mexico."

"Any clues?"

"Some," Shorty related what they had found. "And a feller brought me home—Ed's bringing our horses tomorrer—and said other ranches has been losing cows lately."

"That 20 were the most valuable group of stock we had," Bill explained. "I'm going to look into it."

His next thought was to go discuss the matter with Ellen, but Bill didn't want to see Felix Montoya with her again. He was angry at Felix, and disgusted. He had risked his life to save Felix from injury or death, and had received no thanks. Felix was either negligent or ungrateful. In his flight for safety, the scared Mexican had fallen and dirtied himself considerably. While Ellen and the cowboys had carried Bill in and revived him, dressed his wounds and "took on" over him almost too much, Senor Montoya had simply gone to put on fresh clothes.

Buckshot Brown came to Bill's rooms then, and Bill discussed his plans with him and Shorty.

"I'm going down there and see what I can learn," he told them, suddenly deciding. "You hold down things here, and I'll check in soon. I'm going to leave tonight. I phoned down to the immigration border patrol officers this morning, and had a little talk with them. I've got two and two. I'm trying to make four, if you know what I mean. I mean—a lot of other ranchers have reported thefts lately. I'm going to snoop around a bit."

Shorty and Buckshot stared at him. They didn't understand.

"You're th' boss, Doc," said Shorty. "But it sounds crazy. You want a bunch of us to go with you?"

"No. A bunch would get in trouble. I can slip in."

"And do what?"

"Wait and see."

Ellen had expected Bill to come to her living room after supper. Felix was there, as usual. When Bill hadn't dropped in by nine o'clock, she walked across the wide front area to his cottage, but discovered that it was dark. A light shone in Buckshot Brown's place, and she went by to interrupt the old man just as he was undressing to go to bed.

"He went off, Ellen," Buckshot told her, warily. The old fellow didn't know just how much or how little, he ought to tell.

"Where did he go? He didn't tell me he had anything to do tonight."

"Why—uh—I can't say. Something about th' stock, I reckon."

She turned away, disappointed. She was, as a matter of fact a trifle suspicious. She knew about the stolen cows, and Bill's absence at night somewhat alarmed her. Furthermore she wasn't at all sure that Bill's injuries were as negligible as he insisted they were.

She went over by the cowboys' bunkhouse, and one of the men routed out Shorty, who had already turned in.

"Yes, ma'am," he reported, "th' rustlers had took th' cows over into Mexico and Doc he said he'd go down there tonight and look into it."

Shorty thought only that he was making an honest report, to the ranch owner. It never eccurred to him such a report might upset the girl.

"Mexico? Tonight?" Ellen was quickly alarmed. "W-who in the world could have stolen the cows and taken them down there?"

"Why th' Yaqui Indians, ma'am," said Shorty, naively. "Th' signs was right plain."

Yaqui Indians! Ellen Dale had had her fill of them. Once before she had rescued the man she loved from them. Would she have to risk it again? She would defy hell itself for Bill Baron, now, she knew. But this time she had nothing to go on. She didn't even know where he was.

Forgetting Felix Montoya entirely, she entered her back door, went upstairs and stayed in her room, deeply worried. Felix heard her enter, and after waiting impatiently for an hour he left and went on to his—and Bill's—bed.

DOROTHY DIX

There Are No Fixed Rules on How to Catch Your Man, But Here Are Some Suggestions That May Help You Haul Him Into Your Net

DEAR MISS DIX—I have heard that a girl can marry any man she wants to if she goes about it the right way. What if he says he is going to be a bachelor? How can you make him change his mind? Will you please give me the rules by which you can get your man? ARTLESS.

ANSWER:

No less of an authority on women than Thackeray asserted long ago that any woman who didn't have a hump on her back could marry any man she chose. Recently I had this truth confirmed by a woman who told me of seeing a man enter a room whom she instantly decided to marry. She didn't know his name nor anything about him, but she said to herself, "There's my future husband," and started in pursuit of him. It took her three years to capture him, but she turned the trick at last.

So there's comfort for you. And encouragement. Furthermore, you need not be discouraged by the man's assertion that he is "agin" matrimony and intends being an old bachelor. Most men have made that promise to themselves. Observing the bondage of husbands of their acquaintance who had to punch the home time clock on the dot, or else produce a satisfactory alibi; who had to push the perambulator instead of playing golf on Saturday afternoons; who had to stand for nagging and curtain lectures; who had to see their money go for grocery bills and rents, imported hats and beauty parlors instead of in poker games and for new reels and fancy golf clubs, and they have said: "Marriage? Not for me. Wild horses couldn't drag me to the altar." But you will notice that most of those who were so insistent on retaining their freedom somehow lost it, and are trotting along in double harness.

How a woman catches her husband is her own trade secret that she never tells to any one. The greatest babbler on earth never reveals her method, so there are no fixed rules that any one can give you about how to do it. You have to figure it out for yourself, and your system must inevitably be based upon a study of the man. For not all men are susceptible to the same line of charms and what may be a sure-fire method with Tom might be a fizzle with John.

Of course, to begin with, you must be as good looking as Nature and good clothes permit, so as not to frighten your quarry away. Then you should have the proper background. A home, no matter how small, is essential. A man can always escape you in a hotel or restaurant, but when you've got him by your own fireside he is in your trap. "Will you walk into my parlor?" said the spider to the fly. And you remember the results. Public places start a man's feet to roaming. A home turns his thoughts to domesticity.

Much depends on a woman's approach to a man who is set and determined on remaining a bachelor. Go slow, because he is easily frightened off. Don't rush him or he is lost. If you ask him to call alone he will be filled with suspicion and decline, but you can lure him into little parties. You can ply him with attentions so incduously that before he knows t he will have begun to depend on you for making things pleasant and interesting for him.

If he is fond of good food your task is cmparatively easy. You have only to feed the brute. Get him into the habit of dropping in for some special dish that you aver you prepared yourself and you will soon have him eating wedding cake out of your hand.

Be a good listener. Lend him your ears while he tells you all of his troubles and boasts to you of all his triumphs. You yourself must be the judge of how much flattery he will stand for, but most men like it slapped on with a trowel. Anyway, when you have made him feel that in a dull and stupid world you are the only one who really appreciates how wonderful and witty and handsome he is, you've got him.

Make yourself necessary to him. Make your house the pleasantest place he ever goes. Your dinners the best he ever eats. Your company the most sympathetic he finds anywhere. Make him form the habit of going about with you. Then, suddenly, go off to Europe or to visit your sister in California and let him find out how much he misses you. That will bring him to the point.

The main things, however, is not to weary in well-doing. Keep on the job. Persistence will wear any man down. Keep as your example the lady who trailed her man for three years and finally captured him.

* * * * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a man, but I think girls get a pretty bad break. A girl has a heavy date. She goes to the beauty parlor for a permanent and all the rest of the works. She paints, lipsticks, spends hours dressing up to look like a million dollars and the understudy of a cross between Venus and Ginger Rogers. And what does she get? A slick-headed, pimply faced, big-footed sheik in his everyday clothes. A young squirt that says: "Gee, you look swell!" and then changes the subject. And men will say: "To heck with taking girls out! It is too expensive." Why do the girls put up with it? Is it because they LIKE to be dressed up, or do they (Heaven forbid) see something attractive in these egotistical, self-centered, talk-about-my-job-or-nothing grass snakes known in biological circles as men? ONE OF THE REPTILES.

ANSWER:

As a wily old serpent you should know that your original ancestor was the cause of the first woman dressing up, and thereby atoned to her for getting her evicted from Eden. Hence ever since clothes have been women's chief interest and greatest job.

Of course girls dress up because they like to do it. Incidentally it adds a zip to it by making them more attractive to men, but they would do it all the same if there wasn't a man in creation and if they were alone in the midst of a desert with not even a snake to look at them. In proof of this you have onigy to observe that no woman can ever pass a mirror without stopping to gave in it. The most sublime expression of perfect self-satisfaction that is ever beheld on a human countenance you will see on the face of a girl who has just put a fresh coat of lipstick on her mouth, powdered her nose and regards the effect in the little looking glass in her vanity. Her expression is that of one who beholds a masterpiece without flaw or blemish.

DOROTHY DIX.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, July 15.

According to important mutual aspects between the dominating planets, this may be a day in which social, educational, charitable, or public activities may take precedence over purely business or commonplace interests. There is an expansive and ambitious accent in the rather than in private enterprise. rahter than in private enterprise. Unless there be excessive or reckless expression of these, there is a prospect of increased prestige and popularity.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves engulfed in a year in which the activities are exerted in the direction of public work, political, social, charitable, or else in the pursuit of private progress, rather than strictly business or workaday affairs. Wise indulgence, with proper restraints as to over-zeal or ambition in such channels, promises enhanced popularity and prestige.

A child born on this day may have an endowment fitting it for life in public service rather than in private gain. It should have a fine mind and kindly sympathetic nature, with a desire to help its fellows. This should assure it personal prestige and popularity, which it should wear with modesty.

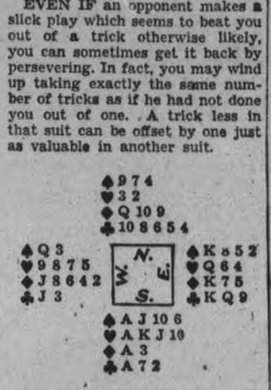
"The Authority on Authorities"

PERSEVERANCE PAYS

EVEN IF an opponent makes a slick play which seems to beat you out of a trick otherwise likely, you can sometimes get it back by persevering. In fact, you may wind up taking exactly the same number of tricks as if he had not done you out of one. A trick less in that suit can be offset by one just as valuable in another suit.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

When North and East passed, South decided his strongest bid was 1-No Trump. In response to this, North bid 2-Clubs and South jumped to 3-No Trump.

West led the diamond 4 and declarer played the 9 from dummy. On this East played the 7, so that the 9 held. Had he played the K, South's A would have won and the diamond 10 could have been finessed. With that chance gone, declarer decided on the heart finesse, which worked. This was followed by the A, K and J of hearts. Now declarer led the spade J, which West won and led a club. South ducked the first round but won the second. Then he played a spade to the 9, which East won and cashed his good club. A diamond return gave South the remainder of the tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

With the diamond 3 led against South's contract of 3-No Trump, how should he proceed to make game?

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf ran around the shrubs which grew about the edge of the frog pond on the other side of the garden wall. His sister, Hanid, ran right after him.

Where were they going? Well, you see, the frogs who lived in the pond were having a picnic. And Knarf and Hanid, who were the shadows belonging to two children and not real children themselves, heard the grandfather of all the frogs announcing lunch.

The Grandfather of all the frogs was sitting on the biggest rock.

"Lunch! The frogs are going to eat their picnic lunch!". Knarf shouted to Hanid. "We'll help them eat it. Hurry!"

When they reached the other side of the shrubs, sure enough, there they saw all the frogs, the big ones and the little ones, all sitting on little rocks just beyond the edge of the pond where the cat-tails were growing out of the water.

The grandfather of all the frogs was sitting on the biggest and highest rock. "A-hem," he croaked when he spied the two shadow children. "What do you want down here in our pond?"

They Heard Him.

"We just heard you say it was time to have your picnic lunch. We'd like to have some, too, if there's enough. Hanid isn't very hungry. But I am."

The grandfather of all the frogs gazed at Knarf through his spectacles for a moment or two in silence.

Then all at once the old frog croaked, "A-hem, a-hem, a-hem! Of course you can stay with us for lunch. Take your place on a rock. Pick anyone you please. If you're ready, then begin to eat. Eat as much as you can."

Knarf glanced around at the other frogs. He didn't see any lunch being served at all. The only thing he saw was that each frog was opening its mouth and snapping out its long tongue at each fly that happened to fly past.

Oh, how disappointed he was to learn that that was the lunch that the frogs were eating! He sprang back off the rock and hurried home with Hanid. But Hanid laughed. "That's what you get for going to a frogs' picnic," she said.

Post Held By General Ormond Is Abolished By Cabinet

Inspector Dawson Also Moved

G. E. Shortt of Ottawa Appointed To Succeed Dawson As Inspector

OTTAWA, July 14 — (CP) — An Order-in-Council abolishing the position of Superintendent of Penitentiaries was made public Wednesday by Acting Justice Minister Cardin. It will be effective in a month and will remove from public service Brigadier-General D. M. Ormond, whose dismissal was recommended by the recent Royal Commission on Penitentiaries.

No provision has been made for his successor, but it is assumed this will be cared for in the appointment of a temporary Commission.

Inspector J. D. Dawson, one of the three inspectors attached to the Penitentiaries Branch, was transferred to the office of Controller of Revenue, and George E. Shortt of Ottawa appointed in his place.

Criticized by Probe.

Mr. Dawson also came under the criticism of the Royal Commission, which found he did not have "the capacity or temperament to fulfil this important office" and recommended his transfer to another branch of the Government service.

The Royal Commission recommended supervision of Canada's penal system be placed in the hands of a three-man Commission, and legislation to that effect was presented near the end of the parliamentary session which ended July 1.

It passed the House of Commons, but was killed in the Senate, where it was declared insufficient time had been allowed for studying the report.

At that time Justice Minister Lapointe declared defeat of his bill would not prevent the department proceeding with reorganization of the Penitentiaries Branch as far as possible without enabling legislation.

When Mr. Lapointe returns from his holiday late this month he is expected to make an announcement covering the Government's proposed procedure pending reintroduction of legislation at the next session of Parliament.

Mr. Shortt, who is about 45 years old, is son of the late Adam and Mrs. Shortt of Ottawa and was one of the expert assistants to the Royal Commission. Previously he had been doing special work for the Labor Department. He is a graduate of Queen's University, where to took his arts degree, holds a doctorate of philosophy from the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, and is a master in library science of McGill University.

Appointed in 1932.

General Ormond was appointed Superintendent of Penitentiaries in 1932. He was formerly District Officer Commanding in Calgary and had a distinguished career in the Canadian Expeditionary Force to France.

When the penitentiary legislation was before the House of Commons during the last days of the session, Opposition Leader Bennett made a spirited defence of General Ormond, claiming that he had been condemned by the Commission on the evidence of convicts, and had not been given a proper hearing or access to the evidence adduced against him.

The conclusion of the Royal Commission with respect to General Ormond was that he had "displayed great diligence in exhaustive attention to a multitude of details, but he has, in the opinion of your Commissioners, failed to grasp fundamental principles so essential in the performance of the important executive duties connected with the office of Superintendent. He has completely lost the confidence of the staffs of all the penitentiaries and, without this, no Administration can succeed."

Weds Banking Scion

York night club and more recently member of a London dancing troupe, 19-year-old Pauline Spiak, was married to 19-year-old Vivian Ostrer, scion of a famous British banking family, in London recently. Mark Ostrer, father of the groom and chairman of Gaumont-British films, is reported to have approved of the marriage.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't fiddle around with makeshift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are it's simple if you eat only what most people do: meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crisp crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Millbrook Society Plans Rockery

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, July 14. — The Horticultural Society held a meeting in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, with a fair attendance, and the president, Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, in the chair.

After discussion it was decided to buy bulbs for fall planting, through C. A. Cruikshanks, Toronto, who imports direct from Holland, and any of the public desiring to secure same may do so through the Horticultural Society.

A list of names was given the directors that they might individually contact the members with a view to the sale of bulbs. The order must go in during August, to have the bulbs arrive in time for the fall planting.

It was also decided to have Mr. Cruikshanks here in September, to give a lecture on some phase of horticulture, illustrated by colored slides.

The invitation from the sister society at Peterborough to attend the rose show there on July 15 and 16 in the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith, 151 Benson Avenue, was accepted, and as many as possible of the members will motor in for this privilege. The newest and best types of roses and lilies are cultivated in the garden of the president of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, and will be seen under actual growing conditions.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Harrington and Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Campbell were appointed a committee to go to Orono and arrange for trees which are to be planted along the school hill, securing information as to the best kind to choose and prices of same.

H. A. Kerr addressed the society regarding a rockery for the school hill, in which he is deeply interested, asking for the co-operation and backing of the Horticultural officers and members, and was assured every assistance possible will be given the project.

A general discussion of various phases for still further beautifying the community closed the meeting.

Over a wide area all he could find was a strange substance he had never seen before. He took it to a geologist and was informed he had made a rich find of asbestos. Haviland said mining men told him his claims 260 miles nor of North Bay constitute one of the richest asbestos prospects on the continent.

Lindsay Man Jailed For Beating Up Son

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, July 14.—A bloody battle between father and son was waged in a Queen street home Tuesday night, and as a result Bess Abercrombie is in jail facing charges of being intoxicated and assault on his son, Roy, occasioning actual bodily harm. The latter is in the Ross Hospital in a rather serious condition. According to the police they have been called to the home on several occasions lately when trouble was caused. Tuesday night, however, the climax came. The son on his return home, it is alleged, entered into a discussion with the father. An altercation followed, and the father picked up a milk bottle and hurled it at his son. Neighbors called the police and Constable Simnett hurried to the home. He found Roy Abercrombie lying on the floor in an unconscious condition and his face and clothes covered with blood. He was conveyed to the hospital in an ambulance. The father, who bore marks of the affray, was arrested.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Howard, of Toronto, are in the Ross Hospital, following an accident a mile north of Minden on Tuesday night, when their car left the highway. The couple sustained broken ribs, laceration of the head, and Mr. Howard also suffered a fractured limb. Provincial Constable Taylor, of Minden, is investigating the accident.

Clifford Hollywood, aged eighteen, has been picked up by the police of Beaverton, and is being held until further information is secured concerning his career. The youth, it is alleged, had stolen a rifle, and had been entering cottages at the lake as well as two residences in the village.

Little Kay McNeil, aged five, of Fenelon Falls, was viciously attacked by a collie dog in that village on Monday. The animal sprang at the child's face, biting her on the jaw. She was also bitten below the eye and had a number of scalp gashes. Mrs. John Barribal, of Verulam, was also attacked by a dog when she was locking it in the barn. It suddenly leaped at her throat, knocking her to the ground. Her face, neck and ears were lacerated and her arms badly clawed.

Preston Pennock, of Verulam, was badly injured on Monday. A team of horses attached to a rake took fright and ran away, throwing him off. His right leg was broken above the knee and he was also badly shaken up.

Much Fun Caused By a "Pocket Turn-out"

Much fun can be had at a party by a "pocket turn-out," when the men are requested to stand round a table and empty their pockets, placing the contents before them. The object is to see who will have the most interesting article, and who will have the greatest number.

The women count the articles and decide upon the most interesting collection. The men, of course, should know nothing about the stunt in advance. (The game may also be played with women's bags!)

Woman Too Aggressive To Be Popular

"Few women reach the top of their professions because they are too aggressive to be popular."

That was a woman speaking—Miss H. M. Cross, first woman member of the British Bar Council.

"This aggressiveness emerges in several ways," she told the British Commonwealth League conference in London.

"It shows itself in the feminist, the over-manly woman, and the one who relies solely on sex appeal."

Striped and checked cotton shirtings are satisfactory and chic for golf, tennis or spectator sports dresses.

London Tan and White Twin Print

A London tan and white twin print suit in silk chiffon and crepe suitable for an afternoon wedding costume. A fitted, short-sleeved coat slips over the matching crepe dress.

The white is repeated in the very short suede gloves, and the hat, ever so fetching, recalls a Watteau painting. Tiny flowers and ribbons trim a Milan straw veiled in color. Shoes and bag of London tan calf.

This costume would also be smart in gray with a gaily colored hat.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The more kinds of people you see, and the more things you do, and the more things that happen to you the richer you are. Even if they are not pleasant things. That's living."

—Edna Ferber.

Dear Friends:

So many complain of an empty life, but they do nothing to fill it. Now there is a busy loneliness, and an empty kind. I choose to be busy with hands and brain, rather than sit with my hands folded, but every so often I must sally forth and mingle with my kind.

Supposing a person has an unpleasant experience, maybe someone wasn't as kind as they might have been, maybe their clothes did not suit them as well as those they saw on other people. Does that mean they should stop going out, or shun meeting people? Assuredly not.

Every little happening that comes along should make life fuller, more interesting. Shutting yourself away from contact with your fellow-men and women will only turn your eyes inward, so that you magnify every little hurt, take everything said as aimed at you, and go sour on the world, as you think the world has gone sour on you.

Even the grass that is trodden underfoot springs back again. Are you then not as good as grass? Have some resiliency, some spring in you, so that you do not let trifles get you down. You may say, "Oh but, Roberta, it wasn't a trifle. It was very important to me."

But why was it so very important? There are other pople in the world, the person involved might have been under a great strain, in fact a hundred and one things could have contributed to this hurt which made you shut yourself inside four walls and brood.

And, of all the curses on earth one of the worst is in letting ourselves brood. Take the thing out and look at it. It was a trifle until you brooded, now wasn't it? Yet, because of it you are keeping yourself from rich experiences in meeting other people. How foolish.

A great many things would dissolve into thin air if they were brought out into the light of day, just as the sun dissolves the mist of the mountains.

Just the other week, I was sashaying downtown and saw a friend approaching, so got my mouth all ready to smile, when she sailed right by, so I had to wipe the smile right off, and went on feeling quite disgruntled and annoyed.

Then I began to reason with myself like this: "Is she so very important to your happiness that just because she did not smile you must let yourself get all cast down? Myself said, no, but what ailed her, it wouldn't have hurt to smile." Well I kept on like that, quite oblivious of anyone about me, until a voice hailed me saying, "Oh, so you weren't going to speak today?"

Here, in my preoccupation over a fancied slight, I was doing the very same thing I was annoyed over, so I stopped with my second friend, told her about it, and we had a good laugh which did us both good, for she had done the same herself, in thinking she was slighted.

How many heartaches could be avoided if we weren't so darned self-conscious, if we did not take things so seriously. And the funny thing about my friend passing me was when she phoned and told me of something that had been bothering her, and how she had gone downtown and did not see a soul, in fact she had looked all over for me, but did not meet up with me. See what I mean?

And a lot of the things that cause us to shut ourselves away from contact with others, would be found to be quite as trivial if we were honest enough to examine them. So, don't bury yourself while you are alive, for you will be a long time dead as it is. Get all the fun and pleasure you can, and if you get a bump, laugh it off quickly.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Faithful Skin Care Pays Double Dividends

Exposure to the sun and wind and to the water when you swim all tend to make the skin tough and leathery. Don't let your complexion pay the price of neglect when you can so inexpensively keep it soft and lovely. Just a little faithful care, several good creams and a skin tonic, and you will find that the few minutes you spend on your skin each day will pay double dividends in complexion beauty.

First, as has been repeatedly advised by all beauty experts, be sure your skin is absolutely clean. Not long ago an article appeared in a woman's magazine denouncing the cream cleaning system and advising girls to go back to the methods of grandmother's time when a thorough cleansing each day with good castile soap was all the beauty care thought necessary. However, the writer advised her readers to follow the soap and water treatment by a careful cleansing with a good cream to remove all traces of dirt which may have worked its way into the pores. After the cream has been removed, good skin tonic was advised, which could be followed, if you wish, by your own favorite skin food. This method sounds very sensible to us, although we know lots of girls who prefer to stick to their creaming methods, and who look dismayed when soap and water is mentioned.

Whatever routine you choose to follow; whatever method you feel is the proper one for your skin, stick to it. Never yield to the urge to tumble into bed with your evening's make-up still on, however late the hour or weary the feet.

One beauty expert tells us that seven minutes a night is sufficient for everything from cleanser to nourishing cream, and that this brief "daily dozen" is much more effective than prolonged massage erratically performed. Of course, if your skin is a difficult one, or has been rendered such by over-exposure a little more time should be allowed, but regularity of routine is what we are attempting to stress. It is infinitely more beenficial than several nights' neglect followed by a beauty parlor facial.

Start now to give your skin regular daily care; make a rite of your ritual, and it will become as much habit to you as cleansing your teeth or brushing your hair.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Good Cook, Imagination Requirements For Hostess

Even such a welcome thirst quencher as a jar of lemon syrup on ice becomes monotonous if you do not change its character occasionally.

Instead of using your whole supply of oranges for juice for breakfast this week, make orange syrup of some of them—to be diluted with ice and water for beverages to quench the great summer thirst of your family.

The vitamin value of your oranges is all retained if you make it thus:

Orange Syrup:

Wash 8 medium-sized oranges, and grate the rind from two of them on fine grater into 1½ cups water mixed with ½ cup sugar. Squeeze the juice from the 2 rindless oranges and the remaining 6 oranges and 1 lemon, and strain this juice into a quart jar or large pitcher. Put the pulp and seeds strained out of the juice into the syrup pan and bring the syrup to boiling point. Strain and cool. When cool, add the syrup to the strained juice.

Do not add the hot strained syrup to the juice or its heat will kill the vitamins in the juice. Let it cool first.

This make a little more than a quart and should be diluted by a little more than half its volume of water. Keep orange syrup on ice.

By nature being a nurturer (it's my own word so don't look in the dictionary for it), the reaction of folks to foods is my hobby.

Do you agree with me that the fat ones eat more in summer and the thin ones less?

The fat ones can look after their own figures (I have to watch my waistline), but the thin ones must be temporarily (sometimes permanently) tempted by you, Mrs. Cook.

While we should eat the fresh foods that are native to our provinces, ripe bananas are a good source of norishment in any season. A banana eaten after a meal is finished supposedly, give the slim ones an extra few ounces to store away. Keep bananas on hand if you have a thin one in your brood to coddle.

Cake for dessert after a vegetable meal is another good thing to keep in mind. Fruits will take care of themselves these days for you cannot resist them, so I can ease up on my "fruit-for-dessert" propaganda.

Cream Gingerbread:

(Note: This cake calls for sour milk. If sour cream is used instead omit the butter and replace it with ¼ cup water.)

We used this recipe because even the best refrigerated kitchen in the country sometimes gets a little sour milk to dispose of in summer—and I'll wager all of them get a little sour cream.

One cup molasses, 1 cup sour milk, 2 1-3 cups flour, 1¾ teaspoons soda, 2 teaspoons ginger, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup melted mutter. Mix soda with sour milk an dadd to molasses. Sift together remaining dry ingredients, combine the two mixtures, add butter, and beat vigorously. Pour into buttered shallow pan and bake 30 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr.

That is the "Good Plain Cook" part of this recipe. The second part —imagination—comes from splitting the cake, spreading heavy unsweetened whipped cream between the layers just before serving, dredging top with a thin film of icing sugar. To serve slice into long fingers, and pass yellow cream cheese and provide plenty of iced cocoa (if the day has been a scorcher); if not, hot coffee cannot be excelled with it. A perfect dessert after a vegetable plate or salad meal.

Iced Cocoa.

Since we have been spending as much of our time as possible at "The Cabin," which is only a few miles out of town, we have had to make some adjustments because all of our supplies come from town—and we have no regular milk delivery. However the youngsters do not do without its blessings for The Doctor always drives out for his dinner and sleeps here (I am typing this on our screened porch with paper weights holding down the finished sheets) and brings a daily supply. But at noons the youngster have come to clamoring for cocoa, and I simply take down the three dry ingredients I use—powdered skim milk, Fry's cocoa, sugar. Add water during the process of mixing and cooking and you have a convenient and economical beverage.

Do look into the powdered skim milk situation this summer—every forehanded housewife will want some on hand. There is excellent whole powdered milk, too—costs more, but it is vacuum packed in Canada ,and a clever method of providing whole milk for any of your needs at any time. Excellent for Northern summer camps where refrigeration is a problem.

Use three tablespoons good quality cocoa, 9 tablespoons powdered skim or powdered whole milk, 3 tablespoons sugar. Mix these together well, then add 1 cup water and bring to boiling point, stirring frequently. Then add 3 cups water, heat through preferably over double boiler to keep from burning, then beat with rotary to make it foamy and smooth, shake in 1 shake of salt. Put on ice when cool to chill or less less water when making the cocoa and add 6 or 8 ice cubes to it when nt is cool. Or pour a strong solution of it over ice in tall glasses. This is good flavored with a sprig of fresh mint.

Until this summer my efforts with raspberries have stopped when I had served them to the family "as is" until they were satiated, 1 fresh raspberry tart pie, canned raspberries, raspberry jam. A good list when added up, but when raspberry jelly is left out not good enough.

I dislike discarding the raspberry seeds because they are the roughage our modern "pap" diet so sadly lacks. But if you see to it that your family gets their daily ration of roughage then you have a right to a small batch of

Raspberry Jelly:

Four cups berry juice (or half red currant or apple), 4 cups sugar, ½ cup pectin. You will need at least 2 quarts raspberries washed, drained, mashed and simmered with ½ cup water for about 5 minutes, to make 4 cups when strained. Strain through cheesecloth, heat, add pectin, bring to boiling point and when boiling hard count one minute while stirring. Remove from heat and pour after stirring 5 minutes. Paraffin when cool.

A variety of Raspberry Recipes.

Raspberry Canape:

Fold whole drained raspberries into sweetened whipped cream. Over a slice of sponge cake or plain layer cake pour raspberry juice OR place a slice of ice cream or blanc mange pudding and heap the cream and raspberry mixture on top.

Raspberry Shrub:

Two quarts berries, 1 pint dilute white vinegar. Mix these two together and let stand 4 days. Then crush and strain; to each cup of juice add 1 cup sugar, boil 20 minutes and bottle. Before serving, dilute with ice water.

Raspberry Foam:

One cup mashed berries. 1 cup cream whipped, 2 egg whites, ½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar. Beat whites stiff then add sugar and beat again. Fold in the beaten cream and mashed berries, chill piled in tall glasses in which it is to be served.

Raspberry Parfait:

Wash I pint raspberries, and mash. Sprinkle with ½ cup sugar, cover and let stand until sugar is dissolved, then force through fine strainer. Put ½ cup sugar, and ¼ cup water in saucepan. Stir until mixture boils, and boil until syrup will spin a short thread. Add very slowly while beating, to 2 egg whites until stiff. When cool, fold in ½ pint cream beaten stiff and the raspberry pulp. Freeze without stirring in trays of mechanical refrigerator.

Wool Jersey Beach Cape Is Versatile and Stylish

If you are seeking fun on the beach, you will be pleased at the fashions of the season which are as decorative and also as really practical as can be. Comfort in your beach clothes is one consideration, of course, with plenty of freedom for action, protection against wind, sun and spray and durability. Beach coats and capes are made of many different materials. In fact, it seems as if noted dressmakers have played around with just about all the materials there are. The very intriguing cape pictured here is navy blue wool jersey with a yoke in the back, from which run 16 stitched gores. It is equally handsome in deep red wool and its tied high at the front with self-fabric ties. Beach coats and capes in these lightweight woollens lack weight and are crush resistant, so they are worth considering when you need such a garment. They also keep their lines even when they are wet.

Choir Picnic Is Held in Cobourg

An enjoyable outing was had by the members of St. John's church choir when they held their picnic at Cobourg Wednesday afternoon. The weather was ideal for such an occasion, and after a fine program of games a dinner was served to the members at the British Hotel.

During the afternoon a cricket match was held between two teams of the boy choristers, R. N. Stuart and V. N. Coleman acting as umpires. Wm. Farrow's team won the match over Ronald Brand's team by the score of 23 to 19. The adult members indulged in games of softball.

Under the capable direction of H. Chate assisted by Griffin Young, all present took part in a splendidly varied program of races. Prizes, which had been donated by Grafton and Co., Ltd., McWilliams and Co., The Robt. Fair Co., Bond's Drug Store, Paynes Drug Store, T. H. Dutton's Nut Shop and the Pete Hooper, Coleman's Confectionery, Gosselin Cigar Shop, were presented to the winners of the races by the rector, Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson, B.A., B.D., as follows:

Choir boys' shoe race. — 1st Ernest Lee, 2nd Donald Pearse; boys' throwing the shoe race—1st Joey McMahon, 2nd Donald Pearse; choir boys' 100-yard dash—1st Dick Williams, 2nd Joey McMahon; Boys' throwing the ball race—1st Ernest Lee, 2nd Leslie Groombridge; choir boys' wheelbarrow race—1st Robt. General arrangements were under the supervision of the choirmaster, Frederic G. Mann, L.Mus.

Says Wrong People Are Being Taught

WOLFVILLE, N.S., July 14.—Prof. E. W. Robinson, principal of Horton Academy and professor of education at Acadia Universtiy blames mothers for the fact there are many boys in our colleges who sohuld have been stopped before they reached high school."

In an address before the Nova Scotia Federation of Home and School Associations last night, he said: "We are educating a crowd of people to be kept by the rest of us, simply because mother wanted her boy to have a white collar. Some day we, in this province, will wake up and find that someone has got to go to work.

"People cannot eat bonds and stock certificates. We have to look forward to work, and we have to face it. Why spoil a good mechanic to make a poor preacher? There may be many pounding the anvil who should be pounding the pulpit, but there are many, too, of which the opposite is the case."

He charged schools were operated on the "factory system" because of grading. "It was a sad day for public schools in Canada when the grading system came into being."

Full-length boxy coats of camel's hair are being featured for early fall wear.

Utilities Head Given 21 Days

HAMILTON, July 14 — (CP). — Notice of appeal against the conviction of Charles A. Waterous on a charge of driving while intoxicated was filed with the clerk of the County Court today shortly after the 60-year-old Brantford Utilities Commissioner had been sentenced to 21 days in jail by Magistrate H. A. Burbidge. His Worship ordered his auto to be impounded for three months, and his driver's licence was suspended.

"The Magistrate should have given Waterous the benefit of the doubt," said Defence Counsel Harry F. Hazell, "as to whether he was intoxicated or whether his condition was due to an overdose of aspirin, to which he is highly susceptible."

Mr. Hazell said his client was a hay fever patient, and added, "the Magistrate was wrong in disregarding the evidence of the accused when it was uncontradicted by any crown witness."

Waterous was freed on bail of $500 pending the appeal which, according to the notice, will be heard by a county judge at the September sittings.

Passing sentence, Magistrate H. A. Burbidge concluded Waterous "set out to make a night of it and he did so." He recalled Waterous had claimed he was suffering from a bad cold when he came to Hamilton on business June 8 and had consumed a large quantity of headache tablets. He had bought three bottles of liquor and consumed part of one in a hotel washroom.

"We have the fact before us, however, that at the time of the accident the three bottles of liquor had disappeared," the Magistrate observed.

Queen Uses Thames

LONDON, July 14 — (AP). — Thousands of persons gathered along the banks of the Thames and cheered today as Queen Mary made a "Royal progress" down the river from Westminster to the Tower of London to attend a charity garden party.

Upon her arrival at the Tower Her Majesty disembarked from the Royal launch at the famous "Queen's Stairs." It was the first time a queen had used the stairs in more than 400 years. The last time being when Queen Elizabeth ascended them July 10, 1561.

Subsequent sovereigns always have made state drives through the city when visiting the Tower.

Quivering nerves can make you old and haggard looking, cranky and hard to live with—can keep you awake nights and rob you of good health, good times and jobs.

What you should try is a particularly good woman's tonic—and could you ask for anything whose benefits are better proved than that world-famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Let its wholesome herbs and roots help Nature calm your shrieking nerves, tone up your system, give more energy and make life worth living again.

Japs Deadlocked At Kiukiang

SHANGHAI, July 14—(AP). — Chinese and Japanese fought today for control of Kiukiang, 135 miles down from the Yangtse from Hankow and a main barrier to the Japanese offensive pointed toward that provisional capital of China.

The fighting was heavy and intense heat, with the temperature above 100, added to the suffering.

It seemed apparent the Japanese still were deadlocked in their efforts to take Kiukiang.

The Chinese, determined to leave nothing for the invaders should they gain control of the city, were systematically destroying waterfront properties of possible military value.

There were, meanwhile, reports of new guerilla warfare in Southern Kiangsu province, with mobile units slashing repeatedly at Japanese communication lines, and seizing munitions supplies in lighning raids on many localities.

One attack was said to have forced Japanese to retreat from Tungtai in Central Kiangsu.

Hunt Surveyor

SHERRIDON, Man., July 14. — (CP) Search parties hunted today for W. T. Thompson, 75-year-old Manitoba Government Land Surveyor, missing since Friday when he left Sherridon with two helpers to survey quartz mineral claims west of Cold Lake.

Maynard Johnson and James Dewar of Cold Lake searched the vicinity for several hours when Thompson failed to meet them at a portage after they had separated crossing the lake. They returned to give the alarm Saturday.

Indians, Fisherman and Trappers joined in a search of portages and trails through the heavy bush country along the shores of the lake.

Exam Marks Too Much Emphasized

Ultimate Objective Of Education Feared Obscured

HALIFAX, July 15 (CP).—Delegates to the Canadian National Federation of Home and School Associations pondered over the suggestion today that examination marks were emphasized too much in the light of present day educational objectives.

In his presidential address Dr. G. W. Kerby of Calgary yesterday said emphasis placed on examination marks tended to obscure the ultimate objectives of education. Striving for high marks might lead to overwork and discouragement, he said.

Dr. Kerby set forth unemployment and the increasing perplexity of civilization as threats to modern youth.

"The whole question of vast wealth in the presence of wide and woeful poverty is one of the pressing problems of the age. It is our greatest tragedy.

"In Lunenburg's new book (America's 60 families by Ferdinand Nundburg) we read of $12,000 spent by a rich man in America for a marble bathtub with gold-plated fixtures, while more than half of farm homes of America have no bathtubs; a family spending $250,000 on a coming-out party for a daughter, in a hotel near the national capital, while 250,000 girls across America cannot find enough to keep themselves decent; every delivery of a baby in a doctor's hospital in New York city costing $10,000 while across America a million prospective mothers shiver with cold—and almost hope their babies will be stillborn; like Lady Astor's comment about an internationally known love affair, 'that's no romance, that's tragedy!'" Dr. Kerby said.

Hughes Catches Up Sleeps 14 Hours

NEW YORK, July 15 (A.P.). — Howard Hughes, the world's new symbol for speed, caught up with sleep to-day.

The flier, greatly fatigued after his world flight, slept 14 hours last night. He retired to his room in the Hotel Drake, Park Avenue, at 7.15 p.m., and kept to his bed until after 9 a.m. to-day.

Before he breakfasted, Hughes ordered all the available newspapers and informed the hotel management he would accept telephone calls after 11 a.m.

The management disclosed that Hughes came here two months ago in preparation for the flight and spent most of his time making telephone calls to various parts of the world, and writing letters.

He spends hours reading aviation magazines.

Hot Weather Turtle

PHILADELPHIA, July 15 (AP)—A newly-arrived turtle at the zoo doesn't need to worry about the heat — he has a weather-conditioning system all his own. The turtle is equipped with a long slender tube, like a soda straw, on the end of his snout. He can lay in a cool pool indefinitely, with his breathing tube protruding above the water like a periscope.

Hughes Round World As Motorist Races To Cross Continent

Richmond, Ind., July 15.

THOMAS Ambrose, Los Angeles motorist, lost his race today to reach New York ahead of Howard Hughes, globe-girdling aviator. Ambrose, who paused here briefly, said he was just outside Phoenix, Ariz., last Sunday when Hughes started his flight, and had been driving "500 and 600 miles a day" to get to New York first.

Storm Damage Very Light In This Area

Peterboro county's grain fields came through the severest electrical storm of the last four or five years Thursday afternoon with heads up and so little damage that it was negligible.

Reports to the Examiner from the area north of Buckhorn and Burleigh Falls to Rice Lake and westerly into Cavan all brought the same story that the bountiful crops fast ripening throughout the district were still smiling in the late afternoon sun.

Down through Otonabee, along the Crowley line and the Keene road, over to Bensfort and through South Monaghan, up the highway to Peterboro, the fields of wheat, oats and barley had escaped lodging. There were a few tangled patches here and there, but they may have been down before the storm came. Immediately south of Springville on the west side of the Peterboro-Port Hope highway the Examiner saw the only field in twenty miles that had been tossed about.

Orme Ball, out at Vince Whittington's service station, added news from the Cavan section that nothing serious had occurred in that section. Charlie Westlake, managing director of the Peterboro Exhibition, who had spent the afternoon in visiting fields entered in the junior field crop competition, contributed the same cheerful information.

Cliff Hancock told the Examiner last night he had been up in the Buckhorn-Burleigh Falls country, and on his way home about seven o'clock he saw no signs of lodging of grain, and his own crops looked just as upstanding as they did Wednesday afternoon when an Examiner photographer took a picture of them in all their fullness and glory. An elm tree riven by lightning down in Otonabee was the only sign of destruction in a twenty mile drive.

On the credit side of the storm was a heavy rain that will keep the pastures green, and do vast good to the root crops, corn and buckwheat that are making splendid headway. In fact the corn fields everywhere are making rapid growth, and at the present rate are just as promising as the grains.

Thursday's electrical disturbance was preceded by dark clouds that reduced visibility everywhere, especially in the city where stores and factories had to turn on their lights at mid-afternoon. Following the outriding clouds, the rain was accompanied by lightning and thun-

Fugitive Is Captured In Lindsay

Arnold Cameron Spent Two Days In Jackson Park

(Cameron sentenced to six months in Ontario Reformatory, see page nine.)

Arnold Cameron who escaped from the police station on Tuesday morning as he was being locked in the cells was back in the cell block here last night following his arrest earlier in the evening at Lindsay.

News of his being caught by the Lindsay police came after a day in which the local and provincial police had searched over many miles of country west and south of Jackson Park and at a time when the hunt was being extended to include McCracken's Landing where Cameron had worked for some time recently and where he had left his clothes.

Five minutes after 8 p.m. the telephone in the police station rang and when Constable John Rogers answered the call the voice that came over the line was that of Chief Constable Lawler of Lindsay.

"Are you looking for a man named Arnold Cameron," asked the Lindsay chief.

"We certainly are," replied Rogers.

"Well you had better come up and get him," replied the Lindsay man.

A Sorry Sight

A few minutes later Detective Sergeant W. E. Meagher and Sergeant John Thompson were on their way to Lindsay and before 10 o'clock Cameron was back in the local police station, safely locked up. He was a sorry sight when he arrived. He had exchanged the natty sweater he wore when he escaped for an old blue one, torn at the shoulders, his clothes were wet and muddy and he limped badly as the result of an injury to his ankles when he jumped out of a Simcoe street apartment to elude the police on Tuesday morning.

Earlier in the day a young girl, Doris Fredenburgh, had ben arrested by the police on a charge of having assisted Cameron and she was in the women's cell at the station when the fugitive was brought in.

From the story she told and from statement made by Cameron himself it is possible to get some line on the adventures of the Sunderland youth after he had disappeared in the Twelfth of July crowd on Charlott street on Tuesday morning. Apparently he made Jackson Park his hideout. He slept there, hidden in the bushes on Tuesday and Wednesday nights and got into communication with the girl arrested, yesterday, calling twice at her home on Brock street during the night. He secured from her a boy's cap she had been wearing on the Twelfth and it is alleged she supplied him with food at Jackson Park Wednesday night.

When the man hunt started yesterday morning it was reported that Cameron had been seen in company with the girl and later in the morning police saw the fugitive's companion come out of a clump of wood near Jackson Park. They did not arrest her at the time but when she was seen again in the same vicinity in the afternoon she was

$3,250,000 Of Horlick Fortune Left Bull

TORONTO, July 15 (C.P.).—The Daily Star to-day quoted W. Perkins Bull of Toronto as saying he has been left a $250,000 legacy by Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley and a one-third share of her estate, valued at $9,000,000.

Mrs. Sidley, Horlick Malted Milk heiress, died two weeks ago at Bull's Toronto home where she had been a guest for a year. A post-mortem requested by members of her family revealed death was the result of natural causes.

The Sidley will, not yet entered for probate at Racine, Wis., where members of the family live, was drawn up in Toronto in April.

Bull, speaking to The Star by telephone from Montreal, said he did not know what his share of the residue would amount to. He said he was in Montreal to see his son Thomas off to England.

Ontario Jerseys, Angus' Win In West

CALGARY, July 15—(CP)—Alberta and Ontario breeders split grand championships prizes in Aberdeen Angus and Jersey classes on the last day of cattle judging at the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Stock Show yesterday.

Edwards Bros. of Watford, Ont., had a slight edge over the Canadian Pacific Railway Coaldale, Alta., farm in the Angus classes.

With Bandolier of Ancka they carried off the grand championship bull ribbon and with Ebonessa of Don Head they took the female grand championship. The C. P. R.'s herd took reserve championships in both classes.

In the Jersey class J. W. Innes, Woodstock, Ont., took the grand championship bull ribbon with Fairmont Designer Masterstroke.

Seven-Foot Lily

Highlight in the flower garden of John Smith, president of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, at his home at 150 Benson Avenue, is a magnificent display of lilies. They are being visited these days by crowds of people who pay a small fee to help the work of the society. Some idea of the height of one type of lily, the Princeps, may be gained from this picture. Five-year-old Ian Smith, son of the society's president, had to stand on a step ladder in order to get close enough to the blooms to smell them. They tower as high as seven feet.

"Never Again" Says Hughes Telling Of Close Calls

Broadway Gives Five Flying Heroes Greatest Welcome In Decade

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP).—Howard Hughes and his four globe-circling companions rode triumphantly up Lower Broadway today, from the Battery to the City Hall, in the most tumultuous heroes' parades New York has held in a decade.

It was like a throwback to the days when Lindbergh first flew the Atlantic, Ederle conquered the English Channel, Byrd flew across the North Pole, and the canyons of the financial district echoed with cries of greeting to the intrepid airmen.

For 17 minutes—the time it took the procession of cars to reach City Hall—downtown New York screamed its praise for the multi-millionaire Texas sportsman and his mates and showered the men with ticker tape, tore up and emptied from the windows of the world's greatest skyscrapers telephone books, old stationery, letters, newspapers.

Clerks, stenographers, business men, brokers and bankers, thrilled by Hughes' feat of girdling the globe in three days, 19 hours and eight minutes, grew sentimental and delirious.

Five years ago to-day, some of them might have remembered, the town was in something of the same state of mind as Wiley Post's Winnie Mae roared down to a landing at Floyd Bennett Field to hang up a record of seven days, 18 hours and 49 minutes which stood until Hughes broke it yesterday.

Police estimated there were approximately 75,000 persons along Broadway and Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine himself said there were probably 35,000 or 40,000 around the city hall.

Restaurants, crowded during the lunch hour, emptied. Men and women sat on ledges of buildings high above the procession. The storm of ticket tape, fluttering downward in long spirals, the shredded paper, the fluttering flags and banners, and the constant roar of voices seemed to bewilder the fliers at first.

Hughes brought his monoplane over Floyd Bennett Field at 2:34:10 p.m., E.D.T., yesterday, three days, 19 hours, 8 minutes and 10 seconds from the time he left that airport last Sunda yevening at 7.26 p.m.

Once Enough For Hughes.

Hughes, gaunt and bearded, shrugged wearily as he stepped from the plane, and said: "Never again."

He was able at last to slip away to a Park Avenue hotel. He walked unaccompanied into the lobby, a pair of old sweaters over his arm,

5 Luxury Liners For C.P.R. Is Beatty's Plan

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 15 (CP Cable)—Sir Edward Beatty, Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, Ltd., announced on his arrival here yesterday that if world conditions remain favorable the C.P.R. will order five new luxury liners from British shipyards during the next three years at a cost of £11,000,000 ($55,000,000).

Sir Edward, who arrived on the liner Empress of Britain for a ten-day visit, said he hopes while here to place a contract for two vessels of 25,000 tons and 23 knots for the Canadian-Australian service.

"I think next year we shall, provided world conditions remain favorable, place orders for two new large luxury liners for our Pacific service to replace the Empress of Russia and the Empress of Asia, which were built in 1913," said Sir Edward.

"Later, in 1940, we shall probably build a sister ship to the Empress of Britain, which proved to be so suitable and so successful on the Atlantic. The new Empress would be quite as big and probably rather faster than the present Empress of Britain."

West's Wheat Heaviest In 10 Years

350,000,000-Bushel Crop Predicted By Some Experts

WINNIPEG, July 15.— (CP). — With general harvesting only a month away, approximately 10 days later than last year, present conditions give promise to the heaviest Canadian wheat crop in 10 years and the best financial returns to farmers since 1929.

Growing conditions have been ideal for the most part, only a few scattered areas in the three prairie provinces reporting immediate need of rain. Moisture stands at 94 per cent of normal to-day against 64 per cent on the same date a year ago. Manitoba is 80, Saskatchewan 94 and Alberta 96 per cent of normal.

Should present favorable conditions continue until harvest, it is estimated production will exceed the 10-year average of 311,000,000 bushels. Estimates of some grain men go as high as 350,000,000 bushels. Canadian wheat production last year was only 182,505,000 bushels.

Permanent damage to wheat is placed by statisticians at only 13 per cent compared with 60 per cent for the same period last year. Drought and grasshoppers have been mainly responsible. Wheat is 77 per cent headed, the same percentage as at this time last year. Average height is 25 inches against 14 inches last year.

Rust Damage Low.

Rust has appeared at 31 observers' stations in Manitoba, only three reporting the infection as serious. In Saskatchewan rust is present at 30 points with only one reporting serious infection. No reports of rust have come from Alberta.

Value of last year's short western wheat crop was placed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at $157,000,000 when price of No. 1 Northern averaged $1.36 a bushel.

First rush of new wheat this year will go direct overseas and not into terminal elevators at the lakehead as in previous years when there was a heavy surplus of wheat from the previous season to draw on. Indications art the carryover when the new crop starts to move will be approximately 22,000,000 bushels.

C.C.A. Reunion Head Tosses Farr Out

TORONTO, July 15—(CP)—Major T. M. Medland, General Manager of the Canadian Corps Reunion, yesterday ejected Joseph C. Farr, National organizer of the National Unity Party of Canada, from his office.

Farr had called on Major Medland in company with James Duncan of Toronto, a member of the Canadian Corps. Duncan remained for a few minutes in the office after Farr was put out, then left quietly.

Major Medland said later: "This chap came into my office. I had never seen him before. He was in a temper and had a newspaper in his hand and referred to a statement I had made with reference to the Canadian Corps Association's stand on subversive 'isms.' I found it necessary to eject him."

Major Medland said he was charged with "a desire to organize a Fascist group in Ontario, which is of course a ridiculous statement."

Farr later declared he had "merely said that if it was true that he had been connected with the movement, we would let the fellows in the Corps know about it."

Ontario Orders All Experts After Cutworms

TORONTO, July 15 (CP).—Aided by the resources of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, Ontario farmers of five widely separated fronts today fought to halt the invasion of insect enemies that already have caused thousands of dollars damage to crops.

From Pendleton, 40 miles east of Ottawa, where grasshoppers have ravaged fields and left many farmers destitute, the plague spread to Huron, Bruce and Perth Counties in Western Ontario, where cutworms have caused widespread destruction.

Cutworms, in the most serious epidemic since 1914, have also attacked crops in South Wentworth County, Ontario, Durham and in the Toronto vicinity.

Hon. P. M. Dewan, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, said at Toronto last night that because the worms are attacking the spring seeding, something hitherto unknown in Ontario, grain crops this year may be seriously imperilled unless some more effective remedy for the situation than is at present available can be found immediately.

Real Fight On.

Officials said that spread of the plague has increased during the past week to such proportions that every available expert employed by the Department is now engaged in combatting the menace.

Mr. Dewan said the poison remedy of bran, molasses and paris green, used effectively in the 1914 epidemic is producing few satisfactory results because of the difficulty in forcing the mixture down into the roots of the seeding.

Ferdinand Larose of Plantagenet, agricultural representative for Prescott and Russell Counties, said the loss in that section was in the region of $40,000 or $50,000, "but it is hard to estimate, as the grasshoppers are still eating and are spreading."

At Pembroke, north of Ottawa, thousands of army worms are destroying crops on more than 1,000 acres of farm lands.

Nearly 150,000 motorcycles were made in Germany in the last year.

1,000 Planes Ordered Off Nuffield

Purchase Of Fighters Comes At Start On 15 Million Plant

BIRMINGHAM, July 15 (AP) — Sir Kingsley Wood, secretary for air, today ordered from Viscount Nuffield 1,000 Spitfire fighting planes.

This was the government's first order of aircraft from the motor magnate who was estranged from Sir Kingsley's predecessor, Viscount Swinton.

Announcement of the order was made as the minister turned the first spadeful of earth at the site of Lord Nuffield's £3,000,000 ($15,000,000) mass production aircraft plant to be built here.

Relations between Lord Nuffield and Lord Swinton were broken off in September, 1936, when the manufacturer declared the minister had refused his offer to produce an airplane engine for the government's gigantic rearmament program.

The Spitfire is the fastest plane used by the Royal Air Force, with a speed of nearly 350 miles an hour. It is a low wing all-metal monoplane equippd with a Rolls-Royce 1,050 horsepower engine.

The new plant will employ more than 12,000 men. Lord Nuffield refused to take a personal salary for his services in connection with the order.

Lord Nuffield, who has given away millions of pounds, is a chain cigarette smoker. Last night at a banquet at which his gift of £50,000 ($250,000) to the Boy Scouts was announced, the toastmaster had to tap him on the shoulder as he was about to light up to remind him of the traditional custom not to smoke until the toast to the King has been given.

Jealous, Slays Girl, Flunks On Suicide

PITTSBURG, July 15—(AP). — Tony Varacalli, 25, walked into the Pitcairn police station early to-day, flung a blood-stained hunting knife on a desk and blurted out, Patrolman E. L. Locke said: "I killed my girl with this knife."

A police cruiser car, guided by Varacalli, sped to a country lane in Versailes Township and found in Varacalli's automobile the body of Caroline Bacco, 21, dead of stab wounds.

Detective Frank Ritz said the girl's head lay on a blood-stained pillow and at her throat was pinned a gay green artificial flower with a blood-red centre.

Varacalli related, the detective said, he killed the girl with the hunting knife he bought 10 days ago because he was jealous. Ritz said Varacalli told him he had intended to kill himself, but lost his nerve.

Stampede Street - Flapjacks Keep Calgarians Happy

CALGARY, July 15—(CP)—They cook flapjacks on the street here. And, are they good? Ask some of the "tenderfeet" attending their first rodeo—stampede to Calgary folks.

It is all a part of Calgary's most colorful Wild West Show which has brought world-wide visitors here this week.

"Come and get 'em or I'll throw 'em out," is the call of cowboy cooks on Calgary's downtown streets.

To the beat of tom-toms as Indian dancers display the dancing art of their fathers, round-up crews, driving chuck wagons—the four-horse covered wagon of the ranges—dash down the street, pull up at a central location and the "batter king"—the rangeland cook—starts his flapjack making on the street.

With a rusty iron stove on the back of the wagon, he starts to work while scores of spectators mill around the "chuck centre" waiting for the delicate brown cakes, garnished with sizzling strips of bacon.

Visiting housewives watch in wonder. "I wonder what recipe he uses," was the comment of one.

"Well marm," drawled a lanky flapjack tosser, flipping another cake for a bystander to catch, "we just natcherly throws together flour and sour milk and soda and sugar with a mite of salt and there you are—it's "a flapjack".

The heads contain from 50 to 64 kernels, thus this one seed has produced over 1,800 kernels.

Lewis Takes Hand in U.A.W. To Prevent It Crumbling

WASHINGTON, July 15 (A.P.)— John L. Lewis undertook today the job of keeping the United Auto Workers' Union from crumbling under a factional dispute.

The Union, one of the major units of the Committee for Industrial Organization, has been shaken for months by internal dissent and leadership rivalry. Lewis broke a long silence on the dispute yesterday to announce he was considering an appeal for his intervention.

The presidents of 13 U.A.W. locals in Michigan and Ohio had spent most of the day with the C.I.O. chief, urging him to step into the fight and assuring him the bulk of the membership would follow his leadership.

As he recounted the conference to newspapermen, Lewis avoided any direct comment on the situation.

He said the local presidents, who described themselves as "middle grounders" seeking peace, represented that the factional fight was a "quarrel among the paid officers rather than a difference among the half a million members."

The Union's factional troubles began after the General Motors sit-down strike in 1937, and reached a head a few weeks ago when Homer Martin, international union president, suspended and ordered an executive board trial for five high officers of the International Union. He charged them with bolting his "harmony program."

Close friends of Lewis said the suspensions did not find favor with the C.I.O. leader. The "middle grounders" now want them reinstated. Martin saw Lewis here two weeks ago, but said he had no intention to reinstate them.

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 15 (CP-Cable). — Lance-Corporal R. Greig, 24-year-old sharpshooter of the Winchester College officers training corps, today won the silver medal for leadership in the second stage of the King's Prize, the classic of the Empire meeting of the National Rifle Association.

In the second stage of the great match today only the 300 best scorers of Wednesday's first stage competed. The second stage cuts the entry further to 100 for the final tomorrow. When the 1st stage opened 1,041 marksmen and women were in the hunt for the Empire's greatest marksmanship award, the King's Prize of $1.250 in cash and the National Rifle Association's gold medal.

Five of the nine Canadians in the second stage qualified for tomorrow's final and a sixth has a good chance to enter through the tie-shoot.

Win Mackinnon Cup

The English team of 12 men compiled a total of 1,082 points out of a possible 1,200 at the long 900 and 1,000 yard ranges. Scotland and Rhodesia had 1,072, Canada 1,059, Wales 1,029, Ireland 1,018 and India 1,003.

It was the 19th English triumph in the Mackinnon since the match was inaugurate in 1891. The senior team trophy, the Rajah of Kolapore's Imperial Challenge Cup, was won by Canada yesterday.

The Mackinnon match followed the second stage of the classic King's Prize, in which five Canadians qualified for to-morrow's final, and a sixth still had a chance to enter through tie-shoots. Nine Canadians started the second stage of the King's. The Canadian leader, Sgt. L. S. Vaines of Montreal, scored 145, putting him only two points behind the second stage winner and silver medallist, 24-year-old Lance Corporal R. Greig of Winchester College. Rev. E. Stibbards of Edmonton yesterday described a plan of holding special meetings for church members to meet strangers, which he said had proved successful.

"The emphasis should be on a warm welcome, suitable music and a warm evangelical message," he said, suggesting a good way to obtain names of potential members was to offer 25 cents to the church members making the longest list of names in a given time.

"Another effective way is personal calls on strangers. Visiting is imperative. Let the deacons and the women's auxiliary help."

Chinese Turn War Tide At Kiukiang

Japs At Standstill After 2 Weeks Of Bitter Fighting

SHANGHAI, July 16.—(AP). — The tide of battle appeared to-day to be turning to favor the Chinese along the upper Yangtse river, after damaging attacks by Chinese warplanes.

Chinese announced that their airmen continually were raiding Japanese forces, both military and naval, below Kiukiang, which the Japanese have been unable to conquer in two weeks of bitter fighting.

Kiukiang is 135 miles from Hankow, seat of General Chiang Kai-Shek's government and the ultimate objective of the Japanese offensive.

For three days now the Japanese have made no marked advance, and Chinese insist their drive has been brought to a halt.

While there was no positive evidence to support the Chinese claims, it is fairly well established that the Chinese aerial force in recent days have damaged several Japanese craft. Some in damaged condition were seen being towed down river.

The Chinese high command in Hankow asserted 45 enemy war vessels had been sunk in the last two weeks, and 19 of the ships were reported towed to Shanghai for repairs.

Japanese put forth counter claims. In a twilight raid on Hankow yesterday, Japanese said they bombed 10 Chinese planes on the ground, seriousuy damaging all, and then shot down one plane which took to the air in combat.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, July 15.—The Board of Education met on Monday, with the following members present: Messrs. John Marks, chairman; W. Burgess, W. Bitten, Dr. H. G. Carleton, T. M. Lumsden, W. H. Giffen, M. W. Bailey, E. T. Buck and Mrs. E. P. Cuffe.

The School Management committee reported that Miss McGuire and Miss McQuade had been engaged to teach in the High School at $1,150 and $1,200 per annum respectively.

The Property committee reported that the roof on the High School was leaking and it appeared that a new roof would be necessary. They also reported that the eavetroughing and flashing on the Public school needed repairing. The fences at both schools were in bad condition and the halls in the Public school and two rooms in the High School needed decorating.

Moved by Messrs. Bailey and Carleton that the Property committee be authorized to put a new roof on the High school.

It was agreed that the minor repairs be made and that the decorating be left until this was done.

Dr. Carleton reported for the committee regarding the plumbing in the schools, and after discussion of the report the committee was asked to get further information and report to the board.

Moved by Messrs. Giffen and Lumsden, that the Finance committee be authorized to prepare estimates for 1938 and present them to the village council.

Accounts were presented and, passed for payment.

Discussion arose regarding the issuing of a pomphet showing course of studies offered at Norwood High school. This was left in the hands of the school management committee.

Urge New Patent Law To Protect Inventors

OTTAWA, July 15 (CP).—Revision of the patent law may be necessary in order to get it back to the original idea of protecting inventors, George H. Sedgewick, chairman of the tariff board, suggested today as the investigation of the radio industry continued.

The patent situation, he said, now operated to permit corporations of means to exploit inventions rather than to assist and encourage poor persons who might make inventions.

The suggestion came after the board heard a review of the structure of Thermionics, Limited, a concern holding all Canadian patents in radio tubes. Yesterday there was a similar review of the structure of Canadian Radio Patents Limited which holds many Canadian patents in radio receiving sets.

Chairman Sedgewick refused to agree to a request from Hon. W. D. Herridge, representing Philco Radio Products, that the hearing be adjourned until autumn to enable that company to prepare an attack on the present radio price structure.

He said the hearing had been advertised since last January and the Philco Company had ample time to prepare any submissions. If another hearing was necessary it would be held but not simply becuse the Philco Company was not prepared.

Say Radio Tube Life Cut To Boost Sales

OTTAWA, July 15.—(CP).—The tariff board, with a mass of information gathered at a three-day public hearing before it, will continue its investigation of the radio industry throughout the summer with the assistance of auditors and an examination of finances and operating methods of different companies in the industry.

The public hearing ended yesterday as complaints against the industry were made by a reperesentative of organized labor and a Calgary dealer and serviceman.

The labor situation was raised by C. S. Jackson, International vice-president of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America. He alleged wages were lower in Canada than in the United States and companies denied their workers the right to belong to unions of their choice and refused to bargain collectively.

D. L. Kepler, the Calgary radio dealer, claimed tubes manufactured in Canada were unsatisfactory and sold at excessive prices. He alleged he had been told by local representatives of manufacturers in Calgary to whom he complained that the life of radio tubes was being shortened in order to increase the sale of new tubes.

Buy U.S. Tubes 48 P.C. Less.

In order to give his customers service he had taken to importing tubes from the United States and in consequence was now being sued for $10,000 damages for infringement of patent. He found he could lay down the American tubes duty-paid in Calgary for 48 per cent. less than the price demanded for Canadian tubes.

The Canadian price to dealers on a particular tube was $2.23 and he bought the same tube in the United States for $1.17: The retail price of the tube was $3.35.

L. M. Price of the Radio Valve Compauy said it could be demonstrated that Canadian tubes were not inferior and in some cases were superior to American tubes.

Chairman George H. Sedgwick said radio manufacturers had offered no satisfactory explanation as to why prices or radios in Canada should be 30 to 70 per cent higher than in the United States.

Liquor Evil Hit At Roseneath W.M.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, July 15.— Urging that all women throw off the bonds of partyism in the cause of temperance, Mrs. M. L. Hinton of Castleton, temperance secretary in the Cobourg Presbyterial, threw out the challenge that they rise up in their might and destroy the traffic that is desecrating the youth of the land. Mrs. Hinton was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the W.M.S. on Thursday afternoon. The speaker dwelt at some length on the horrors left in the wake of the traffic, stressed the power of the ballot and stated it was the business of the women to bring in prohibition.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Hinton for her address.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Andrew Brown, with Miss Clara Payne as assistant hostess. Mrs. L. W. Scott, president, presided. During the opening exercises, Mrs. Scott was assisted by Mrs. R. Crego and Mrs. L. Turner. The theme of the meeting was "The Church and Temperance." During the minute and business period, Miss Ruby Blodgett, Mission Circle president, was appointed a delegate from the Circle to attend the summer school at Whitby, with a delegate from the W.M.S. to be appointed at the August meeting. The W.M.S. donate one half of the expenses of each of two delegates to the school.

Mrs. W. Smith offered her home for the August meeting. Mrs. A. Halstead and Mrs. A. J. Campbell were named a program committee.

The Circle members were present on invitation of the society, and President Miss Ruby Blodgett expresed the thanks of the members for the invitation. She announced also there were twenty members on the roll.

A short program was contributed by Mrs. L. Tucker who recited "The Land of Beginning Again"; Mrs. L. Turner, Mrs. C. W. Varcoe and Mrs. S. Trackeray, who sang "Gifts for Jesus, and Mrs. L. Turner read an article telling the story of the authorship of the "Old Rugged Cross," and a summary of the life and radio debut of Edward McHugh, the gospel singer.

Following the benediction, pronounced by the president, refreshments were served by the hostess.

Passing on Curves
THIS MUST STOP!
No man can see around a corner. Never drive on the wrong side of the road when you can't see what is coming—no matter what the circumstances. Furthermore, passing a car on a curve forces the other car to the edge of the road—possibly into the ditch with tragic results to the innocent driver. Such things must be stopped!

He Did Some Figuring

Kenneth Van Vliet of Detroit was married recently, and he and his bride drove away on a honeymoon trip. Together they had travelled 940 miles and were near Mattawa when the car struck a soft shoulder on the trans-Canada highway and then slid into the ditch. The machine, which was a new one, was badly wrecked.

Mr. Van Vliet made some inquiries and got a list of the parts which would be needed to repair his broken auto. The total was an impressive figure, but when he found it would be necessary to pay tariff and sales tax on the parts it seemed too impressive.

His solution was to call a truck from Detroit to take his wrecked car back to Detroit where he will have it repaired. According to his figures it will pay him to have things done that way.

We do not know how much damage was done to the visitor's car, but if it amounted to $200 worth of parts, then there would be a duty on them of 30 per cent., which would amount to $60, and a sales tax of 8 per cent., which would bring the amount to $76. It is said Mr. Van Vliet figured it out carefully and then decided to have a truck from Detroit make the 940-mile trip and take his car home.

Hog Prices Are Good

The price of hogs is quoted at $11.65 in Peterborough and that is the highest price paid since 1930. The only catch in the situation is that the price is good only for those farmers who happen to have some hogs ready for the market. A bacon hog is something which comes to its selling time at a definite point—about six months of age and not much over the 200-pound mark. A bacon hog is not something which can be held indefinitely waiting for the market to improve.

It is said the high price is due to increased exports to Britain and also to the fact that a number of farmers went out of breeding hogs a couple of years ago when the price of feed was too high. It is interesting to recall the statement made at that time by one well-known farmer with a number of years of careful experience behind him.

He contended that raising hogs was something which had to be done continuously. He said: "I do not think it is possible to go in and out on the business. One must be prepared to accept the high price with the low not only on the price of hogs but on the cost of feed. It is the average on the long run which counts, and I have found that hogs pay me a little better than anything on the farm. When the high price comes the breeder who has stayed in the business has something to sell and he has a chance to even up against the times when the market was low, but the man who dropped out because of low hog prices and high food costs cannot possibly get back in the market in time to catch it when it is up because I have never been able to tell when it is going up. There are only two courses open, one is to go in for breeding hogs and stay in, and the other is to stay out entirely. For my part I prefer to stay in."

The School Will Close

School Section No. 7 in the township of McGillivray in the northern part of Middlesex county had three pupils during the first part of the 1938 school year. They had all advanced to the entrance class and now it is announced that all have passed. Therefore there are no pupils in sight, so the teacher has found a school elsewhere and the key will remain turned in the door of S.S. No. 7.

There are no children in the school section who are ready to attend the place of learning, and if there are some later on they can be attended to by sending them to the nearby village of Ailsa Craig.

We learn that the school attendance there has been dwindling for some years. Time was when it was an average country school with some pupils in all the classes; when the three pupils left were all in the most advanced grade the figures told their own story; the school attendance was ready to graduate and none had come to fill the place at the lower grades. It is a clear case of rural depopulation and S.S. No. 7 in McGillivray is not the only place suffering from the same lamentable trouble.

This Is Better

Under the auspices of the Toronto police field day there have been a number of preliminary contests to find the winner of the beauty show business. Some of the Toronto papers have printed so many pictures of bathing suit girls that readers must have long since grown weary of them.

That of course has nothing to do with the contest. The finals of the preliminary went to Miss Etta Konyar, who is 18 years old. She was born in Hungary and came to Canada as a child. She recently completed a course in designing and dressmaking at the Central technical school. She had designed and made the dress in which she appeared at the contest, and we read that she uses virtually no cosmetics at all.

Now that makes about the best news from the beauty contest ring we have heard for some time. There might possibly be some point in such affairs if the rules were changed to read that all those who took part must design and make their own dresses.

Getting a Drink

Some sections of the city of Detroit report trouble enough with cases arising from the charge that drink has been served to minors. The defence of the person who sells is generally the same—the customer looked to be of age, or he said he was of age. Nor is Detroit the only place with such a problem.

The new plan in Detroit is that the youth must bear with him an official card on which it is stated that he is 21 years of age. Without the card he cannot buy a drink in a licensed place, and if it is found he has transferred his card then he loses it.

On the face of it the plan looks all right, but the weakness in it is that the tendency to take a chance and make a sale is great enough to allow a good many young fellows not yet 21 to secure all they desire. It has been found too that efforts to keep some of these youths from having access to drinking places stiffens their determination to secure what they want elsewhere. If they possessed equal determination in other and better directions the chances are they might amount to something.

Another Step Ahead

Mr. Harry Smith of Etobicoke is 85 years of age, but he has been working on an invention which he believes can be attached to a binder for the purpose of carrying along sheaves and then setting them up in stooks. (To the city reader a stook is that little pile of sheaves which are set up after the binder passes.) Mr. Smith is sure enough that under the present system the farmer loses some of his grain through hand stooking because the short stems which have not been firmly tied are apt to come loose, and besides that he says he can with his new attachment liberate a couple of men for other work during harvest.

Mr. Smith's attachment may or may not be an immediate success, but it is something which will eventually be made workable. When it is the work of harvest will be simplified. It will then be a long cry from the days when grain was cut with a cradle, bound by hand and then threshed out on the barn floor with a flail.

Can't Expose Suspenders!

Louis F. Edwards is mayor of Long Beach, L.I., and there is a board walk there. People parade and the Mayor has caused an order to be made that men cannot walk along there with their suspenders showing. Louis has been caught up in the drift of that craze which judges all things by their looks. So a man in his bailiwick will have to put on his jacket to cover his suspenders or wind a belt around his middle to hold his trousers in place. Shucks!

We noticed visiting members of the Orange Order parading in this city the other day. It was warm work and many of the men had shed their jackets. Some wore belts but more of them were depending on suspenders. It seemed that those with suspenders stepped out with a bit more assurance than those with the belts. Their wind seemed to come easier than the belted men, and they never had to do any hitching.

We quite well understand the argument in favor of belts. It seems to improve the scenery; it is something like taking the telephone poles off a nice street and putting the wire underground, but those who have power to make rules and regulations should not force a man to wear a belt who feels a greater degree of comfort and security when rigged out with a set of suspenders. It must be remembered too that the people who make suspenders have turned rather artistic in recent times. Suspenders do not look today like a set of rope harness; they lend themselves to ensemble effects; they appeal so deeply to a man's taste of something which is quite elegant that he no longer hesitates to romp about in the open exposing his suspenders. And if the people who parade at Long Beach, L.I., wear costumes such as are common in summer in the vacation world it may be that a man considers the wearing of suspenders the one sure way of indicating that he is a man.

Impounding a Car

When the new law came into effect on the seventh of June by which the cars of drunken drivers were impounded for a period of three months magistrates began operating on the new basis. Not that they had to attend to the impounding, because that is mandatory.

The one point on which there is not a general understanding is the impounding of a car which at the time of the offence was not being driven by the owner of the car and probably not by his consent or instruction.

If the car belongs to a member of the family then that point was plainly covered in the legislation in the wording registered in the name of such person "provided such vehicle at such time was registered in the name of such person or in the name of the husband, wife, parent or dependent child." That wording covers a number of cases and probably most of them, but in a case where a person was driving the car of an individual in no way related to him the ruling should be made clearer. To clarify that section of the new law might be the means of heading off a number of appeals.

When he arrived he was informed that Ihren had left ten days ago to visit his brother Seth in Roseau, Minn. BOASTING

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Dan's father boasts a lot I know, on things he did long years ago, he swings an easy tongue; I hear about the yarns he'll spin, of how he used to race and swim, in days when he was young.

¶ Wee Angus often listens too, to tales of things he used to do, he thinks the yarns are fine; he says the stories that he'll tell, they always grow and seem to swell, get bigger every time.

¶ Dan's father says he used to pitch, put all the batters in the ditch, eight curves he used to throw, the fielders just sat in the shade, and not a run was ever made, when he put on a show.

¶ He tells of how he used to race, but always set too fast a pace, 'twas hard on all the rest; the chance of them who followed him, was never anything but slim, they'd topple at his best.

¶ The handling of a light canoe, was something else he used to do, his stroke was long and stout; when he dipped long the thing would leap, they feared he'd land it in a heap, he'd lift the thing clear out.

¶ I knew Dan's father years ago, and he was always fat and slow, I fear his yarns aren't true; but it's a fault that broadly runs, when fathers talk unto their sons—of things they used to do.

Theme Changed In Addresses

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

NO ONE WHO witnessed the parade at Stratford yesterday could find evidence that the Orange Association is losing ground in Ontario West, or at any rate the half-dozen counties from which these lodges came. The primary lodges seemed to be in good strength; there were many elaborate and apparently new banners, and uniformed lodges were impressive as to number and appearance. Fife and drum bands and other musical organizations were so numerous that bystanders heard a constant succession of tunes, including all the old familiar melodie associated with the "Twelfth."

It was not hard to determine the reason for the Order's continued vigor, as one watched the young people go by, not only in junior lodges but in the L. O. B. A. and Orange bodies. Clearly the Orange Association is replacing the gaps in its ranks by recruiting from the rising generation. Not that the veterans were lacking in number or marching courage. A member named Smiley, from Goderich, took part yesterday at the age of 92; Dave Cantelon of Clinton is 91, and all through the ranks were men who could boast of a half-century and upwards in the Order. The writer talked with a London Orangeman who has been 64 years a member, and who as a youth was on parade when Thomas Hacket was slain in Montreal on July 12, 1877.

It was adult members mainly, not the youngsters, who filled the seats in front of the speakers' stand in the park. They provided a worthy audience for any message the speakers might have—or be able to get across, for upon this occasion as on most others of the kind there was serious competition. It seems inevitable that all the bands from the procession should assemble in the vicinity of the speakers' stand, no matter how spacious the grounds, and proceed to give individual concerts, with all the drummers working their hardest. Nowadays amplifiers aid the orators, but one cannot but wonder if this recurrent handicap of joyful noise is not a deterrent to speakers who otherwise might be available. No one, we fancy, is likely to dispute the statement that far more prominent public men were heard at Orange gatherings years ago.

With rare exceptions, current events seem to have been avoided by speakers at Orange celebrations throughout the province yesterday. Leslie Saunders, organizer for Ontario West, speaking at Burk's Falls took a crack at Hon. Dr. Manion, as Cecil Armstrong of Toronto had done the day before in an interview; but mostly the range of topics comprised highly general matters. The county master of York said the Order was not interested in the party leadership. At Stratford, J. W. Carson of London called for united action to prevent encroachments, not in this case by the Church of Rome but by Communism and Fascism. Even bilingual and separate school issues received but casual treatment anywhere, so far as noted. The keynote of July 12 addresses seems to have been the preservation of British citizenship and co-operation with the Empire. That has always been a principle of the Orange Order, which may well play an important part in backing it up these days.

WIND STORMS AGAIN.

(Brantford Expositor)

THE storm over the week-end caused considerable damage in Elgin, Oxford and Norfolk Counties. In addition to the heavy rain the violent windstorm, which almost reached the proportions of a hurricane, added to the damage. In some cases barns were unroofed and houses damaged.

Undoubtedly these windstorms are becoming more frequent in the Province of Ontario, and the destruction they leave in their wake is a stern reminder that the only remedy is a generous policy of reforestation. In addition to whatever concerted efforts are made by the County Councils, in co-operation with the Provincial Government, every farmer should seek to plant trees on his own farm for protection. If this policy were carried out it is certain that in the years to come the trees would offer resistance to these violent windstorms that cause so much damage to property, and frequently loss of life.

GIRLS ON THE FARM.

(Baltimore Sun)

YOU DON'T have to go to the bathing beaches or the tennis courts to see the latest in feminine sports attire. I was riding along the other day in the upper reaches of Hartford county when in a field by the side of the road I observed a handsome young lady on the driver's seat of a hay rake in attire which would have done credit to the pages of a fashion magazine.

Being a mere man, I shall not attempt to describe what she wore. Suffice it to say that there were colorful shorts, a still more colorful kerchief about the head and some sort of harmonizing blouse. It was a very effective garb and what is more the young woman who set it off seemed to have quite a way with the team of horses attached to the rake. She drove them around in thoroughly competent fashion and seemed to be getting the hay in that particular field well in hand.

This apparition sheems to me to have social significance. Life on the farm has long been regarded as the apotheosis of drudgery for the feminine half of the agrarian population. One of the reasons I have always suspected was the absence of opportunity to wear attractive clothes about the farmhouse or in the fields. But here was a girl who overcame this handicap.

• Do Things "The Hard Way"

(By Harlow H. Curtice Commencement Address at Olivet College)

THERE ARE THOSE who voice a dolorous sympathy for you graduates. They see you today accepting a diploma from your college, and tomorrow setting foot into an economic world that has gone askew. They see that world as an idle, stagnant place. They see it barren of opportunity. They feel it holds no welcome for the young men and young women who come into it eager for advancements and seeking a chance to be of use.

I have no patience with that point of view. Nor do I sympathize with you. On the contrary I envy you, deeply and sincerely, as anyone must who even dimly see how great and how implacable are the needs of the world—needs which in future only its young men and young women can supply. And where need is—there will you find opportunity.

Has the world, then, no needs? In our own country, are all the old tasks finished, all the new ones begun? Is there no call for courage, for diligence, for understanding, for wisdom, for invention, for self-reliance, for leadership? Have we found the perfect solutions for all our problems—for unemployment, for justice as between all men, for unity among all our people? Has everyone everything he wants? Are there no better ways of making things, or of making better things, or of making more things for more people? You know better. In this sense, the times are far richer in opportunity than any we have ever known.

✣ ✣ ✣

YOU HAVE discovered that no matter how much you have learned, there are vast areas of undiscovered fact remaining for you to explore. And right there you have met one of the realities many others have yet to learn. Perhaps you remember the comment of Mark Twain concerning his father. "When I was a boy of fourteen," said Mark, "my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have him around. But when I got to be twenty-one, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years."

The clamor in recent years is altogether about the rights and liberties of citizens, less and less is heard about their responsibilities which alone make right and liberties possible. Vast numbers of citizens have delegated their moral and economic independence to others, and have accepted the role of a victim or a beneficiary. The whole process I am discussing has been aptly described as the most wholesale degradation of character and personality which the world has ever seen.

I am conscious as I speak to you now how little I can really give you either of advice or experience. The stern law of nature that everything to be of value must be earned, stands in the way. The struggle must be yours to make its triumph yours.

The world greatly needs what you can give. Do not think there is no place for you; there is. Do not make the mistake of thinking the job is finished; it is barely begun. The world is well-nigh desperate in its want of men and women who can do better what is already being done, and who can do nobly what is yet to come. And if you want a word of suggestion, let me say this. There is a current phrase often scornfully used nowadays called "Doing it the hard way."

✣ ✣ ✣

YES, WHETHER you teach or farm or clerk or mind a machine or run a surveying chain or sell goods or drive a ship or run a factory or go into politics: do it the hard way. Give more of yourself than your job has a right to expect. The more you give the more you will have in yourself to give. The more you have to give the greater the call for your services. The more you think the more you stretch your skull. The more you stretch your skull the bigger the thoughts you have room for. Whatever you do, give all of yourself to it—immerse yourself in it, surrender yourself to it, fuse yourself into it, lose yourself in it. Every moment in that process you are adding to the only capital that no one can take away. Think ahead of your job. Then nothing in the world can keep the job ahead from reaching out for you. I know this sounds old-fashioned. It is, but it has built the world.

• Pay For Wheat Of Silver Basis

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir,—Major-General J. A. Gunn of Beaverton has written a timely letter to the press protesting against the discriminatory freight rate on wheat between Ontario points and the seaboard as compared with the rate on Argentine and American corn. Equalization would add 8 cents per 100 pounds or 4.3 cents per bushel to the Ontario farmer's returns for his wheat.

The outlook is, however, that the price of wheat will still be far from affording the producer a fair return for labor and capital. Major-General Gunn points out that Ontario soft wheat has been ousted from British and other markets by Australian wheat, due largely to depreciated Australian currency. There are those who say that Canada should depreciate the gold value of her dollar to correspond with or exceed the depreciation of Australian courrency, but manifestly a currency depreciation race between Canada and Australia would be disastrous to both. Put any currency on the "gold revaluation" skid, and sooner or later it is bound to go over the precipice.

How would the price of Canadian wheat be affected if Canada, so long as the world's gold damentia continues, were to pay no attention to the value of the Canadian dollar in gold, but fix its value in solver to correspond with the silver content of the George VI Silver Dollar, namely, ¾ of an ounce of silver to the dollar?

The Canadian dollar is now being held worth about 1-33 of an ounce of gold, in line with the gold value of the U. S. dollar. A price of 70 cents per bushel for wheat means that a bushel of wheat trades on the world market for 1-50 of an ounce of gold, (70-100 or 1-35). Thus, since an ounce of gold trades for about 80 ounces of silver, a bushel of wheat would trade on the world market for about 1:3-5 ounces of silver, (1-50 multiplied by 80) or a little more than enough to make two good sound George VI Silver Dollars, (1:3-5 divided by ¾).

Canadian wheat, therefore, if trader for silver instead of gold, would bring about, three times the present price, and the producer could have his choice of payment either in George VI Silver Dollars or in paper money or bank credit convertible at will into George VI Silver Dollars. Does any one doubt that such dollars would be acceptable to the Canadian farmer, even though severely discounted by our gold infatuated neighbors?

• Seen In Streets Of Vienna

(By C. E. M. Joad, in Time and Tide, London)

A WEEK AGO I met one of those refugees from Vienna who stalk today, like mournful ghosts, through the clubs and drawing-rooms of London. He was a doctor, an exceptionally eminent doctor, who received a telephone message at his hospital, on the day after the Nazis entered Vienna, informing him that he was relieved of his post. For several weeks he made every effort to leave the city which had no further need of his services, but all his efforts were unsuccessful until a grateful patient, a member of the ——, assisted him to procure a forged passport, by means of which he succeeded in leaving the country. Before he left, all his possessions had been taken from him by the Nazis, and as members of his family are still in Vienna, his name cannot, for obvious reasons, be given. He described to me two scenes he had observed on the day he left, and I reproduce them here, since they convey more succinctly than I could hope to do by pages of disquisition the reasons which tempt me to embrace once, again the theological view that evil is innate in human being.

Along the Ringstrasse in Vienna walked or rather ran an elderly Jew, accompanied by four young Nazis. He had a long white beard, which had been parted down the middle, so that it fell in two waves on each side of his chin. To the points of the two waves there had been tied red ribbons, and to the ribbons there were attached cords, one of which was passed over each of his shoulders. The ends of the cords were held by two of the Nazis, who were driving the Jew down the street, making him prance by kicking him at carefully regulated intervals and in carefully chosen parts of his person.

In the Prater of Vienna young wives are in the habit of walking in the afternoon the mothers wheeling their babies in prams. A group of young Nazis, provided with handkerchiefs, discloths, and towels which had previously been wetted and knotted, were busily hunting out those of the mothers who were Jewish, and pursuing them, beating them about the head and back with knotted cloths. Presently, the mothers would begin to run faster and faster under the hail of blows, the prams would overturn and the babies be sent sprawling.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

(From the Authorized Version)

AND NOW, ISRAEL, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of the Lord, and his statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good? . . .

For this commandment which I command thee this day, it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off. . . . But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.

See, I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil; in that I command thee this day to love the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments and his statutes and his judgments, that thou mayest live and multiply: and the Lord thy God shall bless thee in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

But if thine heart turn away, so that thou wilt not hear, but shalt be drawn away, and worship other gods, and serve them; I denounce unto you this day, that ye shall surely perish, and that ye shall not prolong your days up on the land, whither thou passest over Jordon to go to possess it.

LOGICAL BUT—

(Los Angeles Times)

THAT THE majority of Americans believe the law of this country should forbid payment of ransom to a kidnapper—a suggestion frequently made—is indicated by the results of a recent poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion. Never theless, such a statute would be quite unenforceable and it is not wisdom to put unenforceable statutes on the books. If the payment of ransom could be prevented, kidnapping as a business would, of course, disappear. That is the logical conclusion which has led 66 per cent. of the voters polled to indorse the proposal. But would the payment of ransom be prevented? What American jury convict a parent for paying money in the hope of obtaining the return of a kidnapped child? What American prosecutor would waste his time bringing such a case to trial?

BIG MEN AFFABLE.

EXPERIENCE has taught most reporters that the "big names" are usually "big" men and will chat with the reporter in an offhand, informal way. The "big" men are assured of their dignity and do not have to make an effort to maintain it. They are accustomed to being interviewed and do not regard it as an event. They know, too, that the reporter has interviewed other celebrities and does not regard it as an event either.

12-Year-Old Boy Leaves Home Hikes To Hastings

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 15. — Wilbert Adams, 12, of 168 Eileen Avenue, Toronto, was a source of worry to Chief Wellman, village constable, for the past three days. He hitch-hiked from Toronto to Hastings last Saturday, arriving here late Sunday afternoon after being nearly two days on the road.

The boy was a likeable young chap and campers on the park took pity on him and gave him meals. Larry Logue, a Greenville, Pa., visitor here, gave him lodging in his trailer.

It was learned his parents were visiting in the Muskoka district and he had been left under the charge of neighbors in Toronto. He had left their charge, alone, and had decided to come to Hastings for a few days. He told Chief Wellman he liked this village, having been here July 1 last. The constable phoned Toronto police, but the parents could not be located.

Wednesday noon, the boy evidently sensed a move was being made to return him to Toronto, and he left the village. Police located him a mile west of here at the railroad bridge later that day. Wilbert was locked in a room at the constable's residence for safe keeping. He pleaded with the constable to go free and seemed determined not to go back to the city. The necessary papers arrived yesterday and the boy was taken to Toronto in care of the Children's Aid Society by Everett Brinklow.

Mrs. G. Tobin, Toronto, camping here, said she had given Wilbert meals. "He was nearly starving when he arrived. His stories were not all the same. He told me the reasons for leaving Toronto were because he did not like the people where he was staying and he had an appointment with a doctor he did not want to keep. Last night (Wednesday), he tried to go away on a yacht to Trenton," she told The Examiner.

Grasshopper Plague Hits Section Of Ontario

Millions of grasshoppers have laid waste more than 16 square miles of farmland surrounding Pendleton, Ont., northwest of Ottawa. The damage done by the hoppers is estimated at $40,000 and more than a dozen farmers have been left without any harvest or pasture for their cattle and horses. Leslie McAllister, one of the farmers hit by the grasshopper plague, is shown, TOP, exhibiting damage done to his oats. The foliage has been stripped from the stalks by the hoppers, who even attacked the heavy stalks. What was once a fine bed of lettuce is shown, BOTTOM, after the insects had completed their destructive work.

Crookston Barn Fire Blamed on Tramps

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, July 15. — Believed to have originated by passing transients seeking shelter for the night, fire totally destroyed a small barn on the property of Andrew Carson, Crookston farmer, early Wednesday morning.

A sudden veering of the wind to a favorable quarter saved nearby buildings from the flames, as neighbors attracted by the blaze fought strenuously to save the blazing barn.

Transients noticed passing along the railway tracks near the building on the day previous were believed to be the forerunners of the others who sought shelter in the building. The loss was covered by insurance.

A fire of undetermined origin was discovered in the laundry of The Huyck House but fortunately, it was extinguished before much damage resulted. The police are investigating as there is a suspicion that the fire was deliberately set by persons who have no connection with the hotel. However, the authorities refuse to divulge their findings until further information has been obtained.

A gang of gypsies which have been a disturbing element in the vicinity of Kaladar for the past two or three weeks, created some excitement for Keith Wilson, driver of Arber's bread truck. Proceeding to Northbrook, he was hailed by two middle-aged women on No. 41 highway, and when the vehicle was brought to a stop, they demanded to know how much money he had. Carrying pails and dressed in the brightest of raiment, the two clambored aboard, one on each side of the truck. Sensing trouble, Wilson opened one door which forced the one woman off and at the same time, he stepped on the gas with the second gypsy woman still clinging to the side. After travelling a few yards, he suddenly applied the brakes and his unwelcome passenger was pitched unceremoniously to the road. He then proceeded on to Northbrook where he was informed that the women had succeeded in mulching a considerable amount of money from residents of the district, under the pretense of "blessing it." A Kaladar man and another resident of Cloyne were said to have been victims of the hoax. Police have been advised of their operations, and they have been chased from the district.

Spread "Charm Oil" For 14-Foot Snake

MONTREAL, July 15—(CP). — While pondering over the suggestion they import a Hindu snake charmer, Montreal radio police to-day awaited results of a secret "charm" oil sprayed on the tracks of a 14-foot snake of six-inch girth reported seen previously by Joseph Leroux, night watchman of the Montreal Quarry Company.

Napoleon Cadieux, 63-year-old trapper and hunter from St. Columban, Que., descended into the rock pits of the quarry last night and spread the oil while trailing marks of the serpent Leroux claims he saw while leaving the east-end quarry on Monday morning.

"A few drops of this oil will bring that snake out if he is around," Cadieux said, as he traced the marks from a small pool at one end of a rock pit, across the crushed stone and up an incline to the second level at the west of the quarry.

"Yes, sir. That's a big snake all right, and it's got a scaly belly. You can see as he moved along that he scraped up dried mud and moved it forward . Those kids and women around here had better watch," the grizzled trapper cautioned.

In boasting of the powers of his oil Cadieux said:

"Why, I've caught muskrats, bear, beaver and lynx with this oil. One minute there's nothing around, and ten minutes later the animals are licking it up."

Dublin Cabless

DUBLIN, July 15—(CP-Havas).—This capital was without taxicabs today. Dublin's 300 owners and drivers declared a strike to air their grievances, prominent among which was a complaint that "drive yourself" cars available at £1 ($) a day were cuting into their business— c

Bombers For Britain To Be Flown Over

LONDON, July 15 — (CP-Havas) —Heavy bombers to be built in Canada for the Royal Air Force probably will fly to this country instead of being delivered by ocean freighters, the Daily Telegraph said today.

"While every use undoubtedly would be made of the designing staffs in existing Canadian factories," the newspaper said, "Aircraft which would first be manufactured by Canada for the Royal Air Force would probably be those types of long-range bombers which have been successfully evolved or are now in process of being evolved by the British aircraft industry.

"Such machines when not carrying bombs, and fully loaded with petrol, should be easily capable of flying the Atlantic, and could thus be put into service far more rapidly and perhaps more safely than if they were exported by sea."

House Ousts Woman Who Yells For Justice

LONDON, July 15—(AP). — A shouting woman dressed in black was carried out of the House of Commons gallery to-day after she broke into a tilt between Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Labor questioners over a loan to China.

Struggling and kicking, she was ejected by attendants while screaming, "We want British justice. Why don't you look after England?"

She also shouted something about Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union of Fascists which has been campaigning on a platform of "help English needy first."

Sir John told his questioners the government "in the present circumstances have not seen their way" to introduce special legislation to guarantee a proposed £20,000,000 ($100,000,000) loan to China.

He said the Chinese Government had made "various proposals" for obtaining the loan.

Geoffrey Mander, Opposition Liberal, asked if China's claim for aid was not as great as that of Turkey, to which Britain had agreed to lend £16,000,000 ($80,000,000) for commerce and armament.

Labor cries of "oh" greeted the Chancellor's explanation:

"There is this consideration which must not be overlooked. In the case of Turkey we were engaged in giving a loan to a country which is not engaged in hostilities."

28 RINKS COMPETE IN LADIES' OPEN BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Pigments Of Punch Profession Pronounced Brownship Hue

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 15.—Looking around the fistic horizon now, colors running from ebony to sepia seem to prevail. The heavyweight champion is Joe Louis. The light heavyweight title-holder is John Henry Lewis, and Armstrong holds two titles, feather and welter. The bantam-weight champion is sun-tan in colour, but he's a Puento Rican, or neutral.

JOE LOUIS
. . . rules the heavyweights

The white champions are Freddie Steele, of the middle-weights, and Lou Ambers (for the time being) of the lightweights. The flyweights at the moment have no champion, since Benny Lynch of Scotland, who held the title, came in overweight in his match with Jackie Juritch, and forfeited his crown and some cash.

Henry Big Test

The big test for Henry Armstrong will be against Lou Ambers August 10. Barney Ross showed his age pretty plainly after the fifth round against Hammering Hennery. But Ambers still has a lot of bounce in him, and that precious possession youth. Herkimer Lou is only 24 years old despite his six years in the ring, and he is one of the shiftiest lads in the ring. Lou can take a punch, or a bunch of them without undue agony, as he indicated against McLarnin. Ambers has plenty of heart along with his other qualities.

Armstrong came out of the Ross fight with a badly damaged left hand. X-ray examination showed no break, however, and proper treatment, such as Henry is sure to get, should mend the maulie. A cracked-up hand has decided many a ring battle, and unless Armstrong has two good dukes when he goes in there against Lou, he'll have plenty of trouble. Even if all in one piece, Henry is facing a tough assignment, much tougher than the Ross bout. Barney was big, but Ambers has the legs that Ross couldn't command.

Still and all, this corner is picking Henry to win again. He's a relentless little buzz-saw, and tough. Ambers has a fair punch, Hennery has shown plainly that he can take 'em, upstairs or down, and walk in for more. He will wear Lou down just as he wore Ross down, but it won't be so easy.

History in the Making

If Armstrong goes on to win the lightweight crown, his third championship, five of the fistic titles will be in possession of three Negroes. That is an unprecendented situation, as far back as this writer can remember. Indeed, it is hard to remember when more than two titles were held during the same period by colored men, despite the fact there have been great fighters of that race since the days of Peter Jackson.

HENRY ARMSTRONG
...He wears a double crown. Can he make it a triple?

JOHN HENRY LEWIS
. . . Master of the light-heavys

When Jack Johnson won the heavyweight title 30 years ago, Joe Gans was just winding up as lightweight champion, but the rulers of the other divisions were white men. Gans was knocked out by Battling Nelson in 1908. Later that year Johnson became recognized champion by knocking out Tommy Burns.

Joe Walcott was welterweight champion about the same time during the early years of the century when Joe Gans was supreme as a lightweight. Sam Langford, one of the best Negro fighters ever to step into a ring, never held a title. He was bad news. The champions didn't want him.

Mrs. Wm. Zeihr Pilots Rink To Win Trophy

The biscuits were soggy; the cream was sour;
The coffee was muddy and black.
The baby whined; the gas was low,
And Dad had a crick in his back.
Tom lost his cap; the last bell rang;
And the thunder how it rolled—
Things all gone wrong this whole day long—
'Cause Mother's gone to "bowl".

Despite a heavy downpour of rain that hit the city yesterday between 2 and 3 o'clock, the ladies' annual open tournament fo rthe J. J. Duffus Trophy, was played after a postponment of four hours. True the games were cut down to 8 ends each and all games were played after tea but at that the tournament was all over around eleven o'clock.

It just appeared that it had to be for Mrs. Zeihr, who is leaving the city to reside in Hamilton, and yesterday played her farewell games on the local greens, to lead her rink to win the J. J. Duffus Cup and first honors in this annual event. One would almost think that it was staged as a "farewell party". Mrs. Zeihr also won this same cup in the year 1936.

28 Rinks in

Twenty-eight rinks stayed over and like good sports braved the weather and helped the committee to put over this big event. Only two rinks went home and they could hardly be blamed, when one considers the condition of those greens at 3 p.m.

A strong wind came up and this combined with the sunshine soon dried up the greens and the tournament got under way about 6.30 p.m.

Prior to the beginning of the games the visiting ladies were entertained at tea by the ladies' social committee, and during that hour a pleasant event took place when Mrs. A. Hackman on behalf of the Peterborough Ladies' Club presented Mrs. W. Zeihr with an electric table lamp. Mrs. Zeihr, although taken by surprise, made a suitable reply.

In presenting the prizes, president K. Sloane and J. D. Fitzpatrick both ackenowledged the co-operation and suport to all visiting and local rinks.

The Winners

Mrs. H. Russell, Mrs. H. McIlmoyle, Mrs. J. Arnold, Mrs. W. Zeihr, skip, Peterborough, 1st—J. J. Duffus Cup and each a linen tablecloth.

Mrs. E. Ward, Mrs. Ebcobichon, Mrs. W. Jeffries, Mrs. J. Coursey, skip, Peterborough, 2nd—Each silver cream and sugar and tray.

BERKELEY, Calif., July 15 (AP)—Successful use of a laboratory-manufactured vitamin to restore fertility to creatures made sterile through absence of vitamin E was announced today by Dr. Herbert M. Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT SEEMS TO US that it is sometime since we did a squirrel act and went out on the limb. And we are half-way tempted to go out on the limb tonight and predict a Peterborough loss in the O. L. A. senior "B" fixture at nine o'clock here. On account of we think the Petes are going to get a great big surprise this e'en—and it won't be wrapped in Xmas paper with colored twine, either!—when they tangle in lacrosse with the East York gang. This Toronto team has acquired four ex-seniors of last year in the past three weeks and they haven't lost a game since. Took Mount Hamilton by a 22-2 score while the Pe tes only nosed out the Hamiltonians by a 10-6 count! So figure it out for yourselves. The locals have been lilting through their tussels lately but they may have to sing a sad song this p.m., although of course we hope we're wrong. It should pack in the fans and be a real fight. With a midget melee preceding it.

* * * * * * *

ONLY THE REAL rugby enthusiasts will be present tonight at at the Orfuns' booster banquet in the Empress Hotel at seven bells. We heard yesterday that some half a hundred are expected, the gents with tickets not working overtime to sell 'em. Anyone who wanted one was welcome and still is—they're available at the Empress—but it's just a meeting, after the feed, to elect officers and outline plans. Nothing too exciting yet, unless you are a dyed-in-the-wool grid follower who doesn't want to miss anything. The real excitement will come in a couple of months when our senior squad takes issue with Montreal, Toronto and Sarnia. Your support will be asked then, you and you and you of the city and the district. But tonight's affair should be an enjoyable one and everyone is welcome. No secrets at all.

Cream Of The Crop

THERE WAS AN open meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club last night in the Chamber of Commerce with about two dozen gents on deck. Just to elect officers. The following slate was put in: Prexy, Rollie Glover; vice-president, Jack Sullivan; executive committee, Gord Matthews, Ott Cranfield and Bert McLeod. And this is the complete list for the 1938-39 season: President, R. M. Glover, vice-president, J. E. Sullivan; recording secretary, James Dorris; active secretary, Cliff Cadd; treasurer, Alf Gratton; executive committee, Gordon Matthews, Bert McLeod and H. A. Cranfield; financial committee, secretary, treasurer, manager and an active player. The executive has the power to add to this number.

* * * * * * *

THIS IS A PRETTY swell executive if you ask us—and it still is whether you ask us or not! We were quite tickled when that slate of five, presented by the hard-working nominating committee, was voted in by acclamation. R. M. Glover is tops with us in any sport and has been everything in hockey from star player to O. H. A. life member. Jack Sullivan has always been a keen and clever officer in sports and is quite interested in hockey. We have worked for both these men, incidentally and can still boost 'em! Gord Matthews is returning as an active officer in sports after a lengthy layoff and has no superior in this man's town—absolutely none. Bert McLeod came here to play hockey and run a drug store and has been most successful in both; he is an ideal puck officer here. And Ott Cranfield has to turn down offices each year in sports, and is at present prexy of the Orfuns' senior rugby club—a first-rate sports officer, Yeah, they're good. And so is the rest of the executive.

Must Be The Weather

TIME THE MOTORISTS' men softballers got in there. They defaulted to Omemee a few nights ago and couldn't field a team last eve for their exhibition joust with a Southend Loop squad. Only six players were on hand for the Omemee trip, Fleming, Pat Calladine, Weir, Walsh, Montgomery and Smith. The rest didn't show up. The club has to play Westclox on Tuesday and these layoffs aren't going to help the team any, especially if they make the playoffs. We hear Manager Shorty Barrett cut his vacation in Toronto short to come down and look after the team's games this week—and there were no games. Better perk up and in a hurry, we'd say.

* * * * * * *

UP IN LINDSAY A DAY or two ago, the Toronto cops played a Scugog squad an exhibition men's softball scrap. Quite an interesting event which wound up in a 9-all embrace. Art and Harvey Jackson performed for the Lindsayites and two of the limbs of the law were Bud Murray and Art Lepper, ex-senior ballsters in Peterborough. Both turned in a sparkling performance, we are informed. In fact, the writer in that town says in one place: "Lepper's peg to third to stop Grills, who tried to stretch a double into a triple was a thing of beauty." Well, sir, did this guy Grills think he could steal anything in front of Constable Lepper? We have seen some of Art's fast ones whiz toward third, but usually when he was bending a wide hook in the general direction of the plate—lack of control in the box being his downfall in these here parts.

Vas You Dere, Max?

RINGSIDE SEATS AT THE Riverview A. C. fight show here Monday eve have been knocked down from 65c to half a slug and we'll bet fans will see a whale of a lot more fighting than some of those bleacherites who paid heavy sugar to see Max Schmeling get cuffed into the hospital and out of Hitler's affections by Joe Louis! Rush seats are 35c while ladies and kids can ramble in for a quarter. The mitt card includes eight boxing bouts, with three topnotch Toronto pugs on hand to battle local ring stars. Four final bouts are five-rounders. Harry Low is promoter, Art Hunter the matchmaker, and Bill Horrocks of the Peterborough A. C. will referee.

* * * * * * *

OF THE THREE MAIN events, we rather like the look of that clash between Joe Taman and Eddie Pratt. The latter is a Toronto featherweight and is good, while Joe is living here now but learned his boxing in Ottawa and Smiths Falls—he works like a buzz saw, no fooling. Dutch McIlmoyle always dishes up a redhot slugfest and Bill Potter of Toronto, 160-pounder, had better keep his mitts up or the sandman will get him. The final fray sees the classy Nick Orlando, local lightweight, trade blows with Russ Oliver, leading Toronto 132-pound fighter—and it ought to be a honey. There is also a grudge fight, Wright vs. Bowler, on the card, and several other right promising bouts. Fans can bank on seeing several nifty fights, at least, on this promising Riverview A. C. program.

E. gals are due to play softball in Keene tonight; Keene and Wesclox mix here Monday. . . . Ben Norris of Kawartha Golf Club had a score of 75 yesterday in the Ontario Open in Toronto, and is in the final round today. . . . Port Hope and Bowmanville lead the intermediate Lakeshore Ball Loop race now, with Newcastle in the cellar. . . . Those four ex-Marlboro senior lacrossers on the East York team, which plays here this p.m., are providing most of the squad's punch these days. . . . The Petes have no ball game tomorrow; Buffalo semi-pro team may be here next Sat'day. . . . Walter Smaill is still remembered here, but not missed too much!. . . . Young Petes play a double-header in Oshawa on the morrow with the leadership of the Lakeshore Junior Baseball League at stake. . . . Norwood Loses To Campbellford By 12-11 Score

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, July 15.—The Norwood ball team were losers to Campbellford in a close contested game played at the Fair Grounds on Thursday evening.

The game opened with Campbellford turning on the pressure and batting in four runs in the first inning. It appeared as though Campbellford would pile up a large count as they nearly repeated the count of the first innings, however, Norwood held them to three runs in the second.

At the start of the third, Bruce Scott replaced W. Webb in the pitcher's box and the tide of battle changed. Norwood holding Campbellford scoreless and adding one run for Norwood.

The remaining three innings were close with Campbellford changing their pitcher three times. The game ended with Campbellford leading 12 to 11. The teams:

Adding It Up

Rub Strikes In, Lefty!

Yes, strikes and victories are the ingredients Bob Feller, Indian pitcher, would like worked into his arm and muscles. Quite comfortable and smiling happily, he is seen in the Cleveland dressing room as Lefty Weisman, team trainer, works over him, keeping those valuable muscles, ligaments and sinews in good shape for the American League stretch drive, in which Clevelanders are hoping their favorites won't fold very suddenly in the middle, as has been their annual custom.

Kawartha Golfers Win In Port Hope

Just Nearly Dead

CHICAGO, July 15 (AP).—Ed Kersch has let his former buddies knew that he didnt die on the French battlefield at Soissons in 1918 despite all those shrapnel wounds. But he was 20 years in getting around to it. Kersch, a farmer near Seattle, Wash, showed up at the 29th annual reunion of the second division yesterday. He was listed as dead on the division roster because Irving Chayken of Hammond, Ind., who pulled him out of a shell hole, had heard ambulance surgeons pronounce Kersch fatally wounded.

In retirement since the death of his son, W. L. LOCAL HOCKEY CLUB ELECTS STRONG EXECUTIVE FOR 1938-39

Rollie Glover Goes Back As Club Prexy

Alderman R. M. Glover was returned by acclamation as president of the Peterborough Hockey Club for the 1938-39 season at an open meeting held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce. Meeting with no opposition, Rollie Glover, former star puckist, past president and life member of the O.H.A., and last year president of the local club, agreed to take the office again.

The nominating committee, appointed at the last meeting—after a few of the offices had been filled—brought in a strong slate of officers for the meeting to pass on, and the slate was elected by acclamation. It consisted of R. M. Glover for president, J. E. Sullivan as vice-president, and an executive committee of Gordon Matthews, Bert McLeod and H. A. Cranfield.

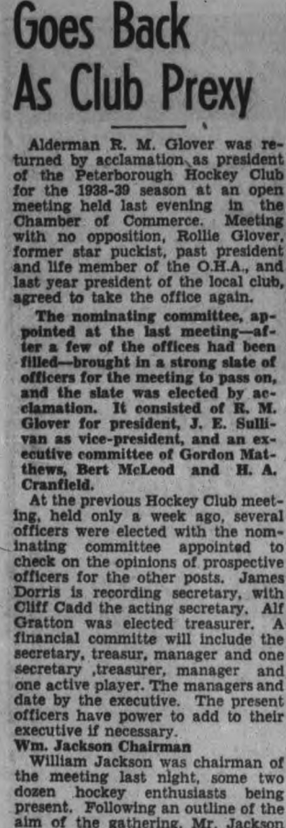
At the previous Hockey Club meeting, held only a week ago, several officers were elected with the nominating committee appointed to check on the opinions of prospective officers for the other posts. James Dorris is recording secretary, with Cliff Cadd the acting secretary. Alf Gratton was elected treasurer. A financial committe will include the secretary, treasur, manager and one secretary ,treasurer, manager and one active player. The managers and date by the executive. The present officers have power to add to their executive if necessary.

Wm. Jackson Chairman

William Jackson was chairman of the meeting last night, some two dozen hockey enthusiasts being present. Following an outline of the aim of the gathering, Mr. Jackson on behalf of the nominating committee—which included Wm. Jackson, Ken Kingston, Alf Gratton and Bun Kingdon—presented the prospective slate of officers. It was moved and seconded that these men be elected, and the motion carried, after it was explained that all these men had agreed to accept office and be active workers if elected. There was no dissenting voice.

Other matters pertaining to the Hockey Club were left in the hands of the incoming executive with the suggestion that this executive hold an early meeting in order to make plans for next winter. A general discussion was held and the nominating committee thanked for its work. Some talk of an artificial ice arena came up, with nothing definite being announced. An organization somewhat similar to the old P.A.A.A. here was mooted before the meeting adjourned.

Gene Gyrates



Gene Mako, American tennis star, caught in an ungraceful pose in mid-air during the Wimbledon tournaments. Gene puts results ahead of appearance, and with Don Budge won the doubles crown.

East York Here To Play Petes

An Ontario Lacrosse Association senior "B" scheduled fixture is billed for here tonight (Friday) at nine o'clock in the George St. arena between East York and the Petes. It will be preceded by a midget tilt at 8.15 between Lions and Rotarians of the local league. Another big crowd of Friday night lacrosse fans is expected on deck this evening, if the weather is right, to see these two senior squads tangle. The gutted-stick artists always turn in a lively battle and dish up plenty of good lacrosse. The Petes have returned to winning form after dropping one game and tying two, and they hope to repeat tonight. The East York gang will be battling all the way, also .

This East York crew is made up of a bunch of smart 1937 Toronto intermediates and seniors, a mixture of youth and veterans, and the Toronto team plays a rugged game all the way. They have been improving all season after a shaky start and may be quite tough to take tonight. The Petes hope to be at full strength again, with Shorty Reid back—though Westonfelt is liable to be laid up for this game. At anyrate, plenty of heated action is assured the fans in the senior squabble under the lights tonight.

C.G.E. Outfit Eliminated By Brinton Club

The first game in the Injured Players' Cup between the Canadian General and the Brinton Athletic resulted in the latter getting the verdict in the last minutes of the game when S. Clark and D. Evans scored two counters to shutout and eliminate the Electrics from the Trophy. Harry Adams, Brinton custodian, deserves credit for the win through his clever goaltending in the first period. George Downer was injured in the last minutes of the play, but not seriously.

C.G.E. Dominated Play.

Right from the kick-off, Ross, the C.G.E. outside right, sent a fast-rising shot over the bar. Jones transferred the play to the other end where his outside left shot wide. For the next ten minutes the Carpet Boys forced the issue, but wilted immediately on the completion of the seige, thereby permitting the Electrics to dominate the situation from every angle. Time and again Harry Adams, Brinton goalie, outguessed the Electric shooters. Ross placed the ball across the goalmouth to roll past at the other side. Earl, at centre-half, kept swinging the play from wing to wing, but his openings went abegging through the forwards carrying the ball too close to goal. The full backs checking and intercepting at the logical moment to keep their goal intact. Half-time—No scoring.

Two Goals in Two Minutes.

On resuming, Richardson, Brinton, took up inside berth, while Keith, C.G.E., broke into the limelight through his aggressive style of play on the wing. No less than four corner kicks fell in favor of the Electrics to find nothing resulting. Different styles of tactics were introduced in an endeavor to get results while the game ran from end to end. Ultimately the break went against the C.G.E. when Brinton were awarded a spot kick. G. Downer was entrusted with the kick, but the C.G.E. goalie saved a rocket drive. Earl sent his team-mates away to the Brinton area. Buchan and McMaster worked inside the defence to leave the latter in possession. Quick as a flash he picked the far post to find the upright saving a sure goal. On next visit, Buchan was again robbed of a great chance when full back kicked the ball off his toe. No matter what the losers tried, the opposite was the verdict. With five minutes to finish, G. Downer was injured and had to leave the field. Brinton, with ten men, settled down with a rearranged team that brought success. Their front line was completely changed around which resulted in N. Downer breaking away and leaving Clark, now at centre, open the scoring. All of a sudden, Brinton added another to their count when Evans headed across into the rigging. Brinton Athletic 2, Canadian General 0.

Goal-scorers—Clark and Evans.

Brinton — H. Adams, goal; J. McLeod and A. Downer, backs; Art Downer, N. Downer and E. Jones, halves; S. Clark, H. Castle, D. Evans G. Downer and E. Adkinson, forwards; sub., D. Richardson.

Canadian General — J. Bolton, goal; J. Mitchell and Stan Murduff, backs; W. MacKenzie, F. Earl and T. McPhate, halves; A. Ross, Alex. Mitchell, J. Buchan, Ben McMaster and W. Harris, forwards; subs., H. Keith and J. Goodhue.

Referee—T. Foster. Linesmen—J. McMaster and G. Lovett.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Are the Names

Mr. and Mrs. Perry out for a stroll while vacationing in sunny Bermuda. The Mr. Perry, of course, is England's former tennis great, still great (maybe better), only profiting from his ability to wield a racquet by playing as a pro. Mrs. Perry is the pretty Helen Vinson, that was of the motion picture world. Perry will arrive in Canada shortly to practise with the Canadian Davis Cup team.

Jersey City Has New Manager

TORONTO, July 15 — (CP). — The old cure-all for a losing team—a change of managers—found the veteran Hank DeBerry at the reins of the Jersey City Giants of the International League to-day as they strove to end a seven-game losing streak that has put them out of the running at least for the time being.

DeBerry, a scout for the parent New York Giants and a former catcher for Brooklyn Dodgers, replaced Travis (Stonewall) Jackson as manager of the club last night on orders from Horace Stoneham, president of the New York club.

The Jersey club has shown little in Jackson's season and a half in the driver's seat. It finished in the cellar last year ,and then seemed headed for a first division berth this season until the club hit a slump, climaxed by the current seven-game losing streak which has dropped them to fifth place, 7 ½games behind the fourth place Syracuse Chiefs.

DeBerry will have to drive the Giants at a terrific pace if he expects to crack the first division. Buffalo Bisons, Rochester Red Wings and Syracuse Chiefs, who trail the league-leading Newark Bears in that order, have been playing at a fast clip lately.

The Bisons downed the Bears 5-4 last night for their fifth in the last seven meetings between the clubs. The Red Wings and Chiefs each scored easy victories to remain close behind the Bisons. The Wings walloped Baltimore Orioles 9-3, and the Chiefs whipped Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2. The Jersey City-Montreal game was postponed because of rain.

BESTALL REWARDED

GRIMSBY, England — (CP). — This town's English Football League team has given J. Bestall, former inside-forward, a cheque for $1,250 in recognition of nearly 12 years' service with the team. Bestall now is coach of Birmingham.

Lefty Grove Is In Hospital With Bad Arm

NEW YORK, July 15.—(CP). — They had lean Lefty Grove in a hospital to-day with a "dead arm," and the rumor started the rounds that old Mose may not pitch any more this year.

Of course, there's no definite word yet that the greatest southpaw of his generation is on the shelf, and first reports from physicians indicated things may not be as bad as at first suspected. But when a pitching arm, particularly a 38-year old pitching arm, can't even hold a ball you can look for almost anything.

It would be the toughest kind of a break for Lefty, for Tom Yawkey, and for Boston Red Sox, if the ailing soupbone that sent the great Grove to the hospital yesterday should keep him on the sidelines.

Beat Tigers 12 to 1.

First of all, Grove, with his fast one gone, but his pitching brains working better than ever, seemed headed for one of the greatest campaigns in his 14-year career. Yesterday's 12-1 walloping the Sox handed Detroit Tigers was the portsider's 14th win of the season, even though Jackie Wilson had to finish. With the campaign just about half over, and Lefty showing no signs of letting up, it's reasonable to assume he might have won 28 games.

Then there's Tom Yawkey who tossed more than $3,000,000 into the Sox with never a whimper when they finished out of the money. With Lefty going like a house afire, the Sox have stayed within striking distance of the league lead. And the result has been such a marked pick-up in attendance that Tom figured to lay a penny or two aside on the year. But, without their one reliable elbower, the Sox should sink rapidly, and when that happens it usually follows that the turnstiles stop clicking.

It was positively weird the way it happened yesterday. There was Lefty going along great, tossing shutout ball. All of a sudden, in the fifth inning, his salary wing folded. There was no muscular reaction. He couldn't even grip the ball.

"I've never had such an experience before," he related afterward. Physicians hesitated to give an opinion until they completed long diagnosis and extensive X-ray examination.

Pirates Pull Ahead.

Collapse of Lefty's arm was the top development of a big league program that saw the Pittsburgh Pirates pull half-a-game in front of the Giants in the National League race, and the Yankees remain at the head of the American League flag chase.

The Pirates scored twice in the ninth on a wild pitch to tie, and then won out 3-2 in the 11th over the Dodgers. The Giants dropped a 1-0 decision to Cincinnati Reds, with a pair of errors producing the only run in their third straight defeat.

Shortly afterward Manager Bill Terry announced indefinite suspension, without pay, for his No. 1 catcher, Harry Danning, who has been ailing several days. Terry said it was for breaking training.

Tommy Henrich's homer sparked the Yanks to a 5-4 victory over St. Louis Browns in a game cut to seven innings by rain. There was no change in the standings, however, since Cleveland whipped Washington Senators 5-1.

Clay Bryant tossed a three-hitter and Bill Lee a five-hitter as the Cubs clouted the Phillies twice, 3-0 and 5-1. Boston Bees fired a 16-hit bombardment and trampled the Cardinals 10-5. Duncan Rigney's relief pitching enabled the White Sox to top the Athletics 9-8.

Keene Lasses Trim Toronto

In an exhibition, girls' softball game in Toronto on Wednesday night, Keene lasses defeated Danforth Aces by a 3-1 score. It was a fine fixture throughout with good pitching and fielding shown the fans. Keene opened the scoring in the fourth when Teddy Mills singled and went right home as the ball got by the right fielder. Rose Hatfield tied it up in the eighth on a home run to right but Keene won out in the ninth Dot Cocks singled an Marilyn McCarthy homered.

Bea McDowell started for Keene, allowing four hits in four innings, when she gave way to Marilyn McCarthy. The latter allowed two hits and five walks while fanning seven. In the eighth she allowed two walks and a hit, Manager Fletcher calling in Bea McDowell again, with the latter retiring the side. Ollie Martin started for the Aces, giving three hits and fanning three in her sojourn. Ela Small relelved her and gave up five hits while striking out three. Marilyn McCarthy shone defensively at second. The Keenesters were well received and had two invitations to play again in Toronto. They may play the aces at the local Bowl in the near future.

Hogs And Calves Advance But Lambs Ease

TORONTO, July 15.— (CP).— Cattle price movements on Toronto livestock market this week were irregular, the Dominion Livestock Branch reported. Calves advanced 25 to 50 cents cwt. with hogs up 40 cents. Lambs tended lower while sheep were steady.

The moderate supply of cattle included only 400 from the west, compared with 3,800 western cattle on the market in the corresponding week of 1937. With shipments overseas curtailed because of losses sustained by shippers, the market situation was cloudy at the opening.

Some strength was added, however, by reports of good prices received for Canadian cattle at Buffalo where a sharp advance was recorded. While trade was dull all week with around 600 head unsold, prices were only slightly lower on steers and heifers, losses ranging from 15 to 25 cents on inferior grades.

Butcher cows were off 25 to 50 cents cwt. while fed calves gained 25 cents under brisk demand. Bulls were firm on export buying.

Some good to choice weighty steers were taken for United States orders at $7.50 to $7.80. Overseas exporters paid $6.50 to $7.25 for 250 steers with others downward to $5. Good butcher steers and heifers traded at $6.50 to $6.75. Common butchers brought $4.50 to $5.50.

Butcher cows closed at $3 to $4.50 with canners mostly $2.50. Good butcher bulls moved at $4.35 to $4.75, one at $5. Bolognas were $4 to $4.25. Fed calves ranged from $7 to $9.25 cwt. with three head at $9.50.

Westerners Go Slowly.

The Western stockers offered were plain quality and were sold slowly at $4.25 to $5.25 ,with some held over. A few better kinds of feeders reached $5.50. Milkers and springers were slow sellers at around $60 for tested tops.

Calves moved ahead early and held the gains. Choice vealers were priced at $8 to $8.50, with bulk of calf sales between $6 and $8. A few comomn calves ranged down to $4 cwt.

Hogs advanced steadily to close at $12.25 off trucks for bacons. Sows were hard to sell at $7 off trucks for both grades, while stags were peddled at $3.50 to $4. Light feeding pigs sold at $4 to $6.50 each; with 70 to 80 pound feeders at $9 to $10 each.

The $12 cwt. price for lambs brought in a liberal supply with many rough lambs included. Monday's market was firm at $12 for good ewes and wethers, with culling light. Truck lambs dropped to $11.50 on Tuesday and the price was down to $11 on Wednesday, with bucks going at $2 cwt. discount. About 100 lambs offered on Thursday found no buyers. Sheep brought $2 to $4 cwt. and a few good yearlings made $6 to $7 cwt.

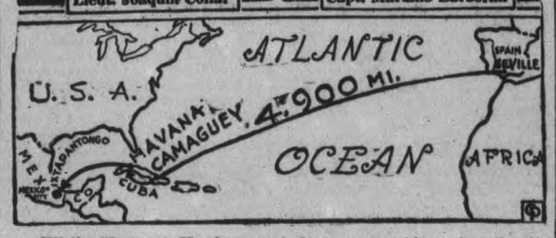
Bodies Atlantic Fliers Found



While Howard Hughes and four companions break all records on their flight around the world, the bodies of two Spanish aviators lost after a spectacular ocean crossing five years ago have been found in the interior of Mexico. An Indian prospecting in the vicinity of Ixtapantongo, state of Mexico, stumbled across the skeletons of Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, lying amid the tangled wreckage of the airplane in which they flew from Seville, Spain, to Camaguey, Cuba, 4,900 miles, without a stop. After a memorable reception in Havana, they took off for Mexico City. They never were heard from again.

der that crackled and rolled over the city in three successive waves. There were moments when the air seemed full of menacing light. Fortunately, as it turned out, the wind did not blow up an excessive speed, otherwise the countryside might have presented a different picture when the sun came out again. It was one of the lucky occurrences of the season, a "break" or dispensation some farmers will perhaps remember when the harvest thanksgiving services are held in the fall.

3 Lives Are Lost.

TORONTO, July 15—(CP)— The sister provinces of Ontario and Quebec felt the full brunt yesterday of severe thunder and electrical storms, which took a toll of three lives and caused thousands of dollars' damage.

Those killed were Paul Emile Laviolette, 25, an employee at the Montreal Botanical Gardens, Roy Cripps, 20, of Burk's Falls, Ont., and George Bennett of Ottawa. Laviolette was killed and 10 others injured when the shack in which they sought shelter from the storm was hurled 100 feet by a driving wind. Bennett was struck by lightning, while Cripps was electrocuted when he touched a fallen wire.

The Brick United Church at Yarker, 15 miles northeast of Napanee, Ont., was destroyed by fire after it was struck by lightning. Two barns and outbuildings were struck at Shawville, Que., and destroyed at a loss of $2,000.

A street car was struck by lightning at Hamilton, Ont. No one was injured, though fire spurted from the control box and the trousers of a passenger, James Campbell, were singed.

Bolt Hits Girl.

Four-year-old Thelma Olmsted suffered minor burns on the right arm after lightning flooded the Olmsted home at Ancaster, near Hamilton. Other members of the family were stunned.

At the height of the storm a plane thought to be flown by N. McDermott of Ottawa, a Royal Canadian Air Force Flyer, crashed when the undercarriage struck a fence. The pilot, however was not injured seriously.

Bennett was killed after he and a brother took to a tree for shelter from the storm at Brule Lake, about 80 miles north of Kingston.

Western Ontario crops were damaged and a promising apple crop in the Morrisburg district of the Ottawa Valley was believed a total loss from wind and hail.

"Never Again"

and took a room for the sleep he so desperately needed.

But beforehand, he talked briefly, in a tired, hesitant voice, of the trip across the lonely Atlantic to Paris, then over Russia—over the cold gloom of Siberia, over the vast silences of Asia—on to Alaska and then home.

He disclosed without emotion that the first leg was a near thing; that there was "barely enough gasoline to get to Paris."

The plane, he said, was too small for the purpose; its great load of fuel bore too heavily upon it.

"I had to get the ship up to 175 miles an hour and keep it from mushing (flying tail heavy)," he explained, "and I realized that it would be a close proposition, with the range of the ship."

Wheel Damaged

There was another "close proposition," too, he disclosed, but nobody knew of the danger until it was long passed. In the takeoff from Floyd Bennett the tail wheel had plunged into a hole and a fitting had been fractured.

When they got to Paris a French mechanic found the break. It hadn't interfered with the elevator controls, but it might heave easily.

There was still another surmounted peril. The maps for the Siberian leg were incorrect and had the flight been continued from Yakutsk, at night as scheduled the big ship might have smashed against mountain peaks higher than the aerialists thought were there.

"It's a damn good thing," Hughes commented, "that I didn't try to fly out of Yakutsk at night."

He had smashed Wiley Post's record utterly, but he showed no elation or sense of triumph.

Instead, sitting red-eyed and with the memory of a great achievement of his own a little blurred by weariness, he saluted that other restless southwesterner as the greatest flier of them all, as a man who had done the job alone and without the helping instruments of today.

Post's Feat Greatest of All

"Some people," said Hughes thoughtfully, "believe there have been other flights which were more important, but air pilots know that Wiley Post's feat was the greatest of them all."

Even as he returned to New York from the fastest of all world aerial expeditions—an expedition over 14,824-mile circuit in about the time required for a long week-end in the country—romantic rumors arose again linking Hughes with Katharine Hepburn, the actress, but if he had seen her at all nobody but the principals knew it.

For these matters, he had no word, but he had praise for every man who made the epic effort with him—[illegible] navigator Tom Thurlow, for [illegible] officer Ed Lund, for navigating [illegible] officer Harry Connor, for radio engineer Dick Stoddart.

For these, his lieutenants, there appeared to be more romance at the end of the journey than for Hughes himself.

Rosemary Stoddard kissed her husband and said: "Thank God, you're back."

Lois Thurlow cried from an embrace "Oh, Tommy."

Mr. Connor was too excited to say anything except, "Oh, hello."

Elinore Hoaglund, Ed Lund's friend fainted, too soon.

She had stood patiently with the great throng, but two hours before the fliers arrived she collapsed, and so she missed the last thrill of the flight—the homecoming of the great ship through the gray upper air over Floyd Bennett.

Fugitive Captured

then taken into custody.

The Girl's Story

Her story was that she had gone out yesterday morning to secure her hat and a jar in which water had been taken to the fugitive the night before and that on her way in she accidentally dropped and broke the jar. She had gone back to look for Cameron in the afternoon because he had said he would see her later in the day and she was afraid he would return to her home that night and she wanted to tell him to stay away.

Cameron gave the local police a busy day yesterday. Shortly after 10 o'clock they received a tip that he had been seen heading toward Jackson Park and the manhunt was on. Inspector Reid, Sergeant Thompson. Detectives Meagher and Piercey and Constable Clare McGillen combed the Jackson Park area and extended the search, west and south without getting a glimpse of their quarry, although the hunt was kept up for several hours. As soon as the storm was over in the afternoon the search was resumed when it was learned that James Shield, a farmer living west of Jackson Park had seen and talked to Cameron. The posse was augmented by Provincial Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure and the officers spread out and searched the countryside in that area. Footprints thought to have been those of the man the police sought were found in a laneway on the farm of Arthur Blodgett, further west and when it was found that Walter McKee, still more to the west had seen Cameron the hunt was pushed to the south and the whole district in the neighborhood of the Green Hill as far as the Kawartha Club was gone over without finding any further trace.

Seen in Smith

Early last evening a farmer living on the 2nd line of Smith reported that a man answering the description of Cameron had passed over his property headed for Highway 7 and at once the attention of the police was directed into another section. It was known that he had left some of his clothes at McCracken's Landing and it was believed that he was trying to make his way to that point. A flying squad was just about to start out for Stoney Lake when word was received from Lindsay of Cameron's arrest.

Speaking to The Examiner after he had been brought back to Peterborough the Sunderland youth said that he had sought shelter in a woods when yesterday afternoon's terrific storm broke. "I was very near drowned," he said. "I don't think I was ever so wet in my life."

"I hurt my ankles when I jumped out of that window the other day," he continued, "and they are all swollen now."

"Did you see the police during the hunt this afternoon," Cameron was asked.

"I saw them several times," he prisoner claimed. "One time there was an officer so close to me where I was hidden in the bushes that I could have reached out and touched him."

"I made up my mind to go to my home and got out to the highway. A car came along and I asked for a ride and the fellow picked me up and took me to Lindsay. I was walking along the road just at the other side of the town when I was arrested. The man who got me wasn't wearing a uniform."

He was recaptured in Lindsay by Constable Jack Simnett.

Constable Simnett was off duty and at his home on Angeline Street when a neighbor telephoned and told him he had seen Cameron near the Ross Memorial Hospital, a block away. Simnett immediately rushed to the hospital and saw Cameron standing on the street, apparently trying to gain a car ride to his home at Sunderland.

Sonstable Simnett was in civilian clothes, but told Cameron he was a police officer, and that he was under arrest. Cameron started to run, but Simnett overtook him and a struggle ensued. The officer finally overpowered Cameron, slipped the handcuffs on him, and got him into his car, taking him to the police station.

Hughes Awarded Medal

WASHINGTON.—The Army and Navy Union decided today to award Howard Hughes, 'round-the-world flier, its annual medal for an outstanding aviation achievement. Dick Merrill, who made a round trip flight to Great Britain, won the medal last year.

Strange Thefts

HAMILTON.—"A strange assortment," Magistrate H. A. Burbidge commented when Annie Karion, 40-year-old Polish storekeeper, pleaded guilty in court today to stealing a door hinge, one bottle of corn-cure, a souvenir handkerchief and a handful of candies from uptown stores. The accused was remanded in custody for sentence.

Selling Charge Withdrawn Against Man

Chris. McGrath, 189 Reid Street, was convicted by Magistrate Gee this morning on a charge of having permitted drunkenness on his premises and was fined $10 and $19 costs, with the alternative of twenty days imprisonment.

On the charge against McGrath of illegally selling liquor which has been hanging fire since June 5 the accused was dismissed when no evidence was offered by the Crown.

Crown Attorney McElderry asked for a further adjournment on the ground that the evidence heard today justified the whole matter being cleared up but T. J. Carley K. C., defense counsel, argued successfully that the case had been adjourned until today on the express understanding that it would either be proceeded with or dismissed. Magistrate Gee confirmed that understanding so that on the more serious charge McGrath escaped.

Beer Found in Car.

Evidence against him in the charge of permitting drunkenness was given by Constables Archie Menzies, Clare McGillen, Percy Sexsmith, Gordon Puffer and Chief Newhall and Bert Leahy. The evidence of the first three was that a car had been seen leaving McGrath's house and when the police stopped the machine they found some beer in the possession of the occupants. Later armed with a search warrant the McGrath house had been searched and there the police discovered 30 empty beer bottles and seven full ones and upstairs they discovered Bert Leahy in bed and very drunk.

When Chief Newhall was called Crown Attorney McElderry asked him about McGrath's occupation.

"He's a boot-legger," said Chief Newhall bluntly. Mr. Carley made a vigorous protest but the chief constable declared his reason for saying so was that McGrath had admitted it to him on several occasions.

"Has he ever been convicted?" demanded Mr. Carley.

"No," replied Chief Newhall.

Leg Bothered Him.

Bert Leahy said that he had had three or four drinks of wine before going to the McGrath house and that he was passing the latter place when his leg which he had broken last January troubled him and he had asked McGrath if he could come and lie down for a while. He had gone to sleep and later the police had come and found him there.

Mr. Carley did not put in any evidence for the defence and argued that no case had been made out by the crown because there was no evidence to show that drunkenness had been permitted by the accused. However Magistrate Gee who said that he did not believe all of Leahy's evidence thought differently and imposed a fine of $10 and costs, the latter to include the crown attorney's fees.

Arabs Driven Off In Raiding Village

JERUSALEM, July 15—(CP).—Raiding bands made two swift attacks on the village of Ramat Jochanan near Haifa to-day, seriously wounding two Jews. The attacks were repulsed after an exchange of gunfire in which several of the raiders were believed wounded.

The Haifa sector continued the centre of terrorism which since July 5 has resulted in the deaths of 51 Arabs and 27 Jews. Approximately 350 have been wounded.

Jewish quarters in Haifa, bordering Arab areas, were guarded. Jewish and Arab stores were closed.

An Arab taxi driver was sentenced to death by a military court. He was arrested on June 24 on the Jenin-Haifa Road with his taxi filled with explosives, including two land mines.

The Raven Protests

Poe's raven might have been content to sit over the door and croak "never more," but not the pet of Jack Wilson, of Pittsburgh. Jack's crow believes in action and when his red-haired, freckle-faced master didn't handle Jim quite right, Jim protested in the only way he knew how. He is shown drawing an agonized "ouch" from Master Wilson.

18-Hole Course Be Opened On Saturday

A big day in local golfdom will be held to-morrow when the official opening of the 18 holes at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club takes place at two in the afternoon. Members have been waiting five years for this occasion, playing the nine holes while work progressed toward the completion of one of the finest golf courses in the Province. Following elaborate opening ceremonies this Saturday afternoon, the presidents vs. vice-presidents match will be played.

Mayor James Hamilton and the City Council will be in attendance for the 18-hole opening ceremony, as well as the president and the directors of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. Officers and members of the Kawartha Club are expected out in force to mark this important milestone in the history of Peterborough's youngest golf club.

Italians Claim Right To Call Selves Aryan

ROME, July 15 (AP).—A 10-point Fascist doctrine of race similar in many respects to Nazi Germany's Aryanism was published today under the auspices of the Ministry of Popular Culture.

The doctrine proclaimed Aryan supremacy and affirmed the Italian race's right to call itself Aryan.

It declared Jews "do not belong to the Italian race."

"Jews represent only a population which never has been assimilated in Italy because they are composed of non-European racial elements absolutely different from the elements from which Italians originated," the declaration said.

A group of Fascist university professors were authors of the doctrine.

Informed observers regarded the declaration as further evidence of the Fascist regime's desire to reinforce the political bonds of the Rome-Berlin axis with cultural ties.

Coming soon after the Renent anti-Semitic outbreaks in Berlin, the statement provoked fresh disquiet among Italian Jews, who fear the growth of Fascist anti-Semitism of the Nazi type.

In an official declaration of policy five months ago, the Fascist regime declared there was no anti-Semitism in Italy but that Jews would not be permitted to acquire a position in Italy disproportionate to their numbers.

Cameron Given 6 Months In Reformatory

Six months in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph was the sentence imposed by Magistrate Gee in police court this morning on Arnold Cameron, when the Sunderland youth pleaded guilty to escaping from custody here on July 12.

No chances were taken with the prisoner this morning. He came into the police court handcuffed and closely guarded by Detectives Meagher and Piercey.

When the charge was read Cameron in a voice that was barely audible elected summary trial and then pleaded guilty.

"You are a pretty slippery fellow," remarked Magistrate Gee. "You escaped at Lindsay before this."

"I gave myself up that time," returned the prisoner, "and I was going to do the same now."

Cameron added that he had not understood why he should be in custody when the theft charge against him had been withdrawn.

"How would you like two years in Kingston Penitentiary?" asked the Magistrate.

Does Not Want to be Convict

"I don't want to go to the penitentiary," Cameron replied. "I do not want to come out a convict."

"I think women have been your downfall," Magistrate Gee stated, "If you had stuck to your wife this trouble would not have occurred."

Crown Attorney McElderry said that a term in Guelph would bring Cameron's case to the attention of the parole authorities. The youth has fourteen months of his original sentence in Guelph to serve by reason of his violation of his parole.

The fifteen-year-old girl arrested yesterday was arraigned afterward in juvenile court and pleaded not guilty to a charge of "unlawfully assisting Arnold Cameron an escaped convict." She pleaded not guilty and at the suggestion of Crown Attorney McElderry the case was enlarged until August 3. In the meanwhile the girl will be required to report regularly to the police.

Woman Is Fined Reckless Driver

Mrs. Helen Fisher of Campbellford pleaded guilty before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning to a charge of reckless driving on Highway No. 7 and was fined $10 and costs amounting to $14.

The charge arose out of an accident some weeks ago in which a car driven by Mrs. Fisher collided with another automobile driven by Glen McColl of Deloro, two miles west of Norwood. The Campbellford woman was charged with drunken driving as a result but was acquitted and a second charge of reckless driving was adjourned until today.

T. J. Carley K. C. who defended her this morning pleaded for leniency, pointing out that this was not one of the cases where the woman paid, inasmuch as the fine would necessarily have to be paid by the husband.

Crown Attorney McElderry pointed out that there had been in the previous charge some evidence of drinking, that Mrs. Fisher had had a drunken man in the car with her and that the lives of a number of people had been endangered.

Raspberries Are Ripe

The raspberry patch is calling young and old, man and woman alike, these summer days. To many a tired business man memories of childhood days in the berry patch bring a nostalgic longing for his lost youth. Thursday's storm did not deter the two pickers shown here from reaping a good crop. They sought shelter in a nearby schoolhouse until the rain had ceased, then returned to their work. At LEFT is Bill Torrance of 866 George street, showing why some boys never bring many berries back with them. At RIGHT is Harold McIntosh, 569 Murray Street. (Examiner Staff Photos.)

PICK BAD SPOT.

When a couple of feminine visitors to Peterborough and a similar number of local men picked a side road in North Monaghan as a suitable place for a little spooning they could not possibly have known that the spot they chose was in the centre of a man-hunt and that a dozen city and provincial officers were scouring the neighborhood. They found out a short time after, however, when police started bobbing up from all over the scenery and the two women, one a married Belleville girl and the other a single lassie from Trenton, were brought into the local police station. Afterward they were let go with a warning to get out of town quickly as possible.

Marian G. Coon Missionary Dies In The City

Death came early Friday morning to Marian Grace Coon, widely known China missionary from this city, at her home at 589 Aylmer street. She had been on furlough for nearly two years, becoming ill last July. She had been confined to her bed since last December.

Miss Coon was the daughter of Mrs. Coon and the late Rev. C. H. Coon of this city. Her mother is critically ill at the present time at the same address.

She attended a number of schools to receive her primary education, in the communities to which her father was the minister. She attended Normal school in Ottawa and taught Public school in that city and in Belleville for two years, afterwards taking a course at the Methodist Church Training School in Toronto.

Sixteen years ago she went as a missionary to west China, where she became principal of girls' schools at Kiating and Chungking, helping to build the latter. At the end of seven years she returned to Canada on furlough, lecturing throughout the province. Then for two years she was principal of a girls' school at Assiniboine, Saskatchewan.

Her last sojourn as principal of the schools of Kiating and Chungking lasted five years and she returned to Canada nearly two years ago, delivering lectures throughout the province during the first year of her return.

Last July she became ill and was unable to return to China in September when her furlough expired.

Surviving are two brothers, H. W. Coon of Galt, and Dr. A. W. Coon of Norfolk, Virginia; and six sisters, Mrs. M. G. Dobbin and Mrs. R. J. Vickery of Lindsay, Mrs. W. L. Anderson, Miss Elma R. Coon, Miss Gladys Coon, all of Ottawa, and Mrs. W. H. Prise, of Peterborough.

The deceased is resting at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Prise, 172 Wolsely street. The funeral service will be held at George Street United church at 2 p.m. Monday, following a private service at the house. Interment will be made at Riverside cemetery, Lindsay.

William McIlroy Has Retired From C.P.R. Service

Remembered here as city passenger agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway from 1906 to 1912, William McIlroy retired from the company's service on July 1, in Los Angeles where he had been general agent in Southern California for the last sixteen years.

The following review of his career with the C. P. R. was published in a recent issue of the company's Bulletin:

A forty-seven-year service with the company's operating and passenger departments in Canada and the United States ends today for W. (Bill) McIlroy, for the past 16 years general agent, passenger department, at Los Angeles.

A popular representative, "Bill" McIlroy is widely known throughout Southern California where he and Mrs. McIlroy will continue to make their home now that he has reached retirement.

A leader in the sizeable British-Canadian community in Los Angeles county, Mr. McIlroy was president of the Canadian Club of Los Angeles in 1932-33, and was chairman of the council of British Societies in 1932 when the Southern California city was preparing for its Olympic games.

Began as Messenger.

Known for many years as a "passenger" man, Bill McIlroy started with the operating end of the railway. He joined at St. Thomas on May 31, 1891 as a telegraph messenger, and by June, 1892, was clerk and operator for the telegraph and express office, at Galt. From July, 1893, to May, 1894, he was operator at the "RN" office in Toronto and put in a session as operator at the Parliament buildings in Ottawa. He was chief clerk and operator at the joint telegraph and ticket office at Galt from 1894 to 1899, and agent at Brantford for a couple of weeks until he went to St.Thomas as agent, March, 1899. He was back in Galt as agent from June 1, 1900, to February 28, 1905, and from March 1, 1905, to October 13, 1912, he was city passenger agent at Peterborough, Ont.

Mr McIlroy was made city passenger agent at the larger city of Hamilton in 1912, and he remained there until 1915. His popularity was such that he left Hamilton on May 1, 1915 as an honorary life member of the Rotary club of Hamilton and an honorary member of the Hamilton Board of Trade.

From May, 1915, until May, 1920, he was city passenger agent and chief clerk in the district passenger agent's office, in Toronto. He was active in Rotary, and served a term as president of the Toronto Transportation Club.

In California 16 Years...

Mr. McIlroy left his native Canada June, 1920, when he went to Detroit as general agent. He was moved to Southern California as general agent in May, 1922. There is every evidence that Southern California liked the Canadian Pacific agent as well as he liked it, for his friends and colleagues have made his retirement the occasion of many demonstrations of esteem. One of the first of these acknowledgments was made at Los Angeles when the world-cruising "Empress of Britain" arrived. Arrangements for the ship's Los Angeles call have been made by Mr. McIlroy ever since the world cruises started, and members of the Trans-Pacific General Agent's Association took this last performance as the opportunity to present him with an illuminated scroll in appreciation of his services to the committee. The scroll shows the houseflags of all the steamship lines in the Trans-Pacific service, and at the bottom is painted a picture of the "Empress of Britain" entering Los Angeles harbor amid the forty or fifty warships which greeted her on this year's call.

SIR GEORGE TALBOT DEAD

LONDON—Sir George Talbot, a judge of the high court of justice for 14 years until his retirement last year, died today at the age of 77.

Sir George had a brilliant career at Oxford where he became a fellow of All Souls College in 1886. Later he turned to the law and was created a King's Counsel in 1906. He was knighted in 1920 on his elevation to the bench and was created a privy councillor on retirement.

Smith Gardens Are Viewed By Large Crowd

The display of lilies in John A. Smith's garden at the rear of his home, 150 Benson Avenue, north of the Normal School, was viewed by several hundred citizens on Thursday evening, and if you are interested in flowers you should see these splendid bloom this evening. This home show in the north-end of the city is intended simply as a means of raising funds for the Peterborough Horticultural Society to finance their exhibition this season, and as the silver collection is entirely voluntary, you can suit yourself what you give. And if you are somewhat hazy about how to grow roses, Mr. Smith's method will be an object lesson that will send you home to do likewise.

There is nothing pretentious about John Smith's flower garden. It is just a hobby, a special interest outside his work, a medium of expressing his love of beauty in bloom, and an example of what the average citizen can accomplish with the same attention, and care, and also some study of flowers. If he were not president of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, Mr. Smith would no doubt never have thought of opening his garden to the public; but, in spite of the fact of this community's six or seven thousand homes, nearly all of them adorned with flowers, the Society's treasury is low in funds, and Mr. Smith conceived the idea of showing his lilies in the expectation that a silver collection might help the cause.

The mass effect of bloom produced by Mr. Smith's lilies will appeal to everyone who sees them. Two of the most vigorous varieties, stout in stem and large of flower are Princeps and Creelman, the latter named after George Creelman, who was head of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. Another fine variety is Regal. There are others also that deserve mention, but descriptions of them are entirely inadequate. Probably as striking and appealing as their form and color is their heavy fragrance, somewhat suggestive of the perfume of stocks. It pervades the whole neighborhood. Mr. Smith's success in the growing of lilies will probably win others to this handsome flower, and that alone would be all the reward he would ask from his work apart from the pleasure it gives him around his home.

An examination of Mr. Smith's rose plots emphasizes a point W. H. Young has often advised, to the effect that "roses are gross feeders." They will starve and become emaciated if they don't get what they want, and you can't be squeamish about associating the beauty of the rose with its main food, namely, well rotted manure. English rosarians have long been authorities on the growing of roses, and one of them, Dean Hole, of the Church of England, stressed in his writings the necessity of using the simple fertilizer that is provided by barnyards. John Smith's roses manifest the results of liberal feeding, including the commercial fertilized. He wins a big share of prizes in local rose shows, mainly because he knows how to feed them, the main feature of their regular care.

Mr. Smith's garden is fringed with a perennial garden that is also attractive, and if you go up there this evening you will probably come away with a new desire to add some lilies to your flower garden, and also a new conception of how to produce healthy, vigorous roses. It is just an average sized garden, and as president of the Horticultural Society, Mr. Smith will assure you in his modest way that most of the home owners in the city can have a garden just as beautiful as his. Other members of the Society provided a bench of fine bouquets offered for sale, and others will be available this evening.

Unusual Charge Is Laid Against Dean

There was an unusual charge in police court this morning against Joseph Dean, proprietor of the Capitol Grill, a charge laid by a government inspector.

The indictment read that Dean "being the proprietor of a public-eating house, namely the Capitol Grill, where articles of food maple-flavored were offered for sale, unlawfully did fail to state on the menu or bill-of-fare that such flavor used was imitation maple flavoring contrary to the provision of the Maple Sugar Industry Act and regulations."

Dean, who was represented by W. B. Gordon, pleaded not guilty to the charge and at the request of the government inspector an adjournment for two weeks was made. Mr. Gordon declared that his client wanted the case cleared up as soon as possible.

CHAPTER 39

THE TOWN of Hermosillo, Sonora, in Mexico, was peaceful enough there in the twilight of evening. Workmen had come to their homes and were enjoying supper. Phonographs brightened some of the homes along Cinco de Mayo street, and the inevitable dogs played or loafed on the dirt sidewalks. A few children were in sight. But the only adult visible was a rather large man, walking along.

The man wore a battered straw sombrero, a very old and faded cape-like serape—a woven thing like a rug with a hole in the middle through which he had thrust his head. He pantaloons were dirty. He wore no shoes. He walked slowly as if tired. Unkempt beard suggested further that he was a laborer.

He explained often that he wished he could get into America to live. He had no family, he said, but had friends in Arizona. Ah, if he could just get over the line safely! He had saved a little money for the trip. Friends already there had sent it to him. If he could but be smuggled in. After a while he moved to another saloon and repeated his longings, to whatever chance listeners he could find. He went to a small hotel and talked the same way. He struck up conversations on the street and continued his yearnings for transportation across the line into Arizona, where his friends lived. He had a little money. Nearly 300 pesos.

In front of the police station, officers were sitting on sidewalk benches. The man told them his story. They listened, but made no comment. Disgruntled Mexicans always were wanting to go to the United States, they knew.

He sat in a little plaza parkway and discussed his hopes with chance loafers there. About midnight he went on back down Cinco de Mayo street, turned up an alley and entered his shabby room. Several people were on the street at that hour. It developed that one of the persons had been following him, for a short, furtive sort of little man came down the alley and tapped on the big fellow's door. They talked a moment in low tones. Then the big fellow passed something through the door to him, and presently followed the little man back out of the alley and up Cinco de Mayo street. Although it was quite dark and deserted at that hour of night, the big man kept 100 yards behind the smaller one.

Ellen Dale had been so distracted for three days that she could hardly sleep. Felix Montoya had been a guest at one more breakfast in her home, but had made his farewell that morning and gone away. She was glad. She didn't want to discuss her and Bill's affairs with him, and she was thinking constantly of Bill.

"Uncle Buckshot," she approached that indivdual on the third day, "do you think maybe I ought to go down to Mexico myself? I mean—to see about it, and all?"

"See about whut?" the old men jabbed.

"Well—I mean, to help Bill with his inquiry. He will contact the authorities, no doubt, and—"

"You don't even know where he's at. Naw, you don't go down there. That young jasper'll take care of hisself, ma'am. You don't need to worry none."

She did worry, though, and she would have been sick with it if Bill hadn't sent a telegram. It came from Hermosillo, telephoned out to her ranch that third evening after he left.

"EVERYTHING ALL RIGHT," it said. "MAY BE GONE TEN DAYS."

It didn't enlighten her, but it did enable her to sleep. She tried to help with directing the cowboys, but Shorty Rogers and old Buckshot had matters pretty well in hand. They knew about how Bill wanted things done.

After a week of Bill's absence, Ellen was lonlier than at any time since she left Hollywood. She made occasion to sit down and write several long letters. She had a good camera, and with young Pablo Rivera's avid help she took many pictures of her ranch, her cows, her home, her assistants and friends there, and sent several of these to old acquaintances in Hollywood.

She drove in to Nogales one afternoon, surprised an delighted the two or three housewives there who had invited her to call on them weeks ago after the chamber of commerce banquet in her honor. She asked them to drive out to her ranch any day for tea, ended up by arranging for the next monthly meeting of the Woman's club of Nogales to be held in her spacious living room. One lady quickly phoned the Herald, and the society editor rushed out to get all the exciting news. They hadn't known that Miss Dale was in town. It was a big up for the housewives on whom Ellen had come to call.

She made a few purchases and started on back home about five o'clock. The drive to her ranch wasn't long, took less than an hour. There were no towns or villages en route, in fact virtually nothing but occasional ranchers' dwellings appearing as dots on the vast landscape. Ordinarily the panoramas here exalted her but she felt distinctly unhappy today.

"I don't know what's the matter with me," she told herself.

That wasn't true. She did know; she knew she wanted Bill to return, or let her know again that he was safe. He had been gone two weeks now, and she had not heard from him but once.

She tried to tell herself that it didn't matter. That she could hire another foreman if this one didn't return. Arizona had plenty of good capable men, capable ranch men whom she could probably hire.

But she quickly dropped that fiction. She couldn't fool herself any more, and it was no use trying. It did matter, she realized, what happened to Bill. It mattered to her, directly, personally, powerfully. "I love him," she murmured, there in her car, rolling up the roadway. "There's no use always trying to imagine I don't. But loving him doesn't do any good, if he doesn't love me."

She was having quite a good time feeling sorry for herself (a rare privilege for persons who are inherently unselfish!) and was not more than a mile from the edge of her own property, when a man on a horse stopped in the middle of the road and lifted his hand as if asking her to halt.

She stopped, and saw he was a Mexican. I nthe twilight she could not identify him as one she knew. He wore a battered sombrero, a faded old cape-like serape and dirty pantalones.

"Wheech way is, please, el rancho del—thee so fine Dale-Durango?" He was a big man, with a growth of whiskers, mostly shaded by his broad straw hat. His voice was a little odd.

"It is that way," Ellen replied, politely, pointing. "I am Ellen Dale myself. Were you looking for work? Or for someone on the ranch?"

"No, senorita," he replied, dismounting. "I coom looking for you. For la Senorita Dale herself. I—ah—"

He tilted his hat a little then, and Ellen discovered him.

"BILL! It's you! When did you return. Oh! Bill!"

He laughed heartily at her. And with her. They shook hands, and she inspected his costume, and asked a dozen questions in a string without waiting for answers.

"I've been on masquerade," he stated. "I meant to wire you again but was in a place where I could not get to a telegraph office. I had a very good time."

"Tell me, Bill What all happened? Where did you go? Did you go back to the Montoya ranch?"

"Well, yes, I did, as a matter of fact. Panola was delighted to see me. She's coming to see you soon, with Felix. Her parents asked about you."

Ellen hadn't thought of that. Not of Pancla, at any rates. They talked for several minutes. Bill had returned to the ranch in midafternoon, ridden out to meet her and have some fun, he said. But he wasn't quite prepared, yet, to tell all he knew about the stolen cows.

"I will say this, though Ellen. Buckshot and the boys didn't tell you, lest they cause you alarm, but hundreds of other cattle have been stolen from Arizona ranchers down here recently, and three nights ago thieves stole 10 more of yours."

The extremely serious note in his voice alarmed her more than the actual news.

Sympathy Kills More Often Than It Cures—Parents Need To Offer Encouragement Rather Than Condolence To Their Children

A FAMOUS doctor declared not long ago that sympathy killed as many sick people as disease did, and that many men and women who might have got well were swept into their graves by the tears of pity of their loving relatives.

Then, being hot with his subject, he went on to relate an incident that had just occurred in his practice. "For months," he said, "I have been trying to build up and calm down a delicate, neurotic patient of mine so that she will be able to stand an operation that is absolutely necessary.

"At last I had got her fit and I told her that the next day I would operate, but when I went in to see her she was surrounded by her weeping friends and family who were patting her hands, kissing her brow, 'poor-thinging' her and making her feel that they were taking a last farewell. Under their sympathetic ministrations she had gone all to pieces. Her temperature had shot up and she was so hysterical that an operation was out of the question. All my work was undone and has to be done over again.

"Believe me, if we doctors told the truth, we would write 'Killed by Sympathy' on many a death certificate. There is no such depressive drug known to materia medica as pity and no tonic equal to a good boost."

The experience of all of us laymen confirms the physician's diagnosis of the deadly effect of sympathy on the human system. All of us know dozens of people who have been made chronic invalids by being pitied. Boys and girls who were weaklings and ne'er-do-wells because their mothers were so sorry for them when they had the measles that they sold them the idea that they didn't have the health and strength to do anything.

Women who lay on a couch half their lives because their husbands cossetted and petted them because of their poor nerves or their weak hearts. Men who gave up their jobs at middle age, sat down on the do-nothing stool and let their children support them because their family's solicitude and inquiries about how they felt today, and what did the doctor say about their symptoms, made them exaggerate a slight indisposition into a fatal malady.

And we have all seen these same victims of sympathy cured as if by magic when their dope was withdrawn. When nobody cared whether they were well or sick they got well. When nobody listened to the tale of their aches and pains they forgot them, too. Many a frail and delicate woman who has been coddled all of her life by a pitying mother and husband has not only got up from her bed and walked, but taken in washing to support herself and her children when the necessity arose.

Sympathy not only makes invalids, it also makes failures. It breeds weakness instead of strength. It turns us into cowards and quitters instead of making us fighters.

Many a boy's and girl's whole life is ruined by a mother who sheds tears of pity over them until she melts down their backbones and leaves them poor spineless creatures incapable of achieving anything. Mother is so sorry for Mary because she has to pound a typewriter or stand behind a counter instead of spending her time amusing herself that she makes Mary feel that she is a martyr; that it isn't worth while to try to do good work or get ahead in a world that is oppressing a poor working girl. Mother pities poor John because he can't go to college and have sport cars as rich men's sons do until she kills every bit of ambition in him and makes him think that it isn't worth while working, anyway.

It is the mothers who jack their children up with hope that put in them the spirit that makes for success. They don't sympathize with their children for having to work. They tell them how lucky they are to have a job and the strength and health and intelligence to hold it down. It is not pity we need when we have a difficult thing to do. It is a brace.

And nobody can doubt that a mother's sympathy is first aid to divorce in innumerable instances. A young couple gets married and finds that marriage is not the bed of roses that they expected it to be.

Especially is the wife disillusioned when she discovers that she has married a mere man instead of a godling and that he expects her to act like a human being and pull her weight in the boat. So she runs to Mother with her troubles and complains against the husband and instead of telling her that she is acting like a spoiled child and a little fool and to go back home and be a sport and make the best of her bargain, Mother pities her and says: "Come back to me, my poor persecuted darling," and there is another home wrecked and another woman on her way to Reno. Any sympathy has done its deadly work again.

DEAR MISS DIX—Do you believe in petting among high-school students? If a boy takes a girl out to a good dance and feeds her afterwards, spending about $3, he deserves something, doesn't he? EDDIE.

ANSWER:

Certainly I don't believe in petting among high-school students. That should be an adult diversion if any, and it is none too safe nor wholesome for them. If you don't consider that a girl's company adds enough to your pleasure to pay you for taking her out, you should tell her beforehand so that she could take along her own money and pay her own way. I think a boy is a cheap skate who expects a girl to stand for being mauled as the price of his taking her out to a party.

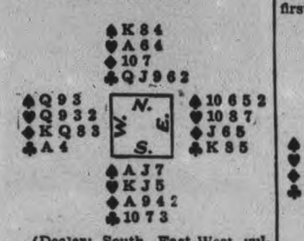
"The Authority on Authorities"

HOLDING UP OPTIONAL REFUSAL TO part with your ace on the opening trick is not profitable in the long run if you do it every time as a matter of principle. There are times when it is better to use the big fellow at the first opportunity, especially if that involves the killing of some lower honor. On many occasions this promotes a lesser card of your own hand or dummy into the position of a certain trick taker, whereas a hold-up would limit you to one trick in the suit.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

After an opening bid of 1-Diamond by South, North went to 2-Clubs, South called 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump.

West started the defense by leading the diamond 3, on which dummy played the 7, East the J and South the 2. A diamond was returned and won by West's Q. West returned the club 4, which East won with the K to lead a third diamond to West's K.

South's handling of his diamond suit limited him to one trick in it. He was therefore set one, with the loss of three diamonds and two clubs.

Declarer had failed to reckon the value of his 10 and 9 and in so doing lost the chance to gain two diamond tricks. This would have been accomplished by winning the first trick with the A.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"Look!" Hanid exclaimed all at once to her brother Knarf, as the two shadow children were walking down the Mother Goostown road. "There's Simple Simon right ahead of us!"

"He's carrying a basket," Knarf said. "He must be going to market for his mother."

"Where are you going, Simon?"

"It doesn't look like a market basket. Let's catch up with him and find out where he's going."

So the two shadows hurried swiftly over the ground and in a minute or two caught up with their friend, Simple Simon. "Good morning" they greeted him. "Where are you going with that basket, Simon?"

"I'm going to Raspberry Hill. It's right around the turn in the road. As soon as I come to it, I'm going to pick raspberries. They're for a raspberry pie which my mother promised to make."

Knarf and Hanid were happy to hear this. "We'll help you pick them," Knarf said.

Simon Wonders.

Then they walked down the road till they came to the turn. There they found Raspberry Hill.

"Oh, they're — they're beautiful!" Simon exclaimed.

"Go ahead and pick them," Knarf urged. "What are you looking at them for!"

"I'm just wondering."

"Wondering about what?"

"I'm wondering whether it would not be better to leave them just as they are. Each one of those raspberries is a seed. If they fell on the ground and grew, each one of them would grow into a fine new bush with lots more raspberries on them. I'm going to leave them just as they are. I'll just pick the thorns. The thorns can't grow into anything. Mother will make a thorn pie. Perhaps it won't taste quite as good as raspberry pie, but I'll pick them anyhow."

And sure enough, Simple Simon picked the thorns instead of the berries. Wasn't he a foolish boy?

We Noticed

...one of the most dashing outfits of the summer was noticed yesterday . . . citrus-yellow linen slacks and a bolero slightly swallow-tail were worn with a vivid tomato-shade blouse, cotton shoes and spangle bracelets.

◇ ◇ ◇

...the young lady's companion looked equally dashing in a letter-head blue linen playsuit . . . the top was cut like a pinafore and was worn with a gay, silk muffler, and its bright color note was echoed in the yellow, open-toed shoes.

◇ ◇ ◇

...A luscious color combination was the pink dress with richly fringed dubonnet sash someone was wearing at a tea...the bodice was softly draped, and the skirt slightly gored. The pink hat, shallow-crowned, was banded and bound in dubonnet.

Hoolihan—Murtha

DOWNEYVILLE, July 15.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Monica's church, Toronto, Saturday ,when Rita Murtha, daughtre of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murtha, of Downeyville, was united in marriage to Fergus Hoolihan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hoolihan, also of Downeyville.

The bride's sister, Marguerite, was bridesmaid and Morgan Hoolihan attended his brother as best man. After the ceremony dinner was served to the immediate families and afterward Mr. Hoolihan and his bride left on a short honeymoon and on their return will reside in Toronto.

On Monday evening a large crowd of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murtha and tendered a shower for their daughter Rita (Mrs. Fergus Hoolihan) who was recently married. A large number of pretty and valuable present were received and a very enjoyable time was spent by all. An address was read by Mr. Joseph Corbett and several gentlemen made speeches. A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and afterwards a few hours were spent in social intercourse.

"Open House" Reception Held For Mrs. W. Zeihr

An "open house" reception to bid farewell to Mrs. W. H. Zeir, who leaves on Friday for her new home in Hamilton, was a pleasantly arranged affair of Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Puffer, Water Street, when Mrs. Jack Tremaine and Mrs. Puffer were joint hostesses.

The drawing-rooms were charmingly decorated with snapdragon and calendula, and the archway between was flanked on each side by tall baskets of stately blue delphinium.

The tea table, from which dainty sandwiches and tiny cakes were served, was lovely with its lace cloth and centrepiece of yellow roses. Mrs. Gordon Ham and Mrs. Roy Lewis assisted the hostesses in serving tea.

Welcoming the guests with Mrs. Puffer and Mrs. Tremaine were Mrs. H. McIlmoyle and Mrs. H. Tremaine, and each of the guests on departing signed a Guest Book which will be a pleasant reminder to Mrs. Zeihr of her host of friends in Peterborough.

An interesting feature of the evening was a presentation to Mrs. Zeihr by the group of bowlers from St. Andrew's Church, of which she is a member.

The gift was a lovely evening bag embroidered with pearls, and was presented by Mrs. McIlmoyle. The address was read by Mrs. D. R. Morrow.

Men's Shirtings Make Feminine Play Clothes

Feminine play clothes and spectator sports costumes with masculine tailoring will be seen at beach and mountain resorts fashioned of men's shirtings—chambray, madras, and pique. Culottes, sport suits, separate skirts and shirts are smart, too, in men's summer flannels. Denim in the new shades of Brittany red, workman navy and faded blue with red or white stitching is recommended for those who really like to "rough it."

◇ ◇ ◇

Launder Sheer Blouses Carefully

To launder sheer blouses use a mild soap or soap powder and warm water. Agitate the suds through the material gently with the hands. Never rub sheer fabrics on a board. Rinse in clear warm water until all suds are removed. Press the water out between the hands instead of wringing with a twisting motion, and roll in a clean, absorbent towel until ready to iron.

F. & G. Staff Has Enjoyable Picnic

A gala event took place Wednesday at Cobourg-on-the-lake, when the annual picnic of the staff members of the F. & G. Stores was held. The afternoon was spent in races and friendly games of softball, and later about forty members and friends were served dinner at the New Royal Hotel.

Mr. James Logan (Jimmie), the youngest employee, was presented with a pen and pencil set by Mr. Fitzpatrick on behalf of the members in honor of his birthday, and Mr. Lloyd Gilmour, manager of the George street store, whose birthday is to-day, also received hearty congratulations, and amid much merriment was presented with a toy cash register.

Dancing at Cobourg Pavilion wound up the day's activities.

Delightful Weather For C.W.L. Picnic

Wednesday's delightful weather was enjoyed by about sixty members of the Catholic Women's League, when they held a picnic on the spacious grounds of Mrs. E. G. Hiland's cottage at Chemong Lake. Swimming was enjoyed during the afternoon, and later supper was served at small tables placed on the lawn.

In the evening Rev. V J. McFadden of Downeyville, arranged a varied program of races for the children, and for the ladies, which included a nurses' race; a young married women's race and a ladies' walking race.

At the conclusion of the event, a vote of thanks on behalf of the League, was tendered Mrs. Hiland by Father McFadden for her kind hospitality.

July Birthstone Brings Good Luck

The red glowing ruby, birthstone for July, has been called by the Hindus, "the gem of all gems." Legend has it that one's birthstone, if worn, brings good luck and imparts various, much desired virtues. Hindus declare that he who possesses a ruby without blemish may dwell without fear in the midst of his enemies. Is this the reason, I wonder, that kings have always used them to ornament their crowns? The ruby was declared by the ancients to be the most highly valued of the 12 most precious gems.

Its talismanic virtues have been noted in a treatise on gems written in the 14th century by Sir John Mandeville, who stated that the possession of a ruby ensured the owner peace and concord, that neither rank nor land would ever be wrested from him and that he would be safe from peril. This, too, may be a reason for the kingly use of the ruby.

One of its most remarkable features is self-luminosity, which the ancients ascribe to it. An old Indian legend has it that the abode of the gods is lighted by great glowing rubies.

This precious, beautiful gem is a red variety of the mineral corundum, other varieties of which include the blue, known as sapphire. Those from Burma are blood-red, Siam rubies, not so highly valued, run from dark garnet to red brown, while Ceylon rubies are both bright and pale. The greatest part of the world's supply of rubies comes from Upper Burma, Siam and Ceylon. Occasional stones have been discovered in India, Afghanistan, New South Wales, Madagascar and North Carolina.—E. T. Raymond.

Kathleen Hartwick Is Thursday Bride

The Church of the Sacred Heart was the scene of a quiet, lovely wedding Thursday morning at eight o'clock, Rev. J. J. O'Brien officiating, when Kathleen Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hartwick, 279 Westcott street, became the bride of Thomas Patrick, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hefferman of Otonabee.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a frock of white lace over satin made with tiny, full sleeves, and narrow ruffles of lace encircling the skirt. She wore a gold locket, and a white lace picture hat with flower-trimmed crown. Her gloves were of lace, and she wore white sandals, and carried an arm bouquet of butterfly roses, gypsophilia and fern, tied with graceful ribbons of tulle.

Miss Marjorie Hartwick attended her sister, charming in an enkle-length gown of white embroidered net, made with long sleeves and Peter Pan collar, tiny buttons trimming its entire length. She wore a blue lace picture hat with matching accessories, and her bouquet was of premier roses, fern and pink tye, tied with ribbons of tulle.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Frank Hefferman.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl rosary, to the bridesmaid, a birthstone ring, and the best man a cigarette lighter.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held at the Empress Hotel, and later the happy couple left by motor for Toronto and points west. For travelling the bride wore a pink tailored suit with white accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hefferman will live in Otonabee.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

PRAISE

"It would be a species of savageness to reject indifferently all sorts of praise; one ought to be alive to that which comes from men of honor and sense, who praise from the heart things which are worthy of praise."—La Bruyere.

Dear Friends:

I have in my mail this week a letter from "Quid Est" another from "Babe" in Toronto, another from a gentleman in Detroit who gets our own Examiner sent to him, and in all these letters are words of praise in reference to my column.

And I am proud and happy to get these letters. They have no axe to grind, they want no favor from me, they may never see me, but something I wrote appealed to them so much they sent me those letters of appreciation, so I shall keep and prize them.

Somehow, we do not react to praise as we should. We are embarrassed, we color up and are uncomfortable, even although we know it is meant and not just flattery.

Yet, we need it at times to help us to do our best. When my children were little, I got far better results by praise than by blame.

Too much trouble will harden you, and too much blame has the same effect. On the other hand, giving praise just to wheedle something from another is a despicable thing indeed ,causing the one often to lose what they seek, and the other their belief in friendship.

Even God our Father enjoys praise for the things He does for us, a recognition of prayers answered, a thankful heart for help in time of need. And we as His children should enjoy it too, if it is deserved.

There is nothing so annoying as one who always depreciates himself. There is a sort of false pride about it, a suggestion that they are above ordinary mortals in that they need no praise, yet while they humble themselves as it were, they would resent it bitterly if we agreed with them.

They sort of run themselves down, that we may build them up, while, at the same time, claiming humility. Why go to all the bother? If your work or achievements are worth-while, accept the offered praise with dignity and poise.

Intelligent people do not let words of praise or commendation go to their heads, or make them arrogant and overbearing. They are well-aware they have enough faults to balance things and even them up. They know also, that without the help of God, the ability would not have come to them, and so they pass on the glory to the source it came from.

And so, I thank you "Quid Est," and "Babe," and the man in Detroit for the things you wrote me, and I also shall pass them on to the One who gave the ideas to me in the first place.

If in your lives you have found yourself blaming more than you praise, switch around and look for things you like in those around you. You will find many things you never knew were there, and you will also find that most people react quicker to kindness than to fault-finding.

We all know we have faults, but we hate to be forever reminded of them. It breeds an antagonism within us, a resentment, and a feeling of "why dont you mind your own business and think of your own faults?"

Try mentioning things you like in a person, giving them a little boost. It won't hurt you, and will be a stimulation and a help to the ones you tell it to, and some of this will surely come back to you.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

IN MEMORIAM

ROBINSON.—In loving memory of Mrs. Elliott Robinson, who passed away July 15, 1937.

Time takes away the edge of grief
But memory turns back every leaf.
—Ever remembered by Maurice and Lottie.

ROBINSON.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mae Elliott Robinson, who passed away July 15, 1937.

One year has passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth,
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay
But the love for her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.
She bade no one a last farewell,
She said good-bye to none;
Her spirit flew before we knew
That she had from us gone.
A Mother we loved is waiting
For us, just over the hill;
In Heaven, dear Mother, we'll find you
When God's great will is done;
We'll stand once more beside you
When He calls for us to come.
—Ever remembered by loving children, Allan, Madeline and Jean.

HENWOOD.—Treasured memories of our dear twin son, Lionel, who went home two years ago to-day, in his tenth year.

On the sweet Eden shore, the home of the blest,
With friends gone before, we will tarry and rest,
Contented with Jesus for ever we'll stay
In the beautiful country where flowers ne'er decay.
—Mother, Father. Six Brothers.

LONDERVILLE.—In loving memory of Myrtle Londerville, who passed away one year ago to-day, July 15, 1937, aged 31 years.

She is gone, but not forgotten;
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of her are always near.
Days of sadness will come over us,
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.
—Ever remembered by Father, Brother and Sister.

PRESERVE PARK LAND

LONDON—(CP). — Wimbledon Council, rejecting a proposal for a plebiscite, decided to buy the Royal Wimbledon Golf Course and 40 acres of adjoining land for $755,000 to keep it as park property.

HARD ON WOMEN

LONDON—(CP). — Complaints that the present form of hard-courts inter-county champions is too strenuous for women are being considered by the Lawn Tennis Association. A possible 12 sets in two days faces some players, it was said.

Count May Seek Court Order To See His Son

LONDON, July 15 — (AP). — Count Haugwitz-Reventlow has decided to remain in London until he has seen his young son, Lance, mentioned as the cause of trouble that may lead to a Danish divorce of the Count and the former Barbara Hutton.

The Count was said to be declared he was "anxious" to see the boy, but at a court hearing yesterday he promised not to visit the house where Lance is living or attempt to communicate with his wife.

"I am making no statement on the advice of my solicitors," the News Chronicle quoted Count Haugwitz-Reventlow as saying.

"But I have not seen my son for four weeks and I am anxious to do so. The matter is being handled by my lawyers and until it is settled I shall know no more than you do."

The paper said the Count's secretary stated the Count would make legal application for permission to see the son "if necessary."

Since the mother, heiress to the Woolworth fortune, already has made Lance a ward-in-chancery, putting him beyond the control of either parent, any meeting of father and son probably would require court sanction.

The boy was made ward-in-chancery because the Count wanted him educated and reared as a Dane but the mother, who denounced her United States' citizenship with her second marriage, wanted him to attend some English school.

He must remain under the court's jurisdiction until he is 21.

Woodcutter Decapitated

SASKATOON, July 15—(CP). — Alexander Lorkowsky, 40-year-old proprietor of the Dominion Fuel Company here, was decapitated last night when the whirling blade of a home-made sawing outfit flew off. Three other men working with Lorkowsky escaped as the blade careened against a box car from which wood was being unloaded.

Every Day Is Somebody's Birthday

HAVE you goods in your store that would make appropriate birthday gifts? Then take space in your daily newspaper from time to time to tell the public about them. Get people to think of your store as the place to come to for birthday suggestions and gifts. Husbands, wives, fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters are generally willing to pay a little extra for birthday presents—and this market is well worth cultivating with warm, bright, "human" advertisements.

This advertisement was prepared for the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association by the James Fisher Company, Limited.

Leaves Hospital

BROCVILLE, Ont., July 15. — (CP)—Mrs. Frank R. Mott, 69, has recovered sufficiently from injuries received July 5 to leave the hospital here and visit her son, Egbert Mott in Kingston. She was assaulted the same day as her daughter, Alice Irene, was fatally injured in their Kitley township home.

William Gunning, who worked as a farm hand for the Mott family was arrested July 9 charged with slaying Alice Irene Mott.

Fascists Drill In Toronto Hall

TORONTO, July 15 — (CP). — Forty Fascists drilled last night in Temple Hall under the direction of Joseph Farr, organizer of the Canadian National Unity Party.

Farr told the men afterward not to come to drills with their blue shirts hidden beneath suit coats.

"You are as good as anyone in those shirts and I want you to wear them proudly," he said. About 25 youths were enrolled in the party, given blue shirts with red insignia at the shoulders and the organizer promised them "something interesting every Wednesday night."

Farr announced the Toronto troop would join in a mass Fascist meeting at Oshawa next Tuesday.

(At Oshawa Mayor A. F. McLeese asid: "If the Fascists are coming to Oshawa to hold a mass meeting I'm going to take it up with the city council Friday night. I haven't heard anything about a Fascist meeting, but when I do the council will certainly deal with it.")

Two Textile Heads Slugged In Strike

QUEBEC, July 15 — (CP). — As provincial constables patrolled the Dominion textile plant at nearby St. Regoire de Montmorency, word came from union officials to-day that the striking workers who stormed the mill offices and injured two company officials acted on their "own initiative." The plant operated as usual.

Meantime, hospital authorities repassed by G. Blair Gordon of passed by G. Blaiar Gordon of Montreal, managing director, and Harold Fisher, assistant supedintendent of the big plant, both injured when more than 80 strikers rushed the offices yesterday.

Gordon was struck between the eyes by an inkwell when the mob invaded the offices during a conference with a strike delegation, while Fisher was hit over the head with a telephone snatched from his desk.

Windows were shattered before provincial constables on duty about the plant entered the building and dispersed the mob. No arrests were made.

More than 100 spinners and "doffers" went on strike Monday night, seeking higher wages.

Canadian Firms Stand Slump Better Than U.S.

TORONTO, July 15 (CP).—The Financial Post said today a survey of Canadian and United States industrial and business operations of affiliated concerns with interests in both countries showed "Canada's superior resistance to recession during the past half year."

Canadian units of firms which also operate in the United States have enjoyed better business than their American counterparts, the Financial Post said.

"Pace of industrial and business operations as a whole has been not more than 10 per cent slower in Canada, but over 30 per cent behind last year in the United States," it adds. Losses for Canadian units were given as ranging from five to 25 per cent, while U.S. operations fell of 12 to 50 per cent from 1937.

The Post said its survey was made in a representative variety of industries common to both countries.

Filling U. S. Treasure House

While coastguardsmen armed to the teeth, stood by, Uncle Sam unloaded the vanguard of $1,290,000,000 worth of silver bars from a truck at the new federal silver vault on the West Point military reservation. Director of the mint, Nellie Taylor Ross and E. R. Lynch, assistant superintendent at the U.S. assay offices, were on hand to inspect the silver as it was stored in the strong rooms of the new silver vault. It is estimated that 70,000 tons of the precious metal will be stored here when the vault is finally filled. The officials are pictured, TOP, as they checked in the silver, shown being unloaded in the lower photograph.

Cavan Newlyweds Honored At Party

CAVAN, July 15. — On Monday evening the spacious farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Eber Syer was filled to capacity when approximately one hundred friends and neighbors assembled in honor of their youngest son, Kenneth, whose marriage to Miss Mildred Moncrief took place recently.

When all the guests had arrived the Rev. Mr. Williams, pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, was the genial and efficient chairman for an interesting program, during which Mrs. Alec Miller contributed a reading, Miss Ruth Staples a violin selection, Mrs. C. Smith a reading, the Misses Bea and Nan Fallis a vocal duet and Miss Gwenyth Staples a reading.

Mr. and Mrs. Syer were then invited to come forward, and Roy Staples read an address, signed by Messrs. Archie Matchett, Ray Staples, Melville Perrin and Lewis Pudsey, while the latter two carried in the gift, a beautiful china cabinet in walnut finish.

Mr. Syer made a suitable reply on behalf of his bride and himself, and "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was heartily sung.

One room was cleared for dancing for which the Sutton brothers and Leonard Marsh furnished music with violin and guitar.

A delicious lunch of sandwiches, cake, tarts, ice cream and wedding cake was served around 11 o'clock, after which the younger crowd again danced for a time.

Auto Strikes Hotel Corner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 15.—A car driven by Arthur Smullin of Hastings crashed into the corner of a hotel Wednesday, causing $50 damages to his car. The accident occurred about 9 a.m. at the main intersection here. Smullin escaped uninjured.

He was driving east on Front street when a car driven by Blake Sharpe of Morganston crossed the road from Bridge street south. Sharpe told police he did not know Bridge street was a stop street. The stop sign, according to police, was turned in the opposite direction. The two cars were involved in a minor crash. Smullin wheeled his car to the left and mounted the sidewalk.

The car scraped a telephone pole before coming to a sudden stop against the hotel.

Constable William Wellman investigated. Damage to Sharpe's car would amount to $1, he said. Settlement was made between drivers.

Insull Drops Dead On Paris Train

Ex-Utilities Czar Is Victim Of Heart Attack

PARIS, July 16 (AP).—Samuel Insull, 78, fallen ruler of a $4,000,000,000 midwest utilities empire, died suddenly early this afternoon.

Officials said he collapsed from a heart attack in a subway train.

Insull was taken by subway employees to the nearby Paul-Marmottan Emergency Hospital in the Etoile district.

Mrs. Insull, in a state of collapse when she reached the hospital, said that when she left their hotel apartment at noon the aging magnate told her he was going to write a few letters and then go out to lunch.

"I had told him never to take a subway because it was bad for his heart," she said weeping.

Insull's Paris visit came four years after another important visit on his dramatic flight across Europe to escape extradition to the United States to face charges of embezzling funds of the utility empire he pyramided in the heart of North America.

In March, 1935, he was acquitted of the charge as he was four months earlier of mail fraud charges which came to trial after he had been brought back from a refuge in Turkey.

Since acquittal the white-haired Insull had engaged only sporadically in business activities.

He made frequent trips to Paris. He was physically active despite his years.

PASSENGER ON ASCANIA

MONTREAL, July 16 (CP)—Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate killed today in a motor accident in Paris, was a passenger in the liner Ascania when it struck a rock off Bic Island, in the St. Lawrence 300 miles east of here a fortnight ago. He was on his way to visit his wife in the French capital.

Insull, with 362 other passengers, was taken off the damaged liner and returned to Quebec aboard the Ausonia. He resumed his voyage from Quebec on liner Montclare.

He declined an offer of steamship officials to sail from New York.

"I've set my mind on sailing down the St. Lawrence," the 18-year-old former czar of a vast financial empire told newspaper men, "and I'm going back down the river."

Eighteen convicts have escaped since June 7 and others have tried. Eleven are still at large, including one life-termer.

British Arming Jew Town Against Arabs

JERUSALEM, July 16.—(AP). — Authorities armed residents of a Jewish village and erected a machine-gun emplacement at the entrance to Jerusalem's old city today.

Kiriath Eliahu, a suburb of Haifa, where inhabitants are mostly French, was supplied with rifles and ammunition following representations of the French Consulate General.

The Centre of terorr again shifted to Jerusalem with the killing of 12 and wounding of at least 29 in a bomb explosion among Arab peasants in David Street Market Place. Casualties have totalled at least 372 dead and wounded since Arab-Jewish racial troubles flared anew July 5.

Kilted Scotsmen of the Black Watch Regiment held the Jaffa gate to Jerusalem's old city. Armed police escorted every bus taking Jews to pray at the wailing wall—the 156-foot wall near the Mosque of Omar in Jerusalem where Jews congregate to lament the fall of Israel and pray for its restoration.

A Jewish special constable ambushel on the Plain of Sharon died of wounds. He was shot patrolling orange groves near Kfar Yona.

Police seized two Jewish women believed involved in the bombing at the David street bazaar. Officials said one was believed to have brought the missile, fashioned at home from a length of iron pipe, in a market basket and tossed it into the crowd.

In Jerusalem buses were covered with wire netting as protection against bombs

King's Prize Is Won By Briton

Ottawa Marksman Ties For 2nd In Classic Shoot

BISLEY CAMP, Eng., July 16 (C P Cable)—Capt. J. A. Barlow of the West Kent Regiment won the King's Prize, classic of the Empire meeting of the National Rifle Association, today.

Barlow won the King's Prize once before, in 1934.

He went into the final stage today, at 900 and 1,000 yards, only one point behind the silver medallist, Lance-Corporal R. Greig of Winchester College Officers Training Corps. Barlow's score of 141 out of a possible 150 in the final stage gave him a winning aggregate of 287 points out of a possible 300.

Canadian Ties for Second.

A 22-year-old aircraftsman, T. W. Gregory of Ottawa, a native of St. John, tied an Oxford University rifleman for second place in the classic.

Barlow compiled an aggregate of 287 points out of a possible 300 in the second stage yesterday, and the final at the long ranges to-day for his second triumph. He won the King's Prize in 1934.

Gregory added 68 at 900 yards today and 70 at 1,000 yards to his second stage score for a total of 280 points, the same score as that of Sergt. E. S. M. Wade of the Oxford University Officers' Training Corps.

Barlow took first prize of $1,250 in cash and the National Rifle Association's Gold Medal and Gold Badge. Second prize is the N.R.A. Badge and $250 in cash, third the Badge and $125.

Jack Dunn Dies In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, July 16.—(AP).—Jack Dunn, captain of the British ice skating team in the 1936 Olympics, died in a hospital last night of what physicians diagnosed as tularemal, a rare disease caused by contact with rabbits.

Stricken two weeks ago with what appeared to be streptococcus infection, the 21-year-old skater had been critically ill since.

Yesterday his doctors decided the disease was tularemia and located Walter Rampe, who had recovered from an attack of the same ailment, for a blood transfusion. But he continued to sink.

His mother, Mrs. Marguerita Pugh, started from England upon learning of his grave condition and is due here to-morrow morning by plane. Two sisters remained in England.

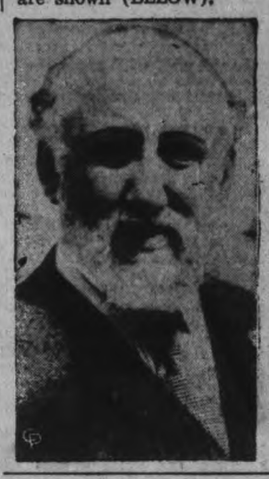
Left Big Fortune

W. Perkins Bull, Canadian lawyer, has been left one-third of the estate of Mrs. Mabel Horlick Sidey, which is estimated to be worth $9,000,000. Mrs. Sidey was a resident at the Bull mansion for a year prior to her death. Attorney-General Conant has ordered an inquest into the woman's death. Mr. Bull and Mrs. Sidey are shown (BELOW).



Tokyo Urged Use Reserves To Buy Raw Materials

Most Ominous Sign Of Financial Break Seen Since War Started Year Ago

TOKYO, July 16 (AP).—A resolution urging the Japanese government to use gold and specie reserves to purchase raw materials was adopted today by the Central Price Policy Commission.

Foreign observers called it probably the most ominous sign of financial distress since the conflict in China started a year ago.

If the government commandeers the specie reserve it is expected that the money will be used largely to import raw cotton.

Finance Minister Seihin Ikeda, who with other Cabinet members issued a drastic retrenchment program, including curtailment of imports except war materials, on June 23, recently licensed three large purchases of raw cotton designed to carry textile manufacturers through 1938.

That was a part of a desperate effort to regain export markets lost last year when various government regulations cut both imports and exports to the bone in an effort to save money for munitions.

The reserves of the Bank of Japan total 800,000,000 yen ($232,000,000). Normally this is sufficient to guarantee currency.

Financiers, however, doubted that inflation and loss of public confidence would follow even if the government accepts the suggestion to commandeer reserves.

(Another financial aspect of the Chinese-Japanese conflict was presented in a Shanghai dispatch quoting semi-official Japanese quarters that industry, agriculture and commerce in the two Chinese coastal provinces of Kiangsu and Chekiang had suffered damages totalling $600,000,000 during the conflict).

Tot Slain, 4 Hurt Man-Hunt On

TWO HILLS, Alta., July 16—(CP)—A police posse scoured bush country in this district 70 miles east of Edmonton today in search of Harry Shire, 33, whose seven-months-old child was found dead yesterday in his farm home. Mrs. Shire and three others are in hospital with serious injuries.

Dr. J. Yack of Vegreville Hospital, where the four were taken, said Mrs. Shire and Florence Wasalasko, seven, were in grave condition with head injuries. It was expected James Wasalasko, 10, and Pete Antoniuk, 18, would recover from their head injuries but both were semi-conscious and unable to tell a coherent story last night.

The Wasalasko children had been visiting the Shires, their uncle and aunt. Antoniuk, Mrs. Shires, brother, owns and lives on the Shires farm.

Police believe the baby was beaten to death early yesterday and the others attacked at the same time. The Wasalasko boy was reported to have crawled to a neighbor's home to spread the alarm. The others were unconscious when neighbors arrived.

Sidley Death Probe Ordered

Perkins Bull Given Summons In His Nightshirt

TORONTO, July 16 (CP).—The Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley case took on new and startling implications yesterday as Attorney-General Conant ordered an inquest into the death of the one-time heiress to the Horlick malted milk millions, and directed the immediate issuance of summonses to W. Perkins Bull, K.C., Toronto, and William P. Bull, Jr., father and son beneficiaries under the woman's will. Bull Sr. gets approximately $3,000,000 and Bull Jr., is named to receive jewelry, china, etc.

Toronto police officers, headed by Sergeant of Detectives McCready, visited the Bull home, at 3 Meredith Crescent, late last night after Perkins Bull had returned by motor from Montreal, brought him down to the front door in his nightshirt, and there served on him the formal document requiring his appearance as a witness at the inquiry opening July 26.

"Where is your son?" he is reported to have been asked by the officers.

"My son is on the high seas," he is said to have replied.

"Do you mean Thomas H. Bull?" he was asked.

The senior Bull refused to reply to this question, it is understood.

Police investigators and officials of the Attorney-General's Department who were in close touch with the situation all day yesterday frankly admitted subsequently that the present whereabout of W. P. Bull Jr. had them baffled.

The inquest decision, made after a week of careful, painstaking deliberations by Queen's Park, and following immediately an all-morning conference between Mr. Conant and investigators and advisers, found Perkins Bull in Montreal.

Under the impression that W. P. Bull Jr. was also there, and knowing that three ocean liners were clearing the port before noon, the Attorney-General took the precaution of having Chief Constable Draper of Toronto direct telegrams to the pair—in care of all three boats—notifying them of the inquest action, and that their attendance would be required by summons.

No Messages Delivered.

Whether Mr. Bull Sr. received his wired notification none seems to know. At one time during an afternoon of confused reports from Montreal the telegraph company concerned reported that none of its six messages had been delivered; that there was nobody by the name of Bull on either the C.P.R. Duchess of Bedford or the Cunard-White Star liners, the Alaunia or the Andania.

At Quebec, however, Quebec police co-operating with the Toronto department, boarded the Bedford, and there located Thomas Henry Bull, another son.

This son, when the situation was explained to him, is said to have volunteered to get off at Father Point this (Saturday) morning if his presence was required in Toronto, but he was not pressed to do so, and as far as is known, continued on his scheduled visit to England.

Although police expected Mr. Bull to return home some time last night, they had no idea of his presence

Dog Day In Mimico Sees 40 Owners Haled Into Court

Mimico, July 16.

IT WAS "DOG DAY" in Mimico Police Court yesterday, when forty residents who had been summoned for failing to procure licenses, appeared before Magistrate W. E. McIlveen. Some who had secured licenses after the summonses had been served were allowed to go, and the remainder were allowed until July 22 to produce licenses. After that date all dogs lacking tags will be seized and destroyed, while the owners are liable to the statutory fine.

Second Mystery Slaying Puzzles B.C.

NELSON B.C., July 16 (CP).—British Columbia police today investigated the Kootenay district's second mysterious slaying within five weeks.

Staff Sergeant C. G. Barber of Nelson described as "brutal murder" the death of Mrs. E. W. Green, 55-year-old native of Truro, N.S., whose body was found yesterday by a railroad crew on the Kettle Valley line near Taghum, five miles from here.

When the body of 18-months-old Carmen Lajeunesse was found in a stream near Ymir earlier this week Sergeant Barber said she had been murdered. The child, who disappeared early in June, was buried here yesterday.

Although no blood was found where Mrs. Green's body was found police said she must have bled profusely from head and hand wounds. Her throat was gashed and her head was covered with dried blood. Her left ankle was broken and her knees bruised as if she had been dragged over the ground. Traces of blood near the railway tracks suggested a struggle there.

New Guild Contract

NEW YORK, July 16 (A.P.). — Milton Kauffman, executive secretary of the American Newspaper Guild, said Ralph McAllister Ingersoll, publisher of Time Magazine, signed a Guild contract last night covering 350 editorial employees of Time, Life, Fortune and Architectural Forum magazines and the March of Time in Radio and Film. The contract, covering Time, Incorporated, employees in all cities, is effective as of last May 1, Kauffman said.

Czechs Again Arming Frontier

Troops Fill Streets Barricades Up Facing Germany

BERLIN, uly 16.—(CP-Haavs).—The official German News Agency reported to-day Czechoslovakia had taken new mobilization steps along the German frontier.

The report came from Waldenburg, in Silesia, not far from the Czechoslovak-German border.

"Since this morning," the agency report said, 'new Czechoslovak mobilization measures have been visible in the entire frontier region from Troppau-Opava to Trautenau."

"Streets are again occupied by soldiers," the agency continued. "New barricades are arranged along the frontier. And with field glasses artillery and machine gun emplacements may be seen. Troops swarm in many regions."

A new regiment has been moved into Braunau, a Czechoslovak town with the same name as Chancellor Hitler's Austrian birthplace, the dispatch said.

The agency declared the Sudeten German minority in Czechoslovakia was aroused by these steps, the more so because they were believed likely to interfere with the harvest in many places.

Horses and cavalry equipment have been requisitioned by Czechoslovak authorities, the German report said, adding many roads important to frontier trade had been closed by the Czech military.

Fascists, Reds Banned

OSHAWA, Ont., July 16.—(CP)—Neither Communists of Fascists may use Oshawa parks or public buildings for meeting purposes, city council declared in a motion passed last night.

The resolution at first confined the ban only to Fascists but an amendment was adopted to make the prohibition also apply to communistic gatherings.

In Toronto last week, Joseph Farr, organizer for the National Unity (Fascist) party, declared his followers would hold a meeting in Oshawa.

"Grabbed" By Bolt

FREELAND, Pa., July 16 (A.P.).—How does it feel to be hit by lightning? "Just like a big hand grabbed me," says John Kalenevitch, who ought to know. He said a bolt hit a rock 15 feet from his automobile, bounced to the machine, and burned out the wiring. Kalenevitch was found wandering in a daze.

Summer Rains Threatening New Disaster In China

SHANGHAI, July 16 (A.P.). — Summer rains, coming close upon spring floods that caused an estimated 150,000 deaths and made 300,000 Chinese homeless in June, presented new perils to-day in beleaguered Honan Province.

Simultaneously, the Chinese claimed a hit-and-run campaign of guerrilla fighters brought victories over Japanese invaders in South Shantung and North Kiangsu Provinces and near Shanghai, and that the situation along the vital Yangtse River continued to favor the Chinese defenders.

Japanese sources reported that the 30-mile motor highway over which Japanese had sent troops and materials between Kaifeng and Lanfeng, in North Central Honan, was washed out as the Yellow River, "China's Sorrow," changed its course following the June floods.

The floods took a vast toll of life, but also thwarted the relentless Japanese advance from Kaifeng westward toward strategic Chengchow.

Daily rains are causing the flooded area around Chengchow Junction of the important Lunghai and Peiping-Hankow Railroads—to increase slowly in size, covering hundreds of square miles.

Single Gaelic Tongue Is The Plea By Manx Judge

Douglas, Isle of Man, July 16.

A COMMON gaelic language was advocated by Deemster Farrant, Manx Senior Judge, in his presidential address to the Celtic congress here.

How was it possible to keep up knowledge of gaelic efficiently when a system of dialects was preserved so the Welshman could not understand the Briton or the Cornishman the Manxman, he asked.

He suggested a commission should be established to investigate the possibility of a common gaelic language for all. About 60 delegates attended, representing Wales, Ireland, Scotland, the Isle of Man and Britanny.

A Drunk Blockade

SANTA MONICA, Calif., July 16 (AP)—Police Chief Charles Dice today launched a "breath sniffing" campaign—stopping all cars at strategic intersections and jailing drivers failing to pass sobriety tests. "It's a drunk blockade," said Dice, declaring most major traffic accidents were due to drunken driving.

Jamaica reports the world has bought 2,000,000 fewer cocoanuts this year than last.

Handwriting Of "A Convict" Is Analyzed

When a special train passed through Peterborough on the evening of the 12th of July carrying prisoners from Kingston to Stoney Mountain, Man., and Prince Albert, Sask., penitentiaries, one of the inmates, though closely guarded, wrote a note on the back of a playing card and tossed it out of the car window as the train was leaving the city. The card was picked up and handed to the Examiner.

There was a reproduction made of it and it appeared in this paper on Wednesday. Reading that note several times naturally aroused a feeling of curiosity as to who had written it. What sort of an individual would he be? Why would he be in prison when most other folk are free?

Seeking the aid of a competent graphologist, the Examiner selected G. Alexander Phare of Toronto. Mr. Phare found it possible to give an adequate sketch of the individual who wrote that note. His analysis is presented here:

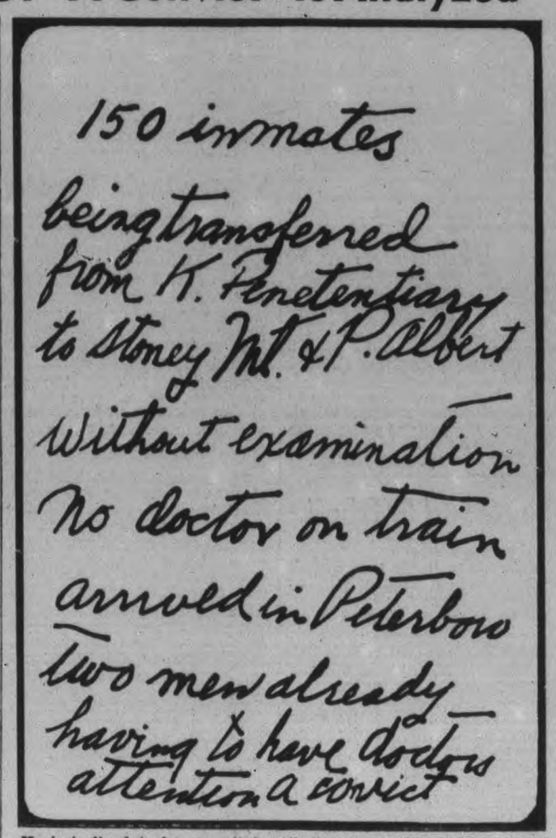
ANALYSIS OF HANDWRITING SIGNED "A CONVICT"

By G. ALEXANDER PHARE

One cannot but feel more than sorry for the writer of this brief note. He is his own worst enemy, has been so since boyhood, is still continuing to be. He has never been entirely balanced mentally—a warped outlook towards others has been the result—and he is morbidly sensitive about his present position, and what he considers his rights.

He is a young man, powerfully built, and in good physical health. His writing shows evident signs of some education, but there has been little if any refinement of nature. Either he was not brought up to it, or else has never been able to make the proper differentiation between right and wrong. He is utterly selfish, and has never had any consideration for the rights or preferences of other people.

Although intellectually weak, he has a powerful, undisciplined will—his greatest drawback. He has never learned to govern himself. He has a decidedly sensual nature, with strong animal appetities. And he has an ungovernable temper. He would be liable to acts of violence when under its control.



He is inclined to be an agitator, feels that he has been badly used, and is actuated by keen resentment.

He is the outcome of a boyhood without discipline, without training in self control. Probably a "lone wolf" at school—for he has never learned to adapt himself to other people. The fast that he was, and is, intellectually weak possible made it difficult for him to keep up with his fellows—threw him out of gear with his family. He fell back on the physical for his self-expression—found that a husky frame enabled him to rule through fear. Today he is out-of-gear with the larger family of society as a whole—a reject from the system that made him what he is. He is to be pitied.

Loyalist Planes Gain Top Hand

HENDAYE, July 16—(AP)—The Spanish Insurgents attacked vigorously on the western flank of the 45-mile Mediterranean front today, advancing slowly down the Teruel-Sagunto highway behind a heavy bombardment from warplanes and artillery.

One column moved forward south of the highway and another north of it, using Sarrion as a base. Their objective was to pinch off the government-controlled sector around Mora De Rubielos, northeast of Sarrion.

Dispatches from Insurgent territory said scores of bombers were blasting government lines in the Sarrion sector and that government troops were in retreat. Advices from Zaragoza said Manzanera, four miles of Sarrion, had been captured.

The immediate aid of the Insurgents was to take Albentosa, on the Teruel-Sagunto highway four miles southeast of Sarrion and centre of roads leading to Manzanera and Mora De Rubielos.

The brunt of the defence was borne by Government Assault Guards and Carabineros, veteran defenders of Madrid, rushed to the Sarrion front under the command of Colonel Hippiito Menendez, commander of the government's eastern armies.

A defence ministry communique issued in Barcelona said government pursuit planes and anti-aircraft batteries had brought down 20 Insurgent planes in three days of intensive aerial war-fare on the eastern front.

Spain Prostrate, Peace Dim Enters 3rd Year Of War

By Charles Nutter.

(Editor's Note: The Spanish civil war is entering its third year. The vital question of what the conflict means is answered in the following story by Charles Nutter, chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Madrid, now in the United States on vacation.)

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP). — Civil war in Spain comes to the end of its second year this week-end with prospects gloomy for an early peace.

Spain is prostrate. Her industry has stopped, her manhood shot down, her cities destroyed, her fields ravaged.

In the dawn of July 18, 1936, 20,000 foregin legionnaires revolted in Spanish Morocco. By nightfall the war reached the mainland.

One one side, Gen. Franco leads an army fighting against what he charges is a communistic tendency. His followers contend Spain's salvation lies in a corporate state such as Fascist Italy's.

Government Spain is fighting to resist what it declares would be a Fascist dictatorship and for a Socialist-Republic State.

Franco's forces now control about 70 per cent of Spanish territory.

Many Cities in Ruins.

In Government Spain, where the big cities are, shellings have laid waste to property. Much of Madrid is in ruins. Barcelona, Valencia, Alicante, Cartagena have suffered heavily.

Every able-bodied male between 17 and 34 has been called to fight. Women are taking factory jobs.

The Government army, though battered and aware it is fighting an uphill battle, constantly grows. It is determined to make the insurgents pay dearly for the victory they expect.

One of the government's main hopes is that the insurgent forces eventually will crack, and that dissension with their foreign allies, particularly the Italians, divide their ranks and strength.

Manpower Main Hope.

The government's strength is in manpower. Best sources indicate government forces total about 600,000, with another 200,000 or 300,000 under call or in training centres.

Franco is believed to have no more than 400,000 or 450,000 troops. The insurgents do not have conscription.

According to the government's statistics, its foreign volunteers now fall well below 10,000. There are about 1,000 Americans and 1,000 Canadians, British, and other English-speaking soldiers. The remainder are largely French, German, Italian and Czechoslovak.

There are no Russians in evidence now anywhere in government Spain. It is believed a few Russian technicians remain, however.

Thousands Start Census Upon Population Of Western Ducks

Regina, July 16.

THOUSANDS of municipal secretaries and interested sportsmen throughout Western Canada prepared today to take the second census of the West's duck population under the direction of Ducks Unlimited.

Last census was taken in 1935, revealing a population of some 40,000 fowl.

In Saskatchewan alone, about 2,500 persons will assist in the census, filling out forms provided by Ducks Unlimited.

Admiral 56, Retiring For Younger Man Shows Cadets He's Still Fit

London, July 16.

ADMIRAL SIR Edward Evans today told cadets of the training ship Exmouth in the Thames that he was retiring in December, but not on account of ill health.

To prove it, he went through a series of physical jerks on the slippery deck despite the encumbrance of a sword.

"There you are," the Admiral said. "Some of us old ones are just as tough as you young ones—and not even breathing hard."

Sir Edward, who is 56, said he was retiring to make way for younger men. During the war he commanded H.M.S. Broke which, with H.M.S. Swift, engaged and defeated six German destroyers.

Jobless Sent To Fight B.C. Fires

200 Rushed To Island From Vancouver At 25 Cents An Hour

VANCOUVER, July 16—(CP)—The British Columbia Forestry Branch has hired 200 of Vancouver's unemployed and prepared to send them to Menzies Bay where a forest blaze is raging over hundreds of acres of Vancouver Island timber.

J. H. McVety, British Columbia Superintendent of the Employment Service of Canada, sent out the call yesterday. He said the men would receive 25 cents an hour.

The men will go to Nanaimo by special boat. There they will board special buses to travel to the scene of the fire, 100 miles north.

Earlier British Columbia Forestry Branch Officials said they saw little prospect for immediate relief from an "extremely serious forest fire situation" on Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

200 Fires in U. S.

SEATTLE, July 16(AP)— More than 2,000 men fighting 200 Pacific northwest forest fires today were heartened by forecasts of cooler weather and increasing humidity.

In most instances the fires were the result of a heat wave and thunderstorms.

Washington State was hit hardest, especially western Washington's wooded slopes and valleys where the majority of the state's 100 fires were burning.

Seventy-three other fires burned in the Siskiyou forest in Southern Oregon and Northern California, and the remainder were scattered through Northwestern Oregon, Northern Idaho and in British Columbia North of Vancouver and Victoria.

The largest fire in the area burned uncontrolled today—the Ryderwood blaze in Long-Bell Lumber Company, holdings which in a week and a half has burned over 20,000 acres.

Another fire threatened to close Snoqualmie Pass, cross-State Highway.

A cigarette was blamed for this blaze, which halted just short of a preserved stand of Giant Douglas Firs when the wind veered.

A Drunk Waits

NEW HAMBURG, Ont., July 16 (CP).—A New Hamburg resident was telling friends today of a sequel to his recent purchase of a discarded street car from the Kitchener Public Utilities Commission. The car owner said he saw a man standing for two hours on the street outside the house where the street car was. The car owner, puzzled, asked the waiting man who was intoxicated what he was waitnng for. The man pointed at the street car and made bitter comments at its slowness in starting.

Wheat Skids 4 Cents On Week's Closing

WINNIPEG, July 16 — (CP). — Nervousness of traders over reaction to the United States farm loan and uncertainty regarding the new American crop acreage allotment program over-rode bullish influences on the Winnipeg Market this week.

After sluggish trading throughout the week- action filled the closing half of Thursday's operations when wheat futures skidded nearly four cents.

July wheat was the heavy loser. After topping the dollar mark early in the week for the first time in more than two weeks, it tumbled from $1.02 to 98 cents.

Future prices ranged from unchanged to 2⅞ cents lower, and closed Friday with July at 98, October 77¼, November 76¾ and December 75½ cents.

Buyers appeared to lack confidence, particularly in the export field which was almost deserted. Overseas buyers also bought sparingly with Australia accounting for most of the business, including sale of two cargoes of flour to the Orient.

Business in Canadian wheat was featured by improved sales of durums, with Greece the best buyer. Sales of this variety were estimated at 500,000 bushels.

Glick Fur Case Judgment Is Reserved

ELSAS, Ont., July 16 (C.P.). — A court trial centering around the fur industry of Northern Ontario has started in this trading village about 200 air miles north of Sudbury. Jacob Isaac Glick, suspected leader of a beaver poaching ring, is on trial on a series of charges under the game laws.

The trial is being held in an Ontario Forestry Branch warehouse, with crude benches as the only accommodation for the many spectators. An Anglican clergyman acts as interpreter for the Indian witnesses from neighboring Kapuskasing Lake Reserve.

Afetr six Indians told of sales of beaver pelts to Glick, a Sudbury merchant or his agent, Magistrate Willard Cooper reserved judgment yesterday on the first of six charges. He did so on request of Glick's counsel, G. M. Miller, who asked that judgment be suspended until July 25 when Glick faces further charges at Sudbury.

Two Government officials also gave evidence at yesterday's hearing. G. M. Parks, superintendent of game and fisheries at North Bay, told the court beaver had been protected by a close season since 1935. For that reason, no licence could be obtained for purchase of beaver pelts in Ontario.

Indian Did Buying

Evidence by the Indians was to the effect that Glick used an Indian as agent to do the actual buying and selling after Glick made the preliminary approaches. The other government witness was game warden Lawrence Hemphill, in charge of the Chapleau Game Reserve.

Hemphill recalled having seized a number of books listing purchases of furs when he visited a house where Glick was staying. Some of the books were in the fur merchant's pockets and others were in his club bag with a code book.

The game warden said Indians had gone out after beaver throughout the northland on the strength of promises that they would be paid $9 a pelt. Actually they only received around $2.

Bail of $2,000 for Glick was renewed at the conclusion of the hearing and his trial on other charges in the Elsas court will proceed at a later date.

Food And Rents Soar But Wages Stay Low

TORONTO, July 16—(CP).—Miss Marjorie Bell, director of the Visiting Homemakers' Association, said to-day Toronto food prices are nearly 20 per cent higher than five years ago, clothing has increased, and rents are sky-high, but the average weekly wage has hovered around the $17 weekly mark.

"That wage doesn't meet the cost of the basic necessities of life," Miss Bell declared. "Anyone earning that amount cannot hope to support a wife and three children, the average family."

Miss Bell placed the minimum income for a family of two adults and three children, between 6 and 14, at $23.66.

"That is the very minimum on which such a family could hope to exist and the budget does not include tea, coffee, or any fancy foods or entertainment."

WARSAW, July 16. — A very heavy electric storm passed over this area a little after noon on Wednesday. The rain came down in torrents and some telephone lines were put out of order. Canadain Stocks Move Up On Mine Reports

TORONTO, July 16 (C.P.).—Despite the mid-summer heat, the absence of holidaying traders from the board rooms and the intermittent weakness of the New York market, Canadian stocks maintained an upward slant this week, developing the greatest action on days of price strength.

Base Metal shares registered the widest general advance, but, aside from the sensational performance of Waite-Amulet, the heavy trading was in the medium-price and junior golds.

Information regarding results of the early summer operations on a number of the newer producers and prospects is beginning to seep southward, disclosing promising ore discoveries on lower levels and giving the share market a stimulus in recent sessions. Chesterville, Larder Lake, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Hard Rock, O'Brien and Naybob all thrived in the latest period on drill-core news. The gold share index of the Toronto list gained .51.

The base metal index advanced to a new high for the year at 91.44, a gain of 1.72 for the week. Waite-Amulet set the pace with a net advance of $1.30, closing yesterday at $6.30.

Hudson Bay advanced $1.00, while International Nickel, Consolidated Smelters, and Noranda were unchanged to slightly lower, uninfluenced by the slightly firmer tone of the London metal market.

Senior Golds Go Light.

Trading in the senior golds was comparatively light. Buyers gave their main attention to the younger crop of golds and quite a few of the juniors pushed along to higher prices on substantial turnover.

Steel stocks registered the expectations of executives for a slice of the British Government's war aircraft business. National Steel Car advanced about $6 to a new high at $51.50, and Canadian Car and Foundry Common also posted a new high gaining more than $2 in the week.

Implement stocks continue to draw support from the promising crop outlook and net gains for the week were recorded by the Massey-Harris stocks and Cockshutt Plow. Building and utility stocks dragged and beverage stocks, while generally firm, were comparatively dull. Mild weakness appeared in the senior oil group. Paper shares dipped in the opening sessions of the week, but they recovered most of their losses as the period advanced.

Sees Ottawa Trolleys Gone In 30 Years

OTTAWA, July 16 (CP).—Street cars will vanish from the centre of the capital within the next 20 or 30 years, Jacques Greber, noted French town-planner, who is advising the Canadian government in the development and beautification of Ottawa, said today.

In an interview, the noted architect dwelt on the plan for the Plaza, in the heart of the city, where the National War Memorial will be placed. Work has already been started in the earea, the old post office has been torn down and work begun on the base for the memorial.

Greber said he was opposed to street car tracks running by the National War Memorial. "It is ridiculous to have a railroad running through the centre of a city," he said. "All large metropolitan areas are dispensing with or have long dispensed with street cars as a means of transportion in congested areas."

Other projects with which Mr. Greber is assisting in the location and planning include the new $2,000,000 supreme court building.

Mr. Greber spent several months in a detailed study of capital beautification and submitted a plan which would take from 25 to 50 years to complete at a cost of $30,000,000.

PITTSBURGH, July 16—(AP).—Police held 11 negro and 6 white youths in jail for hearings to-day on charges of inciting to riot after several outbreaks of violence in Pittsburgh's Northside and Lawrenceville districts.

After roving bands of white and negro youths swept through the areas last night several persons were treated for injuries, one man for a possible skull fracture.

The disorders followed sporadic street fights in the Northside district on Wednesday night. Police said the violence rasult d from a long dispute between boys of the two races over recreational facilities.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James
Toronto

WHAT DO I KNOW OF THE BIBLE? THE PROPHET.

"COME, let us go to the SEER."—1 Sam. 9:9.

"AND thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest."—St. Luke 1:76.

"The asses of Kish Saul's father were lost." Saul's servant suggests their going to Samuel, the Seer, and give him money that he may tell them where they are. Have we advanced very far in three thousand years? Tea-cup reading, fortune telling, astrology find a ready market. Divination is a very ancient craft and is found at the root of all ancient religions. These seers appear to have the gift of looking into the future by means of trance or drugs. From this wild root sprang the prophet of Israel.

The Hebrews were a small portion of the Semitic race. Why did they not "revert to type" as their cousins, the Moabites, the Edomites, the Syrians, and finally become degraded nature worshippers, sensual and cruel, which is the outstanding trait of the Syrian? The answer is the prophet, the man of God, the man from God. In those early days the prophet was a man of intense emotional temperament, subject to a sort of frenzy, hysteria, possibly stimulated by dancing and singing. Such were the four hundred prophets of Baal, who whirled around the altar on Mount Carmel, cutting themselves with knives. Elijah laughed them to scorn.

"Is Saul also among the prophets? was probably a comment by saner, less temperamental men, who were surprised that their leader should be given to such extravagance. The prophet apparently was not held in high repute. Sane, thoughtful men today look with grave abhorrence on similar manifestations of excitement. They are dangerous, to put it mildly.

Yet through God's guidance from this crude, passionate, dangerous beginning, there grew and developed that most powerful group of men we call prophets — the PROPHETS of Holy Scripture.

Even to this day the prophet is looked upon as a Seer, one who foretells the future. This was not the greatest work of the ancient prophet of Israel. He was not a foreteller but a FORTHTELLER. They were men of God who had a deep sense of the spiritual world and of God's nearness to them. Through deep meditation and thought they realized some truth of God's character. This truth often filled their hearts with dismay. It was a burden. The revelation came to them not through excitement but through the nearness of God speaking to them. "The still small voice."

Amos, the earliest of the writing prophets, 760 B.C., was a herdman living a lonely life on the barren hill tops of Judea. He told his hearers that he is not "a prophet or the son of a prophet." He is not a man moved by emotional stress. Yet he has heard the voice of Jehovah. "Thus said the Lord." He must speak, though it was pain and grief to him. Hearken to his message:— "Let Judgment roll down like streams and righteousness like a mighty stream." It was a new revelation that Jehovah thought of the individual poor and down-trodden. "Be just and upright in all your dealings" is necessary today in the face of our social problems. It is a proof that the reading of the Bible is doing you good, changing your character, if you are thinking of your neighbor.

Then in the fullness of time was born John the Baptist, who fearlessly proclaimed righteousness and purity of life as more necessary than sacrifice and offerings on the altar at Jerusalem. He rebuked Herod and Herod beheaded him in prison. John the Baptist was far removed from the smooth, suave sooth-sayer or diviner. The difference between him and the sooth-sayer was character, personality. The prophet was a man from God, a man who had a deep sense of his call from God.

Perhaps you have a son. You are not stretching the ancient statement of Zacharias when you offer this prayer for your boy. "Thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest." This age needs the prophet, the man of God who has a deep sense and knowledge of God's character and mind. He is to tell forth the thoughts of God for his generation. What an ideal for your boy:— "To give light to them that sit in darkness"—how great is the darkness"—"and to guide their feet into the way of peace.

For My sake and the Gospel's go
And tell redemption's story;
His heralds answer, "be it so,
And Thine, Lord, all the glory."
—E. H. Bickersteth.

A National Message

By The Late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

Every student who reads his Bible intelligently as an ordinary Book must admit that the Hebrew nation was itself the Church of God.

St. Stephen speaks of the Church as "the church or congregation in the wilderness" (Acts VII, 38) and refers undoubtedly to Israel. To this nation and church pertained the adoption, the covenants, the giving of the law, the Service of God and the promises; and unto them were committed the oracles of God (Rom. III): "He sheweth his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his Judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation; and as for his judgments, they have not known them (Psalm CXLVII, 20).

Such was the unique position of Israel. "You only have I known of all the families of the earth." Amos III, 2.

She was the church of the living God, chosen by God to be His witness in the world. Now the continuity of this Church as God's witness has never been broken. It is evident from the Epistle to the Romans that the Gentiles were admitted into the covenanted blessings forfeited by the House of Judah, but no Gentile Church was formed.

St. Paul (Rom. XI) asks, "Hath God cast away His people" and the reply is "No! God forbid." He then shows under the figure of the "good olive tree," which is Israel, the visible Church of God and its condition in the world. The "Root" is Abraham and its "Natural branches" his seed. Some of the Branches, the House of Judah, are broken off; "and they", that is the Roman Church, "being a wild olive branch were grafted in among the branches," these branches being the natural branches, to wit, Israel. It is therefore evident that the Church of God is not Gentile, for if the root and branches are Israel then no grafting can alter the parent stock.

So Israel continues to be the visible Church of God to this day. And certainly Israel remains "a nation": for when our Lord took away the Kingdom from Judah: "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." (Matt. XXI, 43) it was obviously given to Israel. For by the oath of Jehovah, it could not be given to any but the seed of Israel, and it was for this purpose that the division was made in 975 B.C. and it is this Nation that our Lord refers to as a stone when He says, "Whosoever shall fall upon this stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder." (Matt. XXI, 44).

Here then we see Israel the nation and the Church of God victorious. Israel is spoken of in Scripture as an holy nation, a kindom of priests, a peculiar people (Exod. XIX, 5-6), His chosen one (1 Chron. XVI, 19). Jehovah speaks of them as "Jacob, My servant," and "Israel, whom I have chosen," and describes them as His Witnesses (Isa. XLIII 10). They are spoken of as His sheep, His flock, His people, His heritage, His first-born (Ezek. XXXIV; Jer. XII and III). Where are these people now to be found who were visited and redeemed by our Lord?

Cathedral Musings

"I think, therefore I am" is good sound philosophy, provided we know enough about ourselves to be sure of the origin of our thoughts. By that, we mean we should determine if the thought originates in the spiritual "I", or the outer objectively intellectual "I", or is it set in motion by the stimulus of the animal "I". Superficially, this may seem to be a purely academical question without practical bearing, but if we add to "I think, therefore I am," the corollary, "I am what I think", or as the Bible puts it, "As a man thinketh in his heart" etc., the question assumes its proper and very real importance. For we actually do become, in essence, according to the predominating nature of our thoughts. The Master illustrated this truth in a slightly different form when he stated that the thought constituted the deed, was in fact the esesnce of the deed. Eliphas Levi, in his monumental work on high and transcendental magic, puts it again in another form: "Every logos (i.e. every thought that is endowed with creative force by emotion and will) within the radius of its action, creates what it affirms." We need not remind our readers that the word "magic" originally and properly signifies spiritual knowledge and wisdom, as in the case of the Three Wise Men, the Magi, who were led by the star of Bethlehem, the world has nothing in common with its present day usage in connection with entertainments based on ocular illusion and sleight of hand.

So we see the vital importance of censoring our inmost thoughts, for they determine our natures. The thought is the cause, the outer behavior is the effect. Again, reverting to Levi, we can grasp that prayer, which is "magic", in the true sense, can often be made ineffective, because it may have neither will nor emotion to visualize it. Only in this connection we must consider that the necessary preliminary meditation and attunement brings us into such harmony with the Divine Mind, that it is God's will, not ours, that supplies the creative power and that our emotion is the thing necessary to bring this about. Then does God answer our prayers in the method most suitable. The fatal thing here is when we attempt to dictate to Him as to the method or means to be employed, if we do that then we fail even before we begin.

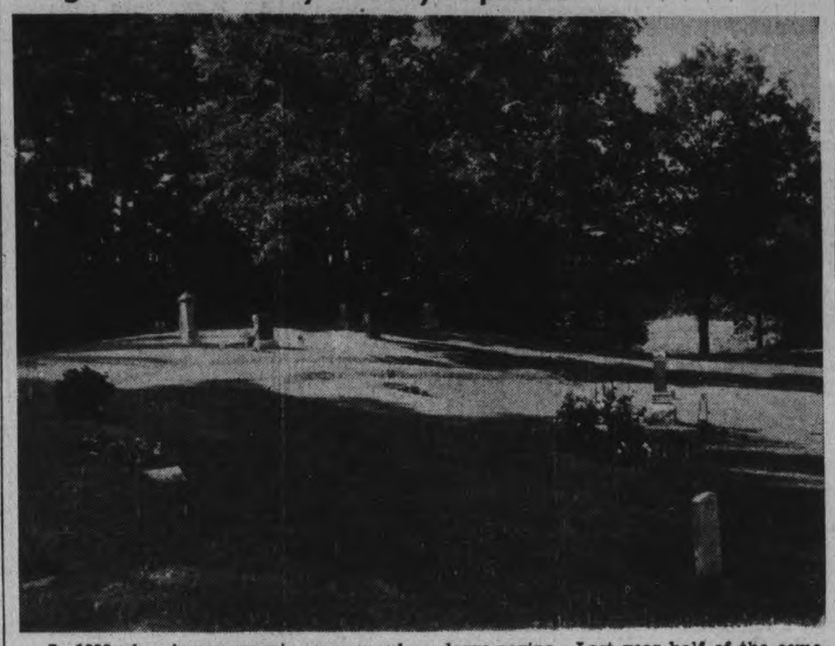
Bridgenorth Cemetery Greatly Improved



In 1933 when improvements commenced the Bridgenorth Cemetery had grown up with briars and weeds. Since then this has all been removed and the whole ground workable. The sum of $450 has been spent, and 2,700 yards of filler earth has been drawn in to level up and also to fill in a large ravine. Last year half of the cemetery was spaded and re-seeded. The board was graciously indebted to the farmers with teams who gave 65 days' free labor, also 20 days with plows and scrapers. Lot holders are charged a small fee for caretaking.

Deborah—Emergency Leadership

"BRASS TOCKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above title for July 17 is Judges 4:1-5:31, especially 4:1-9, 12-14. The Golden Text being, Esther 4:14, "Who knoweth whether thou art not come to the which we get ourselves are the direct this?").

MOST OF THE emergencies into which we get outselves are the direct result of our sin. By the evil we do we "get outselves into a jam, and then we call upon the Lord to deliver us, instead of praying beforehand, "Lead us not into temptation. In the days of the Judges Israel was continually doing this. The burned child seemed never to learn. "And the children of Isreal again did that which was evil in the sight of Jehovah and Jehovah sold them into the hand of Jabin, of whose host was Sisera. . . . and the children of Israel cried unto Jehovah: for he had 900 chariots of iron; and 20 years he mightily oppressed the children of Israel. Thus punishment runs in the wake of sin and makes the way of the transgressor hard.

A Woman Leader.

God is no respecter of persons, and so in that early day, as in the days of the New Testament church, it might have been said that with God "there is neither male nor female." That Deborah could overcome the prejudice of that day against her sex, and rise to the place of dominant national leadership, is of itself a high tribute to her strength of character. For 20 years her people had suffered oppression at the hands of Jabin and his cruel general, Sisera. During these years of national humiliation no man was forthcoming as the nation's deliverer, so Deborah became the Joan of Arc of her day for her people's deliverance when God's purpose in their punishment had served its purpose in bringing them to repentance.

"Now Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lappidoth, she judged Israel at that time . . . and the children of Israel came up to her for judgment and she sent and called Barak, the son of Abinoam out of Kedesh-naphtali and said unto him, Hath not Jehovah, the God of Israel, commanded saying, Go and draw unto Mount Tabor and take with thee ten thousand men . . . and I will draw unto thee, to the river Kishon, Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, with his chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thy hand.

Barak the "Clinging Vine"

A fine tribute is paid to Deborah's inspiring leadership when Barak makes her presence with the army the condition of his acceptance of its command: "If thou wilt go with me, then I will go; but if thou wilt not go with me, I will not go. and she said, I will surely go with thee: notwithstanding, the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honor; for Jehovah will sell Sisera into the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose and went with Barak to Kedesh." But she went as the "sturdy oak" and Barak as the "clinging vine." It was Deborah who sounded the battle-cry that inspired Barak and his men and drove them on to victory: "Doborah said unto Barak, up: for this is the day in which Jehovah hath delivered Sisera into thy hand: is not Jehovah gone out before thee? . . . And Jehovah discomfited Sisera and all his chariots, and all his host with the edge of the sword before Barak." In the eleventh chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, which has been called "Israel's Westminster Abbey," the author includes a niche for Barak among the heroes of faith "who through faith from weakness were made strong, waxed mighty in war and turned to fight the army of aliens."

Police Subdue Pickets

GUELPH, Ont., July 16 (CP).—A brief melee between police and pickets at the Biltmore Hat Company occurred to-day when two men endeavored to enter the plant. Pickets endeavored to prevent the entry of the men, and police hastened to halt the trouble. One officer drew a billy, but no one was injured. More than a hundred pickets were on the job to-day. A commissary has been set up and is in operation 24 hours a day. No negotiations have been started as yet. The men seek union recognition and conditions.

Miss Helen Cole Is To Sing In City

Miss Helen Cole of London, Ont., will be soloist at the morning service of St. Andrew's and Trinity congregations held in Trinity Church. In the evening another problem of life will be discussed:

"Do you not think that a once unified world was disjointed by the rise of Protestanism, and that unity can only be secured again by those who deserted the Roman Catholic Church returning to her ranks?"

The Protestant sects have as many faiths as they have individuals, and these change their beliefs daily and drift more widely apart until not a shadow is left of Christ's Christianity which Catholics still preach and practice. I should appreciate your views on this situation. The late Bishop Brent's great utterance at the Lausanne Conferenec of 1927: "there has never yet been schism without sin," is probably true, but the sin has not always been that of the people who revolted against what they believed to be arbitrary authority.

Deborah—Emergency Leadership ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher
Scripture—Judges 4:1-5:31.

The Book of Judges records the history of twelve national leaders of Israel whom God used as deliverers of the children of Israel. Among these is Deborah, a woman of great strength of character.

For twenty years Sisera had cruelly oppressed her people when God raised Deborah to inspire patriotism enough to end this oppression. She sought Barak to raise an army to war against Sisera.

Sisera's forces outnumbered Barak's; besides, they were equipped with iron chariots. God's rains made them useless and Sisera was defeated and slain by a woman named Jael.

Deborah celebrated the victory with a song, praising God for giving victory — giving credit to all who had supported God's cause.

Our Biggest Problem

Twenty-six transients were arrested in Regina because they were begging on the streets. When they were placed in jail they sang and shouted and next day in court pleaded not guilty to the general charge of vagrancy and begging. Outside a crowd of 400 held a meeting and passed resolutions demanding the immediate release of the locked-up men.

The provincial authorities say they will provide money for transportation to send these 26 home. They do not belong in Regina, but their homes are in Quebec, with the exception of one Englishman and one Scotsman. A survey made of the group revealed the average age was 20. One of the number was 16 and he was released and placed in charge of the Salvation Army, an organization which seems ready at any place and at any time to step in and do something when the needs presents itself.

We have had this same problem before us now for years and it remains where it has been—unsolved. Most of us are willing to come to the conclusion that it's none of our business. But it is. We are for the most part content to say "Why doesn't the government do anything about it?" And then and there we stop. Putting our own people to work is the biggest problem before the Canadian people today and until that is solved nothing else matters much.

When a Man Is Sick

There was something in the paper today about a prominent man in New York, but it is not necessary to mention his name. The item really amounts to so little it's a wonder it got on the wire. He had taken a cold and was ordered to bed for a week and some big deal he was swinging has been tied up meantime. That is, things came to somewhat of a stop when he went to bed.

So for the moment we consider the case of William McDonald, editor of the Chesley Enterprise, Chesley being a town of some 1,700 people in Bruce County. Recently William published a note saying that for 47 years he had been the editor of the paper. And still is. For a while he was member of the Legislature for his riding and when he took occasion to speak there was a movement in the premises, for when William McDonald had something to say which he considered needed saying he took the buttons off the foil before commencing the attack.

He was a good man for his home town, active in many things even on Sunday when he attended and taught in the Sabbath school. It is several years now since William McDonald suffered a stroke, and he has not been at the office since. They put him to bed and kept him there for weeks, but he insisted on getting out his own editorial page, and for months he did it in bed. Now he is able to sit up a little and he works away on his beloved page. His son attends to the rest of the business but the pen of the chief of the house voices the opinions. And it has been that way for years. We could not but think of William McDonald of the Chesley Enterprise when reading of the financier in New York whose plans were all held up when he went to bed for a week with a cold.

Not So Simple

Arnold Cameron escaped from the police in Peterborough on the 12th day of July. There was an unusual crowd on the streets and it must be admitted that the young man made an unusual effort to get away. There were several reports and rumors regarding where he had been seen but it was plain enough he had escaped from the city.

On the night of July 14 Constable Simnett of Lindsay received a message that Cameron was standing in front of the Hospital, and there the constable found him and placed him under arrest.

On July 15 Cameron was in court at Peterborough and was charged with breaking from custody for which he received six months. The young man was out on parole from the Reformatory, and having broken parole he will have to go back.

Apart from that there is something else worth mentioning. When a man makes an escape the chances are he is going to be caught. The news of his escape and telling all about him was printed in the papers all over the province. If he leaves one community the police in the next place will be looking for him because they have been advised to do so. It is also a fortunate factor in this country that we have citizens who are willing and ready to help the police. In Lindsay the police had not seen Cameron, but a citizen had and he at once notified a policeman. When the escaping man was standing on the side of the road in Lindsay he may have taken it for granted that he was doing fairly well in getting away. Had he been fearful of being recognized he would never have stopped in so conspicuous a place. The truth is there were people looking for him no matter where he went and they were not all wearing uniforms either.

Seeing The Wind Change

The storm which visited Peterborough district on Thursday afternoon must have been general. It was particularly severe in Galt at the noon hour and appears to have broken at Hamilton a short time after. It seemed to have reached its peak in Peterborough at 2.12 in the afternoon as at that hour several electric clocks stopped when a bolt landed on a transformer in the north end of the city.

There must have been a great many farmers in the district who entertained fears for a time that their standing grain crops were going to be flattened. The storm came up deliberately; it grew blacker in all quarters and there was that broken appearance in some of the clouds which generally indicates the coming of high winds. But the wind was not severe although the downpour of rain was emphatic.

The probabilities had predicted the storm, and had also said the wind would change. The wind did change and it was at exactly 2 o'clock. From the corner window of the Examiner it is possible to see the flag on the post office. It had been blowing with a wind from the southwest and at 2 o'clock it turned as deliberately as though a hand had moved it and indicated the wind was coming from the northwest. Those who witnessed it admitted that never before had they seen such plain evidence of the manner in which a change in the wind takes place.

The gentleman who keeps the official weather records says it was plain as a pikestaff a storm of some proportion was on the way; it had been evident for several days and for some time prior to the outbreak the barometer had been steadily falling. According to his observations it "just had to come." The folk in the district will be grateful enough that damage to the splendid crops now waiting to be harvested was so slight.

The Salaries of Teachers

S. H. Henry, secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, believes there should be a law passed making it compulsory to mention the salary paid when schools are advertising for teachers. He says teachers are now and then discharged for the purpose of filling the vacancy with a cheaper teacher.

In the latest issue of Toronto papers there is but one announcement calling for applications for a secondary school post, but there are twenty announcing vacancies in primary schools. The highest salary mentioned is for a Roman Catholic school at $900 per year. Another school mentions $80 per month, but whether that is for the full year or the teaching months is not stated. Others are at $800, $725 and on down to $600. In all there are seven places where the salary is mentioned, and in the other 13 it is expected that the applicant will state the salary in the letter forwarded to the secretary of the school board. A teacher working for $600 a year will receive on the basis of a year's work $50 per month, and that is about the same as the minimum wage law provides for girls working in cities.

There does not appear to be any hard and fast practice in force now because in the list of twenty primary schools referred to seven of them make mention of salary and thirteen say nothing about it. If a school were willing to pay $800 and another one $600 it would seem natural enough the $800 place would receive more applications and from better teachers.

The Examiner has been informed that a great many of the applications forwarded to secretaries of school boards are from those who are already teaching. The applicants answer a number of advertisements just to see if they can secure something better in the way of salary than they are now receiving, so the fact that as high as 100 applications may be sent to a secretary does not mean there are that many teachers without schools; the great majority of them are teaching now.

It's All Very Clear

A reader of the Examiner is somewhat worried because she wants to know what electricians mean when they speak about energy in terms which she does not understand. Her inquiry states:

"Now and then I see reference to such things as volts, ohms, amperes and watts and I have asked several times to have it made clear so I would know what these words mean. Can you simplify the language of the electrician so that the average person can understand it?"

Surely. If there is one thing in which we take delight it is explaining things. Particularly difficult things; we rather dote on that kind of work and doing it seems to give the feeling that one is not laboring in vain.

Now, we have never seen a volt, and from close enquiry in informed circles we have never met with any person who has gazed upon a volt. But that makes little difference for there are many things we have never seen which can be explained. A volt we find is "electromotive force equal to about 96.6% of that given off by one Daniell's battery cell."

That being so simple and apparent we will proceed with the next word, although at the moment we do not recall having seen a Daniell's battery cell for some time. Perhaps never. The ohm is also a comparatively simple thing to understand, because it is about the same as using the word resistance, and resistance is of course the power we apply to deal with bill collectors, taxes and old age. To be more definite, an ohm is "the resistance offered to the passage of a current of electricity by a thread of mercury 106 cm. long and 1 mm. cross section at the temperature of melting ice." With such an adequate definition we are certain our correspondent will agree it is unnecessary to offer any more detailed description. Also it might be confusing—to us.

Coming to the word ampere we find the two previous words joined in the process of explanation. An ampere (pronounced that way) is the current one volt will drive through one ohm. The watt of course is the manner in which they measure power and is equal to 44 foot pounds per minute. Of course our inquiring reader will know what a foot pound is (we don't), and it might be added that if one is able to gather 746 watts in one place at one time then that equals one horse power. One horse power is the power required to raise 33,000 pounds one foot in one minute. The actual working power of a good horse is about 4-5 of a horse power and the average man is about 1-8 of a horse power. Of course what a man can do and what a horse can do was not mentioned in the question asked, but we always like to throw a little whipped cream on the milk of hard fact. We presume our correspondent wants to know how to read the electric meter down in the cellar at the house.

NOTE AND COMMENT

PINK SEDAN

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I fear my pink sedan must go, because it's getting old and slow, it runs like it might drop; I fear when I'm ten miles from homes, and travelling in it all alone, it might forever stop.

¶ I know by name now each defect, nor does it suffer from neglect, I give it lots of time; and I have bound up broken things, and tied on little bolts and springs, with wire and binder twine.

¶ I used to know just what to do, to make it start and bring me through, 'twould snort a while then roar; but now alas I find it so, the tricks I knew won't make it go, they don't work any more.

¶ I asked my friends to drive with me, but it was very plain to see, they didn't want to come; I knew they feared some thing might break, on any little trip we'd take, before the ride was done.

¶ And all the motor cars that go, they toot at me because I'm slow, despise my pink sedan; I hear hard words as they pass by, they ask who is the ancient guy, who drives that rattle can.

¶ When people scoff I do not care, I simply mind my own affair, I'll let them rant or groan; the thing that worries me a lot, is that my pink sedan will stop—when I'm ten miles from home.

Rule Palestine! It's A Tough Job

(By F. D. R. in Brantford Expositor)

AS EVENTS HAVE turned out, Great Britain assumed a very serious menacing responsibility when she accepted a mandate over Palestine.

As far back as 1917, Lord Curzon, former Viceroy of India, and a man who had enjoyed a very wide experience with many peoples, voiced the opinion that the contemplated program with regard to that country was impracticable and would lead to inevitable trouble between the Jews and the Arabs.

It was the same Lord Curzon who expressed apprehension of a European war long before it commenced in 1914 and predicted that it would be started for "the aggrandizement of the German Empire, at the expense of Great Britain."

He was right in the one case and thus far is proving right in the other.

At this moment vast numbers of special police and British soldiers are endeavoring to keep matters in check but the levies continue with many killed on both of the contesting sides and a large number of others injured.

Not long ago a writer in the Contemporary Review of London, England, gave the following attitude of the two contending forces.

The Arab nationalists say: The Jewish immigration is changing Palestine from an Arab land into a Jewish one; they obtain possession of the best land, driving the fellaheen from the soil; they have grasped the natural wealth of the country for themselves — the mineral riches of the Dead Sea, the water-power of the Jordan; the influx of Jewish capital has brought with it a process of social differentiation which is dissolving the ancient social constitution of the country.

The Jews reply: Palestine and Transjordan have still room for hundreds of thousands of people. Jewish labor and capital have brought Palestine new life. Not one Arab has become poorer through the Jewish immigration. The land on which the Jews have settled was for the most part swamp or untouched steppe, a pasturage for cattle, sparsely inhabited before they worked on it.

Writing in a French journal, Andre Paiert recently made the assertion that as a result of personal investigation he was convinced that much of the trouble among the Arabs had been deliberately fomented by Mussolini as an embarrassment to England and everyone will recall the not long ago statement of the Dictator that he was the defender of Islam.

M. Paiert adds that Italy is not the only intermeddler as he found that arms used by the Nationalist Arabs are "provided for the most part by Germany."

There can also be no question that Lawrence, that phenomenal man who rendered such fine service in the Great War, promised the Arabs many things, without official authority and that they have been sore over their non-fulfillment.

It was on this score that Lawrence ultimatley left direct government service and became a Royal Air Force mechanic under the name of Shaw.

As a culmination of the incidents mentioned there is now the danger of an Arab uprising far beyond the confines of Palestine and the suggestion is made by one well known correspondent that both Italy and Germany have had a hand in creating much of the existing tragedy.

The Feuhrer because he hates the idea of the Jews obtaining refuge anywhere and Il Duce because it suits him to worry England and also to divert attention from events in Spain and his connection with them.

Whatever the explanation may be, the fact remains that John Bull has a very disquieting job on his hands and that complications have arisen in Arab areas outside of the Holy Land.

DESPERATE JAPAN.

(Detroit News)

AN EXPERIENCED American observer, writing the press from the Far East, likens the Japanese effort in China to that of a man in quicksand, sinking lower and lower as he struggles to wrest himself free. As the strain begins to tell on the national resources and economy, he says, there will grow an awareness of the futility of Japan's first ambitious design, which will hasten its collapse.

Others, also well informed believe there is a great deal of wishful thinking in any prophecy now of Japanese failure. They remember the Ethiopians, who were to stand off the Italian indefinitely in their native hills, and whose defenses fell even more speedily than the Duce had dared to hope.

All we know for sure is that overtures for an end to the Far Eastern fighting seem to issue from Tokyo, not from the side of China. The latest throws in bait calculated to tempt the self-interest of Western powers with spheres of influence, in a China divided five ways. "The plan," says an Associated Press dispatch, "had little chance of early acceptance by the Chinese government of Chiang Kai-Shek." There may be in it a motive not on the surface, but at any rate, it is not victory talk that comes from Tokyo. A belligerent people in the mood for conquest do not dream of peace if an ultimate success is anywhere in view.

IN EIGHT DECADES.

(Providence Journal)

IT WILL BE well to remember that The Japan we see in action now is not the nation with which our Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry of Newport negotiated the open-door treaty in 1854. That was a nation of unbelievably ancient ways, and a people whose good qualities were manifested in the subsequent flowering of contact with the Occident. It is not to be believed that they have changed essentially in eight decades. But it is to be surmised that they have been betrayed by their ruthless and extraordinarily powerful military overlords into misusing the tools and ideas obtained from Occidental nations. Thus the question of greatest importance that remains to be answered is, whether, and when, the people of Japan will again assert their basic character, and become one with a civilized world?

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

CITY PARKS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Having the pleasure of visiting Jackson's Park on Wednesday afternoon (the City's half-holiday) and having my evening meal with my family and friends in this park I was very much impressed with the wisdom and thoughtfulness of our officials and those who were in any way responsible for providing parks, and to the Parks Commission who have arranged tables and benches where whole families of this city may leave their homes and have their evening meal out in the open air and get lessons on nature study.

I also visited the bathing beach on the creek where the wisdom of our officials was also demonstrated, and what a sight to see forty children with their colorful bathing suits and caps splashing, diving and swimming (in which they have become very efficient) and where the youngest child soon gets courage to enter the water knowing that it is not too deep.

As I viewed with delight this scene and I thought of the future when these boys and girls would be called upon to take their places in home, business and professional life, with all its stress and strain, they will have pleasant rememberances of their youthful days, when they splashed and played and swam in the bathing places provided for them by the thoughtfulness of our city representatives and others interested.

THOS. E. SARGENT.

ITALY AND CANADA

Editor Examiner:

Sir: While there is no one more loyal to Canada and to the Empire in whose dominion they reside and none less likely to wish a comparison to be made between Canada and Italy than the Italians. The plain fact is that Italy arose out of a condition of mediaeval dissension and rottenness and has become a proud, a united and a great nation. Can Canada do as much? Not if Canadians continue to view every thing from the point of view of the man who offered to sell his dear old grandmother for soap grease.

I do not of course refer to all Canadians nor I hope to the majority. But if little colonies, cliques and gangs continue to the same extent to manipulate politics and everything else that can be manipulated there is no hope for us but a dog's death. When a man loses pride he loses all. That disdain of selling out for what it may bring us in the way of luxury or ease is the only hope. Have we got any of it left?

How then do they do things in Italy? Is the contemptible Italian allowed to live on the dole when he is able to work? No. Work is found for him and work he must, and not lie like a tramp, a burden and a disgrace upon the back of the nation.

J. H. BURNHAM.

APPRECIATION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The Peterborough Church Softball League wish to express their thanks for the publicity received through your newspaper this past season. Right from the start when you gave accounts of our organization meetings, through the publication of schedules, and in write-ups of our 92 games your paper has been the largest contributing factor of a very successful season.

The frequent paragraphs in the "Sports Day by Day" column are also appreciation. We wish to thanw that writer C. J. Perdue for his continued interest, and promotional activity for our league.

Again thanks to the Examiner from the Peterborough Church Softball League.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

(From the Authorized Version)

REJOICE THE SOUL of thy servant: for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. . . .

Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord; neither are there any works like unto thy works. All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name. For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone.—Ps. lxxxvi: 4, 8-10.

❖ ❖ ❖

What man is he that feareth the Lord? him shall he teach in the way that he shall choose. His soul shall dwell at ease; and his seed shall inherit the earth. . . .

O give thanks unto the Lord; call upon his name: make known his deeds among the people. . . .

Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord. Seek the Lord, and his strength: seek his face evermore.—Ps. xxv: 12, 13; cv: 1, 3, 4.

❖ ❖ ❖

As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness.—Ps. xvii: 15.

WILD BERRIES.

(Regina Leader-Post)

MOST FOLK NOWADAYS know only the large and luscious cultivated strawberry. But it may be a few of the older generation will smack their lips over the small wild strawberry that is found in grassy plots, roadsides and meadows in many parts of the world.

The first wild strawberries to ripen in the place of our youth were along the railway track. There the grass had been burned over in early May and the strawberries would spring up and ripen, just about closing of school at the end of June. They ripened earlier where the soil was gravelly and we often thought that the bed of cinders along the railway lines caught the heat of the sunlight and pushed along the ripening faster in the open meadows. Occasionally you ate a piece of coal or cinder with a berry, but even a cinder cannot destroy the flavor of wild strawberries.

We always thought these strawberries along the railway track had a better flavor than any berry has had since. But those days were in flowery, careless Summers long ago—long before our heads were bothered about amalgamating the Canadian railways or before we ever gave two hoots about how to spell Czechoslovakia.

WORKING NORTH.

(Ottawa Journal)

THE NORTHERN NEWS of Kirkland Lake notes with sorrow, and perhaps a touch of indignation, a change in the spirit of that thriving mining town. Time was, says the News, when petty thieving was unknown there. One could leave anything outside his house and it wasn't touched. Doors never were locked. But now things are different:

"Today wou can't always keep the license tag on your dog's collar. An axe left outside a shed door vanishes within an hour. They steal batteries and tires from cars, and anything not under lock and key or not nailed down is liable to disapear."

What this means, we greatly fear, is that Kirkland Lake is growing up, becoming "civilized" and "sophisticated." It is taking on, along with their virtues, the vices of the older communities. And the News should be grateful that they don't steal the dogs when they take their tags, that they don't use the axe to batter down the door and carry off the piano.

Experimenting With Seed Grain

As a means of determining regional suitability of cereal grain, the Dominion Experimental Farm staff and the Ontario Agricultural College have extended their tests this year to selected sections of the province. One of them is on Clarence Mann's farm in Smith, and the other at Gordon Hancock's farm in the same township. The large pictures above were taken by the Examiner on the Hancock acres. Many varieties of oats are shown in the top scene, the height of the grain generally being level with the fence in the background. Five varieties of barley represent a section of the testing of that grain, and the camera shows some of the distinctive features of the individual plots each of five rows. The varieties, from LEFT to RIGHT, are: Nobarb with its smooth awns or beards; next the heavy-headed Peatland; Trebi, shorter of stem; next the tall Sanalta; and on the Extreme RIGHT, O.A.C.-21. Distinctive qualities of all the specimens were discussed by experts from both Departments of Agriculture at the Mann and Hancock farms last Tuesday evening. The INSET in the UPPER LEFT shows a patch of lodged grain, fortunately one of the few that were seen in the district after Thursday's electric storm. It is included merely as a contrast with the upstanding oats and barley photographed on Gordon Hancock's farm. (Examiner Staff Photos.)

Tom Donaldson At 88 Years Works His Farm

Thomas Donaldson, who is in his eighty-eighth year, and for nearly sixty consecutive years has been a director of the Millbrook Agricultural Society. The accompanying picture was taken on the lawn of his comfortable farm homestead, Highway 28, at the corner where the road turns to go to Millbrook.

Mr. Donaldson was born and brought up on this farm, and has spent practically his entire life there; he recalls when only a dirt road passed his broad acres, and has seen the various changes until now the King's Highway has been built, and night and day almost a continuous stream of cars and trucks is passing his homestead.

SENIOR RUGBY CLUB OFFICIALLY ORGANIZED AT BANQUET

Strong Slate Officers Voted Upon

At an enthusiastic gathering in the Empress Hotel last evening, the Peterborough Senior Football Club was officially organized for the 1938 season in O.R.F.U. company. Half a hundred men, including civic heads, manufacturers, merchants and rugby officers and players, sat down to the booster banquet, which was followed by several speeches and the election of officers.

Following is the complete list of officers of this club:

Hon. president, Mayor James Hamilton; president, H. A. Cranfield; first vice-president, Hugh Campbell; second vice-president, R. M. Glover; secretary, Vic Hamilton; treasurer, C. B. Neal; manager, Walter Jackson; executive committee, Vern Dawson, G. A. Macdonald, Frank Bowness and Ed. Riley; executive council, H. A. Morrow, J. J. Duffus, Alex. Elliott, Judge Smoke, Rev. Father Kelly, H. L. Garner, Roland Denne, Dr. McPherson, Lou Brooks, W. M. Lang, C. A. Salmonsen, J. H. Vernor, W. H. Breyfogle, J. R. Marshall, Robert Abbott, Gordon Matthews, D. H. Melton, Robert Hall, Fred Fleming, Robert MacMorran, Dr. Sheehy, H. S. Leybourne, W. A. Richardson, E. H. Howson, R. E. Cutting, Charles Shaw, George Hewitt, G. Munro, Dr. R. Scott, Dr. Hewett, Dr. Clark, Chris Graham, W. Grady, William Meagher, Gene Hurtubise, James Morley, J. E. Sullivan, C. C. Mowry, Dr. F. C. Neal, Fred Overend, William Prindible, A. Gratton, and Ed. Foley.

Name Committees.

The following committes were passed on: Grounds and Parking, R. M. Glover, R. MacMorran, J. Morley, W. Prindible, and W. Jackson; Advertising, H. L. Garner, W. M. Lang, Fred Fleming, W. Jackson and Alf Gratton; Tickets, F. Bowness, C. C. Mowry, Vic Hamilton, and W. Jackson. The executive may be added to, if necessary, and other committees may be formed later.

R. M. Glover was chairman, and read a message from President Floyd Muirhead of Balmy Beaches, offering to assist in any way possible to get the club going here in senior company. H. A. Cranfield briefly outlined the Orfuns' objective for this year, and added he expected the team would be strong and probably coached by H. L. Bamforth. The financial side of the question was touched upon also.

President John DeGruchy of the Ontario Rugby Football Union explained why Peterborough was asked to go senior this year. He stated the Hamilton Cubs were not fielding a team strong enough, while Peterborough had been a pioneer in senior rugby in Central Ontario and had a big territory to draw from. He claimed the local team and Dundas in Intermediate A finals a year ago had given indication of senior strength and with some bolstering the Peterborough team could hold its own against Toronto, Sarnia, and Montreal. It would provide a central spot in the widespread grouping and would put fresh interest in this group. He felt a good team could be put on the field here this year, and no money would be lost—and the aged officer predicted this as a coming senior rugby centre.

Secretary Speaks.

Secretary Bailey of the O.R.F.U. offered to assist in any way possible and pointed out that, while the residence rule was September 1, a coach should know his team by then and, furthermore, Peterborough's district went half-way to Toronto or to Montreal and all through the north. The O.R.F.U. will hold a meeting early in September for the coaches and club officers. The Peterborough colors are to be decided upon within a week.

Mayor James Hamilton stated local citizens should be glad that their football team was entering into senior competition as it meant a great deal to Peterborough. He urged people here to support the club and its officers during the coming gridiron season. The meeting then adjourned.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

OH, YES, ABOUT THAT grudge fight here Monday. Well, it is between Ward Wright and Norm Bowler and is a three-round prelim on the Riverview A. C. card. These middleweights go about 156 pounds each and can slug like Popeye the sailor man, beep, beep! They met a couple of years ago in the Grand Opera Housce in a Lions Club mitt show and it was a honey. Battled to a furious draw and have been making sour cracks ever since as to which was the better fighter. So it'll be settled Monday in the gloaming down at the lacrosse arena. Just one highlight on a promising pugilistic program. Fans ought to go for this show as they always get plenty of fistic fury on the Riverview Club cards, and the linup this time sounds right interesting to this corner.

* * * * * *

NICK ORLANDO will have a lively time in the main bout with Russ Oliver, noted Toronto lightweight; and don't think there'll be any love taps thrown when Dutch McIlmoyle and Bill Potter, of Toronto, stand toe to toe in their middleweight joust! Joe Taman will do a windmill act against Eddie Pratt of Toronto and we'd bet against the latter. Mal Packenham and Milt Greenley are liable to steal the show, too. Art Nokes and Joe Hobbins are bound to have the ring bugs bellowing. Other bouts which are likely to be plenty of action are the McGregor-Riel go, the Hays-Lester tangle, and the Redmond-Vasey curtain raiser. Sounds oke to us.

Add a Little Water

SILVER FINETTES put on a water show at the Y. W. C. A. pool at eight Monday e'en, and it will be a right entertaining performance. Ornamental swimming, figure floating and trick diving by local girls who compare most favorably with any of the starry Toronto aquatic lasses. Program calls for: Diamond pyramid, trio breast stroke, canoe, school of porpoise, propeller, crab, torpedo, comic stunts, submarine, sculling (serpent and wheel), line formation marching, special tricks, swimming by hand only, and emulating such things as ladders, accordions, flowers, smoke stacks and whatnot. Public is invited, ducats being a quarter.

THEY WERE TOSSING forward passes around down at the Empress Hotel last eve as half a hundred enthusiasts sat down to the booster banquet and got an ear full of the Orfuns' goings-on. Since the Orfuns grew up to senior stature. A big and powerful executive was voted in, headed by H. A. Cranfield, and made up of civic officials, manufacturers, merchants and other prominent sportsmen of Peterborough. The list is in elsewhere. If this bunch of gents can't put the club over with a bang then there is no payoff on brains anymore! Yeah, we feel quite confident after listening to several speeches on the subject that the local senior grid squad will be a good one, in a fine grouping, and it will be a paying proposition in all respects. Fans will see the best, the city will get great advertising, and the club should at least break even financially.

* * * * * *

Gridiron Action Coming

THE MATTER OF players to be used in bolstering the Orfuns is left in capable hands and some action may be expected shortly. The O. R. F. U. (and the prexy and secretary came down from Toronto last eve) will assist the club as much as possible and the other teams in the group will not stop the locals from building up plenty. Everyone wants the game to go over here and a real rugby group, rivalling the Big Four, launched this year. But more on the matter again, as we get the dope—and it won't be long folks by golly.

* * * * * *

DID YOU EVER STOP to think that this town is just about tops for its size in sports? We mean anywhere. Sarnia has a powerful senior football team, and so has Kingston. Oshawa goes in heavily for hockey and a good ball team. Ditto a flock of other towns and cities this size or a bit smaller or larger. But what other place, barring real big burgs, have senior football, baseball, lacrosse, hockey and al lthe other sports we have? Such as boxing, lawn bowling, water sports, tennis, golf and the rest. Nope, Peter's borough is decidedly sports conscious right from the Mayor down to the little urchin playing ball on the street. Both sexes go in for athletics here in a big way. Which is as it should be.

The Late East Yorkers

ONE OF THE BIGGEST crowds of the year saw one of the liveliest lacrosse games of the season here last night, over a thousand fans seeing the Petes pull out a 15-12 decision over East York in an O. L. A. senior "B" fray. The visitors were terribly late in starting—and were bawled out plenty by local officials—and couldn't do much the the first half, the Petes outscoring 'em 6-3 each of the first two frames. But then the homesters had to hustle to hold the Toronto crew (nifty ball-handlers) the last two quarters. The Petes played a bangup game, better than usual, and earned the nod, the whole team shining. Play shifted up and down fast like that miserable mining stock we were once sucker enough to sink a few simoleons in! A classy contest and the folks stayed right to the finish. The Petes have a tough trip on Monday, heading for Durham to play Owen Sound.

* * * * * *

NO BALL GAME HERE TODAY for a change, the Young Petes having a doubleheader 'gainst Oshawa juniors in the Motor City. Manager Eddie Murphy's men may be playing Oshawa during the coming week, and the Petes have an exhibition tilt at home next Saturday against a Buffalo semi-pro squad. The following week will see the House of David gang over here for two night games, under the lights, against the Petes. Sure, the locals are allowed to play against pro clubs this year, provided they apply to the O. B. A. for permission and pay a fee ranging from five bucks to 25. Bob Doll may play in exhibitions. The Oshawa-Petes playoffs will probably start early in August.

HITHER AND YAWN: C. G. E. gal softballers cemented their grip on first place in the second half with a 7-4 win in Keene last e'en. . . . On Monday at the Bowl, Keene and Westclox lasses mix. . . . Motorists and Westclox men tangle Tuesday twilight in the Bowl. . . . Y's Men's and Kiwanis midget lacrossers have a joust on Tuesday night. . . . Lindsay will enter a team in the O. S. A. intermediate "B" playdowns. . . . Knotty Lee's Colts are now second in the Can.-Am. pro league. . . . Ben Norris of Kawartha Golf Club finished 18th in the big Ontario Open yestiddy in Toronto to get a prize; he got a 75 and 77 for 152 in 36 holes. . . . Rotary beat Lions, 6-5 last eve in a midget lacrosse melee. . . . In junior city ball next week, St. Peter's play the Cubs Monday, P. C. I. and Pirates tangle Wednesday, and Tigers mix with the Greyhounds on Friday. . . . "We could get here in time with a poor team," the East York coach said last night, "but we wanted our best bunch on hand". . . . Roll up another week of summer, garcon, and take it away!

NEW YORK, July 16 (A.P.). — Good-morning, and is Grimm still managing the Cubs?....Note to the California Chamber of Commerce: The Pirates are reported to be toying with the idea of training in Miami next spring!....Jack Miley, former New York sports columnist (who once fought Dizzy Dean) has just sold three sports stories to as many national magazines.

Colonel Ruppert pays himself only $15,000 per year for being the owner and president of the Yanks, which is considerably less than some of his hired hands draw down.... Helen Jacobs gets in to-morrow and the first string critics are going down the Bay to hear what she's got to say about her "pheud" with Mrs. Wills Moody—if any.

The Italians in Philly went so wild over Tony Galento, they had to take him out to Summit, N.J., to finish training for the John Henry Lewis bout...."They just wouldn't leave the big bum alone," explained Manager Joe Jacobs.

"Beans" Reardon, the National League umpire, is a wise old bird.. ..You don't fool him on these hot days....Before going to the Park, he hunts up a vegetable joint and buys a head of cabbage....He soaks the leaves in ice water, places them under his cap, and then proceeds to enjoy the ball game....Those good-looking Reds have the dolls flocking to the Park in Rhineland.... Personally, Bill McKechnie would prefer a little more "socks appeal," but he always settles for the other kind when he sees the attendance figures....Gabby Street, a smart old geezer, says the Tigers aren't winning because they miss the active leadership of Mickely Cochrane.

Where did the Pirates get all that penant pep all of a sudden?....Old Tom Clark was the real goat in the managerial change at Jersey City.. ..The move that sent Travis Jackson to the Giants as coach may cost Tim (now a scout) a fat cut of World's Series money....Don Budge may turn pro, but his brother Lloyd, who taught Don most of his tennis, thinks not.

Joe Cronin Is Enjoying His Best Year

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Let's take time out from talking about Johnny Vander Meer, Johnny Allen, Lefty Grove and the home run race and put in a few words for Joseph Edward Cronin, manager of the Boston Red Sox and the only bona fide playing manager still in the major leagues.

Joseph, long considered the tops among shortstops of modern times, is now in his thirteenth year in the majors and is playing the best ball of his career.

Joe, only 31 now, still has plenty of active baseball left in him. As a manager, he rates as a shrewd, busines-like man, as proved by his piloting the Washington Nats to the pennant in 1933.

As a player, Joe is the place-hitter of old, daily getting his usual bag of singles and doubles. He is swatting currently around the .325 mark. His fielding has been up to the old standard.

Joe, who came to the Red Sox in 1934 for a reported price of $250,000, is one of those natural ball players. The Red Sox socker is another of the tribe of hitsmiths who did their teething in San Francisco.

Record books list Joe's birth-date as Oct. 12, 1906. He was an all-around athlete in school, outstanding in baseball, tennis, soccer and basketball. After playing on his grade school team and wiping up the town's best short-pants outfits, our Joseph went to Sacred Heart college. The Cronin team won the city title.

As follows with most baseball success stories, Joe next joined a semi-pro club. A Pittsburgh scout took a look and presto, Joseph was optioned to Johnstown. That was in 1925. Joe hit .313 in 99 games for Johnstown that season and he was turned over to New Haven in the eastern league, where he hit .320 in 66 games.

Pittsburgh took him back the same year, but the shortstop job was well-filled and Joe played a few games at second base. In 1928 Pittsburgh figured Cronin was just so much excess baggage, so he was sold to Kansas City. Two months later the Kaycees sold him to Washington. After some months there, Joe blossomed out into the regular shortstop of the Nats and climaxed his about-face up the hill of baseball fame by being appointed manager of the Nats to succeed Walter Johnson in 1932. Joe has been one of the youngest managers in baseball, being only 26 years old when named in 1932.

Although Joe has a major league life batting mark of .301, he has not been an outstanding slugger. His one best year was 1930, when he hit for .348 and was voted the most valuable player in the American league.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac they has been quite a bit happened locally since my last communication the principal thing being we still got a ball club, in fact it looks a whole lot stronger right now than we had any right to hope it would look. This neighbors on account the powers what be in baseball has pro nounced the left hand section of our pitching staff as O. K. and our Mister Doll whose hitting has been missing from recent battles will be back in the fold in near future. On top of that Mister Eddie Starr who has forsook the diamond pastime to chase a golf ball around the meadows is lined up with the lads again and he's just as welcome both to the team and the fans as a beer booster at a convention.

Mister Starr and Mister Doll will strengthen the attacking division of our outfit no end and Mister McNally which has already win 3 games for us should be poison to all and sundry when the playoffs float around.

A Great Serious

It should oughta be a great serious between the Oshawas and us, now that the Petes has got a whole crew ready for the final dash. Here Tuesnite Mac, we win a nice tussle from the GM-Men and it was win the way that makes a ball fan go home and talk pleasant to his mother-in-law, that is the home talent put over a big inning in the 9th and nosed the invaders out 4 to 3 after trailing all the way.

Our Mister McNally worked for us that night and kept his string of victories intact but he'll never win another game this year with less stuff. In the 1st place he hadn't tossed a ball game for several weeks and he had a cold besides and anyway his usual stuff was lacking. His curve ball wouldn't behave, his fast ball wasn't swift and his control wobbled a bit. In spite of that he stuck in there and battled and he had the satisfaction of blanking the Oshawa gang for the last 5 frames and then helping in the rally that give the Petes the ball game in the last stanza.

Screwey Baseball

Just to show how screwey baseball can be sometimes our lads used up 9 hits to score one run and then went out in the 9th and got three markers on one hit and that a bunt what had been laid down for a sacrifice.

In the big show, old timer, they aint been much change and I'm still calling the Yanks and Giants.

Them Pittsburg Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds is both hot but give me the Giants when the going is tough. I still argue they got what is needed to pull them through a tough battle dow nthe stretch.

The Yanks Coming

In the American loop it looks like the Yanks is just beginning to put on the pressure and while the Indians is hanging on and Boston is right up there, them powerhouses of the Ruppert Rifles will be heard to stop from now on. If Mister Left Grove's arm is one for the season you can count the Red Sox out now but everybody is hoping the Old Master will come back quick. He has already won 14 games this season and looked good for about 25 on the whole campaign which woulda been a miraculous record for 38-year-gunner who has a boy 16 years old and almost ready to step into pro ball himself.

That seems to be the week's quota so toodle-loo.

Sportfully Yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

KNEW HIS WORTH

BOLOGNA, Italy—(CP).—Agreeing to give him his release if he could sell himself to another team for 350,000 lire (about $20,000), a Bologna club soccer half-back signed for Milan for the mentioned sum plus a $7,500 bonus.

Two Big Series Are Awaited National League

NEW YORK, July 16 (C.P.). — They're unwinding the three-reel thriller of the big league season beginning to-day and running through next Thursday.

It's the "crooshal" spot of the campaign.

The boys really have their sleeves rolled up and are set for a good old-fashioned dogfight in the Giants' series at Pittsburgh, starting to-day, and Cleveland Indians' invasion of Yankee Stadium, opening next Tuesday. Out of those two sets may easily come the lads who will collect the World Series cash when October rolls 'round.

The Bucs go into their four-game set-to with the Giants boasting an edge of two percentage points over Terrible Terry's Terriers. For the past couple of weeks Pittsburgh has been as hot as the weather, although they just concluded a series with the Daffy Dodgers from Brooklyn with a 9-4 walloping yesterday.

The Giants, on the other hand, have been barely hanging on. Although they topped the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 yesterday, ending the jinx Johnny Vander Meer held over them, that win was their only one of the three-game series.

The Indians, who should be warming up to next week's three-game party with the Yanks, haven't been doing at all well since they left Cleveland on their eastern swing. Even Connie Mack's Athletics nosed them out yesterday 5-4, on Ace Parker's payoff hit in the ninth.

The Yanks, on the other hand, are in high gear. Lefty Gomez was in top form yesterday, tossing a three-hitter, and they blanked the Detroit Tigers 3-0 in a game cut to six innings by rain. They're riding along on a five-game winning streak, 1½ games in front of the Indians.

The Cubs came up with fair to middlin' pitching for the third straight day and topped the Phillies 4-1 behind Larry French. The Cardinals exploded a 14-hit bombardment to belt Boston's Bees 10-6.

Bobby Doerr's homer with the bases loaded gave Boston Red Sox a 5-3 decision over St. Louis Browns. Thornton Lee's flinging and Hank Steinbacher's heavy hitting paced Chicago White Sox to a 11-3 win over Washington Senators.

Organized Baseball Is Staging Comeback Throughout Ontario

HAMILTON, Ont., July 16.—(CP)—Baseball has taken a toe-hold in Ontario this season, to make big strides again after three years of gradual slipping.

More players, more clubs and more leagues are affiliated with the Ontario Baseball Association than ever before, Secretary William Snyder reported today. But just as important as the successful comeback of senior and intermediate ball is the fact that more affiliated associations are sponsoring bantam, midget, juvenile and junior leagues.

In 1935 the O.B.A. received registrations from 34 leagues with 340 clubs; in 1936 there were 30 leagues and 330 clubs; and last year 80 leagues and 320 clubs. The 1938 totals aren't complete yet, but there are about 340 clubs under the O.B.A. banner. An all-time high of between 7,500 and 8,000 players has been reached, against 7,250 players two years ago.

Across the province, industrial and playgrounds leagues not affiliated with the O.B.A. are springing up as fast.

Windsor, Chatham, Sarnia and London in the southwestern part of the province have revived industrial leagues. Niagara Falls is supporting bantam, midget and juvenile city series. At a recent Kingston meeting a city league was organized for boys of 15 years and under. There are a good many groups like the Huron-Perth League not affiliated with the provincial body.

The Nickel Belt League is drawing record crowds as five teams wage one of the closest races in northern diamond history.

The instances are as typical as they are widespread. Then in the Ottawa district, outside O.B.A. jurisdiction, the game is being given a thorough awakening with professional hockey stars in prominent roles.

Newark Bears Meet Red Wings

TORONTO, July 16 (CP).—Rochester Red Wings who have moved up from fifth to second place in the last three weeks, have it in their power to make a race of it in the International league when they meet the league-leading Newark Bears in a four-game series opening in Red Wing stadium today.

The Wings have won 18 of their last 24 games, with one a tie, while the Bears have been playing .500 ball over the same stretch. And so for the first time this season the Wings find themselves eager to meet the champions, and with high hopes of cutting into the champions 10½ game lead.

The Wings moved into the runner-up position last night when they scored their third straight over Baltimore Orioles 11-1. The victory moved them a full game in front of the Buffalo Bisons, who dropped from second to four when they lost 13-8 to Newark, and a half-game in the van of Syracuse Chiefs who pulled into third place with a 10-6 triumph over Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Chiefs also were in a slugging mood as they clouted a trio of Toronto pitchers for 15 blows, including a homer by Tony Bongiovanni, triples by Al Glossop and Jimmy Outlaw, and a pair of doubles by Joe Mack.

Jersey City Giants and Montreal Royals wound up their series by playing a 1-1 tie. The game was called at the end of the ninth inning to allow the Giants to catch a train.

Two Double Centuries Scored To Set New Cricket Record

COLCHESTER, England, July 16.—(CP Cable.)—Arthur Fagg, 23-year-old Kent professional, scored two double-centuries against Essex in a county championship match concluded yesterday to set a world record in first-class cricket that leading batsmen have been aiming at for years.

In the opening day's play Wednesday Fagg compiled 244 runs, following this up with a 2nd-inning score of 202, not out. Rain stopped play yesterday, Kent being held to four points for its first inning's lead. In reply to Kent's totals of 429 and 313 for one wicket declared, Essex made 350 and 8 for two wickets.

Several double-centuries in consecutive innings have been recorded, but never in the same match. Don Bradman, holders of the world's record score—452, not out—scored 304 and 244 in consecutive innings in 1934 and a year later made 233 and 357.

Fagg, an excellent first-wicket batsman who has represented his country against Australia and India, is a prolific scorer. His highest total in first-class cricket is 257, made against Hampshire at Southampton in 1936.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

The postponed open mixed tournament was held last evening and rinks from Port Hope, Hastings, Campbellford and Cobourg helped to swell the entry list up to 24.

Notwithstanding the fact that just the day previous the ladies held their annual tournament, yet they turned out in good numbers and helped to boost the tournament. At the rate our club is going we would not be surprised to see somebody make the suggestion that there should be more days in the week. Certainly seven days is not enough to satisfy our bowlers. Some of the ladies bowled in Port Hope on Monday night, on our own greens Wednesday night, ladies' tournament Thursday and then again last night, and then they are referred to as the weaker sex.

Winners:

First—Miss L. Allan, E. Smith, Mrs. E. Murphy, W. E. Taylor, each a Hudson Bay blanket.

Second—Mrs. W. Oke, G. Soulby, Mrs. L. Deyman, W. J. Oke, each a silver plated casserole.

Third—Mrs. L. Yeotes, R. Burns, Mrs. H. Staunto, E. Wall ,each set of knives and forks.

Mrs. H. Beatty, M. McIlmoyle, Mrs. T. Doughty, E. L. Sackville, each a verandah chair.

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man—(CP).—Ewald Kluge, German rider, won the 264-mile Isle of Man motorcycle race recently in the record time of 3:21.56.

Pirates' Manager

Theres a satisfied expression on the face of Pie Traynor, manager of Pittsburgh Pirates these days. Usually at this time of year, the Pirates have made their annual early season pennant spurt and have subsided to their usual third or fourth place standing, but this semester Pie has them right up there and after a sensational winning streak they are right on the heels of the league-leading New York Giants.

Early Margin Paves Way For Home Win

The Petes pulled out a 15-12 O. L.A. senior "B" victory over East York here last night before over a thousand enthusiastic fans. It was a fine battle all through with the Petes piling up a 12-6 lead at halftime but having to fight hard in the last half to emerge on top. Play was lively all the way but quite clean. It was 6-3 in the first for the locals, 13-6 at halftime and 15-8 going into the final. The visitors were some three-quarters of an hour late arriving.

All the locals looked good again in this speedy fixture, with Whitton, Vitarelli, Dundas and Worthy shining over the entire route. Some nifty goaltending was shown on both sides, and the home defence proved hard to beat. The Graham brothers with Pullen, Lindow and Punchin starred, and the goalie kicked out a flock of hot ones. Play ranged up and down hot and evenly in the last half, the Petes having a good edge the first two heats.

The Prize Draw

Before the fourth period, the Kinsmen Club draw was made by Mayor Jas. Hamilton. First prize went to M. Drysdale, second to a Hespeler man, third to J. A. Macdonald, fourth to Martha Lester and fifth to Jack Simmons.

The teams:

Travellers Match Is Won By Douglas

TORONTO, July 16.—Two hundred commercial travellers from Kingston, Belleville, Peterborough, Wingham, London, Hamilton and many other parts of the Province, gathered at the Boulevard Club Friday for the thirteenth annual lawn bowling tournament.

A. E. Gynn, as President of the Association, welcomed the travellers to Toronto; T. S. Young, President of the Boulevard, extended to the visitors the facilities of the club; T. J. Simpson, Chairman of the Tournament Committee, spoke briefly, leaving Tom Melville, Manager of the Tournament, to explain the rules and the conditions of play. Favored by perfect bowling weather, the participants thoroughly enjoyed the day's reunion. Rotarians Win Over Lions

Rotary took a 6-5 midget lacrosse win over Lions last night in the George Street Arena, playing before the senior game and in the half-time intermission, before a big crowd of fans. It was a good midget scrap with the teams appearing well-matched. Hudsn and O'Donnell scored to give Rotary a 2-0 edge in the first quarter. The same pair tallied again in the second while Vitarelli notched two for the Lions, score being 4-2. The Lions tied it up in the third with Vitarelli and Caravaggie counting. Hudson and Foster notched goals for the Rotarians in the final frame, while Vitarelli got the lone Lions' marker. Vitarelli. Caravaggie, Hudson and O'Donell were the stars in this fray. The teams:

Rotary — Goal, Batley; defence, Mason and Forsythe; centre, Hudson; wings, Horton and O'Donnell; rover, Foster; subs., Weaver, Maudsley, Cox, Cooper, and Parnall.

Lions — Goal, Anderson; defence, Vitarelli and Ascott; centre, Caravaggie; wings, Detlor and Roberts; rover, Maloney; subs., Crowe, Ainslie, Kinmond, McMahon, Cullen and Gilmour.

VICAR 'ABSOLUTE ANARCHIST' REGARDING LAWS OF CHURCH

"Parish Affairs Shame and Scandal," Chancellor of Diocese Declares

ORNAMENTS OFFEND

Marazion, Cornwall. "The state of affairs in this parish is nothing less than a shame and a scandal . . . The Rev. Bernard Walke, vicar from 1915 to 1936, behaved like an absolute anarchist regarding the laws and regulations of the church."

These words were used by Sir William Montagu Graham-Harrison, chancellor of the diocese of Truro, in concluding his judgment on the church dispute at Marazion.

His decision was in connection with a petition by Anna Maria King for a faculty to remove certain ornaments from the Church of St. Hilary.

"It seems to me," said Sir William, "to be incredible at this time of day, that people who wish to be Christians cannot look at the circumstances in the world and see that Christianity is everywhere on its trial and being attacked.

"It is incredible that they cannot see that it does not help the cause of Christianity to conduct themselves in such a way that onlookers cannot say what was said of the Christians in the early days: 'See how these Christians love one another'."

During his judgment, given at the Bar council chamber, Lincoln's Inn, Sir William said that in 1915 the Rev. Bernard Walke became vicar of St. Hilary. Mr. Walke held extreme Anglo-Catholic views, and introduced into the church the ornaments in respect of which the petition was lodged.

In 1931 a petition was filed by three persons asking for a faculty for the removal from the church of 16 articles alleged to be illegal.

An order for the removal of ten articles was issued, but the vicar failed to remove them and they were taken away by the petitioners. Subsequently most of the articles were taken back to the church.

Mr. Walke retired in 1936 and the Rev. Charles Geoffrey Roffe-Silvester became incumbent in 1937.

Mr. Roffe-Silvester, said Sir William, attempted to provide services for both parties in the parish.

Sir William found that the following were illegal: Six stone altars, two aumbries, a holy-water stoup, a confessional box, votive candlesticks, a blue votive lamp, two sanctuary lamps, four candlesticks on the high altar, a Sanctus bell, and a thurible.

He also ordered the removal of a green and black crucifix. In the case of a large crucifix the words "Mary help" must be removed from the inscription.

Counsel for both parties gave notice of appeal.

RATHER SLEEP OUT THAN TOUCH LEGACY

Eccentric Middle-Aged Man Turns Up in London Court

London—A man who will not draw money left to him under a legacy was accused at Bow St. of wandering abroad and lodging in the open air at Victoria Embankment.

He is Henry Newton, aged 56, an unemployed clerk, of no fixed address. The charge against him was dismissed.

When Newton appeared before the court last year, a solicitor said that he had been left a certain amount of money to be drawn each month under the will of a relative, but there was the greatest difficulty in getting him to draw it.

Magistrate Fry said to Newton: "Quite a sum must now have accumulated for you, I suppose. Why do you sleep out? I suppose it was warm last night?"

Newton: Yes, sir.

Mr. Fry: Well it won't be in the autumn, and in any case you might catch pneumonia. I won't punish you this time, but do go and visit your solicitor. There may be quite a comfortable amount of money available.

BIG APE SINKS TEETH INTO ARM OF KEEPER

Children Scream and Women Swoon at Sight in Zoo

Bristol—Scores of people watching a keeper feed John, the chimpanzee at Clifton zoo, saw the animal grip the man and bury its teeth into his flesh.

Children screamed and several women fainted while a man vaulted over the barrier protecting the cage to chase away the enraged animal.

The chimpanzee released the keeper and tried to get at the rescuer, but he was able to drag the injured man to safety. The keeper, Ralph Guise, aged 56, had his right hand and arm severely lacerated. He was taken to Bristol Royal infirmary, where an operation was performed to save amputation. Mr. Guise has been ape keeper at the zoo for more than 30 years. W. Payne, the head keeper, thinks the attack was due to the hot weather.

"It is a most extraordinary thing to happen," he said. "The animals are very fond of Mr. Guise. This chimpanzee has never attacked anybody. He has been at the zoo for about five years."

John occupies the same cake as Betty, another chimpanzee.

WOMAN MOTORIST FINED FOR KISSING

London.—Miss Joan Mary Wood, a 26-year-old mannequin of Putney, had to pay 5s ($1.25) for each of two kisses at Kingston police court.

She was fined 10s ($2.50) for driving a car in such a position as not to have proper control.

Police Constable Ross said he saw Miss Wood's car swerve across the road at Kingston Hill; she was kissing a man passenger, who had his arm round her shoulders.

She went into the witness box and denied that she was kissing her companion or that he had his arm around her shoulders.

LONDON CHOIR BOYS DROVE BLACK MARIA

Travelled 20,000 Miles on Recent Tour of U.S., Canada

Southampton—Ten of London's luckiest choir boys arrived at Southampton from New York in the Westernland.

London choir school boys, drawn from various churches, made an eight months' tour of America, singing in 300 cathedrals and churches, making world-wide broadcasts, and between engagements enjoying adventures such as boys read about in books.

In New York they were guests at a party given by Anna Neagle, the English film star; in Washington they had tea at the White House.

"Altogether we must have travelled about 20,000 miles," Aubrey Fuller, the head boy and soloist, said. "We flew from Kansas City to St. Louis, and at Evansville the 'cops' let us all climb into a Black Maria, and then we drove through the streets with the sirens blowing their hardest. It was very exciting."

Dundee.—Helen and Mary Rennie, 22-year-old twin daughters of a Dundee schoolmaster, have graduated together as doctors at St. Andrew's university. They are the first twins to pass in medicine at St. Andrew's for more than 20 years.

Mary said to a reporter: "Our great fear was that one of us might not pass the examination. That would have been a minor tragedy, for we have been inseparable from childhood."

HOLDS CADIS TOO EASY

New Tredegar.—Magistrates are too lenient to parents who do not send their children regularly to school," said Councillor W. N. Evans, at a meeting of Rhymney Valley school managers, at New Tredegar.

An attendance officer stated that in cases where severe treatment should be meted out, parents received sympathy from the bench.

It was decided to draw the attention of the superintendent of attendance officers to the matter.

FACTORY IS FIRED TO HASTEN MERGER

Works' Manager Testifies Act Instigated By Principal of Firm

London. — Senetnce to three years' penal servitude was passed at the Old Bailey on Charles Thomas William Haynes, 43, works manager, who pleaded guilty to setting fire to the factory of Plant Brothers, Ltd., garden furniture manufacturers of Enfield.

Henry Elam, prosecuting, said that a long and serious case was being conducted at Enfield police court against two directors.

Haynes was one of the most important witnesses in that case, which had not yet been completely investigated. After that case had started Haynes confessed to the officer in charge that, on an earlier date, he set fire to the premises of which he was works manager.

Until his confession, said counsel, it was not realized how the fire started. He made a statement to Detective-inspector Stevens, of Scotland Yard, in which he said he set fire to the premises on the instigation of one of the principals who wished to bring about a merger with another company.

"CUB OF BOY" DEFIES COURT AFTER BETTING ROOM RAID

Sentenced to 12 Months' Hard Labor Under Special Powers Act

NOTES TOLD STORY

Belfast.—A fifteen-year-old boy was sentenced to 12 months hard labor by Belfast children's court. He was accused of: "Collecting and recording certain information calculated to be useful to persons hostile to the preservation of peace and possessing a document calculated to help such persons."

The charges were brought under the civil authorities Special Powers Act.

Constable Brunt said after a police raid on Republican rooms at the Pearse Hall, King St., Belfast, he found a jotter beside the boy.

It contained the boy's name and it also stated: "There is a suspicious police tout named '——' I have been keeping under observation for the last month or so and every time I see him he is talking to policemen. One night I was so suspicious I followed him."

Standing with arms folded the boy defiantly refused to speak.

The magistrate said: "It is perfectly intolerable that a young cub of a boy should spend hours acting as as leuth on a person who shall be nameless.

"He elects not to recognize the court, but that is only a piece of farcical play-acting."

LONGSHOREMAN SAVES TWO FROM DROWNING

Shanklin, I.O.W.—Because a longshoreman happened to pick up his telescope here, two Londoners were saved from drowning.

Hundreds of holidaymakers saw the longshoreman rush to his motorboat, turn out the passengers who were about to go for a trip, and speed out for a mile to where the men were in the sea after their small rowing boat had capsized.

The rescued men, Clifford Saunders, of Balham, S.W., and Edgar Tricky of Walthamstow, E., were on a day's outing with a party from Leadenhall Market. Their rescuer is Bert Kemp, who is a local councillor.

FISHERMEN CIRCLED BY FURIOUS SHARKS

Pull Away in Terror of Being Capsized With Baby Shark on Line

Port Talbot.—While fishing in an open boat off Aberavon pier, Isaac George and George Chilcott, unemployed steelworkers, had a struggle with a school of sharks.

They had been fishing with deep sea lines for a few hours without any luck when Chilcott's line was tugged so vigorously that the boat almost capsized.

Then they saw their capture was a baby shark, and in a few minutes the boat seemed to be surrounded with sharks.

"We thought the boat was going over every minute," said Chilcott, "and so we tried to get into shallow water.

"We both clung to the line and got the shark to the side of the boat where George killed it with a clasp knife.

"Until we got into shallow water the sharks followed the boat.

"We were glad to see them swimming out to sea."

The shark, which weighed nearly 50 lbs., was stated by dock officials to be the dangerous type—not the basking shark which frequents the bay in summer.

WOMAN TEACHER MUST PAY FOR CUFFING BOY'S EAR

Damages Are Also Assessed Against School Managers in Liverpool

HEARING IMPAIRED

Liverpool. — A woman teacher who boxed a boy's ears was ordered to pay him damages at Liverpool assizes. Damages were also awarded against the school managers. The total awarded was £211 ($1,055).

Since the incident the teacher, Miss Ellen Fildes, has been appointed a headmistress.

She and the managers of St. Austins boys' school, Thatto Heath, near St. Helens, Lancs, were sued by 12-year-old Patrick Ryan, through his father.

It was stated that when the boys in Miss Fildes' class got out of hand —they were playing "tick" — she cuffed two of them, called Ryan out in front of the class, and struck him on the face and over the ear. Later it was found that the drumhead of the boy's ear had been ruptured and that his hearing had been permanently impaired to the extent of 60 per cent. of normal hearing.

Miss Fildes denied that she did anything more than reasonable correction.

Mr. Justice Tucker said that, though he was satisfied the blow exceeded reasonable and proper punishment, one could not but feel sympathy with Miss Fildes. What she did was natural in the circumstances and something which, 999 times out of 1,000, would not have had serious consequences.

Unfortunately she had done something which she was not entitled to do by law, and therefore she was liable for damages. The school managers were liable because it was a recognized part of a teacher's duty to inflict reasonable corporal punishment.

PIER THEATRE FIRE SEEN FORTY MILES

100,000 Watch Destruction of Blackpool Building, Down to Skeleton

Blackpool—Fully 100,000 people watched the destruction by fire of the fine theatre pavilion at the seaward end of the north pier.

Visitors who thronged the pier when the fire broke out were hastily sent off.

They joined the thousands crowding the beach and the promenade to watch the full strength of Blackpool fire brigade at work on the flames.

Soon they saw flames burst from the theatre and roar to a height of 50 feet. Great clouds of smoke, which rolled over the town, could be seen 40 miles away.

When the alarm was raised people were having meals in a cafe near the pavilion. A waitress said that all paid their bills before leaving.

After two hours the fire was under control. Only a skeleton of the building remained.

BRIGHTEN CEMETERIES SAID WORLD'S NEED

Cardiff M.O.H. Commends System of Ancient World

Cardiff, Wales.—What the world needs is brighter cemeteries, according to Dr. J. Greenwood Wilson, Cardiff medical officer of health

"I often think cemeteries are dull and depressing," Dr. Wilson told the annual convention of the British Institution of Embalmers. "There is a lot to commend the system of the ancient world where they developed streets of tombs which still remain."

The system, he said, was to embalm dead relatives and replace them in exposed tombs along the side of the street where they did their daily business. With cypress trees planted between the tombs everything looked very artistic.

TRAFFIC LAW PORTIA WINS OWN DISCHARGE

Argues She Was Right If Wrong and Also Vice Versa

Ramsgate—Summoned at Ramsgate for failing to obey a "Halt, major road ahead" sign, Mrs. Esme Harris of Birchington, pointed out that there was also a pedestrian crossing at the cross-road.

"The Highway Code says I must not stop my car on a pedestrian crossing," she said. "If I do not stop at the 'halt' sign I am committing an offence, and if I do stop on a pedestrian crossing I am also committing an offence."

The mayor, Alderman W. T. Smith, dismissed the case on payment of costs. He suggested the matter should be gone into.

The chief constable, F. S. Butler: "The matter has been gone into and I understand the borough surveyor is satisfied that what is being done is proper."

If the crossing were going to do away with the effect of the "halt" sign, however, they would have to consider removing the crossing so as to be able to enforce the other regulation.

$230,000 IS LOCATED IN HOME OF RECLUSE

80-Year-Old Retired Schoolmaster's Death Reveals Unsuspected Fortune

Plymouth.—Bowls containing silver, gold and banknotes were discovered when police broke into a house in Plymouth and found the 80-year-old occupier dead.

A bank book showed a credit of £6,000 ($30,000), and deeds showed that he owned property valued at £40,000 ($200,000).

The man, Nathaniel Till, was a retired schoolmaster who had lived alone for years in a big house in Portland Place. He rarely went out, and his death was discovered because neighbors notified the police of the accumulation of milk bottles outside.

A post-mortem examination revealed that death was due to natural causes.

Police discovered his only relative is a brother in Southend.

"We thought Mr. Till was in rather poor circumstances," a neighbor said.

WHITE EXPLORERS ATTACKED BY SAVAGE PIGMY TRIBES

Geologist Tells of Party Being Harassed in Unknown Papua

ARROWS WHIZZED

Brisbane, Queensland — Savage pigmy tribes have been attacking white explorers in the unknown parts of Papua.

A first-hand story of a pigmy attack has been told in an interview at Brisbane by W. Carey, a geologist who has returned on leave from Papua.

Mr. Carey was a member of a party which penetrated into unexplored country near the Tairi river.

The party was escorted by a detachment of Papuan native constabulary under Patrol Officer Temperley.

It was attacked by Kuku Kuku (pigmy) tribesmen and was compelled to fight its way through to safety. Natives armed with bows and arrows continually harassed them.

The patrol was the first to traverse the Tairi river territory which, Mr. Carey said, is probably the wildest and most difficult country in Papua.

Two subsequent attempts by patrol officers to enter the region had failed.

LOG FOUND IN GRAVE BUT SISTERS GO FREE

Were Charged With Attempt at Insurance Fraud—Blame Ghouls

Kingston, Jamaica.—Finis was written to Jamaica's log-in-grave case with the dismissal in appeal court of appeals of Mrs. Ellen Wight and Mrs. Deborah Saunders from convictions for conspiracy to defraud and attempting to obtain money by false pretences from a Canadian insurance company. The two sisters were convicted in the home circuit court last January and sentenced to nine months' imprisonment.

They were accused of having attempted to defraud the Manufacturers' Life Assurance Company. The prosecution claimed Mrs. Wight, after her husband's death in Kingston, had taken out a policy on him, then staged a mock funeral at their country home and applied for the insurance.

The company investigated and obtained permission to open the grave. A log was found in the coffin. The sisters claimed ghouls had opened the grave and taken the body.

FRANCE SEEKS HEIRS TO BIG GOLD TROVE

Equerry's Fortune Is Found When Old House Demolished

Paris. — Investigation of the family tree of "Louis Nivelle, squire and equerry" to a French king, whose £14,000 ($70,000) of gold louis were found by workmen demolishing an old house in Paris, has disclosed a number of descendants.

Among these are an artillery general named De Saint Vincent; M. de Boisanger, one of the sub-managers of the Bank of France; and M. de Boisanger's brother, who is attached to the French legation in Cairo; as well as possible claimants in England.

Louis Nivelle is believed to have died between 1755 and 1772, leaving his fortune to his daughter, who died in 1810 without a direct heir. She bequeathed her estate to four first cousins, who included Charles-Robert de Prie.

As far as can be ascertained, the Robert de Prie branch settled in England in about 1770. The family is believed to have included the wife of a British general.

If it is decided that the find is treasure trove, the City of Paris, as the owner of the building, can claim one-half, and the other half goes to the finder or finders.

POSED AS REPRESENTATIVE OF THE NEGUS OF ABYSSINIA

Snappily Dressed Colored Gentleman Lands in Jail in France

ISSUED PASSPORTS

Paris—A snappily dressed colored gentleman is now in a French jail because he thought he could fool all of the people all of the time.

His check pants, tightly waisted coat with padded shoulders and pale gray hat were the cynosure of all eyes when he strolled up the Champs-Elysees every afternoon.

"I am the official representative of the Negus of Abyssinia. I am authorized to provide Abyssinian passports to anyone I consider eligible," he said.

Search of this "representative's" home revealed he was a Guadaloupian, Leon Bogat, six times sentenced for fraud and issuing fake passports.

Police were lucky when they discovered a Russian con-man in the Negro's room. The Russian had just sold a million pesetas of Spanish bonds—or papers purporting to be Spanish bonds—to a wealthy French industrialist for 60,000 francs.

Before the examining magistrate, Bogat admitted driving to Geneva in a stolen automobile and posing for a day at the League of Nations as the Negus' confidence and right-hand man. Both are in jail.

Registered Mail Missing Containing Thousands of Pounds in Jewelry

Birmingham.—Detectives combed Birmingham's jewelry quarter seeking clues to bandits who, in daylight and in the city centre, drove off a post-office van to steal mail believed to contain jewelry worth thousands of pounds.

The van was parked in Broad St. while the driver and his assistant went in an insurance office to empty a private post box. When they returned it was missing.

A police patrol found it abandoned in a side street 100 yards away.

Registered packets containing jewelry and money collected in the business quarter had been taken.

The van was making a weekly round, and it is thought that the robbery was planned by men who had previously kept it under observation.

Radio Listeners In Canada In Fourth Place

With 2,000,000 radio sets in use last year Canada occupied fifth position of the world, following the United States with 33,000,000 sets, Germany 8,500,000, the United Kingdom 8,300,000 and France 4,000,000, J. S. Keenan of the home appliances division of the Canadian General Electric Company, Toronto, informed the members of Kiwanis Club in a review of the industry at Friday's luncheon.

The United States has one set to every four persons, Denmark one to every five persons, the United Kingdom was third with 1-5.3, and Canada fourth with ration of one set to every six persons.

Mr. Keenan recalled the pioneering days of radio manufacturing in this country. The first sets were produced in Canada in 1920 powered by batteries, and it was not until 1924 that the alternating current came into use permitting wall and floor plug connections. The number of manufacturing companies declined from thirty-two in the early twenties to twelve in production today, the depression having killed off the most of those that fell by the way side.

Paying of Royalties

One of the earliest problems was the paying of royalties for the use of special inventions required in sets, but in 1924 a number of companies organized the Canadian Radio Patents Company, bought up most of the rights they required, and adopted the policy of leasing patents to radio manufacturing companies at a comparatively small charge.

In addition to the twelve companies manufacturing sets in Canada there are twenty other firms making various parts, tubes, condensers and so on; and fifteen furniture companies turn out most of the cabinets, representing 40 per cent of their total output. There are 186 jobbers of radios and 7,000 retailers throughout the country. The industry employs 4,300 persons with 20000 others engaged in wholesale and retail distribution.

Heavy Sales in Fall

Canada reported the sale of 265,000 last year, 50 per cent of them in the fall months. The distribution of radios in this country by provinces or sections last year was: the Maritimes 7 per cent; Quebec 20 per cent; Ontario 44 per cent, the prairie provinces 23 per cent and British Columbia 7 per cent. If last year's production in this country 25 per cent were battery radios bought by farmers and others living beyond the electric power lines.

Mr. Keenan said there are 735 radio stations in the United States and 71 in Canada. Their average power is 3,000 watts in the U.S.A. and mentioned broadcasting distances of 1,000 watts in this country. He also stations: 100 watt stations 2 to 6 miles; 3,000 watt stations 8 to 25 miles; 25,000 watt 25 to 70 miles; 50,000 watt stations 30 to 100 miles, all in daylight hours. One of the strongest stations is at Cincinnatti rated at 500 milowatts and a kilowatt is 1,000 watts.

"We consider that to have achieved a saturation point placing in fourth position compared with the other countries of the world has been doing very well" Mr. Keenan concluded. He was introduced by A. B. Gates, with W. A. Richardson chairman today, and Leo Copp moved a vote of thanks for Mr. Keenan's interesting talk.

Ennismore Boy In Charge Of Trade Pavilion

Peterborough is the only Canadian city distributing publicity booklets at the Glasgow Exposition, according to a letter Alderman G. N. Gordon received today from Miss Marion Armstrong, chief clerk in his office, who is at present on a trip to Europe. These booklets were prepared by E. A. Outram, assistant city clerk, and forwarded to the Canadian pavilion at the Exposition. Miss Armstrong found that the supply was running low, and on her advice to Mr. Gordon another shipment was made up this morning, including a bundle of the rotogravure section of the Examiner's mail-it-away edition.

Miss Armstrong wrote that the Canadian pavilion is in charge of J. S. Perdue, formerly of Ennismore, who was appointed emigration officer for Scotland and the north of England during the time Mr. Gordon was Minister of Immigration. He is in charge of the Canadian emigration service out of the port of Glasgow. On learning from Miss Armstrong that she was from Peterborough and also from Mr. Gordon's office, Mr. Perdue greeted her with an old home town welcome. He told her that the province of Alberta is represented by a small pamphlet, and Peterborough is the only city in Canada issuing booklets to selected visitors, especially manufacturers and others interested in Canadian affairs.

Toronto Driver Is Fined $15.00 Reckless Driving

Pleading guilty to a charge of reckless driving on Highway 28 early this morning, Murray H. Johnson of Toronto was fined $15 and costs by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court to-day.

Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure told the court that the accused had driven through Bewdley at an excessive rate of speed and had continued toward Peterborough at the same rate.

The traffic officer telephoned the city police and Sergeant Wigg said that when Johnstons car had been flagged down at the intersection of Highways 7 and 28 it was travelling at 60 or 70 miles an hour.

Johnston admitted that he had been exceeding the speed limit.

"I dont know how fast I was going," he told the magistrate. "I was in a hurry to get to Crowe's Landing where my wife is spending a holiday. I was watching the road, though."

"There are too many of you fellows driving as if the highways were race courses," declared Magistrate Gee.

Traffic Officer McClure said the accused had smelled strongly of liquor when arrested.

Hastings' Teams Battle To Draw

HASTINGS, July 16.—The Clerks and the Outlaws battled to a 13-all tie last night in a town softball league game. Down 13 to 9 going into the last of the ninth innings, the Clerks put on a 4-run rally to tie the game. It was called at nine innings due to darkness.

Each team collected twelve hits while the Clerks had seven errors to the Outlaws' five. McKee went the distance for the Outlaws, striking out six and walking seven. Blackbourn for the Clerks had to be relieved in the ninth after allowing ten hits. He had struck out four and walked the same number. G. Gibson finished the game and allowed two hits, struck out two and passed none.

The feature play of the game was made by Crate when he took Stickle's long fly to deep centre to rob him of a sure hit. Tape led the Clerks' hiters with three singles in four times up. Bonds, with a double and two singles, led the Outlaws.

The teams:

Outlaws: Radford, cf; Phillips, 3b, c; McKee, p; Stickles, rf, 3b; Clapper, 1b; Bonds, c; Walsh, 2b; Puffer, ss, and Scriver, lf.

Boy Is Rescued From Drowning Otonabee River

Donald, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gray, 243 Stewart street, owes his life to the presence of mind and bravery of Charles Murney, 23, of 225 George street, who plunged into the Otonabee River, fully dressed, on Friday, and swam 40 feet to rescue the little fellow from drowning after he had toppled into the water from the C.P.R. bridge.

Young Gray, who had been fishing with an elder brother earlier in the day, returned to the river about 6.40 o'clock last night, and the second trip came close to being fatal. The lad was alone and he had been fishing for some time from the abutment of the bridge on the west side of the river, when his rod slipped, and in attempting to save it he lost his balance and plunged into the water on the north side of the bridge. He could not swim and the current carried him quickly downstream.

Below the bridge Murney was fishing from an anchored punt and saw the little fellow was in danger. Without any hesitation he jumped into the river and swam rapidly to where young Gray was going down for the third time, reaching him just as the boy was disappearing below the surface. He seized the drowning lad and held him up until he could be put into a canoe paddled by Gordon McIlwaine, and he was brought ashore apparently little the worse for his very close call from death. A passing motorist took him home and he was put to bed, with the chief evidence of his adventure being bruises on his head and back which are thought to have been caused by striking the stone abutment of the bridge in falling.

The boy's parents said last night that although young Donald could not swim he liked being around the water and often went fishing. Last night was not the first occasion upon which he was nearly drowned, for two years ago he and an elder brother had a narrow escape when they went out in a leaky punt.

The police and fire departments were notified that a boy had been drowned, but young Gray was out of the water and gone before a first aid squad from the fire department which responded quickly to the call could reach the scene. The accident was investigated by Constable John Rogers.

Fishing Is Good At Gilchrist Park

Lunge and bass are being caught in White Lake and on Indian River, at Gilchrist Park, a spot of rare beauty situated between McCracken's Landing and Crowe's Landing.

This outstanding resort, little known to Peterobrough holidaying crowds, is only about an hour's drive from the city, is located at the source of the Indian River. Boats may be rented at reasonable rates and whole families find this a splendid place for an outing. Camp tables are set up and there is a kitchen on the grounds, complete with cook stove for holidayers wishing to prepare their own meals. A booth is also open, carrying a large supply of soft drinks and chocolate bars.

The lakes about Gilchrist Park are little known to the majority of Peterborough residents and to a visit there is added a tang of adventure. Lunge and bass are to be found in the waters about the park and visitors are urged to take rod and bait with them when inspecting the spot. —Adv.

Canadian Legion Notes

A chields amang ye takin' notes, and, faith, he'll print them.—Burns.

The Legion picnic on Saturday last was a great success in everything but the weather, and we consider Jupiter Pluvius played us a scurvy trick. However we hope for better luck next time.

The thanks of the Legion are due to J. J. Duffus, M.P., G. N. Gordon, K.C., A. L. Elliott, M.P.P., E. A. Peck, K.C., W. F. Huycke, K.C., G. Puffer, J.P., R. Denne and D. M. Douglas for their kindness, and also to the Grafton store, Metropolitan store, Selkirk men's store, Board & Huffman, Zellers, Kresges and Woolworths for gifts of prizes.

A length of beading from the side of a car was found at the picnic grounds on Saturday and the owner can have the same from R. Mitchell at the Hall.

The last day for entries to the lawns and gardens competition is Wednesday next July 20, and those who desire to enter must get a move on. There are several pairs of shoes in fairly good shape (size 11 and 12) at the Hall and if any ex-service man in need of a pair can wear that size he is welcome. Apply to W. Gracie at the Hall.

There has not been an overpowering rush to pitch horseshoes so far, and most of those who expressed a strong desire to show their skill have been conspicuous by their absence.

Don Padgett, Cardinals—Hit double and single, driving in four runs to whip Bees, 10-6.

Field Crops Are Judged In "Ex" Contest

Two days spent in the district with judges of standing wheat crops in the senior aid junior competitions sponsored by the Peterboro Exhibition have enabled Frank C. Paterson, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, to survey the crops as a whole, and his verdict is that "everything is looking pretty good."

"I saw a lot of wheat fields," Mr. Paterson said, "and although one could hardly call it a bumper crop, still it is a mighty nice crop. Quite a few farmers have already started cutting wheat. It may be just a bit on the green side, but they've got quite a lot of work to do and they wanted to get started. Harvesting the wheat will be general around here next week.

We saw many fine fields of oats, and the same goes for alsike. The barley looks particularly good, and from its appearance we were wondering whether farmers are growing enough barley in this district. It looked so good that there was some comment there might be more of it grown in the country and some of the other townships nearby with very satisfactory results.

Scond growth clover and alfalfa is coming along in fine style, and the root crop is in good shape. We saw little damage from Thursday's storm. One thing certain is that farmers have a great deal of work ahead of them as the grains are ripening fast, and it is now a question of getting it all done.

Mr. Paterson accompanied W. G. Michael of Belleville, district seed inspector, who judged the senior division of the standing wheat crop competition and also inspected the fields of registered wheat that were on his list. E. O'Keefe of the seed branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture was accompanied by Chas. Westlake, managing director of the Exhibition, in the judging of the junior division.

Parking Is Stopped Bell Telephone Lot

"No parking signs on the site of the new building the Bell Telephone Company is about to erect on Hunter street were an indication Friday that the vacancy of the whole lot between the American Hotel and the old Oriental Hotel on the south side of the street is about to end. The contractors were expected to begin excavations Friday, but they will not be here until the beginning of next week. Citizens who have been parking automobiles on the lot have been advised that it is no longer available to them.

CHAPTER 40

ON ANY big cattle ranch, the loss of steers, heifers, calves, horses, mules and colts is a routine item. One animal may die every day, on the average; sometimes more. The loss of 20 cows from the Dale-Durango ranch thus was of minor importance, and when thieves came and took 10 more it suggested only that a strict guard should be kept for a while until the thives were caught. Ellen could not understand, therefore, why Bill appeared so upset about the rustling.

"Maybe the Indians or whoever did it were just hungry," she suggested, "and stole to get food for their families."

"Maybe," Bil agreed. "But that's not enough."

He knew something, apparently, that he hadn't told. At least he suspected something, and wanted to shoulder the responsibility himself without burdening the girl who hired him. When he wouldn't talk much she ceased to worry. A man can be stubborn, she had discovered; and she had utmost confidence in Bill Baron.

He plunged into serious work for a day after his return. With the more efficient cowboys he outlined a week or two of branding, culling, doctoring, fencing, feeding, all the things that make up ranch routine. He inspected weight records that Ellen and her secretary, Reynita Ybarra, had been keeping on test herds of animals. He took time out to doctor a troubled mare and help her fint, long-legged stallion foal to be brought into the world. He sent a cowboy with a broken arm in to see a physician. He stopped to shake hands and be nice to some visitors from Nogales who wanted to see the ranch. He made Buckshot Brown boss of a crew of Mexicans throwing up a dam across their mountain stream, so that irrigation water could be diverted onto a acre-sized plot for raising table vegetables which would help feed the ranch personnel. He worked like a slave until 7 p.m., then drove hurriedly into town. In Nogales, he went directly to the night office of the United States border patrol.

"Howdy, Mr. McIntyre," he greeted the divisional chief of the patrol. "I've got news."

"Sit down! How are you, Baron? Glad you got back safely. Sit down and tell us what you learned." Two other patrol inspectors were present. They listened attentively.

"That cattle rustling, gentlemen, is as you suspected, a blind. It is being done by a ban dof smugglers. They are bringing over quite a few aliens, and some opium, cocaine, marihuana and heroin. Mostly aliens. They ride over at night with the foreigners, who leave the party one by one. Then the smugglers pick up cattle to drive back and cover the trail. Of course, they find a market for the cattle, too. It makes a double profit on the night's operation. But mostly it's a blind to divert attention. Do you see?"

"Exactly!" said Officer McIntyre. "They make it appear to be Yaqui Indians, simple cattle thievery. That wouldn't attract much attention from Uncle Sam. It's a county sheriff problem. It's a good blind. But how did you learn all of this?"

Bill grinned at that.

"I went down there and got smuggled in! Dressed up and posed as a Mexican and paid an agent $150 to bring me over the line!"

"No! Detective, eh " McIntyre smiled approvingly.

"Yep. They had nearly a dozen other 'aliens' that night. We had to walk, but horses followed us and covered our tracks. Quite a long hike up to where we stopped, too. They took 10 of my own cows, off the Dale-Durango, I mean, and drove them back. They rode horses without shoes. They dropped a few other clues to make it look like Yaqui Indians. Actually there wasn't a Yaqui in the bunch. Some of the smugglers are Mexican and some American. I think it's being directed from this side, but I'm not sure."

Bill gave the border force such detailed report as he could, and ended up by agreeing to do further detective work as occasion presented. He had first been motivated, he explained, solely by the hope of breaking up a band of cattle thieves, reasoning that he could not only protect soning that he could protect not only the DD stock that way but could render a valuable service to other ranchers as well.

"That's why I put on the Mexican act and went down there," said he. "I had an idea it was just rustlers, until I talked to you people before leaving. You had the right hunch. Now I guess it's your move, since it's smuggling too."

"We can do little without definite evidence," McIntyre declared. "It is awfully hard to get a conviction. We don't care simply to pick up a few of the unfortunate aliens who were brought in; we want to get at the organized leaders who are doing the smuggling.

"When you get any further news at your DD ranch, or hunches of any sort, Mr. Baron, let us know at once. Consider yourself as a specially commissioned officer. We will start our machinery tonight also, and let you know as soon as anything develops. Between us, maybe we can effect something worth while."

They went further into details of the matter, working out tentative plans of operations in event of increased efforts by the smugglers. The officers were grateful. "It is not often," McIntyre said, "that private citizens wil bother to render this much aid, Mr. Baron. They leave it up to the official force, when we need all the co-operation possible. Thanks for helping; it proves you're a good American."

Bill went away glowing under that tribute. All too seldom does a grown man get a pat on the back like that, a moment of appreciation. He gave some thought to the officer's choice of words; Mr. McIntyre once had said "your DD ranch."

'It isn't mine," Bill told himself, slipping back into the driver's seat of his car. "I wish it were. Or rather I wish it was ours. Ours!"

He sat there in the darkness alone, just resting and meditating for a minute or two. He had been so busy in recent weeks that he had given no thought at all to Ellen Dale as a girl. He had worked diligently for her as an employer, earning $100 a week. Come to think of it, he spent almost none of that, for he had little expense; he must have a couple of thousand saved. But what of that? Two thousand dollars is but a drop in the bucket compared to a fortune of nearly half a million. He couldn't buy into business partnership with a woman who had made big money in moving pictures—and saved it. And he couldn't marry her, either; in a year or two she'd likely lose respect for him, and he'd lose respect for himself.

He kicked the starter of his car rather unnecessarily hard, and swung around to go back home. He wasn't in a good mood. "I'll see her through the spring and summer," he promised himself. "That ought to get the outfit running smoothly on the profit side. Then I'll head back for Texas where I belong."

Going through the business district of Nogales he saw another rancher whom he knew, and stopped to swap talk for another hour. Thus it was nearly 11 o'clock when he finally started for the ranch, and nearly midnight when he got there. Even from a distance he saw lights in Ellen's house, and wondered about it. Ordinarily she didn't stay up very late.

It had worried Bill that a pretty young woman should live thus in a big ranch house anyway. But he and she had carefully hired very high type servants, women who would be more nearly companions for her. One Mexican girl who had duties as a sort of nominal secretary was in reality becoming Ellen's genuine friend. She was the girl named Reynita Ybarra, a large-eyed person of remarkable beauty who had been graduated from the state university at Tuscon, after a great stinting on the part of her parents. Shy of each other for a long time, the two girls had of late approached the status of chums. And that, both Bill Baron and Buckshot Brown had said, was well.

But tonight it wasn't just Ellen and Reynita who stayed up late on some girl doings of their own. When Bill stopped his car he heard sounds of music and hilarity, men and women obviously in high jinks.

"It's a house full of people," he muttered. "What's Ellen doing, throwing a party?" He couldn't imagine what had occurred; Ellen had not had time to make many house party friends here in the southwest.

DOROTHY DIX

Check Up On How You Handle a Knife and Fork And Maybe You Will Prevent a Lot of Grief After You Have Gone to the Altar

DEAR MISS DIX—What can a wife do to improve her husband's manners? My husband comes in to dinner and before I get the table completely set he starts eating without even a thought of waiting for me. He does not sit correctly at the table. Gobbles his food as fast as he can. Leaves his spoon in his cup when he drinks and does not use his knife and fork properly. As I am newly married and not used to such ways I am hunmiliated beyond words. What can I do about it? WORRIED WIFE.

ANSWER:

Not much I am afraid, for husbands like to think that they are little tin gods to their wives and when Wifie begins plucking the halo from their brows trouble ensues.

Marriage really should be a sort of mutual improvement society in which husbands and wives should be able to tell each other of their shortcomings and help each other to correct their faults. Especially should the one who is more intelligent, better educated, and who has had more social experience be able to give the other the advantages of his or her superior culture and polish up the other's diction and manners.

But experience shows that this cannot be done, and that there is no other person in the world from whom a husband or wife will not take criticism with more grace than from a wife or husband. The minute Mr. Jones corrects Mrs. Jones' pronunciation or grammar, that minute Mrs. Jones bursts into tears and says that he doesn't love her, is ashamed of her, wishes he hadn't married her, and boo-boo, boo-boo she is going back to Mother, where people didn't think she was the dust of the earth and trample on her.

Just let Mrs. Smith ever so tactfully suggest to Mr. Smith that sword-swallowing is not done in our best circles and that soup isn't a gargle, but food, Mr. Smith bangs out of the front door and goes in search of some lady who tells him how wonderful he is and doesn't mention his table manners.

So prudent husbands and wives leave it to others, who don't have to live with them, to tell their mates of their faults. If you are wise you will follow their example. Maybe your husband has virtues that atone for his ignorance of table etiquitte. But many a wife before you has wished that love really was blind and dumb when she sat down at the table with her husband.

The pitiful thing in a case like yours is that not only does your husband disillusion you and get on your nerves by his lack of table manners, but also that he is doing himself a great wrong in that he is branding himself as a boor in the eyes of every stranger who sees him eat. This will be a handicap that will keep him from winning out if he does not correct it.

All business has social ramifications in these days, and it is just as necessary for a man to have good manners and know how to conduct himself at a dinner party as it is for him to have good morals and be honest and reliable and know his line of goods or his profession. A man must have a good address in order to "sell" himself to other people, and he certainly cannot do this if he doesn't know what to say to people or his way among the silver.

Many a man who sees inferior men get positions he craves and who wonders why he is not advanced could find the answer in his lack of knowledge of table etiquette.

I get many letters from both men and women complaining of the table manners of their wives and husbands, and I wonder why they did not find out beforehand what sort of an Emily Post they were marrying. Surely they must at some time have eaten together during the days of courtship. Anyway, I would suggest to all sweethearts that they check up, on the safe side of the altar, on each other's skill in handling knives and forks.

• • • • • • •

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a boy of 19. I have a car. I go to school. I have girl friends. I have guns and a hunting dog. I play high school football. I am in good health. I have plenty of clothes. I have everything a boy could desire. There is nothing I want. I like the city I live in. Still I am unhappy. When I am alone I almost cry. Please tell we what to do. KEN.

ANSWER:

The trouble with you is that you are surfeited with good things and what you need is a little trouble. You have an overdose of cake that has soured on your stomach and given you indigestion. It is one of life's little ironies that the things that we get too easily bring us no happiness. When everything is handed to us on a silver salver we do not value it. The things that we enjoy are the things that we have had to work for and wait for and deny ourselves for.

I once heard another boy of your age, who, like you, had been born with a silver spoon in his mouth, say impatiently upon receiving a gift from his overly indulgent mother, that he wished he could really want something. He wished that he could desire something he couldn't get. He thought there must be a thrill in that, but he had never known it, for if he had even expressed a most casual liking for anything his mother rushed out and bought it for him before he really know whether he wanted it or not.

Another reason for your unhappiness is that you haven't settled down to your life work yet. You are purposeless. You haven't set any goal to which you are struggling. You are not doing any worthwhile work and idle people are always restless, dissatisfied, unhappy people.

As long as you think about yourself you will be unhappy. The only real cure for unhappiness is work and unselfishness. Find something to do that will give you an objective in life and then try to make other people happy and you will find happiness yourself.

Don't take your condition too seriously. Adolescents are always filled with vague yearnings and sentimental miseries, but these vapors pass. They are symptomatic of your time of life.

Mistakes in Dog Care You're Wise to Avoid

You really need to know very little to raise a happy dog. But how important it is to be sure that little is right.

There's that mistaken idea that dogs need lots of baths in hot weather. It's all wrong! Dogs don't have sweat glands—but they do have oil glands which excessive bathing dries up. Then skin troubles begin. Much better to keep your dog's coat clean with daily combing.

And the idea that eating meat makes a dog vicious. From the time he's three weeks old a dog should eat beef, lamb and liver.

Important, too, to know the difference between an ordinary fit and rabies symptoms. Contrary to popular belief, dogs with rabies do not froth at the mouth.

Get the right and wrong of the important points in dog care from out 32-page booklet by an authority on dogs. Diet, ailments, grooming, housebreaking in detail. Also how to teach your dog manners, clever tricks.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO CHOOSE AND CARE FOR A DOG to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of promotion, honors, preferment and favors from superiors, elders and those in places of power and influence. It is a time to seek these and be ready to make the definite changes waiting upon large opportunities. Tact, sagacity, or secret understandings, however, may be required.

A child born on this day may have an adventurous, ambitious and serious character, which may attract the attention of elders and those in power. Through them it may enjoy many benefices and preferments, possibly an inheritance.

For Monday, July 18.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of great enterprise, with much initiative in promoting new and important projects. Merit, sound plans, and creative energies of high order are bound to gain financial co-operation, although there may be certain elements of a speculative nature. These should not discourage, although there is a warning against some loss, probably a personal possession.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unusual activity, with the energies and creative faculties keyed up to high pressure in a productive channel. This may attract capital, if workable plans are sound and practical. A quick turnover may be advisable, but be careful with papers and personal possessions, especially while in transit.

A child born on this day may have a high-nervous, energetic and keyed-up temperament. Still it should have sound judgment and creative ideas for swift operation and surprising gains on speculative propositions.

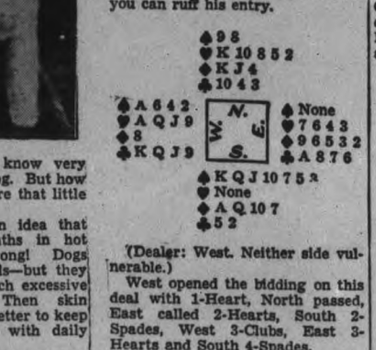
"The Authority on Authorities"

GOOD NIGHT RUFF!

IF THE opponent who wants to ruff a particular suit cannot get his partner into the lead, the chances for the ruff go a-glimmering. Drawing the defenders' trumps is the surest way to prevent a ruff, but when that cannot be done in time, it still may be possible to knock the entry out of the dangerous adversary's hand, or blank your own holding so that you can ruff his entry.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Heart, North passed, East called 2-Hearts, South 2-Spades, West 3-Clubs, East 3-Hearts and South 4-Spades.

The club K was led and when East signaled high, indicating the A, West switched to his singleton diamond, expecting to get right in with the spade A. A club then to East would have brought the return of a diamond for a ruff and the setting of the contract.

The declarer, being fully aware of what West had in mind, decided to thwart him if possible. He won the diamond 8 lead with the K in dummy, and played the heart K, feeling sure from the bidding that West would have to win the trick. On this South tossed his losing club. It was then too late to put East in the lead; for South was able to ruff the next club lead.

Here is an idea for a picnic. Pack the lunches, even to the forks, in individual boxes—one for each person. Then only the hot dish and the beverage has to be passed.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf, the shadow boy with the turned-about name, was watching his master, little Frank, playing marbles. As a matter of fact, Frank had only one marble. It was a very beautiful marble, and Frank was very proud of it.

"Watch ut! Be careful it does not roll down the steps!" Knarf kept warning his master. But the boy paid no attention whatever to his shadow.

They both raced after it.

It would have been better if Frank had heard his shadow, though. For the next moment he gave the marble an extra hard roll and—presto! down the steps it went.

"Quick! Catch it before it gets to the bottom," Knarf shouted. "Don't let it roll down the hill."

Alas, the marble, glad to be off on a long journey (for it was tired of being rolled from corner to corner of the same old garden patch), did not wait for the boy to catch it. It bounced off the last step, then rolled swiftly between the pickets of the gate and started merrily down the long hill.

Race After Marble.

The boy and his shadow both raced after it. Sometimes the boy was in front, and sometimes it was the shadow who was ahead.

"I'll get it! It can't roll much farther!" the boy kept saying as he ran.

But the marble only laughed and went rolling off faster than ever. And then, all at once, it spied a pile of leaves. "Leaves! Humph—I'll go right through them," it said to itself.

Then into the pile of leaves it went. They weren't very big leaves, but there were a great many of them. And each one of them held the marble back a little bit. It pushed against them with all its might. "Keep out of my way.... ugh! ... keep out of my way! But the leaves didn't move. They just stayed there. And that's what the marble did, too. It just stayed there. And that's where little Frank found it and picked it up and gladly brought it home.

Soft And Smooth

Dryness of hands, the skin parched and the cuticles hard is one of the troubles which beset women in summer.

This may be overcome by bathing them weekly in a bath of warm olive oil with a teaspoon of lemon juice added. Wash in just-warm soft water, dry carefully, and rub in an emollient lotion.

Forrest—Windrem

MOUNT PLEASANT, July 16.—A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Jones, of Mount Pleasant, when Edith Mary, daughter of Mrs. Mary Windrem and the late Wm. Henry Windrem, was united in marriage to James Bruce Forrest, only son of Mrs. Susan Forrest of Bobcaygeon.

Rev. C. H. Ferguson of Bethany officiated. The ceremony took place in the living room beneath a bridal arch centred by a large white bell and banked with baskets and sprays of white and pink peonies and blue delphiniums. The wedding music was played by Miss Viola Hall of Lindsay.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother Harold, wore a becoming gown of dusty pink Paris crepe with shirred jacket of the same material. Her halo hat, gloves and shoes were white and she wore a shoulder corsage of roses, blue cornflowers and forget-me-nots. Mrs. Leonard Wilson of Young's Point, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, and wore a jacket frock of yellow sharkskin with brown and yellow accessories. Mr. Leonard Wilson was groomsman.

During the signing of the register Mrs. Harold Windrem of Lindsay sang very sweetly "O, Promise Me."

A sumptuous wedding tea was served to the immediate families at tables beautifully appointed in pink and white and centred by the bride's cake. Those assisting in serving were Misses Viola Hall and Dorothy Carscadden of Lindsay and Melville Quinn and Boyd Windrem.

The happy couple left amid good wishes for a motor trip eastward to Kingston and the Thousand Islands. The bride travelled in a becoming suit of beige. On their return they will reside in Arntfield, Quebec.

The bride, looking lovely in a white georgette gown, on princess lines, and puff sleeves, and wearing a three-quarter length veil, was given in marriage by her father. She carried a corsage of pink roses and baby's breath.

She was attended by Mrs. Archie Hinds of Belmont, who wore blue triple sheer crepe, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Archie Hinds acted as best man.

Flannel Dress

Slim lines, flared through the skirt for comfort in action, are accented by a white slide fastener at the full-length front closing of this smart little summer sports frock in fine navy flannel.

The white touch is repeated at the self-fabric belt, and a patch pocket is a nice detail. A white scarf tucked in at the roll-over neckline is another youthful touch.

We Noticed

...A rust and cream printed pique made with the tiniest of peplums, and worn with the largest of rust straw brims, cream straps of pique criss-crossed for a crown. Bands of the same material were criss-crossed for the shoes!

...Someone else in cornflower blue print with sprigs of buttercups (perhaps). The same shades were echoed in a cleverly-tied kerchief worn on the head, and in the tricky linen sandals with high, high heels.

...In marked contrast to such a riot of prints was the simply tailored black frock worn by a business girl. A white straw disk, held on her head by black bands of lacing through the crown, white lace gloves, and white leather bag completed a chic ensemble.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

Outdoors Perfect Setting For a Tea

Tea in the garden—that's the good word for Summer, 1938, for there are garden dresses and they have to go to Garden Parties.

The tea must be as elegrant as the alfresco tea-ing is informal. First of all, the tea table must be a thing of beauty and done to perfection. A table large enough to accommodate everything without crowing—the most beautiful linen—a silver tea service, complete, silver cake dish for petit-fours, silver sandwich trays, lemon dishes, and candy shells are essential. A large, hot water urn is almost a necessity for a large tea.

Lovely ladies who preside over the tea table change temps entemps, and in many gardens debutantes and sub-debs carry tea and fixings to the guests who sit or stroll about the garden.

Teaspoons should not be too heavy and clumsy. They do not balance well on saucers for the lady who takes her tea "plain," and they are not in balance with the delicate china or porcelain of the really elegant tea cups. Exquisite plates and dainty serviettes, of course, add to the importance of the occasion.

Iced tea may be served on coasters that take care of the outside humidity of the glass and long slender teaspoons are the proper thing.

Silver flower containers in pairs or sets give added beauty to the tea table.

Many hostesses with charming gardens which reflect the personality, artistry and fine taste of the owner, give a series of garden parties during the periods when the gardens are at their best. It is a delightful way to entertain and adds to the gaiety of summer—also makes a colorful and delightful setting for the gracious lady whose garden it is.

White jewelry in cluster and flower designs is now in great demand.

White and Navy Is Smart Combination for Summer

A costume that is absolutely indispensable for summer wear, especially vaction wear, is the topcoat and a white or pastel colored spectator sports dress.

Frosty white sheer wool makes the sports dress shown here, the skirt of which shows below the hem of the three-quarters topcoat. It is designed on one-piece shirtwaist lines, with a full-length front closing which is fastened in navy. The navy accent is repeated in the tailored belt and a matching crepe scarf which tucks inside the high, convertible neckline.

The boxy coat is in navy lightweight wool angora camel's hair. Pear-shaped pockets, tiny high lapels, padded shoulders, and vent sides are fashionable details.

A careless little white felt or fabric hat with navy band, cool white or navy sandals and white gloves complete this smartly youthful costume.

Style Whimsies

The seafaring maiden this year goes "aboard the lugger" fully clothed, but discards hat, shoes and stockings, rolls up her slacks and goes to work bare footed and businesslike but with a flower pinned in her hair.

London shows a new suit for autumn with short jacket suit in wine and lime green check, with topcoat in solid wine and lime green tweeds.

Angora boleros are one of the season's big successes. Black is high style—meaning they are very stylish, but no so many of them. White, pastels and high shades are all worn.

Addie E. Wright Married In Trinity Church

Blue delphinium, white roses, ferns and palms decorated Trinity United Church for the wedding at 3.30 p.m. Saturday of Addie Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wright, 280 William street, who was united in marriage to Harold Albert, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Kearns, 111 Stewart street, Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiating.

Miss Mabel Clarry presided at the organ, and violin music was played during the signing of the register by Mr. Stanley Northrop.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white taffeta, made on princess lines forming into a train at the back. Her silk net veil fell gracefully from a Parisian pearl coronet, and she wore long white kid gloves and white brocaded slippers. Her bridal bouquet was of Talisman roses and sweet peas.

Miss Leona Wright, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing pink taffeta, toe-length, made with a short peplum, and blue ribbon bows at neck and waistline. Her picture hat was of blue mohair, and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

The charming little flower girl, Miss Helen Freeburn, niece of the bride, wore a pale blue taffeta frilled frock, and a dainty pink bonnet tied with blue ribbons. She carried a basket of sweet peas and rosebuds.

Mr. Carl Kearns was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Frank Millard and Mr. Stanley Northrop.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Mrs. Wright, mother of the bride, received the guests in black chiffon with orchid jacket, black mohair hat orchid trimmed, and a corsage of roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Kearns, mother of the groom, also received, wearing orchid chiffon with white mohair hat and corsage of Talisman roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a British tan dress with matching hat and shoes, beige gloves, purse and sheer beige coat.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Kearns will live at 190 Perry street.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The individual who is always a little late in appointments, reveals a weakness of character that punctual people are quick to observe. It is interesting to note that successful men are almost always punctual. It is a hard thing to hold a man's confidence while he waits for you to keep an appointment."—Van Amburgh.

Dear Friends:

We were talking, a few of us, the other day, and the subject came up about waiting. The opinion of most was that they hated waiting, for friends to meet them, for others to keep their promises, for others again who were slow and unpunctual in their appointments.

One lady who is a hairdresser said the amount of time and money people had wasted on her through this bad habit was simply appalling, until she made the appointments and then took the ones who came first.

And it is a disgusting habit alright. I have got to the stage where I tell anyone frankly I will not wait for them. If the time set is two-thirty, two-thirty it is, or I shall not be there. Sometimes we have something crop up at the last moment, but we should try in some manner to let the one who is waiting know.

But we should not let any trivial thing prevent us from keeping an appointment. I remember a case in point which happened years ago. I had promised to go to a certain lady's home at an exact time. Just as I was ready to go another lady came to see me.

When she saw I was dressed to go out, she said she would only stay a minute. So, we sat with our hats and coats on, and I kept telling her I was late for my appoinmtent, but she had one more thing to tell me which would only take a minute.

Well, believe it or not, she sat there blathering away until 4.30, and my appointment was for 2.30. I was humiliated, my other friend was angry with me so much that she would hardly speak to me.

And I learned my lesson then. Now, if anyone comes along and I have an appointment I gently shunt them out and make another date for them to see me. I will not allow anyone to make me do to another what I so deeply resnt being done to myself.

It is so easy to get into that habit, but it certainly shows a weakness of character, an instability, so that no one cannot really depend on that person to do what they promise.

And I have noticed that those sort of people are ready promisers. They will do this, surely, but they forget quickly, or think time does not matter.

One lady said she even had to wait a long time for her prayers to be answered, but I replied that maybe she did not start early enough, maybe she was the one who waited too long before she sent her prayers winging up to God. And that aspect of it had not occurred to her.

There are certain things we must wait for, birth and death, the slow hours and days of getting better after an illness, the dark cloud to turn silver, bleak days to turn into gay ones. All these we know we must do, it is the ones we should not have to wait for that annoys us so much.

So, learn to be punctual and keep your friends. Learn that time is money, that much can be lost when you dally around getting dressed, or fiddling around putting in time when you are being paid for that time.

You know how you hate standing on one foot and then the other waiting on some one else, so be sure you do not commit the same offence.

Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Good Health Key To Beauty Always

Excellent health is the foundation of moderns' conception of true beauty—the clear-skinned, sparkling-eyed variety which does not fade all too quickly with the years.

Experts say, and famous beauties of the stage and screen concur, that on sound physical condition depends the loveliness of one's nails, figure and hair, as well as skin and eyes. Not every girl can be beautiful, or even pretty, but there's not a woman who cannot be attractive. That is, if her health habits are above reproach and she has learned to buy clothes that are really flattering, wear makeup which is truly becoming, arrange her hair to set off her best features and keep a bright point of view on this business of living.

See Doctor Before Dieting

If it has been years since you have had a thorough physical examination, by all means try to see your family doctor as soon as possible. This is especially important if you contemplate going in more seriously for setting-up exercises or trying to diet which includes many non-fattening items that heretofore have not been included in your daily menus. Exercises or no, an annual check-up is an excellent practice, particularly after you are 30.

If you follow in the footsteps of the average topnotch Hollywood star—to whom beauty is so valuable an asset—you'll talke a long walk or play a game of some kind once a day, and, in addition, do posture limbering and stretching exercises every morning. For more attractive nails and hair, you'll drink quantities of calcium-rich orange juice and milk, and eat more vegetables, salads, fresh and stewed fruits than rich pastries, heavy starches and the like. You'll sleep at least eight hours every night. And if you get much less sleep than that one night, you'll go to bed earlier and sleep nine or ten hours the next.

You'll always be scrupulously clean from head to foot, of course. You won't brush your teeth in hit or miss fashion, and you will see your dentist at least every six months.

You'll buy the right makeup for your complexion, practice getting it on quickly and correctly. You'll be even more conscientious about learning to "stand tall" with chest high, backbone straight, stomach flat, weight evenly distributed on both feet.

You'll have one beauty preparation to correct whatever complexion defect you have. Besides it, you'll have only a few, well-chosen items, but these will be applied regularly and with utmost care.

You'll take good care of your clothes, too, keeping them pressed and clean and seeing that they really fit smoothly.

What! A Taxi Dancer at a Washington Prom?

Noel's heart skipped a beat when the attractive red-haired young man said he thought he had met her at a prom in Washington. It was quite possible, she reflected, but a taxi dancer hardly could admit it. Now her job seemed to depend on her ability to convince this chap that he was mistaken! It wasn't so simple to live in

SALLY'S SALLIES

When it comes to throwing money around, some people are born members of the anti-litter movement.

PRIESTS IN SCUFFLE

BENARES—(CP). — Police were called to restore order in the Hindu temple of Viswaneth here after priests were injured in a scuffle following a dispute as to rightful celebrants of high ritual.

CHECK RAILWAY SPEED

CALCUTTA—(CP). — The India Railways Board is considering installing speedometers in locomotives, it being found "that a speed of 45 miles on hour is quite compatible with safety."

THE GUMPS

New Direction Finder Records Wind

PASADENA, Calif., July 16 (AP) —Wind speeds in the stratosphere, one of the "great unknowns" of the weather, register themselves on a new radio direction finder at the California Institute of Technology here.

The finder is an automatic weather-man, who sits on a roof and records the vertical and horizontal angle of radio balloons such as the United States weather bureau is sending into the stratosphere to report temperature, humidity and pressure.

Details of the new weather aide were made public today. It has been developed by Captain O. C. Mair, and L. E. Wood in the department of Meteorology under direction of Dr. Irving P. Krick.

Little has been known about stratosphere and upper air currents. The horizontal drift of a balloon, or a rare meteor trail has been used for comutation.

The automatic finder writes the angle on a chart. It has a parabolic antenna, fan-shape, which revolves like a compass needle fast enough to sweep around the whole horizon one to four times a minute.

Seven feet below the antenna is a pointer which the movement of the antenna swings round and round over a big chart marked with compass directions. Each time the antenna points in the direction of the weather balloon, the moving pointer dips and makes a short mark on the chart. The marks record the direction of flight.

Clock Lends Aid.

Other devices, picking up the altitude signals from the weather balloon and the angle of the balloon's position away from the vertical, plot its vertical course. With this data, and a clock, the observer computes the speed of the balloon's drift. This drift is always the same as the wind.

The new direction finder is the smallest yet made. This is an advantage for weather reporting which requires easily portable automatic "observers." The new finder could be placed on ships to record the wholly unknown winds over the Atlantic ocean.

It is 10 feet high and seven feet across at the top. The chart table is 40 inches square to permit a two hour run.

The small size, one-third that of other types of radio direction receivers, is made possible by use of a very short radio wave, 1.67 metres. With a seven metre wave the automatic weather man would need to be perched 60 feet above ground. For the short wave he is set up seven feet.
